SUNDAY, June 20, 1915, will be observed throughout the United States as "Fathers' Day," when all who wish to honor and respect the memory of Father, living or dead, will wear a rose,—a white one for those who have gone on, a red one for the fathers still with us. "Fathers' Day," as a companion day to "Mothers' Day," was proposed by Mrs. John B. Dodd, of Spokane, Wash., in 1911 and has been celebrated more or less generally throughout the United States each succeeding year. The custom is growing in favor, and there is every reason to believe that "Fathers' Day" will become as popular as "Mothers' Day" as indeed it should be.
