1973

The Whitworthian 1972-1973

Whitworth University

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.whitworth.edu/whitworthian

Recommended Citation
http://digitalcommons.whitworth.edu/whitworthian/10

This text is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at Whitworth University. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Whitworthian Student Newspaper by an authorized administrator of Whitworth University.
Six new dorms built around themes

by Mark Frederick

Six new theme dorms were added to the Whitworth dorm system this year. They include a co-op dorm, a human identity dorm, two study dorms, and two traditional dorms. All but the traditional dorms were built around a particular theme selected last year. Other dorms were considered last year, but there was not enough popular support to retain them.

The existing theme dorms are all located behind Stewart Hall. There are around twenty people per hall, ten upstairs and ten downstairs. With the exception of the two study halls, the girls occupy the upstairs floor and the guys occupy downstairs.

There are eight single rooms and one double room per floor. Each dorm has a lounge, storage room, and laundry room, and these are clearly marked with bold white letters.

Two resident counselors supervise the six dorms and each dorm has its own resident assistant. The dorms mostly consist of upperclassmen. This tends to result in a definite atmosphere of maturity and responsibility.

 Asked about the differences between the theme dorms as opposed to the conventional dorms, the following answers were given:

Heather James - "It's a real 'homey' atmosphere, open and relaxed."

Bill Steele - "The rooms are uncomfortable...as if they were designed for people who live very simple lives."

Ed Murphy - "It's a microcosm of living on the outside...an experiment of community living."

Michelle Baugh, of Traditional #1 probably expressed the attitude of the theme dorms best when she said, "Although there are many problems and hardships, the advantages far outweigh the disadvantages."

Fieldhouse tax needs trustee nod

Construction will start this year to remodel the Fieldhouse if the Board of Trustees approves a change in the use of student monies at a meeting next week. The student senate passed a motion Wednesday to tax students $15 per year for five years, replacing a $15 counseling fee which the school will take over next year. The tax would be included in student body fees, with each student paying $7.50 per semester. Between $90 and 100 thousand would be collected over the five year period.

This, added to $150,000 pledged by one trustee, can guarantee getting a loan to start construction. ASWC treasurer Les Hyder said he hopes it will open up other avenues for fieldhouse funding, such as the federal government's Title I program and other contributions.

The renovated fieldhouse will be an economic complex for the whole student body, not just varsity sports. Bleachers, a weight lifting system, astro-turf flooring, and a basketball floor are included in the plans. But Les said a swimming pool was not included.

Programmed Data Processor computer opens for use

Whitworth's new PDP 11 computer opened this fall for general use in the university's library. It was announced by Mr. Robert McCroskey, computer systems manager.

PDP 11, which stands for Programmed Data Processor, was manufactured by the Digital Equipment Corporation. The basic components of the new computer cost $110,000.

The entire system consists of a central processor, a core memory, a disk memory system, a card reader, a line printer, and nine terminals, two of which use television tubes for displays. The computer terminals are located near the periodical sections in the basement of the library.

The PDP 11 will handle administrative bookkeeping, record scheduled and graded, and handle programs of the various departments and of the students.

"The computer is capable of storing and using a large variety of programs," Mr. McCroskey stated.

The computer may be used by anyone on campus. A special library file tutors users on such subjects as "Library Use and Research Techniques," "Christian Life and Teachings," and foreign languages. Developed by Dr. Ronald Turner of the department, the literature files will become fairly extensive, but, as Mr. McCroskey cautioned, "We can't be too sure until a file is in operation for a while."

A person may also write and use his own program. Several programs can be run at the same time using the "time sharing" system. The computer alters from one user to the next, switching programs every few hundredths of a second. "This occurs so fast that anyone sitting at a terminal has the feeling that he alone is running the computer," McCroskey explained.

Whitworth offers a course in computer programing, teaching the Basic language. If enough interest develops, evening seminars may be offered, said McCroskey.

"Nurse the Computer" contest is planned. "I think this is always a fun thing to do," McCroskey commented. The computer has suffered some breaking-in problems. A faulty logic circuit closed the machine over one weekend, and one of the disk memories will have to be replaced. These parts are covered by warranty.

In the future, Mr. McCroskey hopes to purchase a regular IBM magnetic tape memory system, which has "enormous storage capacity."

Two more terminals may be installed outside the library, one in the science building and one in the Fine Arts building for use by the math department.

Women take over Washington wing

Washington of Arden Hall finally went completely coed this year when the west side of Washington became inhabited by women and the men were evicted by one night. Marthas and Mediterranes residents looked upon the change as a favorable improvement over last year's residents.

All but a handful of the Washington residents are freshmen. When asked about the advantages or disadvantages of a coed dorm, the majority of girls responded that they really liked their situation and strongly preferred it over all girl dorm.

An interesting situation in Washington is that a guy, Paul Ellis, was chosen as dorm president. This is because the basement of Arden Hall, which has a major population, is also called Washington.

There were rumors floating around that because Washington was all girls that there would be a change in the name of the dorm...possibly to something like Washington. However, at this point, there is no truth to these rumors.
EDITORIALS

Publications plug onward

An archaic Whitworth was recently pulled across campus loaded with vying equipment, layout disks and Webster's dictionary. Changing from the old Journalism building to the new publications office in Westminster Hall, the Whitworthian finally has its wheels in motion.

The Whitworthian boasts of 35 staff members with the booming enthusiasm necessary to turn the midnight oil and overcome first issue confusions. We hope to keep the pressure rolling with journalistic endeavors that will match the optimism and quality of Whitworth students this year.

C.S.

YAWN... .

It took one night to learn what being an editor is all about. (Yawn.)

No, that’s not a bored yawn, it’s a tired one. An enthused staff came running in off and on all day, just waiting for something to do. Unfortunately, due to mixups with equipment, there was little to do until 10 p.m.

But one knows that the moments after three o’clock are the most rewarding. (Yawn.) It is then that one sees their page taking shape, and all the work of a week finally pays off.

It is also then that one discovers all the things he should have done before 10 p.m.

The most gratifying part is waking up the next noon to find that somehow the staff in reading year paper. An editor can only hope that the people he writes for will keep positive and negative input coming into the paper so that he will know it is their paper, as well as his own.

M.V.

Girls blew their chance

Girls sure blew their big chance to show the guys something dating at last’ Saturday’s BYOM (Bring Your Own Max) show and dance.

Let’s assume that about two out of every five girls were invited. (I doubt if the ratio was really that high.)

But remember, this was a special night, there would therefore be twice as many dates as on an average weekend night. So, projecting the girl-boy ratio amount on an average weekend night, we get a ratio of one out of every five girls asked out.

Now note that the girl-boy ratio on campus is about two to one. This means that one out of five girls asked out, only one out of ten girls must have asked.

Switch the roles and revert back to the normal (??) guy-girl ratio and assume that one out of every two girls asks a girl out, then (remember-the girl-boy ratio is 2:1) one out of every twenty girls should be asked out on any average weekend night. I’m quite sure that there are actually more girls than this asked out—

Girls before you ask, “What is wrong with Whitworth guys? They never ask any girls out,” snap and think how well YOU perform on your night to show the guys how it should be done.

Foreign students adapt to U S A

"Getting to know the foreign students is a tremendous experience," comments Mrs. Lilian Whitemore, foreign student advisor. "This is why we feel our foreign students offer a new dimension to our campuses that are not even a more complete community.

Last year Whitworth had more foreign students per capita than any other college in the Inland Empire (Montana, Northern Idaho, Eastern Washington), and this year many of those same students have returned, and new ones have arrived.

Most of the students who come to Whitworth are not only here to learn about their customs and cultures, but also to learn about their American counterparts. For instance, many of the foreign students come from the Far East and study medicine, business, or education. Ineligible for federal grants or scholarships, the foreign students come here to earn money to pay for their educations on their own, with some scholarship aid available through Whitworth.

There is no exchange program such as, so transportation must also be paid for.

Most problems confront the foreign students when they first arrive at an American college. There is the initial "culture shock," as well as the inevitable problems with the language. "Blueskies" and American idioms are especially difficult to comprehend. For example, phrases such as "Cool it" or "Hang in there" or "Drop in sometime" can be prepositional when taken literally.

Certain customs and habits of behavior which American students take for granted are new and unusual.

New and different games and entertainment are foreign to the foreign students. Before the first football game Walt Oliver went to the English class of the students to explain the basic rules plays and equipment. To demonstrate the football players had to take a physical education course in Thailand as his model and completely outfitted him in helmet and shoulder pads.

Many of the foreign students adopt nicknames which are usually confusing to American students, but frequently American students are unable to pronounce their real names.

Girls going strong

Han Whitworth sees a change over in college life? It seems so after this weekend’s “BYOM” (Bring Your Own Max) show and dance.

The women students at Whitworth came to the Saturday night at 9:00 in the Fieldhouse to do a little socializing and hand clapping.

With good old apple cider and donuts being served as refreshments, the 50 to 60 Whitworthian danced on to songs like, "Johnny Oh,” and the Virginia Reel. Some of the folks attending even dressed appropriately in picture booths.

When asked about a girl’s choice, dance here at Whitworth, one girl replied, "I’m kind of scared to ask a guy.” And from another astonished square dancer, "I’d like to see more activities like this. Not specifying girls or boys choice, just everyone come in couples or not.

So, it looks as if past school norms of boy-girl may be taking a tumble. More and more single women of Whitworth this may prove to be an interesting year.

THE WHITWORTHIAN

[...]

Girls blew their chance

Girls sure blew their big chance to show the guys something dating at last weekend’s BYOM (Bring Your Own Max) show and dance.

Let’s assume that about two out of every five girls were invited. (I doubt if the ratio was really that high.)

But remember, this was a special night, there would therefore be twice as many dates as on an average weekend night. So, projecting the girl-boy ratio are on an average weekend night, we get a ratio of one out of every five girls asked out.

Now note that the girl-boy ratio on campus is about two to one. This means that...
WASHINGTON GOVERNOR Dan Evans, right, discusses issues with professor Homer Cun­ningham. Evans spoke at forum Sept. 12 and later answered questions in the HUB. Photo by Travis Prewitt.

Forum series begins with Governor Evans

Washington State Governor Daniel J. Evans kicked off this year’s forum Sept. 12, taking time out from his job as governor, candidate for governor, and father to discuss Washington politics in 1972.

"I came close to ending one of those jobs," Evans told Whitworth students. "My eight-year-old said, 'Daddy, I hope you lose. Then you'll have more time with us.'"

Evans termed Washington’s 400,000 potential first-time voters, aged 18-25, as a "monumental force." He said, "A victory by 100,000 votes is a big victory in this state.

Evans said Washington has come a long way, but has a capacity to go a lot further. He cited several examples of accomplishments in the state.

Washington’s tax burden ranks 29 in the nation. "Look at where we are against the competition," he said. "We do well indeed."

Washington citizens have completed an average number of school years second only to Utah. Hundreds of institutions exist in the state now for mentally ill and mentally retarded persons, compared to nothing seven or eight years ago.

"The caseload of public assistance is far below the national average despite our economic situation," Evans told students. "We provide a little more than other states for those who need help. We have better ways of handling the problems and needs of the elderly."

He said the state has also done well in prison reform under the human resource program. Forty percent of those who come out of jail fall, Evans said, and are a danger to society. New programs are being tried to prevent this, such as furlough or a work-release set up.

"This is a measurement of the past," Evans said. "You can’t change the past. But you can help guide the future and change the direction of the future."

Evans urged Washington voters to push six referendum in the Washington Future program. These referenda deal with pollution, mass transportation, recreation, health centers, community colleges, and shorelines management.

Evans said the most important thing right now is closing the gap where it relates to government. He mentioned the people’s unwillingness to raise taxes and their desire and need for services.

"The way to close the gap," he said, "is to ask people in the state and across the nation to contribute more than money. They can contribute time. There is a new sense of volunteerism. In Washington we’re reading the charge among the people in the nation.

He said 39,000 volunteers have been organized into a volunteer basis. "The cost would add markedly to the tax burden. Many have received help from those programs," He gave examples of student interns, foster grandparents for retired children, and elderly volunteers who would feel left out of the community otherwise.

"This has a taxpayer’s dividend as well as a human dividend. It would cost $1,000 to take care of one child for a lifetime. The foster grandparents lift the burden of society.

"There is more to be done," he concluded, "and we can, only if we have the will to achieve it.

Presbyterian men invite under-25’s

Nick Morse, a Whitworth sophomore who is a national youth representative to United Presbyterian Men, will speak at a Washington-Alaska symposium meeting Saturday, Oct. 7. Men under age 25 are invited to attend the meeting in Ephrata from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The theme of the meeting will be "The Mission of the Church, Sanctuary and Street."

Morse will speak on youth participation in the church and Presbyterian Men meeting in St. Louis of last year and this year. Any interested in attending should contact him in South Warren.

Director needed for Wilderness Program

Within the next couple of weeks, a brochure will be given to each Whitworth student describing the Wilderness Activity Program. Before student participation can be generated, however, a director for the program must be found.

According to Ron Leighton, Whitworth student body president, "A lot of money has been invested into a lot of equipment—tents, snowshoes, canoes and anything related to out-of-doors." He commented that there is "a possibility of this being a unique, experience-type program...people can organize many things as hiking, mountain climbing and camping."

Leighton is looking for a director that has "interest in wilderness activities, knowledge of the out-of-doors and that kind of equipment. He should also have some organizational abilities, because that’s where we’ve been lacking in the past...the job is primarily an organizational one."

He added that "without a good organization, then people who are intended to use it really don’t have it available to them."

Students and resident counselors have been considered for the job as director, but it is not limited specifically to them.

Volunteers are also needed to work with the program, performing such duties as checking out equipment and being available in the Wilderness Activities office.

In the past, the wilderness program has primarily been limited to people doing things on their own for short weekend ventures—all they had to do was check-out the equipment and rent it for a minimum price. Such an opportunity will be available again this year, but Leighton stressed that the group’s main goals will be organizing trips and possibly getting guides. But it depends on the students," he said.

Another possibility being considered in the program is cross-country skiing and snowshoeing during winter months. Regular snow skis and snowmobiles, however, are not available. The program for 1972 will be students’ participation. Leighton said that in the past "few people have known about it or taken advantage of it. But it is a chance to do. "Whatever your imagination leads you to," he said.

KOOTENAI FALLS near Libby, Montana, had to substitute for Glacier National Park last weekend when snow forced the physical geology class to cut their field trip short and return two days early. The class spent Friday night in Kalispell, Mont. Dr. Edwin Olson didn’t waste the trip, however, as he showed here explaining ripple marks in rocks at Kootenai Falls to Tammy Cooper. Photo by Mary Wodford.
Bookstore's items interest many

by Julie Neras

You don't have to be a bookworm to visit Whitworth's student bookstore. Its main selling item is books, but the stock also includes such essentials as posters, candy, t-shirts, birthday cards, envelopes, organic cookbooks, umbrellas, and even laundry bags!

Perhaps you've had the impression that a student bookstore is actually a legalized monopoly aimed at catching the savings from your pocketbook. Not so at Whitworth! The bookstore, located in the Hub, takes great pains to supply students with materials needed for various classes, usually encountering difficulty just in making financial ends meet. In fact, shoplifting problems have often caused severe budget problems.

Mindful of their "aiming to please policy," the bookstore will order any book that is in print. Film can also be processed for a nominal fee.

Many outside students take advantage of Whitworth's store, including nursing students from Gonzaga, Spokane Falls, and Eastern. School teachers in this area also find what they are looking for at the Hub.

Currently, the newly developed Co-Op is taking over the sales of mic-sac items such as candy, shampoo and the like. The move will allow the bookstore to concentrate primarily on books.

Store hours are from 9:00 to 4:30 weekdays, and from 11:00 to 1:30 Saturdays.

Cashier Karen Chernside and sophomore Laurie Anderson exchange greetings over the counter.

The friendly atmosphere of Saga does not stop at the dining hall but continues on in the HUB.

Saga seeks student suggestions

by Cindy Irwin

Milk runners, line servers, pot washers, fry cooks, sack lunch makers, janitors, ID checkers, and dessert-dispensing girls...what do these people have in common? They all work at Saga Food Service, an international corporation that serves 250 colleges and universities in the United States.

Saga is the largest student employer on the Whitworth campus, hiring 34 students to help feed 800 ever-hungry daily customers in the cafeteria and the Hub snack bar.

Since over 100 meal tickets had to be replaced last year, Saga has a new policy.

Campus chivalry studied

by Mark Frederick

If you happened to be walking through the Hub, Friday, and noticed a girl repeatedly dropping her books, don't be alarmed. The girls at Whitworth haven't lost their coordination. It was all part of an experiment conducted by five students of the Psychology 101 class. The experiment took place Friday afternoon, September 22.

It was designed to see who was more chivalrous, the male or the female. A girl would approach a passing student. Once she was in range, she would clumsily spill her books and note the reaction. The reaction of the student subject was divided into three categories - complete help, partial help, or no help.

According to the experimenters, there were some interesting and amusing incidents from the experiment. By the way, if you're curious about the results, 66% of the men gave complete help, and 40% of the women offered no help at all, while 20% of the women offered complete help, 10% offered partial assistance, and 70% offered no help.

Jack's Heritage Barber Shop

by Carm Chandler

Haircuts the way YOU like them!

Carm Chandler

Next to the Red Barn

razor cuts...

HAIRSTYLING...

Straightening

Afros

Make an appointment or come in anytime

SEPTEMBER 29, 1972
Black and white is beautiful!

by Rick Milz

"Let's go through it. It's a definite amber."

"No -- a definite green. Let's go through it again. We won't bother proceeding with caution. We'll show 'em."

"The sign doesn't say anything about green -- just red and amber."

Some of my favorite browns have turned out to be green. Some of my favorite blues have turned out to be purple. And some of my favorite yellows have turned out to be red. Which just goes to show you can't trust anyone under 20-20 vision.

I am color blind. My pants don't match my shirts, my sweaters don't match my ties, my scarves don't match my coats, my pajamas don't match my bed liners and my socks are the product of a broken home.

I am a member of a forgotten silent minority group, discriminated against because we pledge allegiance to a flag that is yellow, white and purple; because as children we followed the orange brick road; and because to us Red China is just another pretty shade of gold.

Myopic mass protest

Recently, Irving, a color blind (pink) that read "Black and White is Beautiful." We got in my little yellow car (red), and drove on until we approached a flashing light over a sign that read: "Please carefully flush the amber, stop on flashing red."

"What's amber?" Irving asked as we drove toward the light.

"Sort of a cross between green and blue -- like your sweater," I said, pointing to his mauve sweater.

"My sweater's not amber," he said. "It's coral, like your jacket."

"My jacket just happens to be aqua-marine," I said.

"Look," Irving said. "Are we going to stop at this light or aren't we?"

by Isotha Granath

Filling in for "Summer of 42," last Friday's film, "Night Visitor" brought an evening of suspense and the "Mission Impossible" type of film to campus.

Creditable performances by Trevor Howard as a discerning detective and Max von Sydow as a veiled man highlighted "Night Visitor's" European cast. Director Larlyi Bogodes kept the suspense level high throughout the film.

The plot ran along the lines of Salem, the maniac escaping in and out of the asylum to terrorize people. His clever moves were like regular "Mission Impossible" feats.

Incoming frosh face traumatic ordeals

by Leslie Morgan

Freshmen are notorious for their dumb mistakes. Following are a few of the many my friends and I made in the first three weeks at Whitworth.

Walking around campus the first day with your dorm name tag on.

Walking to Saga with your dinner escort and turning your ankle.

Getting to class late and having the teacher remark, "It's about time you got here."

Finally getting to class early and walking into the room to find that the previous class isn't cut out.

Sliding down the entire flight of steps to the Little Theater and crashing into the person in front of you who just happens to be a professor.

Dropping your pork chops onto the carpet at Saga in a front of a table of upperclassmen.

Stepping on a pine cone and spraining your ankle.

Telling everyone that asks you a question why you came to Whitworth.

Overfilling your glass and eating from a tray submerged under two inches of orange juice.

Stepping in a mud puddle at Orientation and having a dirty ankle the rest of the day.

That's only three weeks worth. Just wait until the end of the year.

Murder movie reviewed:

Whitworth harbors "Night Visitor"

The film also demonstrated excellent movie making techniques. The audience felt the penetrating cold shown in the bluish tones of the outdoor scenes. Yellow, glowing indoor shots communicated warmth. (That is, when chilling and terrible scenes weren't taking place!) Good scenery, including a brilliant Scandinavian sunset highlighted the film.

However brilliant these aspects of the film were, the theme of violence and suspense soon faded. Visual suspense becomes tiring, for example the long painting shots of the ominous insane asylum or the lurking form of the maniac Salen hiding within striking distance. Sometimes the action strayed into the unbelievable. The paper weight on the girl's head was a bit much and added little to the plot or suspense.

With suspense drawn out to the end, "Night Visitor" ends superbly. Justice finally done, and by way of a grotesque pair.
Pirates win opener passers set record

The season opener for the Pirates resulted in a 53-43 victory over the always tough Lewis & Clark Pioneers. In the process of winning the Bucs also compiled a record setting 741 total yards (306-passing, 435-rushing). The Pirates behind quarterbacks George Perry, and Bruce Cole, jumped to a 24-21 half time lead. Lewis and Clark opened the scoring and during the first half the teams exchanged possession of the lead six times. With only 18:59 left to play L.C. tied it at 45-43 capping a 61 yard drive. Following the kick off SFCC’s Forbes crashed into the L.C. six yard line. On third down freshman running back Brian O’Hara smashed over the goal line for a 7 point lead. Later Steve Rasmussen booted a 31 yard field goal to secure the win for the Bucs.

P.L.U. upsets Bucs, 12-7

Defending champions, Pacific Lutheran University, snapped the Pirates last Saturday July 29th. The Bucs, playing on home ground, lost the game convincingly.

With a 7-0 lead the Pirates set up PLU’s comeback by fumbling a punt on their own 24 yard line.

The Whitworth defense couldn’t contain the PLU Knights from scoring but did preserve their lead by stopping the two point conversion attempt.

The Bucs, holding a one point lead, played very conservative football and on a fourth down and 13 were forced to punt. A low snap from Dan McCash to punter Steve Rasmussen allowed for the seven yard punt, giving the Lutes the ball on the Pirates’ 22.

Five plays later Whitworth trailed 12-7. The Bucs made an unsuccessful comeback surge with 2:06 remaining. Brian O’Hara carried to the Bucs 34 for a Pirate first down. Cole then hit Allen for 16 yards and two plays later for 16 more. A completion to Mel Stubblefield gained eight and Cole scrambled to the PLU 25 for another first down with 36 seconds left. Four consecutive incomplete passes left the Bucs stranded and tagged with their first loss.

The first half the Pirates showed none of the passing power which the week before nailed them past Lewis and Clark 53-43.

Whitworth’s only score came in the third quarter on a 44 yard drive preceded by a poor punt. Findlay and Robertson ran the ball to 20. Perry fired his fourth completion to Stubblefield at the 15. A pitch to Findlay scored and the point after was kicked by Rasmussen.

“Walking the plank”

by Karl Zeiger

Whitworth’s Athletic Lineup Boasts a Major Change this Year with the Addition of Dr. Berge Borrevik, who has come from the University of Oregon to become the new athletic director. The move enables Duncan Ferguson, who has proven to be an all-around performer, to head back to the chaplain’s office.

College officials undertook a lengthy search before coming to the conclusion that Borrevik is the man Whitworth needs. Borrevik, 37, takes over at a crucial time in Whitworth’s athletic life. It seems that the athletic department has been a controversial subject in recent years. Many have wondered why the college hasn’t emphasized the department more in order to compete more successfully. Others have wondered why the athletic department even exists: What do teams and games have to do with an education, anyway?

Perhaps both sides can find answers. Nebraska probably won’t be scheduled in football and UCLA probably won’t be scheduled in basketball, but Dr. Borrevik envisions a competitive, crosstown rivalry program complimented by a strong slate of activities for the recreational athlete. Borrevik adheres to the philosophy that every student should have the opportunity to improve himself physically. The fact that a student is a gym rat, an intramural star, or an NAIA All-American is of little consequence. "There are about 1100 students in this college who do not perceive that they can be physically active," says the new track and field coach. "If someone wants to jog around the fieldhouse on a cold January day, we want to give him the opportunity. If someone wants to get involved in a more formal way, we want to provide that opportunity, too."

Whitworth College has been known to advocate the development of the "whole person." Often overlooked is the physical aspect. "People are physical beings, they have to be able to cope with the world physically as well as psychologically or spiritually," notes Dr. Borrevik. It would indeed seem practical for a Whitworth scholar to be in good enough shape to keep from starveing under the weight of his massive brain.

Sports have become one of the most interdisciplinary areas in society. The playing field has become increasingly an arena for political, racial and commercial expressions. College sports in particular have been known to outgrow their purpose. "Major college athletics and sometimes small college athletics have been ego-centric tools not controlled by the college itself," says Coach Borrevik. Whitworth is in a good position to guard against the possibility of unhealthy influences, according to the new athletic director. "We’re not controlled by any outside interests," he says. "We’re masters of our own domain." Offering a well balanced program that does not overemphasize the big money sports will help keep athletics educationally beneficial.

Borrevik likes to work with people on an individual basis. He feels that Whitworth offers that opportunity, and an open environment as well.

MARK Colou, Sophomore defensive back for the Pirates, is pictured here attempting to intercept a late pass in last Saturday’s game. Chos dropped the ball. Also pictured is Glen Oliver the Whitworth team captain.

CLASSIFIED ADS

*** *** ***

SECOND INCOME:

Residential person for Spokane and surrounding area. Convert your Capital or Savings into a lucrative Second Income. Service and collect from company established locations of vending machines selling postage stamps, cocktail nets, hot beverages, and other fast selling products.

Route 1, $955 investment can earn up to $240 or more monthly.

Route 2, $845 investment can earn up to $200 or more monthly.

Route 3, $3245 investment can earn up to $160 or more monthly.

Age or experience not important. Must have reliable auto and 3 to 5 hour hours weekly. For details write:

Adv-U-Matic Corp., 1721 E. Charleston, Las Vegas, Nevada 89104

PAGE 6 THE WHITWORTHIAN SEPTEMBER 29, 1972
Intramurals off to good start

The fall intramural program has already begun under the new leadership of Howie Kellogg. Howie, who in the past has been a representative in intramurals, is looking forward to the best year for intramurals at Whitworth.

Unlike many other colleges and universities, the past has not had an extensive intramural program. The main reason being, poor leadership and a lack of funds.

Response to the new program is already evident. Tennis, which ended this week, had 56 participants, in a single elimination tournament, as compared to only 14 last year. This presents a stiff challenge for the faculty who are defending their championship in this sport.

Philadelphia football began last Saturday morning with a full schedule of four games. Close games were in order with the exception of the Goodsell vs. McMillan A game. Goodsell trounced them, 29-0. (Two points away in each touchdown).

Other scores were Carlson over Alder, 4-2; McMillan B edged Stewart, 2-0 and defending champions Town got by South Warren, 3-2. The intramural budget now is $170, which is usually spent for trophies. Howie would like to use the money to have a trophy case set up in the HUB. Previously, individual trophies were given to the dorms. This year he would like to have trophies remain in the case with the winning dorm inscribed on the trophy.

There will also be a performance standing cup, in order to come out with over-all dorm champion. Along with football and tennis this fall, there will be soccer starting today. Sports planned for October are bowling and golf. Wandermeer golf course is where golfers can play and bowlers will go to Fiesta alleys. A cross country meet is scheduled to be held on October 25 in the loop.

New sports planned for this year are swimming, soccer, archery, badminton, decathlon, free throw shooting, outdoor track, and weightlifting. Archery is planned for this fall, but has been postponed until later because the equipment was stolen from the fields house.

A new idea presented by Howie this year are co-ed intramural activities. Under way now is co-ed bowling, every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon. Other co-ed activities will be badminton and one-pitch softball.

There will be several women's intramural sports this year, currently going is football. This year the rules have been changed because in previous years the games were too rough. Now any sort of blocking has been outlawed and violation of that results in a penalty. Games began last Monday night in the field house. As were the men's games the scores were very close. Ballard topped Baldwin, 15-14, West Warren beat East Warren, 14-6 and South Warren, who has not lost a game in two years, got a test from Jenkins but managed a 15-14 victory, winning in the last couple of minutes.

Girls going strong

Whitworth women have been terrorizing the campus in packs as they strive to condition for varsity cross-country and volleyball teams.

Miss Marks' volleyball team will begin official action in the first of a round-robin series, to be held at E.W.S.C. October 20/21.

All of the women's teams in their league will attend, and some will find themselves up against nine or ten Whitworth women chosen to play on the A team.

A J.V. team will be chosen from the remaining 20 women who are presently turning out. Both teams will have a complete schedule of games.

Steve Muse assists in coaching the women's cross-country team, which will also compete on October 21.

Flathead Valley, and possibly others, will come to Whitworth for the meet against our seven swift striders.

Women on the cross-country team are: Marilyn Moffitt, Becky Williams, Claudia Smith, Rose Tranger, Julie Ruston, Sue Obendorf, and Kathy Seppa.

P.E. department makes appointments

Whitworth's physical education department has been blessed by the appointment of Mr. Dave Gunderson to the position of head wrestling coach. Gunderson is presently a P.E. teacher at Glover Junior High School.

When asked what he felt was the most important aspect of teaching, Gunderson replied: "I would hope to give direction to a boy's life in such a way that he can achieve his goals and ideals. We all need help and guidance through another as well as through God. Gunderson went on to explain that a coach's job is to train a team both physically and psychologically."

"Of course I've got to keep the team in good condition, and prepare them physically and mentally for a match, but when it comes right down to it, wrestling is strictly an individual sport. When you step out on the mat, it's just you and the good Lord."

The wrestling season begins on November 18, with 16 or 17 matches scheduled throughout the season.

The team will consist of approximately ten men, who will wrestle in Idaho, Oregon, and Washington. Local matches will include those with Gonzaga, EWSC, and SFCC.

Mr. Gunderson explained how he got involved in the sport, "It's kind of interesting how I came to teach wrestling. It seemed that every school I went to nobody would teach or was capable of teaching, wrestling and I more or less got stuck with it. But now I'm glad I got stuck with it because it's a great sport. Everywhere I go I just seem to find a position as wrestling coach."

Another addition to the Whitworth physical education staff is that of Tony Proece, who will be instructing the swim team. Mr. Proece presently coaches swimming at Gonzaga University, and will take on the Whitworth team in addition to his present position.
Men’s Conference said soul-success

Men’s Conference, which took place September 15-17, was deemed a success by the majority of men who participated in it. Approximately seventy Whitworth men joined in the annual conference, designed to expose relevant problems faced by students and to allow the men to have an opportunity to confront and wrestle with these issues.

The conference was held at Camp Spalding, a Presbyterian camp overlooking Davis Lake. There was an historical aspect of the conference in that it was the first one ever to allow women to be present. Both men and women seemed to be pleased with the new arrangement.

Dr. Simpson spoke on the topic of choosing goals and dreams. This was related to the theme of the conference, “Therefore Choose Life,” a passage from Deuteronomy. The topic was divided into three sections: dream, decision, and deed. There were several group discussions and many opportunities for individual soul-searching.

The faculty members present were Dr. Harry Dixon and his wife, Dr. Dave Eth, Dr. Glen Erickson and his wife, Mr. Dan Nix, Dr. Edwin Olson, Mrs. Simpson, and Dr. Robert Winiford.

Friday was arrival day and gave everyone an opportunity to get to know each other. A few mixers helped in doing this, including several sophisticated, adult activities designed for the college student. The atmosphere turned more serious as the topic of “Dream” was talked about by Dr. Simpson and discussed by separate groups.

Saturday consisted of a great deal of free time in which hiking groups, ping pong, football, volleyball, and other activities were all a part.

“Dream” was the topic Dr. Simpson spoke on in the morning and “Decision” was the evening topic. The day was completed by a “capture the flag” game which most students took part in. The game was played at night and resulted in several interesting situations.

Sunday’s topic was “Deed” which concluded the weekend. Most of the seventy left very tired and anxious to get back.

The majority liked the conference because it gave them a chance to get to know each other. It also gave them an introduction to the exceptional faculty of Whitworth and a chance to express themselves on important issues.

Whitworth women explore meanings of new liberation

Adam’s rib? Women’s lib? Over 200 women explored what womanhood is all about at Women’s Conference Sept. 15-17. The conference featured Duncan Ferguson as speaker and Pat MacDonald of the psychology department, who led the group in various experiences.

Women alternated talks and discussions of women’s role with recreational activities, free time, Bible studies, a campfire, and food.

Some comments were, “That topic bit home. It’s given the girls a challenge,” and “There was too much emphasis on marriage, but it provided food for thought.” Cheri Waters said, “It would be nice if we could go back to the campus and keep the same spirit.”

Ferguson’s talks centered on womanhood and personhood as they relate to Christ. He emphasized that filling a role as a woman is not as important as finding and filling the individual role. “My real identity is that I’m a Christian,” he said, “I’m a child of God and I belong to Him.”

In Ferguson’s first talk, “Adam’s Fractured Rib,” he discussed current views of the woman’s role and the women’s liberation movement. “In liberation,” he said, “women want to be free from sex stereotyping or being pushed into one personality type... Women want the freedom to choose and shape their own destiny. This is their right, and it’s thoroughly Christian and biblical.”

His second talk, “Male and Female Created He Them,” focused on some passages of scripture which relate to women’s role. “The story of the Bible,” he said, “is God liberating humankind. God wants to redeem us and make us whole.”

He continued his idea that Jesus makes people whole and He is the liberator through two more talks. A panel of seven answered questions brought up by the women. The younger men were generally more conservative in their views than their elders. Questions ranged from the definition of femininity to double standards of sleeping together.

Confounding the meaning of womanhood was only one part of women’s conference. Kathy Lamou was the first casualty in an egg toss contest, when she caught the delicate round oval over her head, soon to find it dripping from her palms. The egg toss was followed by a tug-of-war, in which the girls’ strength was enough to break the rope in two.

In the blindman’s (blood-woman’s?) boat race two blindfolded rowers were guided around a raft by two seeing co-captains.

A QUIET TALK on the dock at Deer Lake was a natural activity as Women’s Conference. Here roommates Laurel Ash, left, and Barb Bowman share their thoughts in a free moment. Photo by Mary Wolford.

TOSSING EGGS is tricky business, and that’s what Connie Martin, left, and Denise Skilling were doing at Women’s Conference. The team whose egg cracked last won. Photo by Mary Wolford.
New Christian faith expressions subject of Focus Days activities

Gary Demarest feature speaker

Focus Days, this week centered in on "New expressions of the Christian Faith," with the Rev. Dr. Gary Demarest, pastor of the La Canada Presbyterian Church in California, presenting over the week's activities. Whitworth was enlightened to these new expressions.

Opening the week in Tuesday's forum, Demarest talked to the students about religious utopias, new freedom and religious liberation. He expressed "a whole new thing happening in the Christian church." Demarest ended the forum with a very significant parable about a frog, frogs being lonely people in the world. It is our duty as Christians to kiss the frogs to transform them into princes.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons brought about a three part Bible Study on discipleship where openness to God and availability were the topics discussed in depth. Students talked about doors open to Christians by God and the myriad of people God comes with. The three day series brought about a greater understanding of us, as God's disciples.

During the evening Demarest spoke on "The Charismatic Movement, Christian Ethics and Food For the Fed Up." Speaking along with Gary Demarest was Kenneth Katsina, youth minister at the La Canada Church.

Closing Thursday forum, Demarest spoke about Christ's forgiveness to all people. He said to remember that no matter what our deeds, God's forgiveness is never ending. "Now let's go out and kiss a frog."

Steinem reschedules talk at Forum Tuesday

Gloria Steinem, nationally known women's lib activist, has rescheduled her appearance at Whitworth's Forum from October 12, to April 3, 1973. Announced Dr. Duncan Ferguson, Chaplain.

The rescheduling was caused by a mixup in engagements, arranging two separate appearances at the same time.

In her place, homecoming events will be presented.

The northwestern outskirts of the Whitworth campus have of late become somewhat of a battle ground—between motorcyclists and a fence to keep them out.

The controversy started when adults from off campus rode their motorcycles on campus property, resulting in destruction of the general area north of the campus. A fence was erected to keep the cyclists out, but it has been repeatedly torn down, only to be put up again by campus maintenance crews.

Whitworth student body president Ron Leighton emphasized the fact that students should be aware of the problem. "The whole campus is responsible for seeing that that doesn't happen...we're responsible for patrolling that fence." Sheila Dobson and Bill Conners, both Whitworth students, are responsible for a senate-authorized study committee to evaluate the situation and recommend ideas for further restoration. Leighton said that one possibility is having nature trails in that area. People in the maintenance building have spotted license numbers of some of the motorcycles, and students who see the fence being torn down are urged to immediately notify the student body office in the HDR.

Trustees consider open dorm policy

24-hour visitation concerns some board members

The visitation policy on campus was reviewed by the Student Life Committee September 19 on the recommendation of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees. The full board will hear a report from the Student Life Committee and take action at the trustee meeting today.

Dr. William Lindsay, trustee who serves as chairman of the Student Life Committee, was recently on campus to express to resident hall presidents the fact that a few board members are concerned about difficulties in selling the college to parents and contributors because of the possibility of 24 hour dorms. Lindsay had promised these trustees he would relay that information to the students for consideration in the decision making process.

Lindsay told the dorm presidents these trustees encountered a few prospective students who were unable to attend Whitworth because of the open dorm situation.

Dave Erb, director of student development, said the issue is not 24 hour open dorms but the decision making process for students. He cited three models of dorms, where the college is the parent and makes the rules; where the college is a permissive business which says, "Here are the dorms, we don't care what you do but don't damage them;" and the Whitworth idea of giving the students and student development a part in the decision making process.

Off campus cycles dismantle barrier

The northwest outskirts of the Whitworth campus have of late become somewhat of a battle ground—between motorcyclists and a fence to keep them out.

The controversy started when adults from off campus rode their motorcycles on campus property, resulting in destruction of the general area north of the campus. A fence was erected to keep the cyclists out, but it has been repeatedly torn down, only to be put up again by campus maintenance crews.

Whitworth student body president Ron Leighton emphasized the fact that students should be aware of the problem. "The whole campus is responsible for seeing that that doesn't happen...we're responsible for patrolling that fence." Sheila Dobson and Bill Conners, both Whitworth students, are responsible for a senate-authorized study committee to evaluate the situation and recommend ideas for further restoration. Leighton said that one possibility is having nature trails in that area. People in the maintenance building have spotted license numbers of some of the motorcycles, and students who see the fence being torn down are urged to immediately notify the student body office in the HDR.
Dear Editor:

I feel that, as instigator of the BYOM Square Dance, I should make clear the reasons for the dance, its success or non-success and the conclusions it brought to my state of mind.

It began quite innocently at Women's Conference when someone on Adam's rub led to a list of norms on campus that the girls were adhering to normal boy-girl relationships. By general consensus the "dating game" seemed most nonsensical. Why should a girl spend an agonizing weekend alone in her room when some guy she's trying to get to know sits alone in his room wondering if he'd get shut down if he suggested they set together for an evening?

Of course this is a hypothetical situation, but how many Friday nights have you sat at a table looking with similar anxiety? Thus, challenged to something constructive, we hit upon the idea of an affair where we could reverse the roles and see if it didn't ease the tension a little. Enough girls were enthusiastic about it to warrant a frenzied week of organizing the dance. However, the value of the dance lies, not in the good time but by those who attended, but by the obvious points it brought to focus: (1) girls in many cases simply failed to take advantage of a great opportunity, (2) the desire to date informally still potenti of girls but so is the desire that the boy initiate the relationship, (3) finally, this is a plea on behalf of a large part of the women of Whitworth College to girls don't want to reverse the roles they've been raised in, they just want to get to know guys as people, not as objects to be led to the alter.

Bonnie Lewis

Editorials

Go wrap a dead fish!

Communication, or rather the lack of it, generates some heat and stink around.

Beyond the daily bulletin, the student newspaper, catchy HUB signs and gaily cluttered boards lies a frustrating deluge of cliches and phrases. Sifting through the bombardment of communication particles we rarely recuperate from the communication breakdowns enough to look into what IS being said. It is pretty much the present of ecological consciousness that we are not necessarily striving for sniper or new answers but are actually recycling garbage," Bob Fulton, Publications Council chairman recently observed. You are now a member of the Whitworth community. What is it? You are on your way to becoming a total person. What were you previously missing? Do you really care about stellamunsthngeneses? Why do you read the Whitworthian?

The Whitworthian is burning under a sticky collar wondering how to effectively communicate. Charged with the heavy burden of communicating the relevance and meaning of our community, we sadly plead incompetence. But we no longer need communication particles we rarely recuperate from the communication breakdowns enough to look into what IS being said. It is pretty much the present of ecological consciousness that we are not necessarily striving for sniper or new answers but are actually recycling garbage," Bob Fulton, Publications Council chairman recently observed. You are now a member of the Whitworth community. What is it? You are on your way to becoming a total person. What were you previously missing? Do you really care about stellamunsthngeneses? Why do you read the Whitworthian?

Student Dev. considers move

A bright prospect being considered by members of Whitworth's student development office, now located on the second floor of the student development floor, is an intended move into a different building on campus. Presently, however, this move is only in the planning stages.

According to Dave Erb, there are two good reasons for such a move. The first reason, he explained, is "we have staff all over the place and students have to run around in order to contact people, and we'd like to have a lot of these services centralized."

A second reason is that student development needs a conference area and group rooms. "We have all kinds of career and occupational information in these buildings, we don't have a place to put it... we need space to do more things," Dr. Erb complained.

The development staff had considered utilizing the old journalism building, which, according to Alfred Gray, Whitworth journalism professor, was moved to the student center. Gray is the new extinct Baxter General Hospital in northwest Spokane. But, Dr. Erb said the Board of Trustees Building and Grounds Committee has decided they don't want to renovate the old building. "We're dead in the water at this point," he commented.

Architect Roy Wyatt was scheduled to be here last Monday to discuss building a new structure to house student development offices. Dr. Erb hopes they will move sometime this year, although absolutely nothing is definite yet. Whenever the student development office does become centralized, the following student groups listed in their respective offices, all will be located in one building: Hub Club, Bob Hub, half-time with placement; Ed Lilly, minority student affairs; Jon Land, Dr. Robert Roberts and Maureen Sherman, counseling; and History Department and Dave Erb, student development directors.

Student Senate passes Saga resolution

Student Senate Wednesday passed a resolution to request that Saga have a Sunday sectional breakfast at 8 o'clock Monday night, October 5.

The move will appear not only locally, but throughout the nation Monday, the day dedicated nationally to the control of venereal disease, a disease which has now reached epidemic proportions in the United States, by District 81.

"Don't give a close to the one you love the most" is the theme song of the movie "VD Blues," to be shown on Channel 7 television at 8 o'clock Monday night, October 5.

Erika Thomsen gave a report for the Communications Commission. She has been very active in seeking for improving communication on campus.

"VD Blues," a one-hour film, will be narrated by TV host Dick Cavett. In this unique movie, there will be a one-hour panel discussion. Students from local schools and colleges will join clergymen, doctors, and other local citizens on the panel.

Questions telephoned in from the viewing audience will be directed to the panel.

Dr. Flesger of the Spokane County Health Department is the local director of the program, sponsored by the Whitworthian.

Cavett narrates "VD Blues"

"VD Blues", a one-hour film, will be narrated by TV host Dick Cavett. In this unique movie, there will be a one-hour panel discussion. Students from local schools and colleges will join clergymen, doctors, and other local citizens on the panel.

Questions telephoned in from the viewing audience will be directed to the panel.

Dr. Flesger of the Spokane County Health Department is the local director of the program, sponsored by the Whitworthian.

Senator passes Saga resolution

"VD Blues," a one-hour film, will be narrated by TV host Dick Cavett. In this unique movie, there will be a one-hour panel discussion. Students from local schools and colleges will join clergymen, doctors, and other local citizens on the panel.

Questions telephoned in from the viewing audience will be directed to the panel.

Dr. Flesger of the Spokane County Health Department is the local director of the program, sponsored by the Whitworthian.

Student Senate Wednesday passed a resolution to request that Saga have a Sunday sectional breakfast at 8 o'clock Monday night, October 5.

The move will appear not only locally, but throughout the nation Monday, the day dedicated nationally to the control of venereal disease, a disease which has now reached epidemic proportions in the United States, by District 81.

"Don't give a close to the one you love the most" is the theme song of the movie "VD Blues," to be shown on Channel 7 television at 8 o'clock Monday night, October 5.

Erika Thomsen gave a report for the Communications Commission. She has been very active in seeking for improving communication on campus.

"VD Blues," a one-hour film, will be narrated by TV host Dick Cavett. In this unique movie, there will be a one-hour panel discussion. Students from local schools and colleges will join clergymen, doctors, and other local citizens on the panel.

Questions telephoned in from the viewing audience will be directed to the panel.

Dr. Flesger of the Spokane County Health Department is the local director of the program, sponsored by the Whitworthian.

Cavett narrates "VD Blues"

"VD Blues", a one-hour film, will be narrated by TV host Dick Cavett. In this unique movie, there will be a one-hour panel discussion. Students from local schools and colleges will join clergymen, doctors, and other local citizens on the panel.

Questions telephoned in from the viewing audience will be directed to the panel.

Dr. Flesger of the Spokane County Health Department is the local director of the program, sponsored by the Whitworthian.

Cavett narrates "VD Blues"

"VD Blues", a one-hour film, will be narrated by TV host Dick Cavett. In this unique movie, there will be a one-hour panel discussion. Students from local schools and colleges will join clergymen, doctors, and other local citizens on the panel.

Questions telephoned in from the viewing audience will be directed to the panel.

Dr. Flesger of the Spokane County Health Department is the local director of the program, sponsored by the Whitworthian.

Cavett narrates "VD Blues"

"VD Blues", a one-hour film, will be narrated by TV host Dick Cavett. In this unique movie, there will be a one-hour panel discussion. Students from local schools and colleges will join clergymen, doctors, and other local citizens on the panel.

Questions telephoned in from the viewing audience will be directed to the panel.

Dr. Flesger of the Spokane County Health Department is the local director of the program, sponsored by the Whitworthian.
Homecoming breaks tradition

Homecoming is almost here, but the tally-tall signs of its Queens and Princesses are not. There will still be the traditional Homecoming Bonnet and Dance, however. The festivities are going to be held in the renowned Spokane Club. Tickets for students will cost $6.00 per couple. They will go on sale October 7th, just seven days before the banquet.

As an added bonus, we will have an evening concert with Seals & Croft Friday the 13th. "They're top notch entertainers, with a style that could be described as country-rock, in the same vein as Crosby, Stills & Nash."

The football game itself will be played by the teams of Whitworth College and Simon Fraser College at Spokane's Joe Albi Stadium as part of the Shrine Game. All the proceeds of the game will be donated to the Shrine's children's hospital in Spokane.

Whitworth's Student Senate hopes to get the campus into the spirit of the game by changing the emphasis from Homecoming Royalty to student concern. The object is to involve everyone in a money raising project to help support the Shrine's Hospital for Crippled Children.

The dorms have been separated into teams to plan their individual money making schemes. McMillian and East Warren got a head start on the other dorms with an idea from freshman Keith Hegg. Do you remember the big blanket that everyone was tossing coins into at the PLU game? The $30.00 proceeds will go into the children's hospital fund, says Nancy Dise, president of East Warren. They have also earned $36.00 from the sale of donuts in the Whit­worth dorms. Carlson, Washing­ton & Ballard Halis are sponsoring a fifty-cent all­city car rally for the charity. Those who wish to partic­i­pate are asked to pay $1.00 per car and meet in the parking lot behind the Cheney Cowgirl Auditorium at 1 p.m. Sunday, October 8th. Jenkins & Goodsell have scheduled a Bake Sale. Plans for other money making projects are under way in the other dorms as well.

After this story went to press, some new develop­ments were made. Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children's Hospital will not be able to accept the proceeds due to tax purposes. Instead, all money earned for the event will go towards the opening of a physical therapy center near the Whitworth Campus.

Students vie for Vega

A 1973 Chevrolet Vega GT driven into the HUB today begins a four week program. Students may win free use of the car for a week.

Sponsoring the display, Buchanan Chevrolet of 702 West 3rd in Spokane, will hold a jelly bean guess next week to determine the first winner. He or she will have the Vega for Homecoming. Lucky drivers are insured and can go anywhere in Washington but must pay the gas bill.

The program will continue as long as results come in, according to Terry Davis, Chevy salesman.

Dustin Hoffman is 'Little Big Man'

This Saturday night the film "Little Big Man" will be on campus. It is a fast paced Western epic and one of the best movies we'll have on campus this year.

Director Arthur Penn (Bonnie & Clyde) weaves a theme of tragedy, satire, humor and indignation around the rather unbelievable characters of Jack Crabb and Little Big Man, both roles played by Dustin Hoffman.

In a series of brilliant performances by Hoffman and Dan George (Chief Old Lodge Skins) the story of the Old West is told from a variety of perspectives. There is tragedy in the blood and tears of the massacre of human life. Historical stereotypes are broken down, in Mad Magazine type fashion, to tell the story of the Old West.

The football team was separated into teams to plan their individual money making schemes. McMillian and East Warren got a head start on the other dorms with an idea from freshman Keith Hegg. Do you remember the big blanket that everyone was tossing coins into at the PLU game? The $30.00 proceeds will go into the children's hospital fund, says Nancy Dise, president of East Warren. They have also earned $36.00 from the sale of donuts in the Whitworth dorms. Carlson, Washington & Ballard Halis are sponsoring a fifty-cent all-city car rally for the charity. Those who wish to participate are asked to pay $1.00 per car and meet in the parking lot behind the Cheney Cowgirl Auditorium at 1 p.m. Sunday, October 8th. Jenkins & Goodsell have scheduled a Bake Sale. Plans for other money making projects are under way in the other dorms as well.

After this story went to press, some new developments were made. Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children's Hospital will not be able to accept the proceeds due to tax purposes. Instead, all money earned for the event will go towards the opening of a physical therapy center near the Whitworth Campus.

Arend swings premier all-nighter last Friday

Arend Hall held its first all-nighter in years last Friday in the Arend Hall lounge. The party began after the Dick and Anne Albi concert and lasted officially until 8:00 the next morning.

The lounge was packed with 50-75 people, depending on the hour. Only six people had to go through the end, but there were quite a few even at 3:00 A.M.

The entertainment was described by some as fantastic. Among those performing were Cary Gollhaus and Stan Pinhburn, on guitar and drums respectively. Denise Croft and Betty Millard playing guitars, Bill Graham on piano, Ande Smith, Dean Graham, Cindy Smith playing classical piano, and Shala Doleen on piano. Later that night Scott Richner on piano and Stan Pinhburn got together with Nancy Morris singing to provide a mellow night club atmosphere. Steve Shaff on piano and Stan on drums completed the entertainment in the early hours of the morning.

Around midnight a combination of sandwiches with all the fixings, potato chips, punch, and cookies were catered by SAGA. This brought down some of the most reluctant dorm hermits from their domains.

Connie Smith headed the organization of the party. Two people from each dorm helped Connie plan the party. Connie commented, "The idea was to get all the people from the dorms of Arend together. In that sense it worked out really good."

The Unforgettable Ones

UFO Chevrolet Motors Division sends a Vega to college

CHEVROLET VEGA HAS NEW FLAIR - Available in four models, the 1973 Vega is offered in both hatchback and notchback coupe versions, as well as a Kammback wagon and panel express truck. New exterior colors available for the versatile Vega include four which are exclusive to the line.

THE UFO'S ARE HERE

Our UFO rep. at Whitworth is TERRY DAVIS

Buchanan Chevrolet
Third at Wall
Spokane Washington
R7T-7124
Whitworth Pirates smash EWSC 34-21

by Larry Morris

Whitworth subdued an old nemesis Saturday afternoon as quarterback George Perry performed brilliantly by connecting on 20 of 32 passes to lead the Pirates to a 34 - 21 victory over Eastern Washington.

Perry, given a chance to prove himself by playing the entire game, with the exception of one play, drilled passes to Pirate receivers for a total of 531 yards in the first half. With 6:51 left in the first quarter the Bucs drove 80 yards in nine plays touching it off with a 12 yard pass to Tim Allen in the end zone. Steve Rasmussen booted the extra point, and it was Whitworth 7 EWSC 0.

It looked like it was going to be one of those games when Eastern scored 7 to tie up the game. Quarterback Glindeman led the Savage attack, following the Pirate touchdown, from their 30 yard line, but with only 15 yard pass completion to flanker Bobby Picard.

Whitworth went back to work on their own 17 yard line. With the help of three first downs and a 45 yard bomb from Perry to Mel Stubblefield to the 2 yard line, Duncan Findley squeezed up the middle for another Buc touchdown. Rasmussen' s kick made it 14 - 7.

Pass Picked Off

The Pirates kicked off and the Savages were ready to move again. Eastern was stopped abruptly however, when Doug Bruce picked off a Glindeman pass. With 2 minutes gone in the 2 quarter Findley raced 24 yards for another pirate touchdown. Rasmussen' s kick made it 21 - 7, and the Bucs were a head to stay.

With 11:47 left to play in the first half, Perry connected in on long passes to Stubblefield, and Wilbert Kance, to Eastern's 3 yard line. Findley on the next play scored his third touchdown on a 3 yard run.

Eastern, down by 21, tightened the contest as they came right back from their own 9 yard line. Three first downs, and a 40 yard pass from Glindeman to Mike Shuette made it 28 - 14.

31-14 Lead

With nine seconds left in the first half, Rasmussen split the uprights with a 35 yard field goal. This first half ended with the Pirates leading 31 - 14 over Eastern. Eastern, down by 17, had to face the Pirates lead on a 73 yard scoring drive late in the third quarter.

After having problems in the second half, Perry pulled together a beautiful 36 yard pass to Stubblefield setting up a 27 yard field goal by Rasmussen.

The game ended as Peck intercepted a Savage pass in the end zone and the Pirates ran down the clock to up-set Eastern 34 - 21.

Riley wins Invitational

The second annual Arnie Peckler Invitational Cross Country run was held last Saturday here at Whitworth. Former W.S.U. distance great Rick Riley placed first in the four mile course with a time of 19:17.6.

Riley's second it was only Riley's second competitive race since last spring when he sustained a foot injury which kept him sidelined.

Mike places five

Placing second and third respectively were Rick Ho­bron EWSC 20:08, and Jerry Morton, WSU 20:11. Placing for Whitworth were: 5th, Jim Instt., 20:20, 6th, Jim Doc­heff, 20:22. 7th, Steve Aus­tin, 20:34, 8th, Karl Aeger, 20:30, and 10th, Doug Zi­bell, 20:34.

This annual Invitational was only an individual com­petition and no team scoring.

Intramural sports begin third week

by Chris Bauer

Activities increased and participation is growing as the new intramural program began its third week. Soccer began and tennis concluded, with the faculty successfully defending their title.

Frank Houser, a soci­ology teacher, won the indi­vidual championship as he knocked off sophomore Larry Walker in the finals. Doug Walker was third indi­vidually. Goodsell got second and Mullenix fin­ished third in the team standings.

In women's tennis West Warren was the team cham­pion, followed by East and South Warren, second and third respectively. Sharon Husby was the individual champion.

Soccer began a week ago with three games scheduled. Goodsell tipped McMillan 3 - 2. Alder got by Carlson, 1 - 0 and Stewart shutout Town, 1 - 0. Matches will continue this afternoon on the field behind the field­house.

Golf is planned to be held on Sunday at Wandermere. The response is overwhelm­ing as three times as many people signed up this year as compared to last. The cost will be $1.75 and it is $1.25 to rent clubs for Whitworth.

The girls are still going stronger than ever.

Results so far are good with Ballard in the lead with 2 wins and no losses. Wash­ington with only 1 win and West Warren following be­hind with 1 win and 1 loss. East Warren has had 1 loss and 1 tie and South Warren the name. Next is Baldwin Hall 1 loss and 1 tie and last but not least Jenkins with 1 loss.

Football is not the only sport going on though. There has been intramural tennis championships. Dorm cham­pions are all from West Warren; Shirley Husby in first place followed by Heather Compton in 2nd and Shirley Rice in 3rd. Dorm­wise West Warren is in first place with 10 points, 2nd place in East Warren with 8 points and South Warren 3rd with 6 points.

Ballard leads girls football

The girls are still going stronger than ever.

Results so far are good with Ballard in the lead with 2 wins and no losses. Wash­ington with only 1 win and West Warren following behind with 1 win and 1 loss. East Warren has had 1 loss and 1 tie and South Warren the name. Next is Baldwin Hall 1 loss and 1 tie and last but not least Jenkins with 1 loss.

Football is not the only sport going on though. There has been intramural tennis championships. Dorm cham­pions are all from West Warren; Shirley Husby in first place followed by Heather Compton in 2nd and Shirley Rice in 3rd. Dorm­wise West Warren is in first place with 10 points, 2nd place in East Warren with 8 points and South Warren 3rd with 6 points.

Ballard leads girls football

The girls are still going stronger than ever.

Results so far are good with Ballard in the lead with 2 wins and no losses. Washington with only 1 win and West Warren following behind with 1 win and 1 loss. East Warren has had 1 loss and 1 tie and South Warren the name. Next is Baldwin Hall 1 loss and 1 tie and last but not least Jenkins with 1 loss.

Welcome to our homecoming Dance

Grades of Deer Park are Welcome to our homecoming dance, featuring the Jasper Band, Sat., Oct. 7th at 9:00 P.M., high school gym.

advanced ticket $2.00
at the door $2.50

Come see some of your old classmates.
Football, dance head homecoming

Homecoming weekend 1972 began officially yesterday with the choir's presentation of "Whitworth in Transition" at Forum. The festivities continue this evening with the Soul & Chaos concert at 8 p.m. in the auditorium, followed by free pizza at SAGA.

Tomorrow the Pirate football team will meet UPS in Joe Albi Stadium at 1:30 p.m. The contest has been chosen as the annual Shrine Hospital benefit game, and all profits from ticket sales will go to that cause. Whitworth students will be admitted free with student body cards.

Though no queen will reign at Homecoming this year, other activities are similar to those of years past. A dinner and dance will begin at 6:30 p.m. Saturday evening in the Spokane Club. Entertainment will be a group called Variety Pack.

In relation to Homecoming, teams of men's and women's dorms have chosen to raise money for either a Day Care Center at Whitworth Presbyterian Church or the Spokane Food Bank. Car rallies, a bake sale, and other events have already been held.

Players commented: "A closer look at the main focus of Homecoming, the football game, is provided by those who will be directly involved in the contest." Lineeman John Gradyholt commented, "It should be a wild weekend. They're (UPS) a powerhouse, but I definitely feel that we can beat them. It'll be great playing a benefit for the kids in the Shrine Hospital."

Offensive guard Bill Beand feels "it's gonna be a tough game, but Whitworth will rise to the occasion."

"Offense is going to win the game for us," says tackle Tim Charbonneau.

When asked what he thinks about the Homecoming game, Dan McCann replied: "I think I want my wife."

Bill McCready predicts "we'll either win, lose, or tie."

Pirate captain Glenn Oliver expressed himself saying, "I came, I saw, and I conquered—that's how I feel about the game. I can look at the '72 Homecoming game just one way: it's a lifetime to remember. And I'm still looking for a hot date for the dance. Thank you."

Excited by the formation of a Pirate booster club in Oakland, Doug Brown could only say, "Wow, I can hardly wait!" and Don Blakemore confessed, "I think this is the biggest game of my career: you can be either win, lose, or tie."

Blakemore confessed, "The contest has been chosen as the annual Shrine Hospital benefit game, and all profits from ticket sales will go to that cause. Whitworth students will be admitted free with student body cards."

In closing the Women's Week program, Rita and Don will be holding workshops Thursday afternoon in the HUB as well as Thursday evening at 8 p.m. in the Human Identity dorm lounge.

I really want to stress that these discussion groups are meant for both men and women," said Linda Russell, vice president of AWS. "I want students to be able to realize the identity of each person (male and female); and I think through these speakers, they can help realize this."

AWS sets Women's Week to break sexual barriers

In an attempt to help break down social, cultural, intellectual and spiritual barriers between sexes, AWS (Associated Women Students) has officially proclaimed Sunday, September 15 through Thursday, September 19 as Women's Week.

Sunday afternoon at 4:15 p.m. the upstairs dining hall will be the scene of a men's cake baking auction. All interested men are invited to bake a cake and bring it to SAGA around 4 p.m.

Sunday evening, Sharon Parks, assistant chaplain, will be officially reclaiming of Women and Men's Life with a service entitled "Women In The Bible."

Monday there will be an art and book display in the HUB. These displays will run through Thursday.

Monday evening at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre, a panel of women from the League of Women Voters will discuss the subject, "Women In Politics."

Tuesday the wife of a POW and a missionary woman will be discussing "Women Of Courage" at 8 p.m. in the HUB.

A fine arts presentation including a reading excerpt from The Dolls House will be taken place Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the auditorium. There will be also oral interpretations given by women, modern dance demonstrations, and musical and vocal presentations.

Thursday Rita Constiek and Don Ward, a nationally known husband and wife team from Michigan State University, will speak at Forum discussing the role of women, interpersonal relationships and human sexuality.

Young Democrats endorse Dan Evans

The 5,000 member Young Democrats of Washington have refused to endorse former Democratic Governor Albert D. Rosellini in his battle against incumbent Republican Governor Daniel J. Evans, according to a recent UPI article in the Spokane Daily Chronicle.

"Maybe later, if Rossellini takes a look at the liberal side of the Democratic party, we can support him." said Mark Stenager, president of the Young Democrats. He said Thursday that some of his group would support Evans because "to many of us, the nomination of former Gov. Albert Rosellini represents a return to the distant past."

"To thousands of new voters who look to the Democratic party for leadership, the results of the primary were a grave disappoint­ment," Stenager said.

Football, dance head homecoming

Homecoming weekend 1972 began officially yesterday with the choir's presentation of "Whitworth in Transition" at Forum. The festivities continue this evening with the Soul & Chaos concert at 8 p.m. in the auditorium, followed by free pizza at SAGA.

Tomorrow the Pirate football team will meet UPS in Joe Albi Stadium at 1:30 p.m. The contest has been chosen as the annual Shrine Hospital benefit game, and all profits from ticket sales will go to that cause. Whitworth students will be admitted free with student body cards.

Though no queen will reign at Homecoming this year, other activities are similar to those of years past. A dinner and dance will begin at 6:30 p.m. Saturday evening in the Spokane Club. Entertainment will be a group called Variety Pack.

In relation to Homecoming, teams of men's and women's dorms have chosen to raise money for either a Day Care Center at Whitworth Presbyterian Church or the Spokane Food Bank. Car rallies, a bake sale, and other events have already been held.

Players commented: "A closer look at the main focus of Homecoming, the football game, is provided by those who will be directly involved in the contest." Lineeman John Gradyholt commented, "It should be a wild weekend. They're (UPS) a powerhouse, but I definitely feel that we can beat them. It'll be great playing a benefit for the kids in the Shrine Hospital."

Offensive guard Bill Beand feels "it's gonna be a tough game, but Whitworth will rise to the occasion."

"Offense is going to win the game for us," says tackle Tim Charbonneau.

When asked what he thinks about the Homecoming game, Dan McCann replied: "I think I want my wife."

Bill McCready predicts "we'll either win, lose, or tie."

Pirate captain Glenn Oliver expressed himself saying, "I came, I saw, and I conquered—that's how I feel about the game. I can look at the '72 Homecoming game just one way: it's a lifetime to remember. And I'm still looking for a hot date for the dance. Thank you."

Excited by the formation of a Pirate booster club in Oakland, Doug Brown could only say, "Wow, I can hardly wait!" and Don Blakemore confessed, "I think this is the biggest game of my career: you can be either win, lose, or tie."

Blakemore confessed, "The contest has been chosen as the annual Shrine Hospital benefit game, and all profits from ticket sales will go to that cause. Whitworth students will be admitted free with student body cards."

In closing the Women's Week program, Rita and Don will be holding workshops Thursday afternoon in the HUB as well as Thursday evening at 8 p.m. in the Human Identity dorm lounge.

I really want to stress that these discussion groups are meant for both men and women," said Linda Russell, vice president of AWS. "I want students to be able to realize the identity of each person (male and female); and I think through these speakers, they can help realize this."

AWS sets Women's Week to break sexual barriers

In an attempt to help break down social, cultural, intellectual and spiritual barriers between sexes, AWS (Associated Women Students) has officially proclaimed Sunday, September 15 through Thursday, September 19 as Women's Week.

Sunday afternoon at 4:15 p.m. the upstairs dining hall will be the scene of a men's cake baking auction. All interested men are invited to bake a cake and bring it to SAGA around 4 p.m.

Sunday evening, Sharon Parks, assistant chaplain, will be officially reclaiming of Women and Men's Life with a service entitled "Women In The Bible."

Monday there will be an art and book display in the HUB. These displays will run through Thursday.

Monday evening at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre, a panel of women from the League of Women Voters will discuss the subject, "Women In Politics."

Tuesday the wife of a POW and a missionary woman will be discussing "Women Of Courage" at 8 p.m. in the HUB.

A fine arts presentation including a reading excerpt from The Dolls House will be taken place Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the auditorium. There will be also oral interpretations given by women, modern dance demonstrations, and musical and vocal presentations.

Thursday Rita Constiek and Don Ward, a nationally known husband and wife team from Michigan State University, will speak at Forum discussing the role of women, interpersonal relationships and human sexuality.

In closing the Women's Week program, Rita and Don will be holding workshops Thursday afternoon in the HUB as well as Thursday evening at 8 p.m. in the Human Identity dorm lounge.

I really want to stress that these discussion groups are meant for both men and women," said Linda Russell, vice president of AWS. "I want students to be able to realize the identity of each person (male and female); and I think through these speakers, they can help realize this."

Young Democrats endorse Dan Evans

The 5,000 member Young Democrats of Washington have refused to endorse former Democratic Governor Albert D. Rosellini in his battle against incumbent Republican Governor Daniel J. Evans, according to a recent UPI article in the Spokane Daily Chronicle.

"Maybe later, if Rossellini takes a look at the liberal side of the Democratic party, we can support him." said Mark Stenager, president of the Young Democrats. He said Thursday that some of his group would support Evans because "to many of us, the nomination of former Gov. Albert Rosellini represents a return to the distant past."

"To thousands of new voters who look to the Democratic party for leadership, the results of the primary were a grave disappointment," Stenager said.
Candidates' economic stands summed up by Dr. Dixon

By Mark Frederick

The platform proposals of Nixon and McGovern were summed up Monday by Dr. Harry Dixon, Whittworth professor of economics, during a lecture at 8 p.m. in Arend Lounge. There was a large turnout as the students who lasted about an hour and was followed by a question and answer session.

Dr. Dixon presented the similarities and differences of each candidate and gave an overall picture of the state of the economy.

He described Nixon and McGovern as having certain similarities. Both have about the same childhood background. Both have the same educational background. Both have the same professional career. However, there were also definite and important differences between the candidates. Dr. Nixon described Nixon as a shrewd politician, a man who pays off the taxpayer. He intends to maintain the United States as the number one power. This means a sufficient budget for the American military, Nixon promises to eliminate economic problems by appointing committees to investigate the problems. He plans to adopt a reverse-sharing program, halt inflation, and decrease unemployment.

Dr. Dixon called McGovern a man of deep convictions, a political crusader who tends to get involved with a problem where he sees people in need. He is committed to solving the problems of people in need. He will use this amount and $22 billion he expects to obtain from the current tax loopholes, for the inner city, education, jobs, and social security benefits. McGovern plans to increase the budget of the Department of Human Development.

However, he also admitted that the U.S. is having serious international economic problems. Dr. Dixon was also asked if he felt economics would be an important issue in the remainder of the campaign. To this he replied, "With the improving growth rate of the economy and success in achieving inflation, it will be hard for Democrats to gain votes on the basis of our domestic situation."
Trustees ok decision making policy

Trustees unanimously and enthusiastically approved Fundamental Life Committee’s decision making policy on campus at their regular meeting Friday. The approval was made after a comprehensive report of the student life, given by members of the committee as well as some dorm spokesmen.

Dr. William Lindsay, committee chairman, compared life on campus now to campus life four years ago, when the Board approved a study committee to see what was happening to students on campus outside of academics.

“We found a sick student climate,” he said. “Hostility and antagonism were pointed toward administrators, trustees, faculty, and others. Students wanted to get out of the residence halls. They were just kept here because of the regulations. We have made a commitment to meet, and had to have the halls filled.”

The study committee became concerned with drugs, venereal disease education, the need of a counseling service because of emotional problems, and a practice in homosexuality which resulted from long-term woman/man relationships.

“The climate on campus today is revolutionized over what it was four years ago,” Lindsay told trustees. He then discussed three resident hall models, the third of which Whitworth has pioneered in.

The first was the business model, found mainly in state institutions. Lindsay compared us to a hotel, with the sole purpose of providing housing for students. He called it value destructive, permissive, and uncaring.

“The parent dorm is what is found in most church-related colleges, and was Whitworth’s system until recent years. Lindsay said this model is regulation-oriented, with legislated values rather than having students determine their own values. Resident counselors and resident assistants’ main job was to act as policemen, and the extent of concern of the college was seeing that students kept the rules.

“This lends a negative climate as far as Christian life,” Lindsay said. “There’s a rebellion against the college because of a rebellion against Christ. An anti-Christian drive is found in required chapel.”

The process model, Whitworth’s pioneer model of recent years, was termed person oriented. Lindsay pointed out that the proliferation of Galilee dorms, the Hall of Champions, and the like were not an example of the community of the dorms now. “Responsibility,” said Lindsay, “is the key word of the student dorm experience.”

“They who don’t come here as Christians don’t become antagonistic,” Lindsay stressed one danger in the process model, that of misunderstanding. “People start thinking it’s a permissive commercial dorm situation.”

Gail Oliver speaks

Gail Oliver, the person in charge of resident hall staff, told trustees of the process of selection for resident counselors. “It takes a unique person who can be an example of faith a day.” She added, “and to relate to people who aren’t in the same place they are.”

Dave Erb discussed the decision making process from the beginning, when the dorm discovers its individual values, related to the group decisions of which structure to live in. Erb listed the most important values of dorm residents, in order of importance to them as shown by surveys taken this year: noise level, degree of cleanliness, nature of relationships in residence halls (i.e. unity vs. individuality, trust vs. rules), where people were allowed to be, and how the hall relates to outsiders. “Mom!” Henderson, South Warren’s housemother, told the trustees how she has seen changes for the better in the seven years she has been at Whitworth. “It is the feeling that people have made me know this philosophy is the kind with which I want to live.”

Two South residents, Pam Thompson and Sia Toto, gave their views on the decision-making process and the co-ed dorm. Pam said the co-ed dorm is “so much healthier, it’s really natural. We live in a co-ed world. . . And there’s a real spirituality.”

She added that the atmosphere has changed since he was a resident hall two years ago. “Even in a dorm of 90 people we’re a big family.”

Senior Laurie Robinson told trustees, “For me it’s really been produced. It’s a hard process to make decisions, harder than the other times.”

Part of the experience is just the growing. Here people are growing on you on what you’re doing.”

CO-OP DORM RESIDENT prepares dinner. The dorm is a new concept in campus life, and the twenty residents cook their own breakfasts and lunches and trade off time to cook group dinners.

Co-op dorm goes through trials, hardships, hassles

Upon the arrival of the new theme dorms, one dorm in particular seemed to be a little more unique and controversial. This is the Co-op dorm. This dorm was described by one member as an “experiment in communal living.” The dorm buys their own food, cooks their own dinner, sets their own social and governmental policies, and resembles a family type of atmosphere.

Besides being a totally new concept in dorm living, the Co-op dorm was a victim of unexpected hardships. Most of the students inhabiting the Co-op dorm arrived at Whitworth on or near September fourth. However, it wasn’t until the 20th, more than two weeks later, that the students were able to live in their dorm.

To compensate for this, students were moved to Gonzaga Retreat House. They expected to live with an allowance of $1.60 for every day they weren’t occupying their dorm.

After a brief protest by the Co-op members, they were also given a $1.47 meal ticket which barely covered breakfast and dinner. “Tom in Saege was extremely helpful” commented one Co-op girl.

To save money for living quarters, many students left the Baton and shackled up with friendly students, causing a crowded atmosphere for the first two weeks of school. Two students were reported sleeping in the woods and two other students were reported to be in the infirmary because of sleeping in cramped and inane quarters.

Besides these minor inconveniences, the Co-op people had other hardships. There were no lights, no heat, no telephone and no electricity in the dorm.

There were no stoves, no freezer, and no table. Although tables were finally brought in, they were very narrow and unsatisfactory to most of the students. There was no furniture, so those people from the dorm took four hours of their time to bring some over from the warehouse.

The students complained that the kitchen facilities were for five people, not twenty. They were also upset that there was a minimum amount of storage space.

Despite all of these hardships, however, the Co-op people are very optimistic of the future. When one student was asked if the Co-op dorm will make it with all of these initial hardships and inconveniences, he replied, "We will.

Many of these hardships resulted from a construction delay during the summer. However, one student remarked that there was no real hardship, he remarked that there was no real hardship, be remarked that there was no real hardship. He also commented that none of them were notified in advance about the condition of their dorm.

Support the Democratic Ticket for President of the U.S.

Paul recommended for the above and Steve Sams, McGovern for President Committee, Whitworth College.
"Crummy, great, different" describe homecoming

by R. Granath

What do you think of the changes in the Homecoming Ceremony?

Dan McDonald—Town
"I think it's crummy, I don't think it should be called Homecoming anymore. They're going to do away with the queen and they're not even going to have a game on campus. It just loses the whole spirit and tradition of Homecoming. I think it's a lot of fun to get dressed up once a year, and it kind of spoils the idea of Homecoming if they say you don't have to get dressed up, heck if you don't want to get dressed up, don't go to Homecoming."

Judy Ramlow—Jenkins
"I think it's a really good idea, because there was too much of an emphasis on popularity or on dorm competition. And now it's more like the whole school working together, instead of just in dorms."

George Perry—Stewart
"I think it'll be different from past years, but seeing that the money raised is going to a good cause. That's what the world is all about, helping each other out."

John Williams—Town
"I think it's great, it's more realistic to the ways of this college and what its objectives are. Each person should be allowed to do what they want to do instead of having to do something because of tradition."

Scott Simpson—Co-Op Dorm
"I think they are basically good, the Homecoming queen was getting to be kind of a drag. All those same posters saying happiness was voting for this chick."

Andy Frazier—Stewart
"I think it's gonna flop miserably. There isn't the queen image to focus on, even though queens are out of date there is a need for an image to focus on."

Michel Curty—Calvin
"It's great. Really much better."

Kyle Storm—MacMillian
"I really dig them. I see it as more of a definite cause this year. I think the College needed something like this to get everyone together to do something for other people. I was kind of disappointed in what the Shriners did, but I can see their problem and I hope that the money can go to a good cause."

John Gradwohl—Stewart
"I kind of miss the Homecoming Queen idea, but I like the idea of raising money for the kids in the Shriners' Hospital. I haven't really seen the people getting into it yet, but I think it'll be a good deal."

Pam Powders—Ballard
"I'm glad that the change is coming about, because it breaks with tradition and it saves the dorms a lot of trouble in building up a girl's ego. And the theme helps us all realize where our extra money should be going."

Red-faced scientists run experiment

by Susan Rogers

With October came the annual "favorite" experiment of lab students in Dr. Robert Bocksch's biochemistry class—the urinalysis.

Men in minority

Whitworth attracts student variety

Current enrollment at Whitworth College for the 1972-73 school year is 1304 students, including graduate students. This figure represents about a five and one-half per cent increase over last year's enrollment. Contrary to common belief, the man/woman ratio is not two to one, but about six to five, with 715 women as compared to 689 men.

Students at Whitworth come from thirty-one states, with Washington students accounting for approximately half the student body. Californians and Hawaiians, respectively, are the next greatest in numbers. Nine foreign countries are also represented on the Whitworth campus.

The Science and Fine Arts programs attract many students to Whitworth, according to registrar Roland Wurster.

He said the Nursing program, specifically, is among the most modern in the nation, with the Nursing Center being the only one of its kind in the United States directed by a consortium of colleges.

agirl and then to collect samples of urine hourly over a six hour period, in order to determine the clearance of aspirin by the kidneys over this time period. Students entering the dorms with their test tubes in hand were accosted by numerous questions from fellow dominants. Roommates were particularly "interested" in the experiment, and responded with numerous and varied comments upon discovering the plan.

"You have to do what?"
"Just where do you plan to get those samples?"
"At least you remembered the corks!"

Dr. Bocksch, anticipating such responses, informed the students beforehand that they were actually fortunate.

"Until four years ago," he stated, "students were required to collect samples over a twenty-four hour period. Now that our numbers have increased, the refrigerator just can't handle it all.

The only problem remaining now is in the "handling" of it by roommates and other harassers from dorm neighbors.

Whitworth attracts student variety

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Movies—Tuesday—"The Return of Drew Hope"—7:15 Science Auditorium.

Thursday—"Reds Saved Fine Dining"—7:15 Science Auditorium.

"Fiddler on the Roof"—1:00, 3:05, 5:20, 8:30 Drama Hall.

"Theater of State"—2:30, 4:30, 10:10 Spokane Civic Theater.

Spokane Civic Theater—The Sound of Music—Tuesday, Saturday 8 p.m.

Spokane Symphony—October 24.

Jerry Lee Lewis—October 30, Coliseum.

Body Life—Saturday, 9 p.m.

Update Saga—Theater of State.

Youth Worship—The Blue House.

7:30 for transportation call FAA 2826.

Curt's Y Drugs

9103 N. Division

Hou 7-1814

for Homecoming and all occasions

NORTHTOWN SHOPPING CENTER

HU 1-3950

photos by Pete Trotti

Andy Frazier

Pam Powders

Carolyn Sobaje - Baldwin

"I like it from the standpoint that there's no competition among girls vying for a queen title and therefore no hurt feelings."
Fieldhouse plan stresses individual sports

by Cathy Strong

"A stockyard without Chicago," "the Golden Gate minus cables," and "Whitworth's biggest cow-free parking lot" are enduring labels assigned to the Weyerhaeuser Fieldhouse. Built in 1962, the $300,000 building was donated by trustee C. Davie Weyerhaeuser to accommodate varsity and individual sports. During construction of the five-story, 30,000 square foot structure, money ran out.

Now a $400,000 improvement project hopes to complete and make the fieldhouse into a multipurpose student activity center, including a tennis floor, expandable seating, lighting, and fire protection.

"We would like that building to become useable all year round," emphasized Mr. Gordon Homall, Business Manager.

Plans place the priority on individual student sports and less emphasis on intercollegiate, organized athletics. Deanna Saxton, fieldhouse committee member, hopes that better than 40% of the student body will make regular use of the building. Hopefully, the fieldhouse will provide the space and facilities to play out those January term blues or winter frustrations.

Specific improvements center around this all-purpose recreational aim. A synthetic floor is especially suited to basketball, volleyball, badminton and maybe tennis. When completed, it will be possible for a basketball game, two volleyball games and four badminton matches to go on simultaneously. The floor will also take care of that characteristic fieldhouse odor which comes from oil put on the sand to keep dust down.

Additional dressing and locker rooms will spare students the chilly run in skinny suits from gymnasium lockers to the fieldhouse.

Classrooms in the building would open up the crowded gym to other sports, classes and activities. Expendable bleacher seating, improved lighting and a fire protection system would make the building available for campus and community events. Now, the fieldhouse is a fire hazard, limited to a crowd of 100 people.

The plans came about when students voted to match trustee Thomas L. Thompson's $150,000 contribution by levying a $15 per year tax on themselves. This tax replaces the $15 counseling fee which has been absorbed by the college.

"The exciting thing about this" comments Deanna Saxton, "is that students are the ones in motion by voluntarily backing the available funds."

Construction begins as soon as the remaining $146,000 needed is available.

Bus offers 25¢ town ride

A link with the outside world is being offered to Whitworth students through the use of the Whitworth bus. Every Friday night at 6:15 p.m. Doug Preby departs from Levitt Hall, more commonly known as Saga, and drives students to either Northtown or Downtown.

Designated pick-up times are 9:15 p.m. for Downtown, 9:30 p.m. for Northtown and 11:30 p.m. for those who wish to remain later.

Total cost for the round trip is 25¢.

The Unforgettable Ones

UFO Chevrolet Motors Division sends a Vega to college

CHEVROLET VEGA HAS NEW FLAIR — Available in four models, the 1973 Vega is offered in both hatchback and notchback coupe versions, as well as Kamback wagon and panel express truck. New exterior colors available for the versatile Vega include four which are exclusive to the line.

THE UFO's ARE HERE

#4355 72 VEGA STATIONWAGON GS
#4597 72 VEGA HATCHBACK
#4497 72 VEGA STATIONWAGON GT
#4482 72 VEGA GT
#4312 71 VEGA STATIONWAGON

Our UFO rep. at Whitworth is TERRY DAVIS

Backsanan Chevrolet
Third at Wall
Spokane Washington
877-1134

Fields to speak on equal rights

by Cindy Irwin

Equality for women. Throughout history this simple statement has aroused controversy. The Equal Rights Amendment will be on the ballot in many states this November.

AWS has invited Ms. Julia Fields, a member of Spokane's League of Women Voters to discuss the ERA and other aspects of women in politics. October 16th at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre. Ms. Field's speech will be a part of a week-wide emphasis on "Men and Women: Partners in Humanity," which begins October 12th.

The ERA states that "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex." It has received overwhelming support from both the US Senate and the House of Representatives. Both President Nixon and Governor Evans have endorsed the bill. If 38 states ratify it within seven years of March 1973, the ERA will become the 27th amendment to the Constitution.

Look for an in-depth study on the Equal Rights Amendment and how it will effect the Whitworth student in next week's issue of the Whitworthian.
Tuesday's Forum brought the students of Whitworth toward a greater understanding of the unrest in Northern Ireland, as it opened with a slide show and discussion of the area. Five students from the University of Washington, Jim Carroll, Scott Opheim, Bill Mitchell, Cyndi Anderson and Marcia Rusan, who spent last summer in Belfast, brought to Whitworth their feelings of their experience.

"The problem there is not strictly religious," they said. "It is a social, political and economic struggle."

They continued to explain that the Catholics were originally in Ireland, but now the Protestants seem to be in control. The unrest they felt occurred when the Protestants began to feel that if the Catholics were involved politically or socially, they would be a threat to the securities they have built up. The result was the struggle to keep the Catholics out.

Ulster, a former province in Ireland, now comprising Northern Ireland, was introduced as being "built on fear and suspicion." The students also explained the hardships on the children as well as their parents. If a Protestant should help a Catholic it could mean death to them or their families. But, as one of the students from the University of Washington stated, "they learn to live with it."

The students said children did not really now why the hostility existed, but that they were raised to hate and be hostile to the "enemy."

The economy of Northern Ireland is very poor and the unemployment rate very high. Therefore, the Protestants fear even more that they may have to give up their jobs to the Catholics. The situation is "hard core violence. We went there hoping that we could help or influence where we could. If it was only the children who learned something."

The students closed the Forum session with the expression of their Christian faith being their only survival tool, as the slide show drew to an end with photographs of tanks and skeletons of buildings being the image of Ireland today.
Intramurals continue
Goodsell out in front

Football action tomorrow features the top game thus far as unbeaten Goodsell challenges once-beaten Stewart, at 10:00 in a game that may very well see the eventual Whitworth championship emerge. Stewart is going into the game coming off two convincing wins over Carlson and South Warren, after narrowly losing in their opener, 2-0. Goodsell has been equally impressive, easily beating McMillan B and Alder. Neither defense has yet to allow a touchdown this year.

In last week's action Alder upset Town, 4-2. Goodsell edged McMillan B, 2-0. Stewart romped over Carlson, 6-0, and South Warren won by forfeit over McMillan A.

Games scheduled for tomorrow are Carlson vs. South Warren, at 8:00, Town vs. McMillan B, at 9:00, Stewart vs. Goodsell, at 10:00 and McMillan A vs. Alder at 11:00.

South wins tournament

The second sport in this year's intramural program was completed last Sunday, as South Warren won the golf played at Wandermere. West Warren won the girls division.

Bruce Lewis of Goodsell was low man, shooting 79 on the par 70 course. Team standings though, were based on the Calloway handicap system, giving the higher scores a better chance. The system subtracts strokes based on the contestant's total score. For example, a score of 75-63 would mean the worst hole subtracted 88-81 one and a half and so on. Therefore, the winner was Les Hyde scoring 72.5, just nosed out fellow South Warren member Eric Olsen, who had 73. Others at 73 were medalist Lewin and Jim Barlow of McMillan.

In women's golf, four girls participated. Kath McPeek of Ballard won the individual with a nine hole score of 52. Two girls from West Warren who had never played before, participated and it earned their dorm the championship.

Steve Austin, 86-15 followed. Doug Zibell, 86-35 took ninth to complete the Pirate scoring. Whitworth's ninth and seventh men, Warren Herman 30.34 and Bill Frost 35.05, finished 18th and 58th, respectively. The Pirates lost five of last year's top seven runners, three by transfer and two by graduation.

Men's Intramural football displays the results of defensive pressures as quarterbacks try to keep from getting nailed.

Busc placce well in X-country

Fresh off a win at the Whitworth Invitational, Whitworth's cross country team travels to Seattle tomorrow for the University of Washington Invitational. Fourteen teams and more than 100 runners are expected to compete over the six mile course at Green Lake.

In last Saturday's action in Walla Walla, the Pirates grouped all five scorers near the front to win with 33 points. Whitworth, 45, Whitman, 50 and North-west Nazarene, 85, rounded out the field. Whitworth and Whitman are Northwest Conference teams that will try to unseat defending champion Whitworth at the conference meet in three weeks.

Captain Jim Isitt once again led the Pirates this week. He took third overall on the five mile course, with a time of 27:49. Tim Docheff finished sixth with 28:16. Heather Compton and Theresa Zimmermann, Sue Mitchell of Washington and the other players, she finished second individually.

South upsets West

South Warren slaughtered West Warren in one of the roughest games yet. (Last Monday both teams walked onto the field but West Warren left on stretchers.) Playing with all their might South Warren was out to win the game ended with a score of 46-14 and 2 casualties.

Theresa Zimmermann was inflicted with knee injuries and Danielle Wyman with shoulder injuries. Both girls are now in the health center trying to recuperate.

Walking the Plank

by Karl Zeiger

During the first four years under Lounsbury, the Pirates assembled four winning teams - two of them unbeaten - on route to their Evergreen Conference championship. Five All-American offensive linemen performed for the Pirates in those years. They lead Whitworth to 20 straight wins, the second longest winning streak in college football that time.

A three year span from '73-'75 found the Bucs losing only one game, that by a 7-6 count. Among the more satisfying wins was a bruising 14-13 battle with a huge semi-pro team known as the Seattle Randalls.

Pirate griddies, coating to numerous lopsided victories, scored touchdowns on the field in unmerciful Fashion in the following years. Whitworth was known to pull stunts like helping Eastern Washington celebrate their homecoming by humiliating the Savages 56-0.

Whitworth relied primarily on outstanding players, or in moments of despair, on merely good players. For instance, in '65 Whitworth lost its first two All-Conference quarterbacks playing behind the blocking of these three All-American linemen, all under supervision of the West Coast Coach of the Year, Jim Lounsbury.

The action was not altogether lacking in suspense, however. In a 7-6 win over College of Idaho, the scoring was left up to an alert defender who snuck through to pick off a lateral. The move preserved an unbeaten season and ran the Whitworth winning streak to 18.

Next week: football, Phase II

Eugene's Flowers

Cousens and Boutiquesfor Homecoming

N. 7 WALL STREET
MA 4-1703
W. 601 FRANCIS AVENUE
FA 6-3535

Senate approval passed

Senate Wednesday approved budgeting of $456 million for intramural sports. The money will be used for trophies and awards and the construction of a trophy case in the HUB.
Bucs down O.C.E.

The Whitworth Pirates ended a rather unenviable string of 2 victories a season, in each of the last 2 years by oupping over Oregon College 40-6 last Saturday. This gives the Pirates a 3 and 1 record early in the 1972 season.

The Buc quarterbacks again dazzled the opponents defense by connecting on 19 pass completions for a total of 317 yards. Whitworth leads the NAIA in that category.

Perry led the Pirates in the first 15 minutes of play, but had trouble moving the ball down field. With one minute left to play it looked like Whitworth was going to score. The Bucs started moving from their own 20 yard line with the help of 1 first downs, a penalty, and pass completions to Mel Stubblefield and Wilbert Rance to the O.C.E. 6 yard line. But the Bucs were stopped with an interception by the Wolf's Gene Hewton.

In the second quarter Bruce Cole came in on the Pirates' second series of plays and threw a screen pass to Duncan Findley. Two more complete passes to Stubblefield and Tim Allen set up a 6 yard quarterback keeper by Cole for the first touchdown of the game. Immediately following the Buc touchdown, the Wolves fumbled the ball on the 20 yard line. Cole molded the Oregon's turnover into a Pirate touchdown on a 24 yard pass completion to Mel Stubblefield.

In the closing minutes of the first quarter, the Wolves Quarterback Horn flipped a pass to Kevin Moen to score the Wolves lone touchdown.

The P.T.A. was no good, and the first half ended with the Pirates leading 14-6. The third quarter started out somewhat like the first quarter with the defense dominating until the final 6 minutes, in which Whitworth scored 2 touchdowns. Pirate Quarterback Cole, threw 3 bombs to Tim Allen. 1 foot struggle into the end zone by Findley, and a great catch in the end zone by Allen accounted for the 2 Pirate touchdowns. Both of Rasmussen's extra-point attempts were wide to the right. The score was now Whitworth 26 Oregon 6.

In the final quarter Whitworth's Steve Rasmussen made his debut as quarterback with a play that not only baffled the Wolves' defense, but the spectators as well. On 3rd down Rasmussen came in and the Whitworth line set up in a punt formation. Rasmussen, however, drilled a 38 yard pass to Scott Ferguson, which set up a Cole to Stubblefield pass for another Buc touchdown.

The final scoring of the day was produced by Steve Stanley who intercepted a Horn pass and ran it all the way back for Whitworth's last T.D. Rasmussen's kick was good, and the game, which was the most impressive team effort for the Bucs this year, ended with the Pirates trouncing Oregon 40-6.

Tomorrow features the Bucs Homecoming game against U.P.S. at Albi Stadium in the 44th annual Shrine game. The Pirates anticipate their toughest game yet against the Loggers.

Homecoming game vs. UPS: 1:00 p.m.
Joe Albi stadium

Professional pharmacist
Whitworth Pharmacy
HU 3-8424
Whitworth stages Learning Day

Whitworth College will be having its first Applied Learning Day Tuesday. This activity will be valuable in helping students become aware of what career fields are open. It will not only help students understand the realistic aspect of their intended vocation, but will also give a glimpse of life after college.

Regular classes will not be held Tuesday. Forum will start the Applied Learning Day off with presentations of current vocation trends and how they should be approached. A complete explanation of the day will then be given. At 10 and 11 a.m., there will be panel discussions throughout the campus. The panel discussions, primarily questions and answer sessions, will be divided into seven major vocational areas. Fifty resource people will be involved in these panel discussions, about two people per group.

Homecoming has "Transition" theme

Whitworth in Transition" emphasized the theme that as Whitworth moves through the 70's, Homecoming must adapt to the times.

This year, the crowning of a homecoming queen became a part of the thing, while a Shriner football game was initiated, with proceeds going to the Shriner hospital.

The college choir, stage band, and sinfonietta put on a show to a Thursday forum audience who didn't want to leave. Tracy, Seals and Crofts came Friday night and played their own brand of funky music to a group of listeners who didn't want to sit down.

Continued on page 8.

The major vocational areas are education, business, government and law, social service, health care, fine and performing arts, and the technical area (the sciences).

From 1:30 to 3 p.m., students will be divided according to their respective majors for department meetings. This meeting will conclude the activities for the day.

Applied Learning Day originated about a year ago during last year's faculty retreat. At that time, faculty members discussed vocational trends, the relationship of a liberal arts college to the vocational world, and the absence of any vocational awareness program at Whitworth.

The Committee on Applied Learning Day eventually developed from this discussion and the ideas were put into operation.

There are nine members on this committee. Faculty members are Howard Gage, Pat McDonald, Jodee Pulfer, Dave Ech, and Bob Huber. Student members are Cathy Smith, Dixie Ross, Ron Leighton, and Kaye-Eileen Olson. Gary Tuttle has also assisted the group.

According to Bob Huber, one of the committee members, there should be several more vocational workshops before the quarter starts.
Whitworth apparently has a bit of a cord dorm age problem in getting boys and girls together, according to an Associated Press article clipped from a recent TACOMA NEWS TRIBUNE. An editorial in last week's Whitworth bemused some this same idea. Perhaps the problem is that some people haven't recognized there's a problem. Could be that dating to no longer be a deal it once was? Could it be that boy and girl events at Whitworth and other schools are finding the traditional dating pattern somehow out of date? Is there something better? Cord dorms and open dorms have given girls and guys a chance to see each other as they really are, without the supervision or restrictions of dating barriers in other ways, too. The fewer rules and restrictions and the more trust instilled in men and women students, the fewer likely deal to meet each other on a person-person level. When the rulemakers stop pointing out the differences, the formerly ruled can stop worrying about them.

Traditional dorms will still have its place. It may build up respect and help in the process of getting to know each other as men and women. But the Friday Night Dating Game is no longer. Men and women are getting to know each other on an intimate level seven days of the week instead of just two superficial date nights.

Post said, "That is either Jev or Greek; there is nothing better there, there is neither male nor female, you are all one in Christ Jesus." Are men and women at Whitworth proving that today?

Whitworth changes direction
by K. Granath.

Homecoming ceremonies are a change and were raised quickly this year. This was due in part to the new purpose designated for Homecoming day by our student government. This new continuing theme centers around student involvement in the community, with no set patterns that former homecoming students and student government will have to follow.

Any change takes place it takes people awhile to realize what is happening or different from the changes in Homecoming this year. The change is a shock to some, and many missed out on the Homecoming "feeling" this year due to the change in the Homecoming Royalty. Most students, however, did get involved in the new theme of Homecoming this year by participating in a money raising project for charity. Those who did spend their time and energy felt it was for a better purpose than elevating their candidate Homecoming Queen. Despite mixed feelings Whitworth students should be congratulated upon a new path in regard to Homecoming, a path with meaning and opportunities for new traditions to develop.

The game with UPS, while it would have been better had we won. However, it was action packed, and was distinguished by some fine individual performances. It felt to be one of the "hardest hitting"

---

Bio section offers Jan Southwest trip

A chance to visit four major desert types in the Southwest will be afforded biology students in the January off-campus Biology expedition. Lead by Doctors David L. Hicks and Howard Stein of the Biology instructors, the course is open to 20-25 upper division biology majors. The course, according to Dr. Hicks, will involve several trips as well as visiting museums and research areas. One such research will be the International Biological Program (IBP)-Desert Biome Study. Dr. Hicks explained that this is an international program in which participants study various ecological habitats around the world, and presently they are studying deserts and their plant life.

The group plans to study mainly in California, Arizona and Baja, a possibility of also visiting deserts in Sonora and Baja California, Mexico. "That's the desert we have up yet," Dr. Hicks commented. He said students may have the opportunity to listen to Forest Service lectures, or possibly visit colleges and go to talk to people who actually live in desert areas.

"Every student will work individually or in small groups on projects concerning a facet of desert life, such as plants, birds, etc. Campers and motor homes will be used to transport the group, with students doing their own cooking. Dr. Hicks commented that since there is a problem finding adequate motor homes, White Water, particularly in the area, they may have to travel by car to California and pick up the campers there, which he said may be cheaper, anyway.

The tour will cost $200 or less, which, according to Dr. Hicks, is "probably the least expensive January off-campus experience." Students will depart Jan. 4 and will be gone 24-25 days. They will get a Saga class refund, as do all students who participate in off-campus study. Dr. Hicks, it that, as of Oct. 16 there was still room for ten more students.

presented October 25, is a story modeled after the life of William Randolph Hurst, a great journalist. "This picture has all the surface brilliance of movie making," stated Leonard Oakland, English teacher who is in charge of presenting the films.

He continued, "So much has happened in the last 30 years in film making (film, cameras, etc.) and yet Citizen Kane still stands as an exciting experience."

Renoir's Grand Illusion, showing November 1, will be shown in the lead refund, as dided. It is a French film which will be run with English subtitles.

"I like Renoir's films because they pay careful attention to human beings," stated Mr. Oakland.

Both films will be presented at 7:15 p.m. and admission will be $1.25.

Dome exhibit

"Does," an exhibit of such art forms as air, water, light, and sound, will be shown beginning tomorrow, October 21, at Second City, 605 West First Ave.

The exhibit, which is being presented by the Eastern Washington State Historical Society, ends November 18, and admission is 25 cents. For more information, call the Historical Society, 465-3931.

---

Campus tidbits

Confusion over the new Senate method of passing resolutions created some minor changes in recent Whitworthian, instead of the final draft and passage of the intramural budget at the stated in the October 13 issue, was a preliminary vote to be approved a week later in the October 18 session.

The 1975-76 Natski (yearbook) is now in the process early this year, a tentative delivery date to students on May 14th. A supply supplement the last week of June first which includes all events occurring after the 1974-75 subscriptions. Bob Payne, editor, and Bob Carlisle, assistant editor, are pleased with the dedication and cooperation of their staff.
Wilderness Activities

Club offers challenge

Outdoorsmen among Whitworth students now have an opportunity to become involved in a Wilderness Activities Club. It will give people of all types of skills and experience an opportunity to challenge many scenic spots around the Spokane area.

Oren Hiemstra, 1970-71 Whitworth student body president, announced at an introductory luncheon held last week, that the club is being organized to perform three functions.

One of these is to serve as a coordinating office for any students interested in planning and organizing a trip to a specific area. The club will also offer non-credit educational classes to students on all backgrounds of outdoor experience and it will make rental equipment available to all students at extremely low costs.

Hiemstra emphasized that the club will attempt to coordinate any outdoor excursions which students are interested in. These may include snowshoeing, cross-country skiing, rock climbing, backpacking or any other wilderness activity.

Maps, rental equipment, information and sign-up sheets are kept in Room 5 of the HUB for all students to take advantage of. Experienced students will also be available to offer planning guidance for anyone interested in organizing a trip. Hours will be announced later.

Dr. Donald Young and Tim Marshall are the program coordinators for the club. They will be in charge of both the set-up in the HUB headquarters and the offering of student-taught classes.

The club has been set up as the site of a preliminary outing November 4-5 for all interested hikers. It will offer the opportunity for students inexperienced in outdoor activities to gain from those of a broader wilderness background.

The bike will also serve as a time to get away from the city and college environment for a weekend. Marshall emphasized that plans will not be set out in detail so that it can offer each person the type of learning or experience they desire.

This year's Wilderness Activities Club is an attempt to get more students involved than last year when a similar attempt failed to attract sufficient interest.

Two years ago, $4600 was appropriated by the student senate for wilderness equipment. This 18-foot canoe, 14 Cruiser packs, snowshoes, stoves, and various other equipment was purchased and has been available to students. Last year, however, very few people knew of or took advantage of the rental materials.

Good sell man fast
...not fast enough

A Good sell supreme sold himself in the thigh Monday while playing "quick draw" with a 22 caliber pistol at about 11:45 a.m. He was treated and released at Holy Family Hospital for a broken thigh.

Injured was Rick Guenther, 19, of Asotin, Wash. He and two others from Goodsell, Ted Cook and Bill Tyler, were playing "quick draw" at an abandoned go-cart track north of Wandermere.

Guenther's pistol went off in his holster as he was attempting to draw the gun. The bullet passed through the holster into his thigh and lodged behind his knee.

New requirement effect ed this year

A new foreign language requirement for gradation, combined with all Communications and Other Culture requirements, went into effect September 19, announced Dr. David Winter, Academic Dean.

The new requirement, which will be used by all entering freshmen from this point forward, is as follows:

Options

1. Four courses in one foreign language. With this option the required language requirement (Speech 115, English 110, Journalism 115 or 116) and the Other Culture requirement would be met.

2. Courses in the following: a. Communications (Speech 110, English 110, Journalism 115 or 116) b. Another culture course. And any two of the following: 1. Introduction to linguistics (English 345) 2. Development and structure of the English language (English 354) 3. Advanced writing (English 264, 346)

Writing for publication (Journalism 220). Students will do in a foreign language (for the purpose of this requirement two courses must be completed). 7. Introduction to computer science (Math 271).

The two requirements of part a, option two, for completion of two foreign language courses must both be taken to fulfill the requirement. No other courses must be taken in part c.

"By using the second option a student may exclude language study entirely," Dr. Winter noted. "It was decided that for some students languages were not necessary."

All students presently enrolled at Whitworth, and all those transfer students who have entered some college before the new prerequisite went into affect, will have the choice of following either requirement.

Pics to be taken for directory

Photographers will be in Warren and Arend lounges all day Wednesday and Thursday to take pictures of students for the student directory. ASWO executive vice president Rich Clark urged all students to be photographed.

"It will only take a couple of minutes," he said. "It's really important. The thing will flop if students don't have their pictures taken."

The professional student directory will replace the 1972-73 Hunter's Handbook of past years. The 75-100 page book will include, besides the picture, the name, dorm, age, hometown, and year in school of each student. It will also introduce students services and student government.

Clark said a lot of ads have been sold to finance the expensive student directory, some for over $200. He said "Do editing and coordinating, but a professional firm will handle the rest."
Whitworth Church will receive pipe organ

Organ students within a year will reap the benefits of a combined organ project of Whitworth Community Presbyterian Church and Whitworth College. A $1,370 pipe organ will be installed in the church sanctuary for use by both the church and the college.

Designed by Walter Gottschalk, Jr., of Cleveland, Ohio, the organ will feature 34 stops, mechanical tracker action, electro-pneumatic stop action, two manuals, and full pedals, and a console made of rosewood, plum, cherry, and red oak. It will have approximately 800 pipes.

Dr. Wayne Kallstrom, organ teacher, said the design is varied so college students can get a good idea of organ literature and required sounds for organ pieces. It will be used along with the one in the auditorium, on which students practice now. This will increase the practice hours for students: 180 hours are needed per week, and only 99 are now available. Dr. Kallstrom plans to use the instrument in the organ literature and required sounds for organ pieces.

The art show was part of the week's emphasis on women's opposition by the Associated Women Students. According to Deanna Saxton, the president of AWW, its purpose was "to show how girls on campus express themselves with a diversity of personal expressions."

Women students display art works

by Cindy Irwin

Handcrafts made by Whitworth co-eds will be on exhibit until Tuesday in the library and bookstore on campus and in the HUB lounge. "It's free to anybody who wants to take the time to look," explained Becky Ottmar, AWW publicity chairman.

"There's a little bit of everything in the display," she said. The wide variety of works includes macrame, batiquing, pottery; jewelry; paintings; and needlework of all kinds. Many of the projects represent hours of time and painstaking precision. Others require a more spontaneous and creative approach by the artist.

Whitworth Church Bill goes to polls

by Cindy Irwin

On November 7th of this year the voters of Washington state face the crucial question of equal rights for women. Although you've seen the little orange posters on the campus public board, do you wonder what they mean? HJR 61 stands for the House Joint Resolution number 61. It is a state wide bill authorizing a new constitutional amendment outlawing governmental discrimination on the basis of sex.

The national Equal Rights Amendment, identical to the HJR 61, has already been approved by the United States Senate and House of Representatives with overwhelming support. Yet the bill can not come into effect unless 38 states endorse it within seven years.

Before the Washington Legislature can ratify the national bill, local voters must approve HJR 61. There has been much confusion over what legal changes the bill would make. Gayle Berry, assistant attorney general, HJR 61 would affect approximately 100 statutes now on the books. "Most of them could be fairly easily changed to conform to the Equal Rights Amendment. Many require minor changes in wording. The most serious changes would require some additional changes in the books," she said.

The ERA would equalize insurance rates; social security benefits, alimony procedures, childcare laws; government pensions; credit ratings; and property ownership among other things. It would assure the almost clinched issue of women's movements throughout the country—"equal pay for equal jobs".

Institutes would be required to have admissions requirements uniform for both sexes. Enrollment could not be restricted to one sex. Quota systems which limit the number of one sex admitted to institutions or specific programs would be outlawed. Athletic scholarships must be opened to both men and women. Since Whitworth College, like many other institutions, requires a more spontaneous and creative approach by the artist.

of the week's emphasis on women's opposition by the Associated Women Students. According to Deanna Saxton, the president of AWW, its purpose was "to show how girls on campus express themselves with a diversity of personal expressions."

Women students display art works

by Cindy Irwin

Handcrafts made by Whitworth co-eds will be on exhibit until Tuesday in the library and bookstore on campus and in the HUB lounge. "It's free to anybody who wants to take the time to look," explained Becky Ottmar, AWW publicity chairman.

"There's a little bit of everything in the display," she said. The wide variety of works includes macrame, batiquing, pottery; jewelry; paintings; and needlework of all kinds. Many of the projects represent hours of time and painstaking precision. Others require a more spontaneous and creative approach by the artist.

The art show was part of the week's emphasis on women's opposition by the Associated Women Students. According to Deanna Saxton, the president of AWW, its purpose was "to show how girls on campus express themselves with a diversity of personal expressions."

Women students display art works

by Cindy Irwin

Handcrafts made by Whitworth co-eds will be on exhibit until Tuesday in the library and bookstore on campus and in the HUB lounge. "It's free to anybody who wants to take the time to look," explained Becky Ottmar, AWW publicity chairman.

"There's a little bit of everything in the display," she said. The wide variety of works includes macrame, batiquing, pottery; jewelry; paintings; and needlework of all kinds. Many of the projects represent hours of time and painstaking precision. Others require a more spontaneous and creative approach by the artist.

The art show was part of the week's emphasis on women's opposition by the Associated Women Students. According to Deanna Saxton, the president of AWW, its purpose was "to show how girls on campus express themselves with a diversity of personal expressions."

Women students display art works

by Cindy Irwin

Handcrafts made by Whitworth co-eds will be on exhibit until Tuesday in the library and bookstore on campus and in the HUB lounge. "It's free to anybody who wants to take the time to look," explained Becky Ottmar, AWW publicity chairman.

"There's a little bit of everything in the display," she said. The wide variety of works includes macrame, batiquing, pottery; jewelry; paintings; and needlework of all kinds. Many of the projects represent hours of time and painstaking precision. Others require a more spontaneous and creative approach by the artist.

The art show was part of the week's emphasis on women's opposition by the Associated Women Students. According to Deanna Saxton, the president of AWW, its purpose was "to show how girls on campus express themselves with a diversity of personal expressions."

Women students display art works

by Cindy Irwin

Handcrafts made by Whitworth co-eds will be on exhibit until Tuesday in the library and bookstore on campus and in the HUB lounge. "It's free to anybody who wants to take the time to look," explained Becky Ottmar, AWW publicity chairman.

"There's a little bit of everything in the display," she said. The wide variety of works includes macrame, batiquing, pottery; jewelry; paintings; and needlework of all kinds. Many of the projects represent hours of time and painstaking precision. Others require a more spontaneous and creative approach by the artist.

The art show was part of the week's emphasis on women's opposition by the Associated Women Students. According to Deanna Saxton, the president of AWW, its purpose was "to show how girls on campus express themselves with a diversity of personal expressions."

Women students display art works

by Cindy Irwin

Handcrafts made by Whitworth co-eds will be on exhibit until Tuesday in the library and bookstore on campus and in the HUB lounge. "It's free to anybody who wants to take the time to look," explained Becky Ottmar, AWW publicity chairman.

"There's a little bit of everything in the display," she said. The wide variety of works includes macrame, batiquing, pottery; jewelry; paintings; and needlework of all kinds. Many of the projects represent hours of time and painstaking precision. Others require a more spontaneous and creative approach by the artist.

The art show was part of the week's emphasis on women's opposition by the Associated Women Students. According to Deanna Saxton, the president of AWW, its purpose was "to show how girls on campus express themselves with a diversity of personal expressions."

Women students display art works

by Cindy Irwin

Handcrafts made by Whitworth co-eds will be on exhibit until Tuesday in the library and bookstore on campus and in the HUB lounge. "It's free to anybody who wants to take the time to look," explained Becky Ottmar, AWW publicity chairman.

"There's a little bit of everything in the display," she said. The wide variety of works includes macrame, batiquing, pottery; jewelry; paintings; and needlework of all kinds. Many of the projects represent hours of time and painstaking precision. Others require a more spontaneous and creative approach by the artist.

The art show was part of the week's emphasis on women's opposition by the Associated Women Students. According to Deanna Saxton, the president of AWW, its purpose was "to show how girls on campus express themselves with a diversity of personal expressions."
Whitworth married students enjoy unique lifestyle

by Julie Nerness

Does marriage for college students imply a life style of chicken soup and leaky faucets? For some Whitworth students who double as couples, it doesn’t seem that bad at all.

Paul and Sally Nelson, Whitworth seniors who are residents of Ball and Chain, are a unique example of the married students who thoroughly enjoy their present style of life though it often requires a few sacrifices.

The Nelsons, as many other young couples, do not inhabit the most luxurious of apartments and therefore are accustomed to a few domestic oddities. Their bedroom, for example, is adjacent to the bedroom of the couple next door. (Newlyweds too) Only a very thin wall separates the two which holds the nighttime conversations down to a whisper. Of course their sink leaks, and there are other minor drips and cracks, but all in all Paul and Sally are quite happy. “Often times though we have kind of an isolated sort of feeling,” said Sally, “and we have to make a concerted effort to meet new people.” Paul said of their situation. “We are pretty self-sufficient, not eating at Saga or being a part of dorm life, so it’s almost like living off campus.”

The physical sacrifices that often have to be made when married students are going to school are not of major importance to the Nelsons. They value time spent with each other, just in setting aside time to do seemingly insignificant tasks as making cookies or straightening the house.

Paul, having been married almost one year, feels that it is much easier now for him to become involved in his studies because he does not have to worry over a dating situation or about a dorm hassle. Though friendships still continue through marriage, Paul feels that he has a comfortable life style outside of academia and can therefore concentrate well on them when need be.

After graduation this spring, (Paul in Psychology and Sally in English) they will likely pursue graduate school or engage in some travel. For the time being though, the Nelsons are in residence in Ball and Chain. Remember, theirs is the apartment with the amplified bedroom.

Off Campus Couple

Another married couple, both of whom are also Whitworth seniors, are Bob and Janet Yinger. Their situation is somewhat different from that of the Nelsons in that they live in their own home off campus. Afforded this luxury, they are better off than many young couples, but Janet acknowledged the situation bluntly: “Well, marriage is complete emotional bliss and financial disaster. Of course not entirely serious, the next on to say that with their busy schedules (Bob is a physics major and Janet works many hours at Whitworth’s Post Office) there is little time to spend with each other. Now that they are also self sufficient, the Yingers appreciate good old Saga food and the noisy dorm atmosphere to which they were once accustomed.

Perhaps the most noticeable problem in the past for Janet and Bob has been the fact that their bed is constantly falling down. Ah, what a struggle it must be. After graduation, Bob will have to choose between graduate school and the draft. Perhaps he will not have a choice at all.

Now though, they are enjoying the happiness of a Christian marriage and feel that it allows both of them to be changing people.

Egg sale cracks $82 for center

Whitworth students sold eggs door-to-door as they raised money for the Whitworth Presbyterian Church’s child day-care center Wednesday night, October 11.

To sell eggs, students from Carlson, Washington, and Ballard Halls asked the first household for a donation of an egg. They then went to the next house or apartment and sold it for a donation to the center. The fund raising was alternated between collecting and selling the eggs.

Donations ranged from ten cents to five dollars as egg, with most contributions amounting to a dollar.

Sales organizers sent six teams of two out into three areas around the college with orders not to come back until they raised $30. While they didn’t all reach the goal, the teams did collect a total of $82.38. With the money earned from the October 8 car rally they now have $106.

Co-organizer Jeff Hanson remarked, “We were very satisfied with the results of the egg sale.”

He said most of those asked to buy or give an egg were enthusiastic about the cause. “They all said it was a good idea, it would have a direct effect upon them,” he stated.

The people in the approximately 200 houses and apartments visited were a whole “very nice and polite about the sale,” said Jeff.

Gonzaga hosts prayer workshop

Two workshops on prayer will be conducted Saturday by the Rev. Arnaud Ngo of Gonzaga’s theology department.

Featured speaker at the congress will be internationally known Catholic psychologist the Rev. Eugene C. Kennedy, who directed the controversial psychological study of the Catholic priesthood in the United States.

Congress attendance may reach 3,000 persons. Any-Ups sets

by Larry Morris

U.P.S. rolled to an easy victory Saturday, as the Loggers spoiled the Pirate homecoming by beating the Bucs 32-16.

Whitworth, the N.A.I.A. number one leaders in passing and total offense teams had trouble moving the ball down field by only completing 13 of 44 passes in the 4th annual shrine game.

The game started with Whitworth kicking off and the Loggers fumbling the ball and the Bucs recovering. George Perry went to work only to find a taca­cious defense working against him. The end result nothing. The Loggers worked with a wishbone offense which netted them 49 yards rushing and helped them control the ball on the field.

The first quarter consisted of nothing but the exchange of the ball with neither team scoring, but early in the second quarter Steve Rasmussen dazzled the fans as well as his opponents and peers by drilling a beautiful 50 yard field goal. After two more punts by U.P.S. and one by the Pirates the Loggers moved the ball 90 yards on 6 plays all of them running plays, for the first T.D. of the game.

During the second period the Bucs' miscues seemed to multiply when Bruce Cole threw two interceptions on his next two passes. The second pass was thrown to the Loggers' defensive end Charlie Cox instead of the intended receiver Duncan Findley. Cox ran it back 38 yards for another U.P.S. touchdown. The point after was wide to the left and the first half ended with Whit­worth leading 13 to 3.

In the third period U.P.S. connected on a 60 yard pass play with halfback Doug Gail to end Paul Dil­lo. The extra point missed, and the Bucs were ahead 16-3.

Whitworth looked like it was finally their chance to show the crowd what they are all about. U.P.S. fumbled but ended up punting. The punt was downed by U.P.S. returner who was long which set up a two yard run by Don Ritta into the Pirate end zone to make it U.P.S. 26, Whitworth 3.

Towards the end of the third period Pirate quarter­back George Perry started moving the Bucs down field with a quick pass over the middle to Mel Stubblefield. Mel then scored 69 yards with a beautiful run. On the next play Perry threw another Pirate inter­ception which set up another Pirate touchdown that finally ended the Fugie Sound scoring at 32. In the final period Whit­worth started pulling back together as quarterbacks George Perry and Bruce Cole both hit receiver Mel Stubblefield for the Pirates only touchdown.

Whitworth's comeback was too late as the Loggers crushed the Bucs 32-16.

\[\text{Complete and upcoming sports}

by Tammy Cooper

The Girls Intramural Sports Program has been succeeding in its purpose of giving the students of this college the chance to take part in athletics and recreational activities of their choice.

Of the twenty-one sports planned—archery, badminton, basketball, bowling, cross country, decathlon, field hockey, football, free throw, one-pitch, golf, ping pong, soccer, volleyball, tennis, swimming, indoor and outdoor field and track, weight lifting, wrestling and softball—nine

\[\text{UPPS upssets}

\text{by Karl Zeiger}

\text{'Walking the Plank'}

Except for a couple of temporary snipes, Whitworth always has been the home of powerful football. The most recent streak was the 1969-65 era, when the Pirates clicked off 60 wins, good for seven straight winning seasons.

At least eight All-Americans dotted the Pirate roster during that span, and national leaders and record holder were frequent.

The activities of the 1961 season will adequately portray the caliber of ball that was played on campus that time. That year the Pirates, 9-1, posted seven shutouts while outscoring the opposition 411-40 over the entire season. All-American quarterback Denny "Spook" Spurlock toosses 28 touchdown passes, an NAIA record. His favorite target, John "Hula" Husby, became the first ever to win a national scoring championship. He also set an NAIA record for TD receptions.

One could say that that team was explosive. Leading 33-0 in the homecoming game, Whitworth scored three times without running an offensive play: two interception runbacks and a runback on a blocked punt. More than 6000 fans sat in or stood in at the cozy Pine Bowl when the Pirates defeated highly rated Central Washington 21-19.

Whitworth was named Inland Empire "Team of the Year" and coach Dan Adl, formerly a 12-time letterman at Whit­worth, was selected IE "Coach of the Year."

The Pirates nearly made a clean sweep of the Inland Empire sportswriters' awards. An outsider also got into the awards act, though. Spurlock, record-breaking Whit QB, was tagged "Co-Athlete of the Year."

He had to share the award with a receiver from Washington State University by the name of Hugh Campbell.

\text{Computer needs identity}

The PDP-11 computer suffers from an identity crisis and still fails to print his/her name or his/her output. Frustrated by a lack of a name to call their new computer, computer science students appeal to campus creativity to provide a name for the Programmed Data Processor.

\text{Suggested names for "it" should be submitted to the Whitworthian in the campus mail before Nov. 1. Names coming closest to finding "it's" identity will be published in the November 3 issue. The PDP will be legally named after a student vote.}
Sports honors 'Womens Week'

Women's varsity volleyball teams have been chosen to compete in the first round-robin tournament to be held at Eastern this weekend. Matches will be played every hour against most of the other Pine League teams.

Those chosen for the 'A' teams are: Michele Graham, Edith Davis, Joyce Kopoloti, Cheryl Ryals, Kathy Inglun, Patty Evans, Becky Williams, and Betti Mink.

Cynthia Lloyd, Cathy Ramirez, Salina Alexander, Julie Forer, Lyn Lormier, and Mary Littlefield will be competing on the 'B' team. Both teams are coached by Miss Marks, and team scorers and managers are Helene Kelly and Kathy Walsh.

Women's football ended an 18-game losing streak of West Warren by a 26-6 count on Monday. The victory gave the girls a half game advantage over South Warren, who was idle. Washington was defeated by East Warren, 14-10, and finished third. Baldwin beat Jenkins, their traditional rivals, 18-6, in a game which some innovative plays displayed.

In taking the title, Baldwin, who was coached by George Perry and Mel Stubblefield, was also named the best offensive and defensive team of the year.

Last year's last place team, East Warren managed to put together an even season with 2 wins 2 losses and 2 ties, giving the cellar honors to Jenkins. Jenkins was named as the best sportsmanship team.

Football action: Baldwin vs Jenkins - Laurie Anderson and Patti Evans battle it out on a pass thrown up for grabs. Baldwin won the game 18-6.

Pressure by Mark Lower (Goodsell) to Bill Gilchrist (Stewart) is part of the reason Stewart only managed 2 points but Goodsell also found pressure as they too only made 2 points.

Men's intramurals and activities

by Chris Bauer

Last Saturday's Goodsell vs. Stewart game, in Philadelphia football, proved to be a good match as expected. The teams squared off in a defensive battle as both defense's were scored upon for the first time. The final result was 2-2 game, as Goodsell remained in the lead.

In other football action McMillan B won easily over Town, 6-0. Alder beat McMillan A, 2-0 and Carlson defeated South Warren, 4-0. At the halfway point in the season Goodsell holds a full game lead over Stewart, Carlson and McMillan B.

On Tuesday the intramural representatives got together to discuss the upcoming activities. The main topic was should Varsity lettermen be able to participate in one-pitch or any intramurals.

With only 12 of the 27 dorm representatives present a vote of 7-4 in favor of varsity letter-men's participation in intramurals passed. However, because the subject was not discussed and the dorm representatives did not have an opportunity to hash out the issue with the students they represent, Howie Kellweg felt there should be a re-vote on such an important decision.

After much discussion on the situation last night and the opportunity for the dorm representatives to inform their individual dorms a re-vote of 12-4 against having varsity intramurals participating in their own particular varsity sport was passed.
Homecoming weekend creates excitement

Above: "WHAT'S TAKING those women so long?" Below: LINDMAANS, STOCKERS, and Dr. Winter pause for a rest during dinner-dance at the Spokane Club. Right: MARION TIMMERMANN prepares for the formal dance with the help of her "hairdresser," Sharon Marler.

'Transition' Homecoming theme (cont)

To many it still seemed like the same old thing. There were the bad memories of "losers" parties and there were the fond memories of a night for two in the Spokane Club.

To others outside the Whitworth student body, however, it may have been the first time that Homecoming became relevant to them. In addition to the football proceeds to the Shrine's Hospital, student funds were raised for a Whitworth Day Care Center.

Due to the work of several interested members of the Whitworth community a day care center will be begun in the Whitworth Presbyterian Church. Student funds raised during Homecoming will be used to get the program underway.

January has been set as the tentative opening date for the center. It will fulfill a babysitting capacity and serve as a place for early childhood education.

Children from the community and of students and teachers will all be part of the program. The number of the children will be limited to about 50, however. At least two full time employees will run the Center.

Gordon VanWechel, student body programming vice-president, who had originally envisioned the center for welfare mothers, emphasized that "there really is a need for it."

He added that no restrictions will be placed on applicants because, "One, we owe something to the community. Two, it would create competition with the Head Start program which we don't want. And, three, we wouldn't be able to draw that many welfare people from this community."

Anyone interested in working with the committee or in donating something to the center should contact one of the committee members. These are Jane Jacobs, Dick Nagel, and Sharon Parks from the chaplain's office; Nick Faber, Mrs. Jodee Puller, Mrs. Isla Rhodes, and Mrs. Lillian Whitehouse of the faculty; and from the community, Mrs. Carol Ann Erickson, wife of the minister of the Whitworth Presbyterian Church.

Students on the committee are Jean Bell, Mary Lou Horn, Bonnie Lewis, Laurie Robinson, Gail Sharman, and Gordon Van Wechel.

Another homecoming has come and gone, but this year some of those citizens outside Whitworth may remember its impact for a while longer.

Above - JAMES SEALS warms up before the first show. Below - HOWARD SMITH and Brian Zimmerman prepare lighting for the concert.

Above - NASH CROFTS checks microphones before the crowd arrives. Below - SOUND TECHNICIAN Ron Hyder works with microphone balances.
Kissinger predicts peace at hand

Henry Kissinger said Thursday that “peace is at hand” in Indochina and that a final agreement could be reached in only one more negotiating session with the North Vietnamese.

However, he disputed Hanoi’s insistence that the United States had committed, as a condition of the agreement, to sign the agreement by October 31.

Kissinger said details must still be worked out, but these would not halt the rapid end to the war.

President Nixon’s later comment reflected Kissinger’s talks: “...peace with honor and not peace with surrender in Vietnam.”

Kissinger gave his own summary of Hanoi’s Oct. 8 proposal:

* That the U.S. and Hanoi concentrate on bringing an end to the military aspects of the war.
* That they agree on some very general principles within which the South Vietnamese parties could determine the political evolution of South Vietnam.
* The demand for a coalition government by Hanoi has been dropped.

* A simultaneous discussion about Laos and Cambodia.
* Cease fire in South Vietnam.
* The withdrawal of American forces within 60 days.
* A total prohibition of the reinforcement of troops.
* Existing military equipment would be replaced on a one-to-one basis by weapons of similar type and characteristics.
* All captured military personnel and foreign civilians would be repatriated within 60 days.

Upcoming slide show aims at student concern for war

Automated warfare and its relation to the national election will be looked at through a slide show and dialogue to be given as the initial presentation of this year’s Committee for Peace.

It will be held Thursday, November 2, at 8 p.m. in the HUB.

People from both political parties within the Committee have arranged this commercially-prepared slide show in hopes of getting students to think about the war issue.

Discussion afterwards will be led by one or two professors whose names have yet to be announced.

The dialogue will seek to confront the moral and Christian dilemma involved in warfare.

Study voyages available on World Campus Afloat

Merwin A. Griffiths, vice president for international studies at Chapman College in Orange, California, was on campus Oct. 17 to present students of World Campus Afloat (WCA)

The program, founded in 1965, WCA is an international education program which introduces students to many cultures of the world by means of study voyages. Students, from accredited colleges throughout the U.S. can earn a semester’s transferable work aboard WCA during fall or spring terms. Courses are conducted aboard ship, with field experiences related to the students’ subjects of interest conducted in various ports around the world.

Courses for each semester correspond to many of the same courses offered at Whitworth, and any student is eligible, as well as people who are not enrolled in college, but are capable of doing college work.

Costs of WCA, including tuition, insurance fare, import program, visa fees, health insurance, and student fees are $2975-$3850, depending on types of accommodations—single, double or triple.

Chapman College makes available a wide variety of courses in many areas. Students are requested to contact the Chapman office directly, and catalog of courses is available from him.

McGovern to campaign tomorrow at Gonzaga

Democratic presidential hopeful George McGovern will campaign tomorrow in Spokane as he speaks at Kennedy Pavilion on the Gonzaga University campus at 11 a.m.

Admission to the speech is free.

A car caravan will leave from Whitworth’s HUB at about 10:30.

McGovern will also appear on television that night, covering the states of Washington and Oregon. Viewers will be able to phone in questions during the hour long show, beginning at 7 p.m. It will be televised locally on channel two.

This is the first time in eight years that a presidential candidate has visited Spokane, Barry Goldwater campaigned here in 1964.

Job situation explored on Applied Learning Day

Whitworth students participated in their first Applied Learning Day Tuesday. The day started off with a 9 a.m. forum and ended with department meetings.

Forum dealt with the occupational world and in what manner a student should approach it. Several slides illustrated the present occupational situation, acted out by Tim Marshall, Holly Anderson, Bruce Talkington, and Larry Morris.

Then Dave Erb, one of the members of the Committee on Applied Learning Day, went into depth about the situation. He mentioned four aspects of jobs to keep in mind.

He suggested that although students should plan ahead, they should think broadly about what they want to do. They should decide that they want to help people for a living, for example, not necessarily that they want a specific occupation. He also remarked that students, unlike their parents, should plan ahead on a short term basis what they want to do for the next two years instead of what they want to do the rest of their lives.

The second aspect Erb mentioned was looking for a job is experience. He stressed summer jobs, volunteer work, and internships in a field a student preferred would be very helpful.

The third aspect he talked about was the first job. He indicated that it was difficult to obtain a first job, the starting level of a career, and that it required a much greater number of interviews than ten or twenty years ago. He believes students should know about their personal assets and accomplishments better so that they can be ready to choose the job situation that would suit them best. Erb explained that the average starting wage of Whitworth graduates is $6200 a year.

Finally, Erb talked about the occupational trends. According to Erb, state and local governments are offering the greatest occupational opportunities with federal government offering the least.

At 10 and 11 a.m., several panel discussions were held throughout the campus in which students could become involved.

Panelists discuss job possibilities with future scientists at Applied Learning Day.
EDITORIALS

The great normative war

Fourscore and seven years ago... Our camp纽 day is celebrated, as the Whitworth women, liberated and captivated, who have studied here, have confused the women's role far beyond the men's role. We are met on a para normal battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of those norms as a permanent Whitworth fixture for those who hold stereotypes that they may be comforti- able in it. We are not altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense, we cannot propagate—we cannot perpetuate—we cannot continue this normative situation. The Whitworth women, liberated and captivated, who have studied here, have confused the women's role far beyond the men's role on the same political platform. The campus will little note nor long remember the "Bring Your Own Man" dance but it can never forget the sweetly baked brooch. It is far from us, confused rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished clarification of women's and men's rights which they who fought here have thus far not achieved. It is rather for us to be dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored women we take increased devotion to that cause for which this week has given us the full measure of devotion; that here we more nearly advance to that which we shall more nearly accomplish. Carolyn Schoelstel

Think before you vote

It is interesting to note that a recent Gallup Poll indicated that 30 of the nation's college students favor George Mc Govern. The poll in the last issue of the Whitworthian showed that this is not the case at Whitworth. Of course it is not necessarily bad to differ from the norm, which Whitworth does in many positive respects.

I submit, however, that it is not in the political political attitudes that are reflected by the high percentage of Naxotis on campus, but rather a large number of unformed students in general, and a large number of unformed lower classmen in particular.

At Whitworth most students come from conservative middle-class homes and it seems as though students here are simply echoing their parents' political attitudes with barely a second thought as to what is at stake. For instance how many of the 78% of the girls in Baldwin that support Nixon didn't also express their political convictions? I'm afraid that the number is all too few.

Computer needs identity

The PDP-11 computer suffers from an identity crisis. It fails to print his/her name on his/her output. Frustrated by a lack of a unique identity, it has come to expect a unique identity, it has come to expect an identity of its own. The computer science students appeal to campus creased for a name for the programed Data Processor.

Suggested names for 'it' should be submitted to the Whitworthian in the campus mail before Nov. 1. Names coming closest to finding its identity will be published in the November issue. The PDP will be legally named after a student vote.

Care VanMarter recital scheduled for Sunday

A Jewish comedy, a scene from Henry VIII and several important pieces will be presented by Carolyn VanMarter in an interpretative recital this Sunday at 3 p.m. in the music building.

As an added attraction during the recital, Sherry Baranowski and John Spen dan will record players (old, historic instruments resembling our own) and Paul Heisler will play the harpsichord. Paul has also composed several pieces which will be played during the recital.

Carolyn, who has been planning and preparing for this recital since last spring semester, commented, "This is the first oral interpretive recital given since 1969, and I hope it will start a new surge for people to give more recitals."

Hawaiian Club performs dances native to home

The Hawaiian Club has been developing on the Whitworth campus for some time now. Its current president is Bruce Umeda, a resident of McMillan. The club began three years ago in a place where students from Hawaii could "get together and talk about old times and home."

One function of the club lately has been to perform native dances at various events, representing either the college or themselves. October 18, the group performed at the Spokane Lakeide in a cultural demonstration. The dances they use are basically Hawaiian in nature, but in the future they plan to use more diverse forms to emphasize that Hawaiians have a background that blends many different cultures into a definite "Hawaiian" culture.

Museum to display prints

The Cheney Cowles Memorial Museum will display 23 lithographs, intaglio, serigraph and woodcut prints from 1 to 7 p.m., October 28, at West 3216 First Ave.

Dr. Ed Lindaman, president of Whitworth College, appears each weekday at 7:15 a.m. in WIVK, Channel 2 as the host of Intersect. Broadcast as a public service show, Intersect is described by Lindaman as "an interaction show dialog with interesting people."

Guests from the community are invited to participate in programs, which include infor- mal discussions in which a variety of views are pre- sented.

Each program lasts for 15 minutes, and the same program shown at 1 a.m. is repeated at 7:15 a.m. In addition to being heard locally on KREM television, Intersect is also aired on KGW in Portland, KEKN in Seattle, and KNDN in Yakima.

Intersect is taped in 25-week series, the fourth of which began last Monday. (The program that was shown on television for about a year and a half). The topic of discussion for this week has been the Equal Rights Amendment. A panel in- cluding Mrs. Lillian Whitehouse, associate director of Student Development at Whitworth; Mrs. Janet Stanci, community coordinator for KQRS FM radio, Michelle Baugh, a Whitworth senior; and George Cole have debated the subject.

The week of October 30, Mr. Dan Hussey, Allard Henry and Travis Prewitt will be guests.

Willie Williams will perform on the piano November 20 and 21, followed by Gary Galadion, who will sing and play the guitar November 22 and 23.

Language as Communication will be the focus of Intersect. The first week Richard Dietz, Patty Price, Cristy Smith and Ed Murphy will be talking with Dr. Lindaman. The second week Dan Hussey, Allard Henry and Travis Prewitt will be guests.

Carolyn Schoelstel

"Intersect" brings together various talents and ideas of students and community

Future plane includes a performance sometime in February at the Rocklin Chiste, a home for the elderly, and on March 10 a lunch with food and dancing is scheduled at Whitworth.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Carolyn Schoelstel

MANAGING EDITOR
Gary Herbels

BUSINESS, ADVERTISING
Scott Ballestein, Cheri Waters

CIRCULATION
Bob Holtzclaw, manager

NEWS STAFF
Mary Wold, editor
Bob Sikorski, assistant editor

FEATURE STAFF
Cathy Strong, editor
Jill Scatena, assistant editor

SPORTS STAFF
Cindy Irwin, assistant editor

PHOTOGRAPHY STAFF
Sally Nelson, Julie Strain

ADVISOR
Mr. Alfred O. Gray

PUBLISHER
The Whitworthian

Official publication of the Associated Students of Whitworth College, Spokane, Wash. Published by the Whitworthian Organization 1942.
Jesus '72 campaign celebrates victory

by Cindy Irwin

This election year there is a new breed of campaigners putting door bells and handing out pamphlets. Their candidate isn't endorsed by either party. His name doesn't appear on any ballot. Even his staunchest supporters agree that they could never vote for him. Yet his promotion posters are everywhere. They're the red, white, and blue ones with the slogan: "Jesus, the man with the Plan." You might have even seen his bumper stickers or buttons, maybe even a billboard or two.

What's this all about? "We're not pushing Jesus as a politician. We're not trying to get people to vote for him. We're trying to turn people on to the plan of God," explained Mark Owen, director of the Jesus '72 campaign.

Not to be outdone by the political campaigners, they have published their own pamphlets on such issues as war, pollution and hunger. They claim the worldly problems can not be solved by men alone. They believe the solutions lie in the God-Man, Jesus Christ, and through him only can there be hope.

Unlike most campaigners, the Jesus people are celebrating victory before election time. Christians from all over the Northwest are gathering in Spokane to join in a giant victory parade through the downtown area.

The marchers plan to meet at the corner of Main and Browne 11 a.m. Saturday, November 4th. Police will be on hand to control traffic. There will be a rally following the parade at the plaza of the Federal Building. Evangelist Carl Parks will speak. Music will be played by the Wilson McKinley rock band. "There is an open invitation to anybody who wants to get involved and tell people about Jesus," said Rush Greenhalde, managing editor of the Truth newspaper.

The idea of "campaigning for Jesus" is upsetting to none. One Whitworth student commented that "Jesus should be kept out of the political process. Whatever relationship someone has with Jesus is his own business!"

Mr. Greenhalde disagrees. "As Christians we are called to proclaim our faith in Jesus. He (Jesus) never outlined any rules for proclaiming. He didn't say 'thou shall not use bumper stickers,' he just said to proclaim him." "The whole purpose of the campaign is to give every Christian a chance to stand up for Jesus."
Pirates trounce Clansmen 26-21

The Whitworth pirates won their fourth game of the season Saturday by defeating the Clansman 26-21.

An outstanding defense led by Glen Oliver, and the timely passing of George Perry, proved all the Bucs needed to gain the victory. George Perry threw three touchdown passes in the first half, and Steve Rassmusen set a school record by kicking his sixth and seventh fieldgoals of the season.

In the first quarter not much moving was done by either team. A tenacious Whitworth defense was as solid as it has been all year. With 8:14 left to go in the first period, the Pirates had control of the ball on the Bucs' 35 yard line. On the first play George Perry threw a beautiful bomb to Mel Stubblefield for a 70 yard touchdown play. Rassmusen's P.A.T. was good giving Whitworth a 7-0 lead over Simon Fraser.

At the end of the first half Whitworth made 20-0 on a 66 yard pass completion to Mel Stubblefield. Rassmusen missed the extra point.

In the ending minutes of the half the Clansman got on the scoreboard with a 18 yard touchdown pass to Dave Kafur. The P.A.T. wide to the right and Whitworth took a 20-6 lead into halftime.

In the third period Simon Fraiser came back onto the field with momentum. With the help of two first downs on some fine runs by the Clansman backs, and a quarterback keeper by Passaglia, Simon Fraiser made it 20-13 with 6:40 left on the clock in the third period.

With less than a minute gone in the fourth period Steve Rassmusen set a school record by kicking his 6th field goal of the season which gave Whitworth a 23-13 Lead.

Simon Fraiser came right back with a 69 yard punt return by Mark Stevenson for another Clansman touchdown. The two point conversion was good as the game tightened to 23-21.

With 1:08 left in the game Steve Rassmusen came in and he booted a 27 yard field goal which ended the score for both teams as Whitworth upended Simon Fraiser 26-21.
Christian involvement open

Through a variety of programs, the chaplain's office at Whitworth offers students many opportunities for active involvement in worship and service.

Several campus worship programs focus on "growth in Christ" and are held each week. Among them is a Monday at 10:15 a.m. student gathering in Arend Lounge for the College's "Christian Cafe" which was the topic of discussion throughout October. A new series of discussions about "The Sermon on the Mount" begins November 6, led by Dr. David Bilworth.

On Thursday, the second all-campus worship. Each Sunday night at 9 p.m. Whitworthian meet in Arend to participate in song, prayer, and Bible Study. With "The World," a theme, students present their views on various "subtopics" in small informal groups.

Discipleship Classes, led by faculty, staff, and administration personnel center on Bible Study and personal interaction.

Supporters of Nixon, McGovern debate

by Mark Frederick

A debate between four Nixon supporters and four McGovern supporters took place in forum yesterday. The debate, moderated by Dr. Archer, consisted of four categories: foreign relations, the economy, national welfare, and concluding remarks from each side.

Foreign Relations

Michelle Baugh said, "There are three parts to Nixon's defense: "national" strength, partnership, and a willingness to negotiate. Nixon's "American Dream" is not a national policy, or a dream, but a reality that can be achieved through the American dream."

Dr. Simpson referred to Dr. Archer's statement, "Our country is alive with political and dramatic campaigns. The candidates, young and old alike, viciously attack their opponents in an effort to win the favor of voters.

Glittering generalities and unpopular campaign promises do not rankle the electorate because many candidates have been totally dependent on the federal government for funds. Without federal government funds, candidates would have to turn to the people whom they represent for support. These are single-issue candidates who cannot afford to lose their support in one area to win it in another."

Economy

Kim Hunter commented, "Coming into office under poor economic conditions, Nixon's realistic assessment of the economy has brought about a full employment economy with a falling rate of inflation, reduced taxes, and a growing economy, despite the Vietnam vet's return."

"Nixon and McGovern offer not just two different programs, but completely different sets of priorities. Under Nixon, unemployment has doubled. Nixon has cut major domestic bills were vetoed, and military spending is too high. McGovern's philosophy includes a job for everyone and reduced property taxes," Rich Clark said.

National Welfare

Ken Omsted said for McGovern, "Because of Nixon's 'lack of genuine commitment,' unemployment has increased from 3.5% to 5.6% while the cost of living has risen 10.1% just last year. McGovern would create one million new public service jobs, create more day care centers, and raise amounts to welfare recipients above the poverty level."

Ron Leighton spoke for Nixon: "Most of Nixon's proposals have been blocked by a Democratic congress that plays political games to keep Nixon look bad. However, Nixon has returned power to state and local governments and has spent 5.5 times more money for pollution control. Under McGovern's plan, people would be dependent on the federal government for jobs and welfare recipients would earn more than many jobs available."

Concluding remarks

Ed Morgan said, "As evidenced from Nixon's record, the ITT deal, the wheat sale scandal, the Watergate incident, the attacks on the press, and so on, the corrupt Nixon administration is insuring away freedom of the constitution that guarantees numerous freedoms to our press, our privileges, and ourselves."

"So far our opponents have only attacked Nixon. They have criticized him, but they have not really supported it with facts and offer no workable alternative from McGovern," said Lora Lee Bauer.

SUGAR AND SPICE are the chief ingredients in these secret heart cakes. Each rich piece is made from scratch using the finest ingredients available. The results are simply wonderful. See your local bakery for our new recipe book. For mail order, contact our distributor at 900 S. Main St., Spokane, WA 99204.
Board of Control decides on Playboy, smoking policy

by Rick Clizk, chairman, HUB

Over the past week there has been considerable controversy over the recent decision of the Board of Control Committee. Their decisions to reaffirm the no-smoking policy and to ban the sale of cigarettes and Playboy magazine in the Student Center must be defended, it would seem we have a hearing.

The six students, three faculty and three administrators decided near unanimously on this matter. Their decision to reaffirm the HUB no-smoking policy was based upon definite ventilation problems therein. It seemed that until ventilation can be installed mutually understanding and respect would be exercised. The installation of ventilation is being worked on. If the students were asked what the magazine was most contradictory with the increased campus emphasis upon male-female relationships and human sexuality. Hence, their decision. I hope that this clears up any misunderstanding about these decisions. Hopefully onward with more pleasing goals.

Members sought for Photo Club

The photography club is now looking for new members as it begins its second year, said Dr. Honer Cunningham, club advisor.

Anyone interested in joining should contact Dr. Cunningham or club president George Long. The club bought some new equipment this year. Dr. Cunningham has the special use of one of the "four or five darkrooms on campus." In order to use this equipment a person must belong to the club and pay the five dollar dues.

Cunningham said to join the club it helps if "one knew something about photography," but there are many people who have had little experience in camera work who are learning from those more expert.

The club hopes that they will be able to have an exhibit of pictures taken by members sometime in the year. "It’s a great hobby," Dr. Cunningham noted.

Health Center expresses need for male volunteers

Male volunteers are badly needed for clinical work with disturbed children at the Spokane Mental Health Clinic, said therapist Nancy George.

Workers will work part-time with emotionally and mentally disturbed children from the ages of three to 18 years on a one-to-one basis. No previous experience or training is necessary.

"We really need men to volunteer," Nancy said.

"Right now we only have one man involved. The children need a male image, since most of them already have mothers."

Work time will be 9:00 to 12:00 on Mondays through Thursdays, and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays.

Those interested should either visit the clinic at S. 107 Division, or call TE-49651, and ask for Nancy George or Linda Dunn.

Flash the Flash

The hangover about campus communication is hardly "headache" anymore. While issuing booty lines for better communication, the Flash in the same breath illustrates its own inadequacies in "disseminating information and facilitating dialogue."

Buried somewhere in the wearisome parade of chatty trivia, are a few announcements to be discovered by the Flash reader each noon. Rows of exclamation points highlight inspired remarks such as "Thursday, yes it is today." Heart sister endearments and trivial queries (vital) come out of sessions of campus activities. Political announcements cater to "Senator George McGovern" and slam "Tricky Dick." The "Sartorial and scandalous remarks" center around general biases and are often qualified the very next day.

Obviously, this fresh dialogue that the Flash peddles is not so, let’s say, this divisive, intellectually stimulating, objective or even entertaining.

The Flash uses sensationalism, sarcasm, and slurs about the Whitworth folk. The Whitworth student has not so easily responded to this. This stimulates defensive dialogue. Apparently, the immediacy of a daily publication and the apathy of Whitworth students is this policy.

As a member of the Whitworth staff, I sympathise with the Flash editors and their battle against closed-mouth students. It is always difficult to communicate with people who don’t care. However, that is no excuse for the Flash editors’ questionable methods, organization and remarks.

Catherine Strong

McGovern slings mud

A modulated McGovern sticker found near my apartment expressed an opinion on the Presidential campaign. This election can claim more mud-slinging on every level than any other since the time of Cleveland’s campaign. McGovern and Rosellini, Democratic candidates for President and Washington governor notably have thrown so much mud that they’ve dived their own seemingly snow and pure reputations more than their opponents. This week McGovern began to play the ad Hominem fallacy constituting the backbone of McGovern and Rosellini’s arguments.

Sundi’s “Meet the Press” conference over monitor radio, an exasperated correspondent gave up when he discovered that McGovern could not reply to his question without impugning the issue itself. This is a better way. This government is interested in finding a man to change his mind, to find a man who has been speaking out from the day.

The marks illustrate the reversals this fresh dialogue that the Flash peddles constitutes. The harangue about campus communication is hardly "headache" anymore. While issuing booty lines for better communication, the Flash in the same breath illustrates its own inadequacies in "disseminating information and facilitating dialogue."

Obviously, this fresh dialogue that the Flash peddles is not so, let’s say, this divisive, intellectually stimulating, objective or even entertaining.

The Flash uses sensationalism, sarcasm, and slurs about the Whitworth folk. The Whitworth student has not so easily responded to this. This stimulates defensive dialogue. Apparently, the immediacy of a daily publication and the apathy of Whitworth students is this policy.

As a member of the Whitworth staff, I sympathise with the Flash editors and their battle against closed-mouth students. It is always difficult to communicate with people who don’t care. However, that is no excuse for the Flash editors’ questionable methods, organization and remarks.

Catherine Strong

Mind change defended

"I am not afraid to change my mind to the light of new evidence and in the light of new insights. I am more interested in finding a position on an issue than being right. Governor. His is not the issue. We are interested in finding a man to change his mind, to find a man who has been speaking out from the day.

Senator George McGovern

This is Indeed a profound statement. To me it represents what leadership and government are all about. It is a clear picture of one of the many facets of George McGovern. His words make it clear that he is not afraid to change his mind, to find a better way. This statement reflects two attitudes, attitudes that we need in our country must have.

The first is change, because government is a business that requires flexibility. The other is optimism because there is a better way.

When, in the course of his campaign, McGovern has changed his position on an issue, he has done so honestly and consistently before the American people.

But in change, always good? What about moral principles? What about an issue like Vietnam? I maintain that on important issues of the day, the principles, the policies, McGovern has not wavered in his convictions.

What about Vietnam? For years Senator McGovern has been speaking out against this infamous war. He has seen past the near sightedness of others to see the real issue at hand, and in the answers to three questions he has not wavered.

The choice is yours, choose good instead of evil.

R. J. Granah
McGovern prays for peace settlement

by Ed Brookhouser

Senator George McGovern hailed President Nixon's Vietnam peace settlement, but questioned its end of war and of human justice. Several times of peace were questioned by President Nixon. The settlement, stilted by criticism that Americans must save face by holding to the country's problems in times of peace.

The Senator praised the coming Vietnam peace. "We all hope and pray that these reports of peace in Vietnam are true," he said. "I want to stress that... I would much rather have a settlement to this war than to have a political issue."

"The question I would like to ask is why we had to wait until the closing days of the election campaign. What have we accomplished that we could not have had several years ago?" "I want to ask why was I ridiculed when I said that we could withdraw both our prisoners and our troops in ninety days, when those same people say we can withdraw our men in sixty days."

Answering the charge that he has changed his position on some major issues, McGovern said, "I'm proud of it, because I've put the national interest ahead of any personal consideration to myself." Not afraid to change his mind when faced with new evidence, he said, "I'm more interested in finding the proper position than in saving face by holding to a course I know is wrong."

But on the issue of peace and war, of human justice, he said, "I am perfectly confident that I can defend my record anywhere in this country that Mr. Nixon wants to meet me in face-to-face debate."

Heroes never die

by Pete Trott

A toy rockship is lowered into a terrarium between two iguana lizards, and the camera rushes to a closeup of the rockship's door. Out steps a tall, blonde, Euchman, his beautiful sweetness, and their friend—a venemous scientist. They are strangers on a strange planet, a planet populated with all sorts of hostile peoples. Alas, this is a position which all of us must dread, a fate in which it would be impossible to see any humor. Or would it?

The blonde man we are speaking of is none other than Flash Gordon, as portrayed by Buster Crabbe, and Whithower people can see him and his daring exploits in the HUB every Thursday night at 8:00 and 8:30.

Fortunately for the viewer, if he is a male chauvinist but unfortunately for Flash, his girlfriend dresses rather scantily. Added to her beauty, this makes her the object around which most of the action is focused. She has been abducted by one of three different kings. The one which is presently holding her captive has wings and is demanding her hand in marriage. This particular king tried to get Flash out of the way by lowering him into an electric dynamo, but Flash proved too handy to be done away with.

The best scene in the series thus far was when a different king’s domain was the bottom of the ocean, put Flash into a room full of water, with an octopus for a roommate. There was an underwater shot in this scene which showed Flash being repeatedly dragged underwater by the octopus. But the octopus was obviously dead, with one of its legs tied to Flash’s ankle. The only reason Flash leaped into the water was because he was pushing himself down to save the damages.

This series is full of bad acting and poor photography, but it has good comedy and fun to watch.

Looking Upward

by Cindy Irwin

There is a legend of a man who was caught in a bed of quicksand. Confronted by his end, he said, "That is evidence that men should stay out of such places." Buddha came by and said, "His life is a lesson to the rest of the world."

Mohammed said, "Alas, it is the will of Allah." The Hindu tried to console him, "Friend, you will return to earth in another form." But when Jesus saw him, He said, "Give Me your hand, Brother, and I will pull you out!"

Curt's Y Druggist

9103 N. Division

HU 7-1814

Strick's Donuts

38 Varieties

To Groups and Organizations

PA 8-9901

N. 3200 Monroe

XL Cleaners

Launder & Dry Cleaning

3410 N. Division

PA 7-1411

Dose the way you like it, 15% off to Whitworth Students and Teachers.

It's the real thing, coke.

Inland Empire Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Spokane, Wash.
'Walking the Plank'

by Karl Zeiger

All athletes need to be knowledgeable about their sports. If you are the type of athlete that plays the political game, you would wise to brush up on the technical terms of your sport before going to the polls Tuesday.

All-Americans: A guy with a crew cut.
backfield: the lane behind the White House.
belly series: a suspenseful meal served in the White House.
chain gang: prisoner of war negotiators.
delay of game: changing vice-presidential candidates.
extra point: illegal ballot.
hash marks: brownie points for narc.
illegal procedure: breaking against party's headquarter.
triple option: opportunity for a extra point.

Philadelphia football will conclude tomorrow and the dorm champion will be decided. Carlson (5-1-1) and Goodsell (6-1-1) have played in four seasons. They are assured of a playoff. Stewart (4-1-1), with one game remaining, still has a chance to get into the playoffs.

The Pirates did another impressive victory Saturday, by downing Oregon Tech 28-6. The Pirates missed their record by 2 wins and 2 losses.

The unyielding snow, and miserably cold weather did not see to bother the Pirates or Bruce Cole, the quarterback as he completed 19 of 37 passes for a total of 282 yards.

In the second period the Pirates did not waste any time getting on the score board. On their first set down with just 2:38 gone in the first period Brian O'Hara took a pitch from Cole, and spotted downfield for a total of 50 yards for the first score of the game. Rasmussen's kick was perfect and the Bucs led 7-0.

Whitworth came back to score again on a quarterback keeper by Cole. This ended a 62 yard drive that took 8 plays. Rasmussen missed the extra point attempt as the first period ended with the Bucs ahead to stay 14-0.

In the second period the Bucs took advantage of a short punt by Oregon Tech. The Pirates started the drive from the O.T.I. 45 yard line and used 7 plays, the final one being a Cole keeper up the middle for the score. The two point conversion was good as Duncan Findley carried the ball into the onside. The score was now Whitworth 21, O.T.I. 0.

Oregon Tech came back on a 42 yard pass to Alex Sanchez for their only score of the game. The P.A.T. was off making it a 21-6 ballgame.

Whitworth came back with a 9 yard pass from Cole to Wilbert Rance for their final T.D. The drive started by Greg Hatch who intercepted a Dunsworth pass at mid-field. The Pirates then drove 54 yards in 3-plays capping it off with the nine yard pass. Rasmussen's kick was good for the final score of the game giving Whitworth a 28-6 victory.

Football title up for grabs, Stewart still has chance

Bucs roll by OTI 28-6; host Central tomorrow

The Whitworth Pirates secured another impressive victory Saturday, by downing Oregon Tech 28-6. The Pirates missed their record by 2 wins and 2 losses.

The unyielding snow, and miserably cold weather did not see to bother the Bucs or Bruce Cole, the quarterback as he completed 19 of 37 passes for a total of 282 yards.

Brian O'Hara took a punt from Cole, and spotted downfield for a total of 50 yards for the first score of the game. Rasmussen's kick was perfect and the Bucs led 7-0.

Whitworth came back to score again on a quarterback keeper by Cole. This ended a 62 yard drive that took 8 plays. Rasmussen missed the extra point attempt as the first period ended with the Bucs ahead to stay 14-0.

In the second period the Bucs took advantage of a short punt by Oregon Tech. The Pirates started the drive from the O.T.I. 45 yard line and used 7 plays, the final one being a Cole keeper up the middle for the score. The two point conversion was good as Duncan Findley carried the ball into the onside. The score was now Whitworth 21, O.T.I. 0.

Oregon Tech came back on a 42 yard pass to Alex Sanchez for their only score of the game. The P.A.T. was off making it a 21-6 ballgame.

Whitworth came back with a 9 yard pass from Cole to Wilbert Rance for their final T.D. The drive started by Greg Hatch who intercepted a Dunsworth pass at mid-field. The Pirates then drove 54 yards in 3-plays capping it off with the nine yard pass. Rasmussen's kick was good for the final score of the game giving Whitworth a 28-6 victory.
MacIntyre stars in 'Indians' tonight

by Cathy Strong

Doug MacIntyre stars as the noisy, confused Buffalo Bill tonight, Saturday and Sunday in Whitworth Drama Department's production of "Indians." Curtain time is 8:15 and 8 p.m. on Sunday. Reserved seats are available from Ken Kuen, ticket manager.

The play, by Arthur Kopit, condemns the white man's inhumane exploitation of the Indian people. Intended as a comment on the Vietnam situation, the drama studies how the treatment of the Indians was rationalized, and how it contributed to the myths of the American West.

Buffalo Bill's dilemma is that he finds himself a part of the mythmaking process. Chief Sitting Bull, the real hero of the play, (Bob Payne) challenges him. John Grass (Joe Bingham) speaks for the chief and eventually performs the Sun Dance that white men have outlawed.

Action alternating between Buffalo Bill's Wild West show and an Indian Grievance Committee highlights two characters. Bob Cadesen, Scott Suppence and Larry Stone play senators who angrily question the Indians. Paul Blott as Wild Bill Hickok, not only signs the bills required Ned Buntline (Len Schloetel) but carries a half-dressed Italian actress (Miss Lathkes) off stage. Steve Ritter is the simulating Grand Duke of Russia who shoots Spotted Tail (Scott Wilson) for sport. Gary Knox, playing Chief Joseph, tells of the Indian plight in a moving speech repeated several times.

"Our main difficulty," said assistant director Pat Neils, "has been identifying with the intense suffering brought out in some of the most powerful roles in contemporary American theatre. It's a real challenge."

The play is a major undertaking technically, too. Stage manager Scott Shaw worked "too long and not long enough" to build a circular, tilted stage with platform for Buffalo Bill. He also carved out two totem poles. An all-cast painting party put on finishing touches Saturday.

Backstage, Pete Olds and Rick Nelson work to coordinate special lighting with the soundtrack, the original 440 tape from New York. Also concerned with timing, assistant director Bruce Tallmantt directs the traffic of buffaloes, Indians and dancers on and off stage.

The only major calami-ty was Ginny Latheim's bruised elbow, the result of a wander ing rifle in rehearsal. Heading all the arrangements, Director Albert Gunderson (dressed in a green monkey suit) wearily exclaims: "I see a show! Let's Get It Gundersonk Sparker!"

For a review of "Indians," see page four.

Senate puts pet plan up for approval, decides against tobacco sales in HUB

by Mary Wollford

About forty students sat in the Senate meeting Wednesday to express their feelings about the issues of cigarette and cigar sales in the HUB and pet regulation on campus.

Senate voted down a resolution which would authorize the sale of cigarettes and cigars in the Student Co-op and tobacco sales in the HUB and pet regulation on campus.

The measure was defeated with seven yes, 13 nays and one abstention.

The pet resolution was passed 16-5 and issued yes-votes by his pet committee. It means that students have seven school days to challenge it.

The resolution entails a $25 fee for each pet on campus, excluding fish, birds, turtles, and others contained in cages or bowls in the dorm room. The fee will go to a pet committee, to be used for the policing of stray animals. The remainder of the fee will be used to purchase items for the ASWC pet committee at the end of each school year.

A person may have a pet or pets on campus provided he signs a contract with his dorm. The dorm must approve of the individual contract before the pet is allowed to reside in the dorm. Docks also have the power to revoke the contract.

Following are stipulations:

No dangerous animals will be allowed on campus. All pets will be inoculated and licensed in accordance with Washington State and Spokane County laws, and no one may have a pet on campus which is illegal in Washington.

No unlicensed pets will be allowed in any college building except dorms and faculty offices. Pets must be under the control of the owner or on a leash. The pet owner must sign a statement assuming full responsibility for any damage or injury caused by his pet, and the pet owner will also have responsibility of cleaning up after, and feeding his pet. Complaints about any pet will be reviewed by the dorm where the pet lives.

Owners must purchase an identification tag which must be on the pet at all times, and unlicensed tags will be suspended at the owner's expense. Offcampus pet owners will be charged a $40 tag fee if the pet is brought on campus.

The pet committee will be appointed by ASWC Senate, and will be comprised of no more than 60% pet owners and 40% non-pet owners.

The committee will collect contract fees and manage the policing of outaged, unlicensed animals on campus.

Dogs and other pets may soon be legally on campus if a Senate pet resolution is not challenged within a week. Here Laurie Anderson and "Dog" romp on the HUB lawn.

THE MUSIC SCENE

Following is a calendar of musical events for November in the Spokane area. Most are at night and must be free.

10-17 "Three Penny Opera." Fort Wright Theatre, 8 p.m., students, $1
11 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
12 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
13 "Appalachian" Coliseum, 8 p.m.
14 "American Folk Concert" at the Paramount, 8 p.m.
15 "Havana Junior High Concert," 7:30 p.m.
15 "Freefall Concert," 9:30 p.m.
16 "Freefall Concert," 9:30 p.m.
17 "Mayo Park School Pageant," Fort Wright Theatre, 8 p.m.
18 "Three Penny Opera," Fort Wright Theatre, 8 p.m.
19 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
20 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
21 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
22 "American Folk Concert" at the Paramount, 8 p.m.
23 "Appalachian" Coliseum, 8 p.m.
24 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
25 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
26 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
27 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
28 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
29 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
30 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.

DOGS AND OTHER pets may soon be legally on campus if a Senate pet resolution is not challenged within a week. Here Laurie Anderson and "Dog" romp on the HUB lawn.

THE MUSIC SCENE

Following is a calendar of musical events for November in the Spokane area. Most are at night and must be free.

10-17 "Three Penny Opera." Fort Wright Theatre, 8 p.m., students, $1
11 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
12 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
13 "Appalachian" Coliseum, 8 p.m.
14 "American Folk Concert" at the Paramount, 8 p.m.
15 "Havana Junior High Concert," 7:30 p.m.
16 "Freefall Concert," 9:30 p.m.
17 "Mayo Park School Pageant," Fort Wright Theatre, 8 p.m.
18 "Three Penny Opera," Fort Wright Theatre, 8 p.m.
19 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
20 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
21 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
22 "American Folk Concert" at the Paramount, 8 p.m.
23 "Appalachian" Coliseum, 8 p.m.
24 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
25 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
26 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
27 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
28 "Bach" at First Presbyterian Church, 7 p.m.
29 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
30 "Bach and Handel Concert" at conservative church, 3 p.m.
Les Hyder explains budget

I'd like to comment on many of the questions raised about the Student Fees Survey recently sent out by the Exec. The information is not available, mainly because there wasn't a large enough return to make it worthwhile, so instead I will devote the article toward clearing up some of the confusion on student government spending.

Many of you wondered about the abbreviations. MUN is the Model United Nations group, an organization open to all students who participate annually in the Model U.N. Conference. Rho Nu is the campus crowning class and R.S.U. is the Black Student Union. Interface is the informative run in conjunction with Forum which brings in local people to talk on the issues of today.

The Coordinator's salary is the student body's half of Mr. Huber's salary as Student Activities Director. The collection fee is the 2% charge the college levies as the collecting agent for the ASWC fees. Working capital is a special account that is run by the treasurer and that account is used to offset and make up for deficits.

One of the common questions asked in the survey was why Natsbhi appeared twice. This is because the collection fee is a fee set up by the Board of Trustees and the state. However, every yearbook can't be made for $5.50 anymore, so it is necessary to budget up and above that. So the combination of the two is the cost of the yearbook to you.

The counseling fee has been a controversial area. The misconception that the counseling fee is only for psychological counseling must be dispelled. The counseling service includes both resident place ment counseling and class counseling, although it doesn't go to paying the resident counselors.

The counseling center has been well used and it is true that many don't get their money's worth. Yet that is the only way to provide it to all. Also, this is the last year for the counseling fee. It will not be on the student's fees next year. However, the newly instituted Field house fee will replace it beginning fall '73.

Two accounts in the ASWC budget pertain to the HUB. The HUB usage fee goes directly toward payment on the mortgage on the HUB. Then the HUB Development fee goes toward improvements on the HUB such as the new T.V. room and the game room finished this fall.

The #6 athletic fee goes to the college in exchange for the free admittance to all athletic events. Really, in comparison to most colleges, our athletic fee is quite minimal.

Scholarships are given to the Student Exec. members. The Student Exec gets 100% of tuition paid and the two vice-presidents and treasurer receive 60% of their tuition. Undoubtedly the four of us can't do the job for nothing, but it is for you to decide whether we earn our pay.

-- D. Schleeter

Les Hyder explains budget

Dear Editor:

Yesterday at Forum I noticed Miss。。。 and put it around the girl at his side. This act, though comparatively minor, is the one which cause it in so well with my recent thoughts relative to the changing of the temp. It has been the assumption of activists that man and woman should be treated as equals both intellectually and legally equal. And from the real possibility that this may be impossible because of genetic differences between man and woman, I would like to express the view that it is undesirable. It has been asserted that man dominates woman and yet in the man-woman relationship that I am aware of I see a willingness by each partner to accommodate for activities which are compatible with the individual's temperament and places a division of labor-- rather than a sharing of labor. I view this as a very slight situation for it brings the best out of both.

Consider again the act with which I opened. If each regarded the other as being identical (with the exception of a few inscrutable physical differences), this act could not take place. The tendency is for the man for the woman to be absent because those qualitites can not be held without performing an act. (Imagine the absent coat shuffling that would take place if one could assume the role of the recipient).

The same point can be made for the many acts that man and woman perform for each other. This avenue of expressed concern can for which it is kept open by the social and cultural differences in the essential to the harmony of the family and society. In fact, on a larger scale is essential to the harmony of mankind.

In my mind this is justification for not only accepting cultural difference but for maintaining, restating and developing them. It is only in God's sight that men are equal.

Philip C. Thayer

Les Hyder explains budget

Dear Editor:

One night last week two friends and I decided to dine together around 5:30 only to find that we could not find empty or two empty seats together, let alone three. In fact, there were only a few single places open anywhere in the upper dining hall and as I turned to scan it, I saw three other people faced with the same problem of finding a place to eat together had solved the problem by sitting on the floor! This week I have found that the problem has not been one of finding table space, but of finding chairs to sit on. I do not blame the students to eat together had solved the problem by sitting on the floor! This week I have found that the problem has not been one of finding table space, but of finding chairs to sit on. I do not blame the students to eat together had solved the problem by sitting on the floor! This week I have found that the problem has not been one of finding table space, but of finding chairs to sit on. I do not blame the students.

I only remember dealing with these problems last year when there was some kind of entertainment upstairs and people would stay after finishing longer than usual. This year they accomplished a slightly occurrence. When I think that Whitworth has made so many improvements its rolls without endangering the dining area I can understand it would have been crowded, especially since it was just barely adequate before the influx. I'm not sure what the answer to the problem is. Perhaps enlargement of the building is not practical at this time, but it seems to me that there must be money somewhere to purchase a few more chairs.

S. Walsh

Les Hyder explains budget

Dear Editor:

One night last week two friends and I decided to dine together around 5:30 only to find that we could not find empty or two empty seats together, let alone three. In fact, there were only a few single places open anywhere in the upper dining hall and as I turned to scan it, I saw three other people faced with the same problem of finding a place to eat together had solved the problem by sitting on the floor! This week I have found that the problem has not been one of finding table space, but of finding chairs to sit on. I do not blame the students.

I only remember dealing with these problems last year when there was some kind of entertainment upstairs and people would stay after finishing longer than usual. This year they accomplished a slightly occurrence. When I think that Whitworth has made so many improvements its rolls without endangering the dining area I can understand it would have been crowded, especially since it was just barely adequate before the influx. I'm not sure what the answer to the problem is. Perhaps enlargement of the building is not practical at this time, but it seems to me that there must be money somewhere to purchase a few more chairs.

S. Walsh

Les Hyder explains budget

Dear Editor:

One night last week two friends and I decided to dine together around 5:30 only to find that we could not find empty or two empty seats together, let alone three. In fact, there were only a few single places open anywhere in the upper dining hall and as I turned to scan it, I saw three other people faced with the same problem of finding a place to eat together had solved the problem by sitting on the floor! This week I have found that the problem has not been one of finding table space, but of finding chairs to sit on. I do not blame the students.

I only remember dealing with these problems last year when there was some kind of entertainment upstairs and people would stay after finishing longer than usual. This year they accomplished a slightly occurrence. When I think that Whitworth has made so many improvements its rolls without endangering the dining area I can understand it would have been crowded, especially since it was just barely adequate before the influx. I'm not sure what the answer to the problem is. Perhaps enlargement of the building is not practical at this time, but it seems to me that there must be money somewhere to purchase a few more chairs.

S. Walsh
"72 election breaks records; Nixon wins by largest landslide in history

by Mark Frederick

Tuesday's general election will go down in history as a record breaking event. President Richard Nixon was re-elected to the presidency by the largest landslide victory in political history. He received 524,000,000 votes from 49 states compared to McGovern's 17,000,000 votes from Massachusetts and Washington D.C.

The final popular vote gave Nixon 61% of the total to 38% for McGovern. Already the election is having its effects on the nation, including a sharp rise on Wall Street.

Gov. Dan Evans, although in a closer race, also broke records as being the first Washington governor elected for a third consecutive term and also the first Republican governor to share the Washington voters' support with a Republican president. A bitter Albert Rossellini refused to attend the election "until every vote has been counted."

Both Nixon and Evans both won, their coattail support had little effect on - helping congressional hopefuls obtain a position in government. Nationally, Democrats won a set of two seats in the Senate, boosting their margin to 67-43 over Republicans. They also won a set of one governorship but lost 12 seats in the House. They also maintained control in both houses, however. Locally, Spokane voters paralleled the state's voting habits, favoring Democrats and unanimously supporting the incumbent. The only bill Spokane differed from the state were the Shorelines Act, H.R. 91, and S.R. 83.

Another record set in Washington was the number of voters. Election officials counted about 130,000,000 votes, a new record for Washington. This was due in part, of course, to the fact that 19-30 year olds could vote for the first time in a general election.

Propositions Pass

The majority of Washington's 22 propositions were passed, including campaign disclosure, lobbyist regulation, campaign financing, community college bonds, and lotteries.

Propositions that lost were dog racing, liquor sales, and the IRR sex equality proposition. Hanging by a thread was the School Levy Proposition. Having 59% of the 66% needed, it must be decided by the absentee ballots yet to be counted.

In California, the propositions on the death penalty, California coastline, and anti-busing all passed. The marijuana initiative was soundly defeated.

All of the presidential candidates running for offices were elected, including Rep. Pete McCloskey(K) of California, Rep. Frank Stark(D) of Hawaii, Rep. John Ashbrook(K) of Ohio, and Rep. Shirley Chisholm(D) of New York.

Whitworth's Dr. Homer Cunningham suffered the trends of incumbent victories by losing a close election to Mrs. Gladys McCormick.

After the election, both Nixon and McGovern made impressive speeches.

Nixon asked that the "hand of reconciliation" should be extended to our opponents so that we may direct our attention as a unified America to solve our problems ahead. He joked that this was the earliest he had been able to get to bed on an election night. Nixon stated this was his last election and that he sincerely thanked everyone "from the bottom of my heart" for making his best free.

McGovern, addressing a sad and disappointed group of supporters, declared the election wasn't to be mourned over. He told them that they had given America a push in the right direction. He said he had never seen as much and love dedication in an election before, and added that if peace will come during the day of the Lord it will be worth all the pain-staking effort they had given.

McGovern concluded his speech with a quote from Isaiah 40 as his tearful wife and family stood nearby, "but they who wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength, they shall mount up with wings like eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint."

Food collections gathered by Food Bank Committee

Collecting imperishable food items for the needy of Spokane is the present aim being undertaken by a student committee called the Food Bank Committee. Foremost among their list of activities to collect these food items will be a food drive Saturday 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., which will begin at the HUB.

Dick Naegeli, a student on the food committee, said of the drive, "I do feel there's a definite need for this undertaking. Maybe we don't see people dropping in the streets from hunger, but there definitely is a need.

Also, this is a good chance not only to help other people, but to have a good time by working for a worthy cause.

Villiger, on "if we could get lots of students to turn out Saturday and just have a ball by helping people, it would really be great."

Joan Stimpson, another member of the Food Bank Committee, added, "This drive will give people the opportunity to get involved with themselves, I mean, the hungry of Spokane is part of Spokane."

Another activity planned to collect food will be a large box placed at the football game tomorrow in which people can contribute what imperishable foods they are able to.

Also, all local stores have been asked to donate as many items as they can. All food collected will be taken to a central food bank in Spokane and distributed throughout the city to bread lines which presently feed between 1350 and 1500 persons per day, as well as to individuals who need them.

Campus features highly acclaimed JFK actor

Jola K. Kennedy, as portrayed by actor Jeremiah Collins, will speak Wednesday at 6 p.m. in Cowles Auditorium about his years in the Presidency. The JFK characterization was highly acclaimed as a one-man off-Broadway show in 1971. The performance at Whitworth will be a political reporting scene, with three Whitworth students posing as informative, conscientious, and cynical reporters. In an interview they will review JFK's years and ideals as President, and will conclude with JFK speaking about his upcoming trip to Dallas.
Few surprised at election results

by Julie Neras

The 1972 election is over. Candidates have been chosen, initiatives decided upon, and opinions formulated. Yet, due to the accuracy of various public polls, most voters went into the polls knowing the predicted outcome, and thus, few surprises have occurred.

Perhaps the accuracy of these predictions explains people's collective reaction put the presidential race in the same way indicative of the American public's reaction to today's outcome, it can be termed an as of "contemplative acceptance." Because these results illustrate that any strong feelings have been generated by the election.

Obviously, the McGovern supporters were disappointed and cried their tears of lashed out at the American people for the defeat of one man and the victory of another. The campaign has been a very emotional play, with the American public a chance to decide for themselves which candidate will serve as the President for the next four years. We should all attempt to influence the direction of our nation.

"I was for Nixon to begin with," said Dick Pederson, "I couldn't believe his widespread win must reflect the support he has from Americans.

Ken, a supporter of George McGovern commented as he studied election returns from the HUB. "It's definitely hot that it amounts to a blank check endorsement of President Nixon's policies by the voters."

A very clear cut statement was made by Rich Czar sek "I thought the election results were tragic.

"Perhaps girls are more elusive in their overall reactions. One stated she was 'excited that Nixon won because now she can stay in the country.'"

Bill Frost said that the great American silent majority had again showed their power.

"I was really impressed by the gracious way in which McGovern conceded defeat," said Joe Carlin. "I suppose that we just have to have faith in Richard Nixon and hope that his second term is better than his first."

Another student voiced hope that "Nixon's insights will stem from his genuine concern for the country and our self-illumination."

As for the election of '72, fortunately it did have an ending (just as my cold bowl of cornflakes). But more than that, it has served a very important purpose. Dick Pederson said that McGovern's campaign caused considerable debate, thought provoking discussion, and constructive argument. It has raised the emotions and opinions of many, and has given the American people a chance to decide for themselves which candidate will serve as the President for the next four years. Many respects haven't all of the people achieved a win through this election?"

Italy studied first hand

Rome, Florence, and Venice, Italy will be the destination of a group of Whitworth students this January. The three main Italian renaissance cities will be the focus of a study tour led by Dr. R. Porston Duvall and Dr. John G. Koehler.

Tours are planned for the first day or two of the stays in each city, according to Dr. Duvall, with time for students to see what they want to or work on individual projects.

"We'll have a chance for side trips to the extent that we can scrape up the dough," he said.

Dr. Duvall emphasized the importance of faith in human achievement" which he has received from studies of the Italian renaissance. He led a similar study tour three years ago, so no way to describe St. Peter's without seeing it," he said.

"No slides or descriptions do it justice," he applied the concept to Michelangelo's statues, cathedrals, museums, Roman ruins, and the many other relics of the renaissance which the group will see.

Students may take the class for either history or art credit. Each student will do an individual project, on such topics as a person, a family, or a city and his or its role in the renaissance. Language usually limits instruction on economics or political science projects, Dr. Duvall said.

"We want to meet with the group often just before dinner," Duvall said. "This way we can evaluate throughout the tour rather than after the month is over."

The tour cost of $784 per person covers everything but passport fees, tips, personal items, lunches, airport taxes, and services of a European tour escort. Final payment is due December 1 for those who wish to go.

Dr. Dewall said about 20 students and adults are definitely going at this time, but he and Dr. Koehler are hoping for 30.

Bernatz reviews play

"Indians" is a sad play and on the surface people sensed this. People clapped, people cheered and people laughed, but I think few people actually realized the significance of this play. I think few people realized that Arthur Kopit had a reason for writing "Indians." He wanted to expose the sadness of involvement in Vietnam.

Kopit intends that Buffalo Bill represent all white Americans who vainly try to reconcile their image as practitioners of benevolence with their violent suppression and exploitation of minority groups at home and abroad.

Through the structure of a wild west show run by Buffalo Bill Cody, "Indians" focuses on the white man's confrontation with the white man's killing of the Indians was celebrated.

Dr. Kopit's literary irony of the play was that there were no Indians actually performing on stage. But none the less "Indians" was a very powerful and very emotional play.

Director Gunson, and the cast and all the staff concerned are be congratulated for leading the audience through an excellent and very meaningful performance.

Particular credit should be given to the outstanding performances of Chief Joseph, Wild Bill Hickok, John Grass, the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, Sitting Bull and Wild Bill Hickok.

MADE UP TO resemble Old Chief Joseph, Gary Kines speaks for his people in "Indians."

Eugene's Flowers

W. 601 Francis North Wall
FA 4-1723 WA 4-1723

Strick's Donuts

28 Varieties
To groups and organizations
FA 5-9091 N. 3200 Monroe

DOUG MACINTYRE as Buffalo Bill and Paul Blott as Wild Bill Hickok strike a pose in their Wild West Show highlighted in "Indians."
Jesus proclaimed

by Cindy Irwin

Eight Whitworth students were among the 1500 Christians who marched down Riverside and gathered in front of the Federal Building last Saturday to praise Jesus—"The Man with the Plan."

Their enthusiasm was contagious as they paraded through downtown Spokane, clapping and singing as they went. "God's love is really here," said one Whitworth participant. "My face is now smiling so much, but I can't stop.

People on the sidewalks and in nearby office buildings stopped and stared. Some shook hands and gave the one-way Jesus sign. One elderly man stood on the corner with tears in his eyes.

Many of the marchers carried signs and banners. Scott Wilson from Whitworth made a cross out of old two by fours he found and carried it the tea blocks.

In the group reached the Federal Building Plaza, 2000 red, white and blue balloons were released. Each balloon carried a "Jesus?7 message.

The Whitworth-Chapman band was on hand to lead the marchers in a few Jesus songs. Unfortunately, the people formed a winding chain of clapped hands as they sang one of the old two by fours, "Arm One in the Spirit!"

Speaking to the gathering, director of the campaign, 21 year old Mark Owens, said the size of the crowd proves "Jesus is very much alive." He said, "It's incredible; we are reponding with loud cheers."

"Our purpose here today is to make Jesus president—there would be stupid," Owens explained.

"Jesus already is president and he'll come back as king soon enough."

Our purpose is to point out that no politician, including Nixon or McGovern, can solve the problem of man's greed," he said. "We want to proclaim Jesus as the man with the answer to this problem."

Owens added that Jesus has the power to "convert man's greed, hate and pride into love."

"And Jesus has given each one of us a commission to tell the world about the good news of Jesus," Owens said. "We can act as His witnesses right here in Spokane to spread the word."

Owens asked if those attending would take copies of a special edition of the edition newspaper, printed by the Voice of Elijah, Inc., in Spokane, and pass them out to others.

He said the publication, entitled "Campaign Issues and Answers outlines Jesus' Plan and His answers to such problems as war, pollution and hunger in the world."

Speaking from the editor, Owens said the basic plan of God, Jesus and man is as follows:

"He (God) has given us this world, this life, just like a voting booth, to go in and cast our decisions either for or against Jesus.

Every person was put here to make that one choice, to say 'yes' or 'no' to Him, to choose between God's plan or man's plan.

And every person, before their life here ends and they step out of this 'voting booth' will have cast their vote."

There is no neutral ground. To remain indecisive is to say 'no'.

The pieces were discovered in Duvall's office on either Monday or Tuesday, and they have remained there ever since.

A note on the large flywheel asked: Dr. Duvall "Would you guess this to be an example of Michelangelo sculpture, (that collapsed) or a De Vinci scale model?"

The engine is made of wood and styrofoam.

The wooden forms were obtained from the old Union Iron Works in Spokane, where they were made to make wood molds for iron casting. The styrofoam pieces were cast in molds made from other iron works wood and from the gas tank of a Yamaha motorcycle.

Dr. Duvall wishes someone would take it off his hands, be it SAGA or anyone interested. "I just want it out of here," he said. "Several people have asked if they could have it."

The engine, a product of the art department, has been on the SAGA wall as decoration for two and a half years, despite threats of its removal by some students, said Jim Talbot, SAGA administrator. He said since student efforts don't seem to want it, it will not be returned.

Recent movies spark controversy

by Mark Frederick

Movies at Whitworth have been a topic of increasing controversy lately. Many people have asked if some of the movies are in poor taste and shouldn't be shown. Other students argue that these portray reality and to prevent the movie from being "locked away."

To try to resolve the controversy the Whitworthian News Staff will start having movie reviews. These reviews will help students decide if the movie will suit their tastes. The reviews will give the length of a movie, the rating of the movie, the date the movie was released, and a brief summary.

Tonight's movie is "To Build a Fire," an adaptation of Jack London's short story narrated by Orson Welles. This suspenseful movie deals with a man's struggle against the Alaskan wilderness.

NOVEMBER 10, 1972

THE WHITWORTHIAN

Page 5

The war spirit in man will never end without a guide to truth. Because conflicting faiths exist in everything for which there is no proof have been carried down from primitive authorities to the present day, their beliefs have deceived us. For this reason, despite suffering from disease, war, and emotional misery, the human race is unaware of the disturbing force of Nature. Incredible as it may seem, people do not examine or analyze human motives. They would not even if they could. Nor do they wonder about emotions. Emotion changes between wonderful and terrible. Differences with a wrong situation comes first, then vanishes as correction is made. Such change in pain, it cannot be eliminated without altering conditions. Our feelings change instantly, or gradually, due to the law of opposites—an intelligent set-up of the universe. We admit most disturbances stem from wrong but not that they all do. However, conflict or an accident are examples where both sides suffer over the same wrong. So there is proof that all disturbances result from wrong. This illness makes the disturbing force of Nature a perfect, self-evident guide. Anyone can discover the above to be a scientific, practical, and workable philosophy. In short, when the cause and precise change of pain and emotion is acknowledged, the war spirit in man will end at once.

Acknowledging it now... with the book, "Force Of Opposites" by Kenneth Charles. This 176 page book is available in hard cover at $6.00 and paperback $2.50. Send to: International University Trust, 9842 Atlantic Blvd, South Gate, California 90280.

The war spirit in man will never end without a guide to truth. Because conflicting faiths exist in everything for which there is no proof have been carried down from primitive authorities to the present day, their beliefs have deceived us. For this reason, despite suffering from disease, war, and emotional misery, the human race is unaware of the disturbing force of Nature. Incredible as it may seem, people do not examine or analyze human motives. They would not even if they could. Nor do they wonder about emotions. Emotion changes between wonderful and terrible. Differences with a wrong situation comes first, then vanishes as correction is made. Such change in pain, it cannot be eliminated without altering conditions. Our feelings change instantly, or gradually, due to the law of opposites—an intelligent set-up of the universe. We admit most disturbances stem from wrong but not that they all do. However, conflict or an accident are examples where both sides suffer over the same wrong. So there is proof that all disturbances result from wrong. This illness makes the disturbing force of Nature a perfect, self-evident guide. Anyone can discover the above to be a scientific, practical, and workable philosophy. In short, when the cause and precise change of pain and emotion is acknowledged, the war spirit in man will end at once.

Acknowledging it now... with the book, "Force Of Opposites" by Kenneth Charles. This 176 page book is available in hard cover at $6.00 and paperback $2.50. Send to: International University Trust, 9842 Atlantic Blvd, South Gate, California 90280.

Flight Instruction and Rental

FAA approved school for private and commercial pilot.

We are offering a 15% discount on our private course. Train in the 4 place Cessna 172.

Executive Air Corporation

Spokane International Airport

Telephone: 838-3034

Professional pharmacist

Whitworth Pharmacy

HU 3-8424
Pirates demolish third ranked Central 40-26

The Whitworth Pirates won their most impressive game of the season Saturday by defeating Central Washington, the number three team in the nation in the NAIA. Central was previously unbeaten before they met the Bucs.

Duncan Findley, Pirate halfback, displayed a beautiful running attack by chalking up 183 yards rushing, defensive end Steve Leech, and Dave Veltuso, led the Bucs' defense, and with the offense and the defense putting it together the Pirates rolled to a overwhelming upset, by crushing Central 40-26.

Whitworth scored twice with only five minutes gone in the first period of the game. Findley took the ball and ran for 16 yards giving the Bucs a first down on Central's 47 yard line. Bruce Cole then came in for George Perry and hit Tim Allen for a 25 yard pass play. Allen took the pass to the 5 yard line, and Findley slipped through the middle for the Buc touchdown. Rasmussen's kick was good and the Bucs now led 7-0.

Whitworth's grilling defense held Central during their next set of downs, and they were forced to give the ball back to the Pirates. The Bucs took the possession at the 45 and began their forward drive. On the first play of the series Rassmussen hit the ball and with the help of great blocking by Bob Stackmore, and Mike Shaumsew, he raced 87 yards for the second score of the season, a 20 yard boot, and it was Whitworth 17 Central 7.

Central's quarterback then took charge and threw a bullet to Mike Haplin for the touchdown. Whitworth scored again and made the game look like it was going to be a scoring slugfest when Perry threw a bullet to Wilbert Rance, the Bucs' lead now 14-0. The second half started like the first half ended, with the Bucs coming back on the field with all the momentum. Findley took the handoff and ran it 25 yards for another touchdown. Rasmussen's kick was good and the Bucs now led 20-0.

The second half started with a scoreless third period as well. In the fourth quarter Central hit McCready in the end zone for the Pirates final touchdown, and with less than two minutes left Rasmussen hit his tenth pass of the game, the final touchdown, giving the Bucs a 30-0 lead. The Pirates then passed to Terry Anderson for the Wildcat's touchdown.

The above shows the participation in intramurals so far this year. The total figure can be compared to last year's total of 844 men and 167 women who had taken part in as many sports.

Number of Participants in Intramurals

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Activity</th>
<th>Men</th>
<th>Women</th>
<th>Total</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bowling</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cross Country</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Football</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Golf</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>One-Pitch</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Soccer</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tennis</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>1093</td>
<td>1093</td>
<td>2186</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Central's quarterback then passed to Terry Anderson for the Wildcat's touchdown.

PRE-CHRISTMAS Leather Sale

Leather Sale

On Jackets 20 to 35% off

_Leatherman Welcomes_ ENDs MON

_Curt's Y Drugs_ 9103 N. Division

_222 N. Howard_ (Across from Bon Marche)
Northwest Conference Championships
6 miles, Tacoma

Team scoring: Whitworth 41, Willamette 56, Lewis and Clark 79, Whitman 87, PLU 96, Linfield 121, Pacific and College of Idaho incomplete teams.

1) Jim Isitt
2) Brock Hausman
3) Carl Hall
4) Mark Baum
5) Bob Son
6) Doug Zibell
7) John Mitchell
8) Rick Olson
9) Kevin Knapp
10) Karl Zeiger
11) Tim Docheff
12) Steve Austin
13) Warren Herman
14) Leonard Fleet

Buc runners win again Jim Isitt grabs first

Whitworth's cross country team, behind the first place finish of Jim Isitt, placed five runners in the top 13 last Saturday to capture the Northwest Conference championship at the conference meet held in Tacoma. The Pirates totaled 41 points, 26 points less than Willamette University's 56, Lewis and Clark's 79, Whitman's 87, PLU's 96 and Linfield's 121. Whitworth also won the title last year.

The Pirates will be at Walla Walla tomorrow for the NAIA District #1 meet. A win at district could mean a possible trip to Liberty, Missouri for the NAIA national meet which is slated for November 13. Whitworth, which finished 11th in the nation last year, is the defending district champion.

Jim's win at Conference keyed the Buc win. He battled with Willamette's Brock Hausman for much of the hilly five mile race, then pulled away in the last quarter mile to win by six seconds. Sophomore Doug Zibell also played a crucial role for Whitworth. He had been the Pirates' fifth man much of the season, but at conference he was able to put together his finest race, taking sixth place. Isitt and Zibell earned All-Conference honors by finishing in the top seven.

Other Whitworth runners were Karl Zeiger, 10th, Tim Docheff, 13th, Steve Austin, 16th, Warren Herman 24th, and Leonard Fleet, 34th.

Tomorrow's district championships could end up being a battle between the Bucs and the Whites, who have won the district crown seven of the past eight years.

by Chris Baser

The intramural football season finally ended last Saturday and it did so with much excitement. Carlson after a series of playoffs came out on top. Stewart got a chance to play Carlson in the first game after beating Alder earlier in the morning. Stewart fell behind Alder 4-0, but staged a fourth quarter rally, scoring three times to win 6-4. Jim Travis threw to Steve Olsen in the corner of the end zone for the margin of victory with about two minutes remaining.

In the first playoff game Carlson edged Stewart, 2-0. Jack Fournier hit Chris Borgen on a 30-yard scoring pass for the only score.

Carlson moved on to the finals against Goodsell, who had previously earned the bye as a result of a coin toss. The game was a tight defensive struggle as Carlson and Goodsell went victorious. Fournier found Borgen open in the zone again this time from 15 yards. It was the last play of the first and the only tally of the game.

Badminton is scheduled to begin next Tuesday for the women and Wednesday for the men. It will begin 8:45 both nights. Each match will consist of one 18-point game, and team matches will be the best of two of three matches.

currently going in one pitch softball, both men and women. Scores of last weeks games are as follows: East Warren beat Washington, 11-8. Jenkins over East Warren, 7-4, and South Warren defeated Washington 13-3. Men's results were, Carlson edged Alder, 7-6, McMillan clobbered Goodsell, 18-1, and Stewart knocked off Town, 11-2.

Women take honors in varsity sports

Women's varsity volleyball-ball has been earning a name for themselves as they display talent and ability at each match. Tuesday the A' team won at Spokane Falls 14-16, 15-9, 15-11, while the 'B' team scored 15-10, 15-7.

Previously the women played through an entire round robin at Eastern with out being beaten and later made a fine showing against several large schools, including the University of Montana.

Cross-country women attended a meet in Kalispel, Montana, where Claudia Smith, Marilyn Moffitt, Rose Treager, Becky Williams, and Julie Rexon finished third, fourth, and tenth respectively, against Flathead Valley.

'Walking the Plank'

by Karl Zeiger

Tidbits from the sports scene: A win in tomorrow's football finale will give the Pirates their finest pigskin campaign in some 11 years. If the Bucs are able to subdue Southern Oregon this week, they will stand at an impressive 7-4. Southern Oregon crunched Whitworth 27-0 in last year's game at Ashland. That game marked the only time in the last 26 games that the Pirates have been held scoreless. Shutting out the high powered Whitworth offense this time around would be something of a feat: the Pirates are scoring at an average of 30.1 points per game....The '72 outfit just has too many weapons at its disposal to be stopped easily. If George Perry can't connect, then Bruce Cole probably can. If Mel Stablefield is getting multiple coverage, then chances are that someone like Wilbert Bance or Tim Allen can find a desolate area in which to camp out. And then there's Duncan Friday to keep the defense alert......Southern Oregon brings a 4-3 record to the Pine Bowl. The Red Raiders have alternated each week this season, first winning one, then losing one. And this is their week to lose.....Whitworth has won eight of its last 11 games, including the tail end of last season. Prior to that, the Bucs won just two of their first 15 games under Coach Hugh Campbell. That's an awful great turnaround.....A win tomorrow would give Whitworth a 5-0 record against Evergreen Conference teams this season. Wonder if there is such a thing as an honorary championship? Northwest Conference teams can be glad that this was a season of transition between the two circuits.

Word has it that Tom Hale, Whitworth distance great of last year, is excelling at the University of Oregon. He ran in two intra-squad cross country meets this fall with the defending NCAA champions, and he won both of them over some of the big names in distance running. Hale is ineligible at the U of O because of a transfer rule, but he is striving for the Oregon Track Club, which often is stronger than the traditionally powerful Dark Vultures and All American honors in cross country, indoor track and outdoor track as a freshman at Whitworth last year. He led Pirate teams to two Northwest Conference championships and one NAIA District #1 crowns.....Hale ran a mile on the track recently at the beginning of a workout. He finished with Steve Prefontaine and two other guys. His time 8:53.
Ministry reaches three small towns

In the church dead or dying? Not in three small Eastern Washington towns where a team of about 30 Whitworth students have nursed the churches back to life.

The team, mostly from South Warren, give their Friday and Sunday mornings to provide Bible studies and worship services to small Presbyterian churches in Wellpinit, Reardan, and Hunter’s. Ken Crawford, South Warren dorm chaplain who started the ministry, teams the three towns and Whitworth a four-point youth parish.

“For the first time,” said Ken, “people in Reardan, Hunter’s, and Wellpinit feel there’s someone concerned for them. There’s consistency and enthusiasm from young people.” With one pastor serving these three and one more church, services have usually been conducted by visiting ministers or lady missionaries, or student help ministers.

He said Wellpinit, on the Spokane Indian Reservation, has come from frustration and apathy to a new hope which they give to the team, and the team has given them hope, too. “We’re not concerned with numbers,” added Bob Koenyon. “We’re concerned with trying to instill in people some kind of unity. We’re ambassadors from Whitworth College trying to strengthen them and help them to grow. We get more growth back from them.”

Why do busy students get up at 5 a.m. on Fridays or sacrifice their Sundays until 2 p.m. to drive 200 miles for church? “Hopefully, we’ll create interest in the youth in the respective churches, to the extent that they carry their religion from church to their homes,” said Ken.

“Jesus Christ becomes a man with a character who can laugh, cry, feel, and love,” said Ken. “It’s a sharing and worship services to the team.”

We get something out of it as well as the kids,” said Sue Bittner of the Reardan devotions. “It’s not a sermon thing but more of a sharing. We have devotions every other week, and they have it the other weeks.”

The high schoolers at Reardan have encouraged the Whitworth team. One girl’s family had planned to move across town on a Friday morning, and she had them move Thursday instead so she wouldn’t miss the devotions. Another girl came from 20 miles out of town and spent the night at the pastor’s house so she could be there. Several football players broke the coach’s regulations and got up early to come.

Ken mentioned some problems which he or may come up. When winter weather hits, the team will have to leave an hour or two earlier to make the long trip. The team has found a real difference between their culture and the Indian culture. “We’re trying to bridge the gap,” said Ken, “through Jesus Christ, which we think is very feasible.”

The ministry began when Ken Crawford was asked by the Presbytery to be a student help minister at Wellpinit over the summer. Since there was no program for the four-point parish at the end of the summer Ken volunteered, thinking it would be a good field project for South. “I think the dedication to Wellpinit, Reardan, and Hunter’s is part of the evidence of change in South,” he said. He said the change was toward a Christian emphasis.

The ministry began when Ken Crawford was asked by the Presbytery to be a student help minister at Wellpinit over the summer. Since there was no program for the four-point parish at the end of the summer Ken volunteered, thinking it would be a good field project for South. “I think the dedication to Wellpinit, Reardan, and Hunter’s is part of the evidence of change in South,” he said. He said the change was toward a Christian emphasis.
BSU funds reallocated
Exec later vetoes Senate resolution

This is an open letter from the Exec notifying all student body members of an official veto cast by us yesterday over the most recent Black Student Union resolution 7273:21.

The Exec is of the opinion that the passage of the BSU resolution was contradictory to the best policy of allocating funds prescribed by the Intercollegiate Finance Committee in their 75-76 meetings. The Exec is also of the opinion that the Senate failed to recognize the importance of allocating funds with an eye upon the legitimate and ethical use of these funds for the benefit of the entire campus student body. For these reasons the Exec has chosen to veto this resolution.

We hope that this letter will arouse not irrational inference but serious recognition in the future of the importance of Senate decisions.

Sincerely,
Ron Leighton
Rick Clark
Gordon van Wechel
Les Hyder

The reallocation of BSU funds became policy at Senate Wednesday, making it possible for the BSU to spend money in six areas rather than just on the Black Weekend, for which $400 has been previously allocated along with $50 for conferences. Black Weekend funds now come from other sources, so the money ASWC has allocated would, under Resolution 7273:21, have been used for basketball uniforms, a Malcolm X dinner, books and magazine subscriptions, office supplies and posters, Black conference fees, and movies and other cultural events.

Submitted by James Minor, Shala Dobson, and Cindy Taggart, the resolution made no difference in the amount of funds for BSU, but only on the stipulations as to how these funds may be used.

Whitworth Week money-raising drive collects $30,000 toward its $90,000

Over $30,000 has been collected in the Whitworth Week fund-raising campaign which has been in progress since Monday. "We're pretty much on target," said Bob Campbell, director of community funds for the college.

Donations totaling $90,000 are the goal of Whitworth Week, the second annual effort to appeal to individuals and businesses of the Greater Spokane area for financial support of the college.

Seventy volunteers, mostly interested community people, trustees from the area, and a few faculty members, have made contacts all week in an effort to raise money for unrestricted funds, which go into the operating budget for the current fiscal year.

A similar attempt, which has been in progress to raise $50,000, was conducted by the Intercollegiate Finance Committee last August from Wilkinson & Gesnel, a private company. The books have been on sale since last Friday.

The books serve two purposes—to enable Whitworth students to receive discounts on certain purchases made in Spokane and to promote various Spokane business through advertisement.

Each book costs $6.25. Of this amount, 50 cents goes to ASWC and $1 goes to a possible Day Care center, although this is still tentative. According to Deanna Saxton, in charge of sales of the coupon books, the coupon books are actually worth well over $200.

Deanna also commented that a book can be used by more than one person if two people want to share one.

Seventy-four discount coupons are in each book, divided into five categories—recreation, food, entertainment, transportation, and miscellaneous.

Tickets are on sale in SAGA during dinner and in the HIS during lunch. Deanna explained that although the books now cost $6.25, on December 10th the price will rise to $7.

Whitworth's Concert Band and Sinfonietta will perform Sunday at 4 p.m. in Colwes Memorial Auditorium.

The concert is free. Ranging from the contemporary Sound of Music to the classical Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, the concert will feature flute soloist Janet Frederick, a freshman music major.

"We should have something for everyone," said band director Donald Deupree. "We encourage the students to come and listen."

The band had a similar performance last year, and plans a contemporary music concert for the campus probably next spring.

Student Life Council fights Senate pet rule

The Senate pet resolution passed for Summary of Action has been challenged by the Student Life Council. Senate Wednesday agreed to the resolution in the Flash for students to read and to poll the dorms before the next Senate meeting.

Dorm residents will be asked by their senators whether they support the resolution, oppose it, or are indifferent to it. Senate will decide on the November 29 meeting whether to submit the bill to the Advisory Review Board, make amendments, or take other action. A hearing may be suggested.

The Student Life Council felt Whitworth is presently in a crisis situation about pets on campus and especially concerned about dogs in the eating areas, classrooms, and Forum.

The council pointed out that no major rental company in Spokane will allow pets in their apartments due to the amount of damage done by animals. They said the damage is often not noticed until the next tenant moves in.

Campbell, said emphasis has been placed on Whitworth's place in the Spokane community. Some of Whitworth's contributions include culture, economic impact, and educational opportunities and exchanges for the people in the area.

Mrs. Eric Johnston, a Whitworth trustee, offered a $5,000 challenge gift, which she will present when the $50,000 mark is reached.

Calls will continue until February 1, at which time Campbell expects to have all the calls made and pledges collected.

Band, Sinfonietta perform Sunday

JAZZ BAND musicians prepare for their concert, to be presented Sunday at 4 p.m. SAGA will remain open until 6 p.m. for students who wish to attend the concert.

"Since we are a major rental company, we would be foolish not to benefit from the experience gained by rental companies," wrote Dave Ehr, chairman of the council.

The council also objected to the judicial process in the to the judicial process in the resolution because there seems to be a need for complaints to present proof rather than simply to report a nuisance dog. They said this part of the resolution in unclear, and that they felt that if residents on campus were required to present proof, many complaints would be dropped.

Senator also failed to ask the question as to whether students wanted pets in the residence halls and how they would like to regulate stray pets on campus, the council complained. They recommended keeping the present policy of no pets on campus and urging the administration to pick up the animals, both stray and student owned, and take them to the Humane Society.

"We're pretty much on target," said Bob Campbell, director of community funds for the college.
Letters to the Editor

Student actions at Feast are disappointing

Dear Editor:
I am writing to express my surprise at the actions of a large number of students at the Feast of the Societies. It seems that students either did not read completely, or just weren't interested in the purpose of the meal.
I do not know if the Saga Spoon or slightly pitch from the Chaplain's Office - but was a nationwide happening sponsored by the National Association of College and University Food Services and observed in most colleges across America. It purpose was not just to celebrate (literally) another country, but to provoke at least a little thought regarding the serious dilemma that literally millions of other humans are living.
Apparently we at Whitworth have not even the faintest recognition of those needs which are not our own, those problems which don't directly effect us. There was no chance for reflections which might not fill our stomachs. Disgrace for the meal was established by leaving Byzantine maps on tables, rubbing blue to the line or sending obscene notes to the cooks, completely missing the significance of this day. This demonstrates to me not only a lack of concern for our fellow man, but an absence of courtesy for members of our own community!
I would hope that, if for no other reason than the season of the year, we could at least refrain silently for a minute on all of the many things that we here in our shelter do have in common to the people of the world. It will be interesting to see how many of them who continually speak out for social action translate that talk into action at tomorrow's Food Drive.

Gordon Van Wechel

BU$l intimates Senate

Dear Editor:
BU$ RIPS OFF ASWC...
AGAIN!
Wednesday evening at the weekly meeting of our student senate, intimidation and insinuation ruled the day! As a resolution to the effect of reallocation of funds for the BSU was presented to the senate, three stalwart guards of the "Order of the BSU" not so quietly stood continuously in the background.
Earlier that same day another set of these malign men of fair play - revealed their plans to place

Next Whitworthian December 8 due to Thanksgiving vacation

THE WHITWORTHIAN

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF
Managing Editor
Carly Schletski
City Editor
Dave Schlichter, manager

BUSINESS
Advertising
Scott Ballewney, Cheri Waters

Circulation
Ron Holcomb, manager

News Staff
Mary Wolfson, editor
Bob Tourney, assistant editor

Feature Staff
Cindy Strong, editor
Jodie Macdonald, assistant editor

Sports Staff
Chris Cooper, editor

Photography Staff
Travis Prewitt, editor
Jim Giaimo, assistant editor

Editorial Staff
Carbonado

Layout
Tommy Cooper, John Teas

VARSITY STAFF
Marcy Facciano, Sally Nelson, Jolee Strain

ADVISOR
Mr. Alfred G. Day

PUBLISHER
Those Publishing Co.
Washington 2000 studies future statewide problems

by Susan Rogers

"Washington 2000 is an attempt on the part of the citizens to decide where the state is going to go in the future," stated Dr. Ed Lindaman, one of the "pioneers" of the Washington 2000 project. "Every citizen will be encouraged to grapple with the alternative futures and to express his views and preferences."

The Washington 2000 project is an extensive, statewide exploration of the key issues which will affect the future of the state-such issues as education, law and justice, health and welfare, the environment, and many others.

"Virtually every facet of the state will be reviewed," explained Dr. Lindaman. "Citizens will have the opportunity to consider not only the distant future, but how our present decisions and actions will shape that future. The public will be able to participate in determination of where future highways should be constructed, where new towns should be located, what the balance should be between industry and recreation, agriculture in Washington."

Now in the initial stages of preparation, the Washington 2000 project was begun when the local chapters of the World Future Society voted to undertake research and development of the project in April of 1972. Dr. Lindaman was on the board of directors for that organization and was also a member of the founding and eventual presentation of the Washington 2000 conference. He was also a consultant in August.

A SKI PACKAGE RIGHT FOR YOU

Our professional staff, under Lee and Dan Evans, is ready and willing to help you with all your skiing and equipment problems.

FOR THE NOVICE SKIER

Sale $39.90

Ski Package includes: laminated 20-piece wood ski with ABS; bindings + lift tickets; ski socks; goggles; metal tip and tail protectors; complete ski gear, including binding, & 2 poles.

INTERMEDIATE SKIER

Sale $119

Choice of HEAD GKO-4 Glass, Rival or Enamel Magic 1200 or head GKO-4 Glass, new Skeffington 144 bindings and 4/8 poles. 3/4 poles. The Ski Shop

Washington 2000 is patterned after similar projects undertaken by the states of Maine, Hawaii, California, and Connecticut. However, there is one major difference, and that lies in the emphasis on Washington 2000 on broad-based citizen discussion and participation. Although there will be an Executive Committee, a Council, and an Advisory Board, the project depends ultimately on mass participation of the public. A complex, statewide, cooperative communications network will be vital to the success of the project, and such existing organizations as PTA's, lodges, and unions will be utilized, as well as individual participation, to relay the views and opinions of the people.

Organization and coordination of citizens is beginning now. "Here at Whitworth we need the names of persons who would be willing to participate in the Washington 2000 process and to find creative ways to involve the citizens," requested Dr. Lindaman. Volunteer work forms will be available for this purpose next week in the Co-op student store, and following Forum Tuesday.

"A program oriented towards Spokane's future, and informing the public of the potential of Washington 2000 might be integrated with Expo '74," indicated Dr. Lindaman.

About expenses, Dr. Lindaman asserted that because of such a useful idea, we feel we'll have no problems getting funding for it. In part through the state and in part through foundations."

Borrevik open for discussion

"I don't want to make a bobbin' out of a bunch of matches," said Dr. Berge Borrevik, athletic director, regarding a comment in the Flash about tensiones between black athletes and white coaches.

"I'm open to hearing and discussing students' concerns as they relate to the athletic program," he said. The only way to function is to get individual concerns out and expressed so there are problems they can be resolved.

"As far as we're concerned, we don't see a problem."

Borrevik said he would encourage those students with specific complaints to come and express themselves. He could not deal with the problems, however, until he knew exactly what they were.

FISH reaches out to needs

FISH, a need-serving organization on the Whitworth campus, is functioning in full-swing to render assistance of various types to the campus community.

At the beginning of the school year, each student was given a card which indicated what services or talents, if any, he would be willing to provide for fellow students. The scope of services included such things as babysitting, typing, tutoring, shoveling snow, giving someone a ride to the doctor, or just being a friend. Completed cards were then filed in the Chapman's office, where students may now call extension 364 if a particular need arises.

According to Dick Naegeli, FISH spokesman, "We feel we have a community here at Whitworth...we are a community and have people who need each other, so this is why FISH was started." He added that there has been a 'real good' response so far.

"The whole thing is to emphasize that we came-to reach out—a program to really help the Whitworth family, not only students but staff and faculty."

Naegeli said Barbara Sanford, secretary in the Chapman's office, handles all FISH calls. "The biggest number of needs brought to us is for transportation, so far, she said, displaying a bulk of FISH file cards. "Everybody's been really gracious about filling a need when it comes."

Following is a list of FISH representatives from various Whitworth dorms: Larry Calvert, Carlson; Ted Chastain, Stewart; Patty Evans, Jemison; Lyrene Fmame, W. Warren; Linda Govey, E. Warren; Beth Humes, Beyond; Roger Jones, Beyond; Tine Leaps, Study #2; Les Odom, Study #1; Ann Schillinger, Washington; Denise Skilling, Ballard; Bill Siler, McMillan; Kathy Smith, Calvin; Chris Watanabe, Co-op; and Gordon Watanabe, Alder.

Students form Junior Varsity Quartet

Four Whitworth students have gotten together to form a junior varsity quartet. The new group is composed of Gary Ash; baritone; Gary Kimes, second tenor; Mike McGuire, first tenor; and Rick Morea, bass.

The need for another group was raised because the varsity quartet can only take a certain number of engagements, so many invitations were impossible to meet. Although they have not yet had any official engagements, they have new matches where they are ready to perform formally.

Carlson cheers Bell's engagement

Carlson hall gave its president a congratulation he couldn't refuse last Sunday. The occasion was the announcement of president Pat Bell's engagement.

Draggin' Pat along out of West Warren, where he had been attending an engagement party, the men of Carlson put on a spray of shaving cream all over his body, and drove him to McDonald's drive-in in the back of a pickup truck.

After putting him in the middle of the drive-in, the dorm returned him to Carlson showering him with state beer on his patio. They then carried Pat along the Loop, through the library, and finally back into the West Warren lounge, shouting all the way. "We're Bell-engaged," at the top of their lungs.
“It’s the finest foreign study program I know of,” commented Dr. Dave Winter, Whitworth academic dean, concerning the Experiment in International Living.

Whitworth students currently have the opportunity to participate in the cross-cultural homestay program during January term in Belgium, Germany, Holland, Mexico, Peru, Spain, and Switzerland. They may also live in a kibbutz, instead of with a family, in Israel. Dr. Winter said of the program, which is similar to American Field Service, “Students aren’t boarders—they’re real members of families. They get the feel for a foreign culture...in depth view.” He added that this is really a great way to see a European country. “They strictly use smaller places more representative of the country—not big cities.”

While living with a family, students undertake a project, such as family roles and relationships—roles of the mother and father as compared to roles in the U.S. Dr. Winter states, “That is where we make this better than other schools. We help students arrange an independent study project and they get one full credit for it.” There are also some special programs where a student can work and study.

Fees for each country range from $450 for Mexico to $650 for Spain. The Oct. 10 application deadline has already passed for January term, but Dr. Winter said the same outfit runs a summer program which is somewhat longer and costs a little more than in January.

Under the summer program, students may choose from 24 countries in Africa, Central America, Europe, Middle East or South America. Two weeks of intensive language instruction are also offered in Patna, Venezuela, headquarters for the Experiment in International Living.

Summer prices range from $690 in Mexico to $1475 in India. Deadline for summer applications is April 1.

CHRISTIE SMITH watches voyagers lower canoes and packs over Helen Falls on the 1972 Wilderness Canon Experience.

Arctic canoe trip preparations started

Preparations for the 1972 summer Wilderness Canoe Experience into the Arctic Barrens are now under way. An introductory program and slide presentation concerning the interdisciplinary expedition were presented by Dr. Norman Krebbs and Jay Britchett, leaders of the Arctic expedition.

After two weeks of intensive training on the Whitworth campus, a maximum of 24 students will be allowed on the canoe trip, which encompasses over 600 miles through a series of unnamed lakes and streams in the Northwest Territories, and then northward to the Arctic Ocean. Depending on weather conditions, four to five weeks will be spent reaching the Esako outport of Coppermine.

“The Arctic is a strange country, with a mystical effect on people,” Britchett commented. He said it reduces limitations within the mind, so that a person sees, feels and hears things he has never experienced before.

The training session will begin in mid-June, students will be transported to the Barrens the last week of the month, and they will return to Spokane in late July or early August.

Cost of the trip is $750, which includes full cost of the course, and all tuition, travel, food, and gear, except personal equipment. Nonrefundable deposits are due in December, January, and February, with the remaining $400 due April 1.

For more information, contact Dr. Krebbs.

SPECIAL TIRE PURCHASE PLAN FOR WHITWORTH STUDENTS & FACULTY —TIRE MARKETERS INC.—
300 Elliott Ave. W.
Seattle, Wa. 98119
Phone (206) 4-3641
2310 East D St.
Spokane, Wa. 99208
Phone (206) 383-3844
413 Thorman Rd. N.
Spokane, Wa. 99206
Phone (509) 5-7722

You will be pleased to know that arrangements have been made for you to purchase name brand manufactured new tires, tubes, shock absorbers, batteries, and quality tires at FANTASTIC WHOLESALE PRICES. We will save you an average of 25%.. All Tires and Tires-Marketers are guaranteed, with no limit as to time or mileage, for the life of the tire—including any and all road hazards.

We invite you to compare our prices on comparable merchandise, and when you do, you will see the $50 saved by this special purchasing plan for your company or group. All merchandise may be purchased for cash or you may use your BankAmecard or Master Charge card or any easy pay budget term contract may be arranged. You may also consider using your own credit union service if available.

Tire Marketers Warehouse is open from 8:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. on weekdays and 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Saturdays. Immediate mounting, balancing and installation can be arranged for you.

TREMENDOUS SAVINGS!
COMPLETE SERVICE FACILITIES ARE AVAILABLE AT ALL TIRE MARKETER LOCATIONS

FIRESTONEUNIBOYALGOODYEARB. F. GOODRICH DUNLOPKELLY SPRINGFIELD KELSEY HAYES GENERAL BATTERY PRAM

NO MEMBERSHIP FEES

OPEN DAILY 8 - 7 P.M.
(Saturday 8 - 4 p.m.)

YOU MUST HAVE A GROUP PURCHASE CARD TO PURCHASE TIRES FROM TIRE MARKETERS, INC. TO RECEIVE YOUR CARD COME TO TIRE MARKETERS, SPOKANE, SEATTLE OR TACOMA, WITH PROOF OF YOUR WHITWORTH AFFILIATION

(CSCW STUDENT OR FACULTY CARD)
Timely tips for tasty turkey

by Julie Nerens

For all of you loony cooks who will be forced to remain on campus during the Thanksgiving holiday, here are some pointers to assist you in purchasing, cleaning, and cooking that all-important turkey.

1. The most important thing to do when shopping for your bird is to purchase a GRADE A turkey.

A. You will doubtless recognize the difference between grade A, B, and C turkeys when you visit your friendly store. Grade A poultry denotes a full-fleshed, full-breasted, meaty bird with no bone defects such as a crooked breastbone. This top notch quality also insures the buyer that his product is free from such infirmities as rinded flesh and jagged tine-tails. It confirms freedom from pin feathers, cuts, skin tears and other minor skin blemishes.

B. When you have made the difficult choice of selecting your tantalizing Thanksgiving delight, the next step is for you to kill, skin and clean this pathetic creature. We will leave this chore for you to tackle yourselves.

IV. After this essential step has been completed you are ready to wash your hands and clean out the turkey. Simply throw away anything that looks as if it doesn't belong to the rest of the bird. (Stringy organs, hearts, livers, tendons, etc.)

V. And now for the dressing:
1. Slice into small cubes, enough bread crumbs to equal two cups.
2. Melt 1/4 cup butter and pour it over crumbs.
3. Add 1/4 tsp. salt, dash pepper, 1/4 tsp. garlic salt, 1/2 tsp. celery flakes, 2 stalks diced celery, 1 tsp. unseasoned salt and white pepper. Mix between 10 and 12 and after 5 p.m. Need someone to assist in appearance and dependableness. At 10 p.m.

VI. If you don't have a professional service to assist you in dressing the bird, other than a few hours can be spent doing this work.

LOCAL PERSONNEL needs someone to do household work five hours a week in November and December. 11 and 12 and after 12. Need someone to assist in appearance and dependableness. At 10 p.m.

DOWNTOWN MOTOR LODGE needs someone to assist in household work on Friday and Saturday nights. Monday through Thursday. $2.00 per hour plus dinner. Need someone to assist in appearance and dependableness. At 10 p.m.

LOCAL HAMBURGER RESTAURANT needs someone to work during the lunch hour and some weekend work... need someone immediately.

VII. Attack the finished product with all the gusto and heartiness of appetite that you can muster. It may be the last time you allow yourself a stay on campus while others are home snarfing down mother's homemade goodies.

VIII. It is mandatory that all of your marinated stuck-a-mud-beads be treated to something tasty by all of these lucky folks who venture home for vacation. Ask them before they leave to return with a baggie crammed full of mother's specialties. It is our duty as human beings to insure that no one starves during this festive occasion.

VIII. It is mandatory to save what's left over for another day. Simply freeze the turkey and save. There are no short cuts in making a juicy turkey... no short cuts in making a juicy turkey...

It seems to be the thing to freeze.

SAGA will still be serving for those not traveling home for Mom's turkey.

Comedy shows tonight

by Mark Frederic

Tonight's feature is "Charley's Aunt," an adaptation of Bradock Thomas' stat of the name, same. This comedy stars Jack Benny as a young man who tries to impersonate a rich aunt from Brazil. A new star is added when the young impersonator finds out the real aunt is coming back. The flier is full of laughs and ends in a classic scene described as "classical." No rating. 81 minutes. Black and white.

That's when lower Long Distance rates begin on weekdays.

The best time to share the good times in the northeast is after 5 PM on weekdays. That's when lower Long Distance rates begin. And that's when the students, faculty and friends come home. So go ahead and spread the good word.

Long Distance calls get people together.

 country Northwest Bell

Get a payphone rate when you call and ask for our number 18, 1800 number for Bell customers. That rate is available for New York and New Jersey as well as the other states.

Curt's Y Drugs

9103 N. Division

Phone 7-1614
Bucs come from behind to beat S.O.C. 14-10

McMillan unbeaten in one-pitch

Isitt to run at Kansas City

It's the real thing. Coke.
‘Walking the Plank’

by Karl Zeiger

In this age of boldness, contract disputes and exorbitant ticket prices, one often wonders when the limit will be reached and professional sports will back off to more realistic levels of existence. But, at the moment, the trend seems to be for even more emphasis on pro fun and games.

Several days ago word got out that professional track and field will be with us this spring. The International Track Association and its president, Michael O’Hara, announced that it would put its wares in the marketplace alongside football, basketball, baseball, hockey and other sports already in the business world. The new setup calls for 48 track meets, two each weekend, in various cities in the U.S. and in Europe. Athletes will be paid with prize money put up by the organizers for those who are fortunate enough to win or place.

A major question that always arises at this point concerns the chances for success and stability in the business world. Pro track, like all professional sports, will depend on the fans. If no one cares to pay to watch a meet, and if the TV networks feel that few people will watch from the comfort of their living rooms, then the entire venture is doomed. There definitely are large numbers of track enthusiasts throughout the nation, but whether or not they will care for pro track is questionable at the point.

One thing that will work against pro track is the fact that many track nuts, athletes and spectators alike, have always considered their pastime to be as activity endowed with purity. The cleanliness and positive-like atmosphere of pro sports repels these people. This, coupled with the insecure financial aspects of pro track, would prompt many big names to forego the pro circuit in favor of a shot at the Olympics. No big names, no fans.

There are, however, factors that could contribute to a successful beginning for professional track. Among them is the fact that meets are scheduled in different cities, most cities scheduled to host just one meet a week. A good trend nevertheless.

No big names, no fans.

Monetary rewards for the athletes would be minimal compared to what other pro athletes earn. Five men per event would be invited to the meets. Prize money would be $500 for first, $350 for second, $100 for third, and $50 for fourth. Even if a guy is one of the world’s best, he could only expect to compete about 26 times, averaging second place in each meet. That comes to $4600. Not bad for a moonlight job in the civilian world, but that wouldn’t cover Wilt Chamberlain’s grocery bill for a week. A good trend nonetheless.

Spokane’s “Athlete of the Month,” Buc running back, Duncan Findley, is shown eluding a would-be tackler in the Pirates’ last game of the year against Southern Oregon. The Bucs wound up their best season in ten years with a 7-2 record.

Women remain undefeated

Whitworth’s women’s varsity volleyball team remains undefeated in league play, after a victory over North Idaho College in Coeur D’Alene Tuesday.

“A” team scores were; 15-10, 14-16, 15-11. The women also participated in a round-robin in Pullman last weekend, where they won and lost four games against the larger schools.

Cross-country – women have finished their season, and coach Steve Mise is now looking toward track season. Units are being organized and some of the women are beginning a training program of running and weight-lifting.

Athletic program disenchants Blacks

Submitted and written by Members of the Black Student Union

In these problems? YES.

After thought and much discussion, we the Black Athletes of Whitworth College have become very disillusioned with the relationship between the Black Athlete and the athletic program. We feel there is a lack of interest in recruitment of black players and also in the use and publicizing of these athletes.

The recruitment of blacks at Whitworth in the past three years has been held to a minimum. Out of the thirteen athletes that have played on Whitworth’s teams in the past three years, we feel two were actually recruited directly by the coaches looking at those specific players. In our opinion, the coaches are not out looking for more than one black player to play on each team.

We feel once the black player is on the team, he is not given a chance to achieve his fullest potential. He is used only enough to secure a victory and is never acknowledged by personal gain. In our opinion, the coaches reasoning behind this is in order to play, the black athlete must be a superser with exceptional abilities, which in this case he would be in a major university or in the professional ranks.

In the publicity realm of these prejudice, it appears the coaches never give the black player the same build up for exceptional plays as would he give the white players. Some of the black players feel they have been discriminated against in the Spokane newspapers through the coaches. We feel that if the coaches would consider giving credit where credit is due, then the black players would be motivated to perform in a feeling of team unity.

In conclusion, we feel some of our solutions should be considered. Therefore, we would like to set up a discussion meeting with the coaches to suggest some solutions.

XL Cleaners

Laundry & Dry Cleaning
3410 N. Division
FA 7-8121
Done the way you like it
15% off to Whitworth Students and Teachers

Clean Energy for a Quality Environment

You might say Americans are born with an electric switch at their fingertips. We flick a switch to heat, wash, to dispose of garbage, to light, to power machines, shred, recycle, to clean, to add, subtract, and compute, and for entertainment. We need a lot of electric energy for a quality environment. We’ll need more in the future.
Thanksgiving... D. Schloetel
Constitutional revision being studied

by Bob Sisson

Whitworth student government leaders are currently considering changes they would like to see take place in the ASWC constitution. Although it is not yet certain what direction will be taken in altering the structure, student body president Ron Leighton commented, "The reason we're seriously looking at the constitution is that we find that as the nature of student government changes we're hampered by a constitution that is outdated, making us responsible for functions we aren't certain are appropriate anymore." For example, he said the constitution ties student government to having a standing student elections committee and a standing student organizations committee "and we're not sure it's really appropriate that we devote a significant part of our time to either of those two areas."

"The purpose of the student organization committee is to review organization petitions to be members of ASWC and evaluate the organization to see if it is fulfilling objectives of its own constitution... We usually get one organization a year that petitions to become a member of ASWC."

Leighton explained that with the beginning of council structure, the decision making role of Senate is allowed considerably, "and we aren't free to adjust accordingly—the constitution's too rigid and doesn't allow for change." He said, "perhaps we don't need representative democracy, perhaps we can have a direct relationship between members of student government and the student body as large in a school of 1300."

"We just think the Executive people in student government should have more contact with students... We aren't sure what's going to happen because we just started. The first week of January we should be pretty clear on where we're going to go," he concluded. In order for the constitution to change, the approval of the student body is needed, making it necessary to vote on this matter in the upcoming spring elections. Leighton said that April and May would be the first signs of change if this were to go into effect.

Westminster provokes community service

The Westminster Project is getting under way at Whitworth, an effort to involve students in outside projects and some independent study. ASWC officers are working on community service ideas which will give people ample chances to participate. The project includes supervising an after-school "drop-in" center for grade school age children and a recreation center for senior citizens. Plans for future areas are not yet fully determined, but they will run in the general vein of community service.

"The idea is being worked out in conjunction with Westminster Presbyterian Church. The basic scheme is to use volunteer helpers at the present time to handle the activities, but in the future a system of academic credit for this work is hoped for. ASWC is backing the idea because they feel it is a great opportunity for them to provide off-campus experiences to students, a job that they feel is too often neglected in student governments.

Whitworth donations are at $60,000 as money-raising force is reduced

Whitworth Week's fund raising drive has reached the two-thirds mark toward its $90,000 goal, according to drive chairman Bob Campbell. "We're at the two-thirds mark in both calling and money raised and pledged," he said.

Fund raising headquarters returned to campus this week from the Ridpath Hotel.

Between sixty and seventy people were on the phones at any time. The rate of calling will decrease as the number of callers are reduced to mostly members of the administration and local trustees. Campbell said, "I'd like to see us reach our goal by March 1," he said.

According to Campbell local and national businesses, as well as over five hundred people, have donated or pledged money. He said that "We feel we've made a real good start covering business."

Campbell explained that fund raising is really a year round operation. New contacts are continually sought and many new prospects are developed.

"We would like to get between fifty and one hundred more people to donate money," Campbell said. This is the second year Whitworth has asked for support from the community. Sixty per cent of last year's money was given by those who had never donated before.

Next year's goal may be raised to $100,000. Campbell said, if this year's drive is successful.

The day of judgment

And it came to pass Early in the morning toward the last day of the semester, there arose a great multitude, sitting the books and waiting. And there was much weeping and gnashing of teeth for the day of judgment was at hand. And they were some asked for who had left undone those things which they ought to have done. And they had done those things which they ought not to have done. And there was no help for it. And there were many abiding in the places of those who had kept watch over their books by night, but it availed them nothing.

But some there were who rose peacefully. For they had prepared themselves the way and made straight the paths of knowledge. And these were known as the teachers of the midnight oil, great in wisdom. But in many they were known as powerful curve refusers. And the multitude arose and ate a hearty breakfast. And they came unto the appointed place and their hearts were heavy within them. And they had come in peace, but some to pass out. And some of them repented for their previous living and bewailed their fate, but they had not a prayer.

And at the last hour there came among them one known as "The Instructor," and they feared exceedingly. He passed papers among them and went his way. And many and varied were the answers that were given.

For some of his teachings had fallen among hard hearts, while others had fallen away. And there were some who wrote for one hour, others for two.

But some turned sorrowfully away. And many of these offered up a little balm in hopes of soothing the instructor. And there were some who had met a prayer. And when they finished, they gathered up their belongings and went their way quietly, each in his own direction.

And each one, viewing himself in this manner: "I shall not pass this way again!" Anonymous.
Every Christmas I "quarrel at the night" of church school pageants. This used to be my annual holiday card. Both win the booty prize for realism.

Every Christmas I "quarrel at the night" of church school pageants. This used to be my annual holiday card. Both win the booty prize for realism.

This is an affair by boy kings, toothless angels and sham fir trees that crowd a stage to re-enact the Christmas story. Cute, but unrealistic. I wonder how Bethlehem shepherds could look a sheep in the eye, wearing striped towels and ropes on their heads. Mary looks sadder every year she has to wear the tinsel of blue flannel on her head. The wise men are rich enough to bring home of tinsel but can't finance a change of clothes from Mom's faded gingham, dull and drab. Angels are swaddled in double-deck sheets and peasant boots.

The plot can be as bad as the costumes. Luke 2 is often rewritten for talking cows, orphaned angels or some shepherd boy with a funny name. I saw the high point of one drama when the 0'10" director, who stood very high from the rest. Like most pageants, it was just too cute and too precious.

Contrasting the theatrical, masterful presentation of the lifeless Christmas cards, Peace on earth seems to mean three camels sitting on a hill. Or else cattle lined up like soldiers to stare at Mary, Joseph and the baby, who are as expressionless as petrified wood. Some artists portray the little town of Bethlehem lying stiller than a cemetery.

I know it is the season to be jolly but these dramas and cards romanticize a vital, crucial event in history. Was the first Christmas full of cute cheer and bland holiday spirit? Rather, wasn't it born with the chaos of a bursting town, the blinding shock of holiness, the raw receptor of a vulnerable baby born in a stable... That's hardly a silent night.

Away with the manger, the cute angels and all-housed cases that these muffle the meaning of Christmas. Away with the manger if it takes the crisis out of Christmas. Away with the manger if Jesus is not seen as the real and great God at our door.

by Catherine: Strong

What are exams for?

It is that time, once again for final exams. The entire semester is coming to a screeching halt in a blaze of tests. We feel anxiety and pressure; now we must perform. But, is it all for?

Exams are valuable experiences. They are learning experiences. If nothing else, we learn much we didn't learn. Finals give us a valuable perspective on ourselves. Final exams are an end in themselves, yet they are a door through which we must pass to begin something new. Finals are bridge we must cross to get to where we are going. But, do finals have the same meaning for everyone?

Many of us want to link in our system of education. We may as well rend ourselves to that fact, and learn to deal with it. Tests of one sort or another determine many things in our lives. You need grades to get into college haves with grades all through college, take admission tests for grad. school, work for more grades and then you may have to take state board bar exams. Yes, exams are a part of our competitive society. Finals are a part of our immediate future. What is the final importance of these exams?

There is a balance between the importance of grades and our own values. Grades are important, but do they deserve all of the value you give them? I have my answers to these questions and I hope you come to your own conclusions. By answering these questions, we can assign meaning to our tests next week. We will thus be better able to deal with them because we will know their significance in relation to our own goals.

R.J. Grunau

FRANKLY SPEAKING...

A weary editor's note to his staff

ATTENTION NEWS STAFF:

All grades must be handed in and sitting on my desk for your inspection. Fill out order cards for pics you want reprinted. Also, all pics ordered must be needed before the exam has been completed. I would like to see the appropriately labeled envelopes on the right hand corner of my desk. In other words, your pics are in these envelopes. Please take them and get them out of my hair.

LORI ROSS
Assistant Editor

SPECIAL NOTE TO NEWS PHOTOGRAPHERS:
The next photographer to take a picture of me gets an automatic "F" for the quarter. This is not a joke. I have always felt that photographers should have a license to practice. I will fill a book with mem alone. I agree it's a good idea, but highly controversial.
BSU presents proposals for change at Whitworth

The Black Student Union has presented "proposals for change" to the administration. President Edward Lindaman in a letter to students at Tuesday's Forum. These proposals were accepted in their entirety, said Lindaman. "I want to make clear to the entire college community that I support each of the recommendations and will do everything that I can to see that they are implemented," Dr. Lindaman said. The proposals, which cover such items as the employment and acceptance of more blacks, additions to curriculum, and certain financial matters, were presented to the administration last Friday.

The BSU met with administration officials the following Monday, once in the morning, and once in the afternoon, after the BSU leaders had spoken to their members. Dr. Lindaman proposed a three-pronged attack to the problem during the morning session.

The BSU had made eleven of the fifteen proposals four years ago, in 1968. "They did this with the idea and faith that these things would be taken care of," said Ed Lilly, Minority Affairs director. The BSU was not pleased, then, when Lindaman proposed that these same recommendations, which had been already approved by an earlier administration, should be studied again, Lilly said.

The BSU finally went along with Lindaman's ideas, but with reservations. "We feel the proposals should go through the council system, but only to find ways to implement them, not to change them," said President BSU, Dr. Lindaman. The Lindaman administration has gradually eliminated these eleven actions, said King, referring to the eleven suggestions presented in 1968.

"I feel that the black students are saying that we as a college have not provided some of the important elements in our environment that would assist them in their education venture," Dave Erb of Student Development said.

The fifteen proposals follow:

1. That there be employed in the Admissions Department someone who can relate specifically to non-white students.
2. That non-white students be used in recruitment.
3. Increased effort in the Spokane area to interest non-white students in Whitworth.
4. Continued work on the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Scholarship Fund.
5. Waiving registration and room deposit fees for students with financial need.
6. Inclusion of Afro-American courses in the regular curriculum and that students be able to take Black Studies segments in other regular classes.
7. Active recruitment of a Black Professor.
8. Establishment of a tutorial program for Blacks.
9. That the names of those Black students not accepted along with the reason could be made available to the B.S.U. Advisor on a confidential basis.
10. That Black students would have influence in the selection of a Black Professor.
11. That inter-cultural sensitivity groups be initiated by the administration, faculty and student body.
12. Hiring of Black students to aid in the recruitment of Black students.
13. That there be at least two Black coaches hired; one to work with the Sports Information Director.
14. A presidential assistant to work primarily with financial aid, and other areas where needed.
15. That an indeterminate amount of money should be allocated (from student funds) to the Black Student Union as necessary to carry out our functions in the Whitworth community.

150-plus make blood donation

Blood donations from over 150 Whitworth students were received Wednesday and Thursday in the HUB. More than 100 of these contributions were specifically designated for Whitworth senior Debbie Carter who has sickle cell anemia.

Dick Naegeli, head of the blood drive here, said of the students' participation, "It was great." Dick noted that the turnout this year was better than the past couple years.

This year's blood drive committee attempted to get both students and faculty involved as individuals "giving for someone else." Members of the committee were: Randy Bouch, Jon Bingham, Bill Connor, Tim Docheff, and Dick Naegeli.
January term offers academic change of pace

January is an exciting month for Whitworth students because of the unique change of pace which it provides both academically and socially.

Several types of study situations are available so that students can jump into a course which they wish to take, and in many cases have in fact designed themselves.

Some students are attracted to the variety of courses offered on campus, so they choose to live at school for the month. The faculty has done an excellent job of creating many interesting courses and therefore a regular class is by no means the only way to study.

Other people decide to venture home for the month, to pursue an independent study, a job, or perhaps just a chance to relax and do nothing.

The more monetary mountains within the school (rich kids) have the opportunity to travel overseas or to another part of the country pursuing a special interest. As the course schedules have explained, over thirteen different off-campus study situations are to be offered.

These exciting opportunities include a field study of deserts in the southeastern United States, theatre tour of London, art renaissance emphasis in Italy, and many more.

Heather Compton, a freshman from Phoenix, Arizona will spend her time during January working with underprivileged Indian children on a reservation near Scottsdale, Arizona. Her volunteer work will earn her a soc. credit and will be connected to the national Head Start Program.

Marion Timmeman, Los Angeles sophomore, will receive biology credit for observing the workers at a large LA hospital. She will spend her time with physical therapists, radiologists, nurses and other personnel who will acquaint her with their roles as hospital staff members.

Molly Staley will join eight other students in studying literature in the City with Leonard Oakland in San Francisco. Their unique location will undoubtedly provide an interesting urban experience as they attend plays, lectures, and movies, and explore on an individual basis the people and city of San Francisco. The students will be required to read various literature while in California, so that they become sensitive to the city as a social environment as well as an individual's experience.

Howard Young, sophomore from Portland, Oregon will also be experiencing an urban situation, but his base will be in downtown Spokane. Howard, along with about fifteen other Whitworth students, will be living in the low income downtown sector, in an effort to apply his faith to such a difficult environment. The four week experience will be under the direction of Spokane minister Ed Udall.

Tim Dechett, Becky Dick, Cindy Askland, Val Morse, and four other students will be living on Whidbey Island with the Chinook Learning Experience. With the focus on living, sharing and working together as a community, the eight will learn to explore and better understand the relationships of the Christian faith to current issues within our culture.

West Warren's Kathy Ames is one of the luckier ones, as far as Jan. term goes. She will live for four weeks with a Swiss family in Switzerland. As she learns to appreciate their particular way of life, they will come to know hers and a life long relationship will grow.

Cindy Irwins plans a unique experience as she spends her month working as a staff writer for the Truth magazine, the Jesus People's newspaper.

These students represent only a small portion of those doing January experience, yet they are a fair representation of the exciting ways in which Whitworth students are pursuing different experiences, and perhaps they reflect what Whitworth is all about. A chance to learn in the way that you wish to.

Students favor radio station

A week before Thanksgiving a survey was taken to see how Whitworth students would respond to having a radio station on campus.

Of the 456 people who filled out the questionnaires, 446 were for having a station, most of those wanting to have 'rock' music played on the station.

Rod 'Happy' Halvorson, who along with Andy Frazier formed the Ad Hoc Committee in Student Senate which is currently looking into the idea of a radio station, said he first became excited about having a radio station on campus when he went to WSU last year and saw how their station was helping with publicity for the campus, and doing a lot towards getting the student body together.

"I realize that WSU is a lot larger than Whitworth," he said. "But Whitworth still has the same needs as WSU and a radio station could help fill some of those needs." Happy and Andy got together with Tom Taggart, and the RC from Ballard, Anne Norris, who helped with the formation of a radio station at Florida Prebyterian College when she was an undergraduate there. The four of them have been looking into the idea, and have found that the cheapest way to have a station on campus would be to have closed circuit AM type of transmission. Revenue from advertising on that station could be saved, and used to get an FM license eventually. An experienced wiring technician has already volunteered to chart a wiring plan for the closed circuit AM type.
How not to spend your vacation

by Pete Troll

Remember the stories your grade school teachers made us write when we got back to school after a vacation? Ah, I remember them well. Unfortunately, I could never think of anything to write! So, here is my first grade over three times because my vacation papers weren't even in the grade.

We finally did one after Christmas vacation in '58 in which I showed how the moments of a child's stockin' on Christmas morning reflected his parents combined IQ, and they sent me to second grade. They wanted me to return to school, but I knew my rights. I would never have had all these problems if my vacations in grade school had been as rare as this Thanksgiving vacation.

To start with, I live in Fort Benton, Montana, somewhere on the other side of the divide. Some people have gotten into the habit of trying to find Fort Benton, and many people wish it would get lost. It's a place where men are men, women are scarce, and sheep are nervous. Even so, I wanted to go home for vacation, and I caught a ride with Roy Caldwell, going to Great Falls.

We set out Wednesday the 22nd at noon, picking up two girls who were also headed in that direction. Someone was out to get me.

All three of my fellow passengers had some sort of wounds: Roy a stitched up face, and the girls a broken finger and a broken arm to show for it. As time went on, I got the feeling that someone was trying to add me to the casualty list.

We headed down town knowing full well where we were going, and came to a stop at a light by the Spokesman-Review building. Someone else had headed downtown without the slightest idea of where they were going, and we were stopped at a stop with their front bumper imbedded about three inches into the back of Roy's Volkswagen. I recall Roy's exact words at that moment: "Oh, CENSORED!" After names had been exchanged, and a cop had looked over the damage, we started again, and made it to Missoula. There we stopped for gas and oil. In order to put the oil in, we had to open the rear hood. Then we discovered a dusty side effect of the accident. We couldn't get the hood open. After hammering on it and prying on it for about twenty minutes Roy said, "Oh, CENSORED", whereupon we both grabbed hold of the hood and righted it open. By this time the oil was so cold that it wouldn't pour, but we finally got it in the car and made it to Great Falls without further incident.

Homeward bound

Now for the return trip. I met Roy in Great Falls on Sunday morning, and we went to get some gas. On the way to the gas station Roy had to stop at a light, just like in Spokane, but this time we didn't get rear ended. No, the idiot in front of us decided to back up and smash into the front of Roy's car. By this time I was getting sick of hearing Roy say, "Oh, CENSORED." More name exchanging, and we were on our way out of Great Falls.

We got into the mountains on the other side of Missoula, and discovered to our surprise that it had been snowing up there. We weren't worried, because we had snow tires. How were we to know, passing two cars, that the road ahead was slick and icy? We had little time to think about it as we went in the ditch. The two cars stopped and offered us a ride to the nearest town, so we accepted the offer, and ended up in the thriving metropolis of Clearwater Junction. The nearest tow truck was $35 and twenty miles away. What can you do about that kind of monopoly? Towing ended up costing only $10, because Roy helped the driver pull five other cars out of the ditch before they got around to his.

Learned a lesson

Now some people are thick-headed and don't learn very fast, but not us. We got out on the road again and set off at a blinding speed of 25 mph.

Near Missoula we drove on a stretch of icy road with the river on one side, and a sheer wall of rock on the other side. Just before a bridge, some poor fool in a pickup decided to pass us. He veered out to pass, and kept right on veering-right into the rockwall. He slid along it for about twenty feet, with us driving right along side watching the sparks fly. Finally he rammed into the bridge abutment and came to rest. We stopped the car and jumped out to see if he was dead or wounded, but when we ran up to the truck he was standing outside of it, shaking and muttering, "Look at it, it's all shot to CENSORED!" We went it to Missoula, and decided to bag the car and take a plane. Here we are. This whole story is true.

It is a warning to those of you who are driving home at Christmas. Take heed or you could end up on a train.

TODAY'S READING day begins the week's cramping for finals!

Final fear postpones holiday cheer

For many, the holiday cheer is overshadowed by "final fear." "Finals are not worth all the trials we go through. They prove nothing except that we can cram into our brains little bits and pieces of "perfunctory" information which we forget the minute after the exam, if not before," said one Whitworth sophomore. Dave Caldwell, of the Psychology department said, "I'm not too impressed with finals myself, I crammed for finals a lot and I don't remember much of what was in them."

"In some courses," one student commented, "finals help you compile everything you've learned so you can see a new perspective. Your brain can then assimilate all the knowledge, and it becomes easier to use. If the professor doesn't just assign "busy work" to keep you occupied during testing time, finals can be a learning experience."

"Some people do well in finals. For others it's just not their thing. A lot of students have trouble under the pressure and don't do as well as they could. I think we need to find a way other than finals to determine grades," said Dr. Deupree, head of the music department.

"The grade on your final exam should not be able to lower your semester grade, only raise it. I've been doing 'A' work in a class and blown the final, and got a C. That's not fair. On the other hand, if a student doesn't grasp what the class is trying to get at until the final, and then it all comes to him, he should be able to move his grade because he knows the material," said one student.
Bucs search for 1st win

by Sports writer

The Whitworth Pirates got trounced Wednesday night for their fourth loss in as many games this year. The Pirates made their debut at home and started out the first half strong until about six minutes left in the half. Whitworth was in close contention being behind by only 3 points 27-30. Then the Knights broke loose. Wartburg started moving effectively with the ball passing like a pinata from one player and feeding it to another, thereby shooting their team to a 42-30 lead going into the second half.

The Knights came back to the court with all the momentum. They scored three fast buckets and then the Pirates moved into a zone defense. Before Whitworth could score again Wartburg had scored 16 straight points. The Knights had five players in double figures and connected on 37 of 67 attempts. The Leading scorer for the Bucs was Malcolm Kirkwood who ended the game with 14 points. Malcolm came alive in the second half by scoring five straight baskets but it came too late.

Davis and Graham on all-star team

Edith Davis and Michelle Graham were recently chosen to an all-star volleyball team composed of women from five colleges in the league. The positions were awarded at a Sports Night held at Gonzaga where several teams joined together to mix members and play for fun. Katiy Hughes was named inspirational player for Whitworth's "A" team, and Cathy Acker was selected for the "B" team.

‘Walking the Plank’

As part of his pre-season tour around the globe, Santa Claus recently sat in on a Whitworth College coaches meeting. The visit was a rare occasion and, like most rare occasions, the proceedings should be written into history: Bergen Borevskiy: "Welcome Coach Claus!"
Santa: "Thank you, I am jolly to be at a place where it is worth so much."
Ross Cutter: "Ya, the Whits are pretty good, in most sports, anyway."
Santa: "Let's get on with the gift list.
Cal Riescoke: "I need some depth. Two 6-11 centers, four agile 6-8 forwards and four quick ball-handling wizards should do the job."
Santa: "How about new facilities?"
Cal Riescoke: "We could use a new net on the west hoop, I suppose."
Hugh Campbell: "Yes, one of those would really put the polish on an unbeaten season."
Dave Gunderson: "I'll stick to the basics. I could use an office in Graves Gym. As it is now, our wrestlers have no place to practice."
Tony Priano: "I want another guy that wants to go out for swimming. Some coaches say that numbers win, and a new swimmer would double the size of our squad."
Bergen Borevskiy: "I'm fairly well satisfied. The condition of the track is such that we have a reputation for being the only college in the nation that runs 100 and 220 yard-cross country races in the spring. That kind of notoriety helps our recruiting."
Santa: "How about you over there in the corner with a sly grin?"
Spike Grosvenor: "I'm all set, thank you."
Santa: "Merry Christmas, fans."

Curt's Y Drugs
9105 N. Division
HU 7-1514

Eugene's Flowers
W. 601 Francis North 7 Wall
FA 6-1125 NA 4-1172

MYKE'S WEST
SPOKANE'S TOP BOTTOM SHOP

DOWN ON THE FARM,
WE LIGHT IT UP

Of all the tough, tedious chores electricity has taken over for the farmer, few are more appreciated than lighting. Outside or in, work is easier, less hazardous. Automatic switching has lessened the curse of vandalism. Electricity makes farming more pleasant and profitable.

THE WASHINGTON WATER POWER COMPANY
Clean Energy for a Quality Environment
Goodsell leads men's All-College standings

Goodsell and McMillan continue to dominate the intramural program as each have won two of the last four activities. Goodsell, who leads the all college standings, has most recently won badminton and swimming. McMillan which in second has won one-pitch and wrestling.

Last Sunday at Gonzaga, swimming was held. Even though Goodsell took the championship it was Roger Jones of Beyond and Ben Ellis of South Ward who were the meet's outstanding swimmers. Each competed in 3 of 8 events and compiled all 27 points for their team, to finish tied in fourth place.

Jones, the only swimmer for his team, took first's in the 100 yard freestyle and 50 yard butterfly and a seconded in the 100 yard medley. Ellis finished first in the 100 yard medley and 50 yard breaststroke.

Steve Rasmussen won the basketball tournament which concluded last Saturday. Goodsell placed 3 in the top 11 places to finish ahead of the faculty. Rasmussen beat Ken Lower of Goodsell in the finals to finish on top of 96 entries.

Wrestling, held before Thanksgiving vacation, was a new activity this year and the participation was very good. McMillan was able to take 3 first's, 2 second's and 2 thirds to edge Stewart by 4 points.

Winners for McMillan were Scott Barrett, 142 lbs., Mike Breamer, 176 lbs., and Dave Lord 190 lbs.

Intramural director Howie Kellogg has many activities planned for January term and February. Among those planned are three on three basketball tournament (men's and women's), co-ed one pitch, archery, women's basketball and men's basketball, volleyball, ping-pong and billiards.

Grapplers rely on quality

The Whitworth wrestling squad placed five of their six wrestlers in last week's tournament to capture fourth place.

The Pirate squad has been working out the past few weeks getting very much in shape for the up coming season.

Coach Dave Gunderson reports a small turn out this year, only eleven.

The problems facing the Bucs this year, besides their number, are injuries and eligibility. Greg Vehrs is presently making up his eligibility from SFCC. Stacy Taniguchi, a transfer from Hawaii, will be ineligible until January 11. These wrestlers injured are: Andy Harmoning with a broken finger. Harmoning could be out for the entire season. Joe Wilson is suffering from a separated shoul-der. Wilbert Rance is out with a foot injury and Dave Brune just had surgery on his nose.

Coach Gunderson is looking forward to a good second half of the season when hopefully the injury plagued mat stompers will be in better health. Gunderson says the dual meets will be our biggest downfall because of our unfilled weight divisions and lack of depth.

Some of Whitworth's hopes come from first time wrestlers - Maseli, Arreola, and freshman Wood. Gunderson and the Bucs have two main goals this year. The conference meet later in the season, and a recruitment program for the future. Gunderson sums up the season as greatly dependent on the condition, injury-wise, of the squad.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Weight</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Greg Vehrs</td>
<td>118</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stacy Taniguchi</td>
<td>126</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steve Wood</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Andy Harmoning</td>
<td>142</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al Carpenter</td>
<td>150</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Maseli</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fidel Arreola</td>
<td>177</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joe Wilson</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wilbert Rance</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bob Fulton</td>
<td>Unlim.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dave Brune</td>
<td>Unlim.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Above: THE WHITWORTH dual men work on their technique constantly. Whitworth is relying on the quality of the squad this year rather than the quantity.

Grapplers rely on quality

Goodsell and McMillan continue to dominate the intramural program as each have won two of the last four activities. Goodsell, who leads the all college standings, has most recently won badminton and swimming. McMillan which in second has won one-pitch and wrestling.

Last Sunday at Gonzaga, swimming was held. Even though Goodsell took the championship it was Roger Jones of Beyond and Ben Ellis of South Ward who were the meet's outstanding swimmers. Each competed in 3 of 8 events and compiled all 27 points for their team, to finish tied in fourth place.

Jones, the only swimmer for his team, took first's in the 100 yard freestyle and 50 yard butterfly and a seconded in the 100 yard medley. Ellis finished first in the 100 yard medley and 50 yard breaststroke.

Steve Rasmussen won the basketball tournament which concluded last Saturday. Goodsell placed 3 in the top 11 places to finish ahead of the faculty. Rasmussen beat Ken Lower of Goodsell in the finals to finish on top of 96 entries.

Wrestling, held before Thanksgiving vacation, was a new activity this year and the participation was very good. McMillan was able to take 3 first's, 2 second's and 2 thirds to edge Stewart by 4 points.

Winners for McMillan were Scott Barrett, 142 lbs., Mike Breamer, 176 lbs., and Dave Lord 190 lbs.

Intramural director Howie Kellogg has many activities planned for January term and February. Among those planned are three on three basketball tournament (men's and women's), co-ed one pitch, archery, women's basketball and men's basketball, volleyball, ping-pong and billiards.

Grapplers rely on quality

The Whitworth wrestling squad placed five of their six wrestlers in last week's tournament to capture fourth place.

The Pirate squad has been working out the past few weeks getting very much in shape for the up coming season.

Coach Dave Gunderson reports a small turn out this year, only eleven.

The problems facing the Bucs this year, besides their number, are injuries and eligibility. Greg Vehrs is presently making up his eligibility from SFCC. Stacy Taniguchi, a transfer from Hawaii, will be ineligible until January 11. These wrestlers injured are: Andy Harmoning with a broken finger. Harmoning could be out for the entire season. Joe Wilson is suffering from a separated shoul-der. Wilbert Rance is out with a foot injury and Dave Brune just had surgery on his nose.

Coach Gunderson is looking forward to a good second half of the season when hopefully the injury plagued mat stompers will be in better health. Gunderson says the dual meets will be our biggest downfall because of our unfilled weight divisions and lack of depth.

Some of Whitworth's hopes come from first time wrestlers - Maseli, Arreola, and freshman Wood. Gunderson and the Bucs have two main goals this year. The conference meet later in the season, and a recruitment program for the future. Gunderson sums up the season as greatly dependent on the condition, injury-wise, of the squad.
Summer jobs should be sought at Christmas

Summer employment?? Christmas time really seems early to be looking at summer employment possibilities but most large institutions such as the local government, federal government, large private corporations begin the recruitment process right around the first of the year and continue normally through Spring vacation at which time they try to have all jobs filled.

Rather than waiting for...

New programs include:

Senior citizen work

All would live long, but would not die is the theme of Governor's Task Force on Aging, and a philosophy presently being incorporated into Whitworth academic and social planning through the Senior Scholaristic Program and the proposed Lilac Plaza project.

Whitworth is attempting to initiate a January term student-senior citizen exchange, for afternoons and evenings. Senior citizens would commute to Whitworth, and Whitworth students would go to Lilac Plaza, a new 12-story high-rise apartment in which approximately 250 senior citizens reside. Each exchange person would participate in encounter sessions, discussing with a different age group such topics as war and peace, Christianity, hope, and what it means to grow old.

In addition to the one-to-one exchange, Rich Cizik, tentative coordinator of the program, hopes to incorporate an exchange in which the entire students would perform at Lilac Plaza, and the senior citizens would come to Whitworth to share their experiences and talents.

"Whitworth is attempting to take a forward role to meet the needs of our elderly, to become a total community learning center, not solely a school for students under 21," states Cizik.

Drivers advised to be cautious

Student drivers, eyes possession, with toothpicks after gnealing finals and empty bottles of No-Doze are advised to check road conditions carefully before speeding home.

The American Automobile Association, A.A.A., encourages students to call their offices at TE 8-3121 for Monday, Wednesday, and Friday reports. KHQ and other radio stations have periodic weather and road condition releases throughout the day.

Weather was exceptionally poor throughout Oregon this week with chains required even on the coastal route.

Forum to continue changing times theme

The theme which will head the spring term Forums is "How to Change the Times." Sub-threads will be innovative education, personal maturity, Christian integration, and social responsibility.

There will also be a faculty presentation on innovative education on college campuses. Gloria Steinem has been rescheduled for the spring semester.

Sometimes flying standby is mostly standing by.

That's why Northwest came up with Reserved Youth Fare.

Camping out is great. But not at an airport. Sometimes, unfortunately, it turns out that way. Now, though, we've done something about it.

If you have any airline Youth Card, you can get a reserved seat for 20% off. Make a reservation and when flight time comes, just walk in and take your seat along with all the other important people. No waiting. No worrying. No getting bumped off the plane when you really wanted to go all the way home.

If you don't have a Northwest Youth Card, you should. And you can get one at any Northwest ticket office or your campus travel agent. (Be sure to bring along proof that you're between 12-22.)

Next time you can't afford to wait, remember Northwest's Reserved Youth Fare. And call your travel agent or Northwest Airlines.

FLY NORTHWEST ORIENT

P.S. STANDBY FARES. To those of you who don't mind standing, you think it's sort of neat because you meet interesting people there--your Youth Card can still get you Northwest's regular standby youth fare--40% off Coach.
CAB hijacks youth fares

by Carolyn Schmelde

Terral planes of the nation's nine million college students will be severely affected by the elimination of discount youth fares announced December 7, 1972, by the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB).

Domestic youth fares met their doom by a three-two ruling that youth discounts are racially discriminatory.

"Although CAB has set no specific date for terminating youth fares posting a hearing early in 1973 on the effect of such a move, the discounts could very well end as early as March," reports Layton Olson, National Student Lobby's Executive Director.

If Congress authorizes youth fares, CAB can not eliminate them. Senators Frank Morse, Utah Democrat, and Illinois Republicans Charles Percy together with Congressman James Harvey, Michigan Republican, introduced bills in the last Congress authorizing discount fares for both youth under 32 and senior citizens over 65.

The effect of this amendment would be to allow airlines to set lower youth and senior fares for senior citizens and to continue the present youth fares on a standby basis only.

The Moss-Percy bill passed in the Senate but died in a House-Senate conference due to a stalemate on another issue during the last Congressional session.

"CAB will continue to defer cancellations of youth fares if students and Congress start to take action," said Russell Lehrman, head of the Continental Airlines Department, in response to congressional concern.

Olson adds that "since Congress can prevent CAB from eliminating youth fares, students should ask Congressmen to disclose the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee sends the youth fare question to the House floor during the first half of 1973".

The Wall Street Journal reports that the "CAB has felt differing winds of disconcert from continent to continent in youth fare matters. Four years ago, when the board was considering the question it was flooded with letters, mainly youthful travelers protesting possible elimination of certain fares." CAB reversed its own examiner in 1968 but has since reversed after receiving mail from older travelers and legal protests from Continental Airlines Bus System, which has lost riders due to low fares.

Discount fares undoubtedly generate more traffic for airlines. The CAB argues that these "fares are closed to people who would otherwise travel discount fare and are open to people who would otherwise travel full fare to an extent that this age discrimination is unjust." Dissenting members on the CAB argue to discounts native to such added revenue that, rather than burden full fare passengers, they benefit these travelers by contributing to fixed costs. Moreover they add that "if any airliners feels its losing on youth fares, they can cut or abolish the discounts."

Through the sponsorship of the National Student Lobby and Continental Marketing Corporation, the Coalition to Retain Air Discount Fares (CRADF) has been formed. Letters to the CRADF Office, 419 East Capitol Street S.E., Washington D.C., 20003, will be systematically sorted by congressional district, counted to measure response, and finally forwarded to the proper Congressman.

Spring term registration slated for February 5th

Registration packets and information for the spring term will be available in the Registration Office next week. Mr. Wurster, Registrar, encourages students to pick up the materials and arrange their tentative desired schedules before registration on February 5.

Spring registration begins 8 a.m. on February 5 in the gym.

Students will register by classes, according to seniority, and will follow this procedure: take schedule to assigned advisor and get it approved; pick up class cards from the appropriate tables situated around the gym, and indicated by signs identifying the various departments; file cards with the registrar by paying tuition and other bills at the business office later in the week.

Classes begin 8 a.m. February 6. Meal tickets will also be distributed at registration. Those students who will be eating daily at SAGA during the spring will register this intention at the appropriate table, where they will then receive their February meal tickets.

New meal tickets will be issued monthly.

Wurster announces retirement as Whitworth Registrar

Mr. Roland Wurster, Whitworth Registrar, this week announced plans for retirement following the spring term. Coming to Whitworth in September 1957, Mr. Wurster taught as an associate professor of English until September 1968, when he was named registrar. Mr. Wurster spent most of his professional life in Alaska. There he taught at Sitka Alaska High School, served on the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs, and spent eight years as dean and four years as president of Sheldon Jackson Junior College.

Mr. Roland Wurster and his wife, Alice, have one daughter, Emily Ann. They will be grandparents by the time of retirement.

Foreign students earn 4.0 GPA's

Of the 27 international students attending Whitworth College 7 earned a 4.0 G.P.A. for the fall term. Roland Wurster, the College Registrar, comments "This is really a remarkable record." Students earning a 4.0 are: Ying Fat Yeung, Chi Leung Lau, John T80i, and Patraluck Sajjapomkul from Thailand.
Peace starts at home

An historic peace treaty to be signed tomorrow night by the United States and North Vietnam should promote Whitworth students to declare a little peace and nonviolence on school property.

The pinball and pool room in the HUB is now in an unrecognized state from the newly constructed room and completely refinished pool tables available in September. Damage incurred through five months of student violence include: discarded automobile tires, cigarette burns and coke stains on the felt on the pool tables, broken and de-pointed pool cues, and stolen or roided deck chairs.

One small machine, the Foosball, was confiscated by the repairman because it was severely damaged and glass smashed in order to play free games. Whitworth is reported to be the worst for damage and repair of all places in Spokane serviced with pinball machines.

I would assume that college students capable of destroying valuable, advocating a clean environment and quality of life would also be capable of dumping their trash; refrain from throwing coke on the windows, walls and tables, use an ashtray and sit peacefully on chairs instead of pool tables.

Carolyn Schloetzel

Saga manager thanks all

Dear Editor:

As someone who is involved in the daily operation of Whitworth College campus, I wish to give voice to my feelings at this point here for the past sixteen months.

To the Whitworth students with whom I work, a very big thank you. You are a very wonderful group to be associated with. Your Food Service would not operate without them.

To the excellent cook's staff, who work so hard to please the Whitworth students and all others, a grateful thank you... It has been a very satisfying experience to get to know the students, the faculty, and many members of the staff. This would not be complete if I did not express my gratitude and the other reasons I have always been willing to help with the many maintenance problems that inevitably arise in a Food Service operation.

There is a feeling, from my point of view, of progress on this campus that makes me want to be a part of it. Thanks for allowing me to continue to be a part of it.

Tom Thompson
Saga Food Service

The Whittlerman

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Carla Schwalb
MANAGING AND TECHNICAL EDITOR
Dave Schwalb
BUSINESS, ADVERTISING
News, Editorial Report
Saras, Alaska
SPORTS
Gary Shanks
Chris Bauer, Lesli Moyer, Larry Morris, Karl Seiger
PHOTOGRAPHY
Marc Faciana, Julian Stahl
ART
Ted Huyler, editor
PRODUCTION
Valerie James, Maria Faciana, Julie Brain ADVISER
P. F. Keeler

Official publication of the Associated Students of Whitworth College, Spokane, Washington. Published weekly except during vacation periods.

Circulation: 1300

 Want to be The EDITOR? The BUSINESS MANAGER of the 1973-74 WHITTHERMAN

The STUDENT COMMITTEE has impressed upon the spring term staff to gain experience and insight of the position's responsibilities.

ANYONE IS WELCOME TO JOIN THE STAFF. New photographers and cartoonists especially appreciated.

FURTHER INFORMATION from Mr. A. Gray or Carolyn Schloetzel.

REFER TO: ADVERTISING JOURNALISM 246

Wrestlers hampered by injuries

There are three equally important factors in the production of a successful wrestling team: they are: desire, talent, and the number of healthy participants.

Whitworth is right on top in the first two departments but when it comes to the strength of quantity they have to bow down. The Pirates are but five strong which accounts for five forfeits or thirty points the opponents receive free of charge at each match.

Those healthy and agile wrestlers include: Dave Brame, Bob Fulton, Joe Wilson, Steve Wood, and Stacy Taniguchi.

During the past month the Pirates have shown good promise in two of their regional tournaments. At the take-down tournament the Bucs placed all their wrestlers capturing one second, two thirds, and two fourths. In a more recent match at Lewiston Whitworth grabbed fourth in a competitive field of nine.

Coach Dave Gunderson refers to this season as one of frustrations for the entire team. He labeled this year as a building year for next year. With all the group returning next year except for senior Bob Fulton. Gunderson feels the Bucs will be right at the top with more experience behind them. At the time of this writing the Pirates out of it yet. The group is a highly dedicated team-oriented bunch of athletes who still feel they can compete with the best in the league.

This weekend the Bucs host Lewis and Clark on Friday. Last years number two ranked team in the nation, North Idaho.

J-V's go with muscle; lack needed height

The junior varsity basketball team lost last weekend to Big Bend Community College 88-75. It was their fifth loss in nine games for the season, but the record is not that important. The game experience for younger players is the important factor. According to Coach Will Carley, junior varsity ball helps develop the freshmen and those without much college game experience.

For example a week prior to the varsity's win over College of Idaho, sophomore Sam Erickson played for the j-v's. He gained confidence moving in for more time with the varsity, and was a key against Idaho, scoring 16 points.

Lacking the height of other teams, the young Pirates rely more on muscle power than height. They have a break and sometimes employ a full court press. Their aggressive style and hustle have kept them in every game this year.

According to Carley, a few players have a good chance with the varsity next year. Doug Parker and Dave Tinker are two who have already moved up.

The junior varsity squad travels across town to Spokane Community College for a game tonight at 7:30.

Interested in helping people? Have an idea you'd like to try in the community? Need some money?

If you, your dorm, or your organization are interested in starting a community service project, we'd like to help. The Exkec, has set aside funds for students who want to run such a project: be it tutoring, recreation, or whatever. All that is asked is that you provide an outline of the following:

1. Project concept (what you plan to do)
2. Scope of project (who you will be serving)
3. Cost of project (include administration cost)
4. Length of project (how long it will run)
5. List of students involved in project.

It is now time to talk with the ASWC office. If you are interested, but short on ideas, come in and talk to Ron or Rich in the ASWC office.

‘Walking the Plank’

There are exciting ways to come up with a winning basketball season, one of the greatest being the route that this year’s version of the Whitworth Pirates have chosen to take. Losing the first 12 and winning the last 14 is definitely a very climactic way of achieving that winning status. A good way to bring the boys to a peak at championship time and all but it may be a little risky.

It is not that the Pirates intentionally chose to start slowly and mature gradually, of course, that’s just the situation that happened to exist after the season’s first dozen games.

The winners of those first 12 games, in general, were pretty good teams. That tough early-season schedule began to look like a tactical disaster on Whitworth’s part along about the first of the year. Playing against rugged competition is great for a point, anyway, but beyond that it gets extremely difficult for players to perform like confident winners after being overwhelmed 12 straight times.

To this point, that tough schedule has seemed like a good move on the part of coach Cal Riemcke. Riemcke didn’t anticipate a winning record, of course, but he must have known his players well enough to realize that a few setbacks in the non-league games wouldn’t frustrate them to the point of no return. Perhaps it’s too early to speculate, though—a 9-0 conference record now looks pretty good, but three wins hardly assures Whitworth of a respectable season.

Those wins certainly were savory, coming on the heels of that uneventful stretch. The wins were such that first win that a stranger would have thought the Pirates had just snapped UCLA’s 60 game win streak or won the NAIA championship. He might have been correct. Last weekend’s event was an 86-88 win over the Whitman Missionaries.

Despite the slow start, the Pirates have as good a percentage as any team in college basketball, in the last three games, anyway. Several guys have performed extremely well during that stretch. Forward Gene Rostvold continues to be a potent scoring threat. Gene’s always been deadly from the outer fringes, but he has been even more effective lately by mixing in frequent drives to the hoop.

Center Malcolm Kirkwood is noticeably improved. There are a couple of weaknesses, but he is developing into one of the best 6’11” centers in the conference. A year ago, Malcolm was noticeably slow. Right now, though, his game is much better.

For example, a week prior to the varsity’s win over College of Idaho, sophomore Sam Erickson played for the j-v’s. He gained confidence moving in for more time with the varsity, and was a key against Idaho, scoring 16 points.

Lacking the height of other teams, the young Pirates rely more on muscle power than height. They have a break and sometimes employ a full court press. Their aggressive style and hustle have kept them in every game this year.

According to Carley, a few players have a good chance with the varsity next year. Doug Parker and Dave Tinker are two who have already moved up.

The junior varsity squad travels across town to Spokane Community College for a game tonight at 7:30.
Pirates come to life; win 3 straight

The Whitworth Pirates won their second and third consecutive basketball game last weekend by defeating College of Idaho and then Lewis and Clark on the following night.

The Bucs scored a season high Friday night of 87 points against the College of Idaho, putting them away easily 87-69. It was their second consecutive victory after losing 12 in a row opening up the 72-73 season. The Pirates record for four games.

Men’s and women’s volleyball is played twice a week in the gym. Goodsell, South Warren and the Faculty are currently leading with two wins and no losses. Baldwin is leading in the women’s league. This activity concludes this Tuesday.

The intramural program continues to keep students active in sports here at Whitworth during January. Volleyball and three on three basketball are currently going, ping-pong has been completed and indoor track takes place tomorrow. Si Si Tosh, of South Warren, was the men’s individual winner in ping-pong as he defeated Joe Denison of Town. Goodsell however placed third in the top ten to win the team championship. They were followed by Town Alder and South Warren.

Washington took the the women’s title led by individual winner Mona Mendoza who beat Miriam McMillan of Ballard. Five women from Washington were in the top eight finishers. Baldwin was second in the team standings.

A new activity this year is three on three basketball which is very popular, attracting many participants. Games are played to 21 points. The game must be won by four points and there are foul shots. Each team is allowed two teams in each A, B or C league.

In the A league competition, it appears McMillan, Stewart and the Faculty are the teams to beat. Thus far they have been the toughest for the other teams. Each has lost one of their conference games in 8 and 2.

C.O.I.’s record to that point was 9 and 3.

Saturday night the Pirates won their third game in a row by defeating Lewis and Clark. Again it was Rostvold who led the attack for the Bucs. The game went into overtime after a 51-51 tie at the end of regulation time. The Pirates then out-scored Lewis and Clark in overtime, 10-2 making it 61-53 at the close. Whitworth was not nearly as impressive as the night before as they shot less than 30% from the field. Lewis and Clark had 12 turnovers in the first half enabling the Bucs to stay in the game. The Pirates came back from halftime trailing by six points. They managed to keep a point spread and then Rostvold dumped in two 25 foot bombs. The Bucs spurted ahead 47-41, which set up the Buc’s overtime win.

McMillan of Ballard. Five women from Washington were in the top eight finishers. Baldwin was second in the team standings.

A new activity this year is three on three basketball which is very popular, attracting many participants. Games are played to 21 points. The game must be won by four points and there are foul shots. Each team is allowed two teams in each A, B or C league.

In the A league competition, it appears McMillan, Stewart and the Faculty are the teams to beat. Thus far they have been the toughest for the other teams. Each has lost one of their conference games in 8 and 2.

C.O.I.’s record to that point was 9 and 3.

Saturday night the Pirates won their third game in a row by defeating Lewis and Clark. Again it was Rostvold who led the attack for the Bucs. The game went into overtime after a 51-51 tie at the end of regulation time. The Pirates then out-scored Lewis and Clark in overtime, 10-2 making it 61-53 at the close. Whitworth was not nearly as impressive as the night before as they shot less than 30% from the field. Lewis and Clark had 12 turnovers in the first half enabling the Bucs to stay in the game. The Pirates came back from halftime trailing by six points. They managed to keep a point spread and then Rostvold dumped in two 25 foot bombs. The Bucs spurted ahead 47-41, which set up the Buc’s overtime win.

JIM BLAIR is shown above doing his thing against C.O.I., which happened to be grabbing a multitude of rebounds. Blair came off the bench in the second half to spark the Bucs to their second consecutive win.

Track begins tomorrow

The intramural program continues to keep students active in sports here at Whitworth during January. Volleyball and three on three basketball are currently going, ping-pong has been completed and indoor track takes place tomorrow. Si Si Tosh, of South Warren, was the men’s individual winner in ping-pong as he defeated Joe Denison of Town. Goodsell however placed third in the top ten to win the team championship. They were followed by Town Alder and South Warren.

Washington took the the women’s title led by individual winner Mona Mendoza who beat Miriam McMillan of Ballard. Five women from Washington were in the top eight finishers. Baldwin was second in the team standings.

A new activity this year is three on three basketball which is very popular, attracting many participants. Games are played to 21 points. The game must be won by four points and there are foul shots. Each team is allowed two teams in each A, B or C league.

In the A league competition, it appears McMillan, Stewart and the Faculty are the teams to beat. Thus far they have been the toughest for the other teams. Each has lost one of their conference games in 8 and 2.

C.O.I.’s record to that point was 9 and 3.

Saturday night the Pirates won their third game in a row by defeating Lewis and Clark. Again it was Rostvold who led the attack for the Bucs. The game went into overtime after a 51-51 tie at the end of regulation time. The Pirates then out-scored Lewis and Clark in overtime, 10-2 making it 61-53 at the close. Whitworth was not nearly as impressive as the night before as they shot less than 30% from the field. Lewis and Clark had 12 turnovers in the first half enabling the Bucs to stay in the game. The Pirates came back from halftime trailing by six points. They managed to keep a point spread and then Rostvold dumped in two 25 foot bombs. The Bucs spurted ahead 47-41, which set up the Buc’s overtime win.

JIM BLAIR is shown above doing his thing against C.O.I., which happened to be grabbing a multitude of rebounds. Blair came off the bench in the second half to spark the Bucs to their second consecutive win.
Faculty challenges tobacco sales

Faculty Exec has challenged the decision made by the HUB Board of control to allow the sale of tobacco in the Student Co-op.

Exec members, Dr. Erickson, Sanford, and Dillworth, have not yet submitted an official objection. But, Rich Cizik, ASWC vice president, feels that one of their challenges to the sale of cigarettes in the Co-op is that such sales would not be a progressive goal. The Federal Communication Commission's decision to ban advertising of cigarettes on television was the result of substantial proof indicating the health hazards of tobacco.

"But in view of Whitworth's past," stated Cizik, "I'm not sure that we can move so directly from such a conservative past to such a progressive future without some in-between trial period" during which sale of cigarettes would be allowed.

The Summary of Action (SOA) issued by the Student Affairs Council and indicating the proposed change in policy, will now be returned to the HUB Board for review. If the Board repeats the earlier decision, the SOA will go to the Advisory Review Board for final determination. The ARB is composed equally of faculty, students, and administrators.

Sale of tobacco in the Student Co-op has been a recurring issue throughout the year. After the HUB Board voted against it the first time, students submitted a petition to the Student Exec bearing about 350 signatures of students who preferred that the Co-op carry the product.

Student Exec introduced the latest proposal favoring the sale of tobacco at the meeting of the HUB Board of Control on February 13, at which time the Board made the decision to allow the Student Co-op to sell tobacco for a two-month trial period.

"Student Co-op is a service and if we're going to make it go, we've got to offer a variety of the products that students want," argues Cizik. However, the continued sale of tobacco for the duration of the trial period was to be dependent on whether the present no-smoking policy in the HUB was abused or not. The change in policy did not extend to the no-smoking ruling within the HUB.

Explaining the Student Exec's role in supporting the sale of tobacco, Cizik stated, "A lot of people have a misconception of Student Exec's goals. The sale of cigarettes is not one of our priorities, but it is definitely an issue, and one we had to respond to."

Bill to make drinking age 19 is stuck in Senate Committee

by Bob Iason

A bill to lower Washington's drinking age to 19 was voted on favorably in the House of Representatives Saturday but did not pass the Senate Rules Committee Tuesday. However, if enough response can be evoked, the bill will again go on tap before the Committee in 30 days. In the meantime, the Whitworth community is in the process of surfacing some decisions of its own on the matter.

According to Dr. Dave Erb, director of student development, Whitworth's Student Affairs Council is currently taking some in-depth action to find out what people think about the present drinking policy and what changes they would like to see made.

As part of this process, on Jan. 25 the Council interviewed faculty representatives, resident hall dorm presidents, student execs., exec. personnel, administrators, and some student senate members.

The Council interviewed R.A.'s on Feb. 5, and on Feb. 22 the remainder of faculty representatives were interviewed.

(Continued on page 2)
Drinking bill is stuck

(Continued from page 1)

Dr. Erb declined to elaborate on the review, saying that the content is, for now, confidential.

Like the general feeling of the 'drinking policy, a questionnaire will be sent to all students, probably sometime this week, Dr. Erb said. The completed questionnaires will be received from Board of Trustees members and there will be a meeting next week for students and faculty in the near future.

In March, the Council will make a final decision regarding the drinking policy. B.J. Whitworth students who feel strongly about Tuesday's outcome of the bill will be sending postcards to Senator's Bob Lewis, James E. Keef, and John Cheesbrough, Senate Rules Committee Chairman, urging them to reconsider.

B.J. Whitworth campus, Rep. John Rabel, 43rd District Republican, recently introduced a bill repealing an 1896 state law prohibiting the sale or consumption of alcoholic beverages at the University of Washington.

The bill is strongly supported by leaders of the Associated Students of the UW drinks section and B.J. Whitworth Student Senate. Meanwhile, plans for a parking lot near the students union are still being delayed by the state legislature.

At a recent Western Washington State College in Cheyney, trustees recently voted to allow beer in the student union. However, the campus will need a liquor license to serve it.

Dan Varey, a manager at Spokane's "Beef 'N Bird Restaurant, said he is concerned about the problem of lower drinking age students who could present: "It is going to make a huge impact for our employees to check IDs...and then you have even younger people (under 19) coming in trying to get served." He said the Washington State Liquor inspectors would become very involved, although he would expect everything to be "back to normal in six months.

Speaking about the pro's of the lower drinking age, Varey followed along with the major issues in the newspaper--if 19 year-olds can go to Vietnam, there's no reason they can drink, for example.

"I don't look towards any disturbances," Varey said. "It would mean increased liquor sales for us, and more demand. We would look forward to it as being revenue, which outweighs the I.D. problem."

Whitworth students seem to share similar comments about the possibility of a 19-year-old drinking age.

Gerry Kunos, Whitworth sophomore, commented, "The first thing that comes to my mind is that you'll save on gas money to Idaho.

Sophmore Ken Kunos said, "It should definitely be. We pay income tax and everything else, so why can't we have it? People should be mature enough at that age. We aren't losing money on revenue by going to Idaho, and it's dangerous in the fact we drive to Idaho and kids have to come home intoxicated and maybe kill everybody on the highway. If they want it, it's safer to get it now."

SOLUTIONS

Whitworth's curtain closes

All the world is a stage, except for Whitworth College. As the curtain rises on Fort Wright's current production, "THE MALE ANIMAL," Whitworth's curtain remains closed. Throughout the spring production season, a recurring layout flap due to an apparent boycott is leaving no stone unturned. The most frequently cited and convivial reason stems from students' past commitments to other activities. Like the WHITWORTH and NATHS, the drama department suffers from the abundance of the eternally shifting Whitworth curtain. On the other hand, last semester's contentious choice many actors may be reluctant to pick up scripts again. The choice of plays is always hotly debated. Shakespeare may have intimidated some. Others may be getting a little tired of the skimpiness of women's roles.

Drum majors have their own reasons. The apparent boycott was individualized throughout the band and widespread and effective. Ridged adherence to the Stanislavsky method of acting, the inner circle of favored student actors and lack of enjoyment through grueling rehearsals are complaints commonly voiced.

Drama traditionally is a shaky business where egos are easily bruised. However, the cancellation of the spring production carries further significance to the future for drama at Whitworth College.

Carolyn Schloetel

SOA violates Bill of Rights

Senate last week challenged a Summary of Action of the Academic Affairs Council saying that it violated the current version of the Student Bill of Rights, The SOA called student evaluations.

The SOA then approved, the written evaluations submitted by faculty members to the credit classes would automatically accompany student transcripts. These forms are sent out from the office of the registrar.

The SOA then approved, the student given an unfair evaluation couldn't do anything.

The Senate's main objection to the SOA was its violation of the Student Bill of Rights, section 28 of which reads, "Students should have the right to non-involuntary participation through orderly procedures against prejudiced or capricious academic evaluation and against violations of stated institutional and class policies. Students should therefore have opportunity for appeal to the instructor, his superior, the Academic Affairs Council, the SOA or the student given an unfair evaluation couldn't do anything."

SOA's proposed policy was voted out, although the Senate stated they would continue to review the situation prior to February 26.

Issued by the Academic Affairs Council, the SOA would add three days of classes to the term. Classes would start six days earlier, but would be held on reading and the day of the oyster immediately following final registration, as well as finals week.

The council held that most students and faculty do not make good use of finals week, because many faculty either do not give finals or they give equivalent exams during regular class hours before finals week. Unless the SOA is challenged, final exams will be held during one or several class periods as determined and announced by each instructor. A special exam schedule would not be printed.

The rationale for the later start of the term was that last day later, that last day has been a difficult time to begin school, and it cuts one day from the first five-day week.

Challenges may be made in writing to Dr. David Winter, academic dean.

Fall schedule may change

Fall term will begin in the week after Labor Day and classes will continue through Thursday of the fourteenth week of the term (which in the past has been finals week) starting next fall, unless a Summary of Actions concerning the scheduling of term is challenged prior to February 26.

Issued by the Academic Affairs Council, the SOA would add three days of classes to the term. Classes would start six days earlier, but would be held on reading and the day of the oyster immediately following final registration, as well as finals week.

The council held that most students and faculty do not make good use of finals week, because many faculty either do not give finals or they give equivalent exams during regular class hours before finals week. Unless the SOA is challenged, final exams will be held during one or several class periods as determined and announced by each instructor. A special exam schedule would not be printed.

The rationale for the later start of the term was that last day later, that last day has been a difficult time to begin school, and it cuts one day from the first five-day week.

Challenges may be made in writing to Dr. David Winter, academic dean.

Want to be THE EDITOR?
The BUSINESS MANAGER? of the 1973-74 WHITWORTH

The STUDENT PUBLICATION COMMITTEE invites interested applicants to apply for the spring term staff to gain experience and insight of the position's responsibilities.

ANYONE IS WELCOME TO JOIN THE STAFF.

Responsibilities: Photographers and cartoonists especially appreciated.

FURTHER INFORMATION from Mr. A. Grey or Carolyn Schloetel.

REGISTER FOR APPLIED JOURNALISM 246

The Whitworthian. No prerequisites. 4% to 5 credits.

The Whitworthian

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF MANAGING AND TECHNICAL EDITOR BUSINESS, ADVERTISING

Glynn Lathrop

Dave Schloetel, manager

NEWS STAFF

Mary Wolford, editor

Bob Strine, assistant editor

Michelle Baugh, Deidre Granath, Camden McBride, Scott Wilson

FEATURE STAFF

Catherine Strong, editor

Julie Nerius, assistant editor

SPORTS STAFF

David Hansen, Cindy Irwin

Chris Bauer, Larry Morris, Lindsey Meyer

PHOTOGRAPHY

Leslie Gandall - sports, David Dutch - news

Pete Trotz - humor

LAYOUT

Deonna Ching, John Trant

Mary Farnsworth, Jordi Brandow

Mr. Alfred G. Gray

Printed by Official publication of the Associated Students of Whitworth College.

Spokane, Washington. Published weekly except during vacation periods.

Circulation 1500.
Discipleship theme book chosen
by Susan Rogers

"Why Am I Afraid to Tell You Who I Am," by John Powell, will be the theme book for the Discipleship and Growth retreat being conducted this weekend. Using the book as a guide, discussions and exercises will center around games people play, and particularly, games Christians play. Ideas will be shared in small discussion groups, and games such as Hides-and-Get-Seek will be directed towards learning how to reveal oneself to others.

The retreat is scheduled to begin at 5:30 this evening at Mount St. Michael's and conclude about 10:30 Saturday night. All of the facilities of Mount St. Michael's will be available for use during this time.

Although the experience is intended as a "prelude" to the Discipleship and Growth groups which will begin meeting next week, participation in the groups is not a prerequisite for attending the retreat.

Cost of the retreat will be five dollars. Transportation to Mount St. Michael's is being arranged by the chaplain's office.

Persons interested in participating in either the retreat or the Discipleship and Growth groups may sign up in the chaplain's office.

McDonald's boycott urged

A national boycott of the world famous McDonald's Golden Arches was announced at Senate. McDonald's prices have gone up, but the cost of the goods for employees remains the same and below the national minimum wage.

Apparantly McDonald's is one of the lowest paying.

Curt's Y Drugs
9103 N. Division
HU 7-1514

Discover the World on Your SEMESTER AT SEA
Sails each September & February

Combine accredited study with educational stops in Africa, Australia and the Orient. Over 7500 students from 450 campuses have already experienced this international program. A wide range of financial aid is available.

WCA Advisor on Campus:
Dr. Dave Winter
Vice-President for Academic Affairs
WHITWORTH COLLEGE

Spring play canceled in mutual agreement

by Mary Wolford

The spring play, "Twelfth Night," was canceled Wednesday in what director Albert Gunderson called a mutual agreement between himself and those who tried out.

Although tryouts were open to the public, too few people turned out. "I didn't feel I could give it a good, honest casting," Gunderson said.

Tryouts are usually held in December for the spring play, but due to the scheduling of the play in late April rather than the usual mid-March, Gunderson thought December was too early. "I think students have already committed themselves to other activities," he said.

"I'm disappointed because I've already done a lot of research," he said. Sets and costumes are already designed. "I am not disappointed in the student..."

"I don't think tryouts were a flop," Gunderson commented. "We can learn something very constructive from it."

School productions

Some students expressed disappointment in opening tryouts to people off campus. "It's a school production and therefore I think the actors and actresses should be from the school," said one sophomore drama student. "The reason schools have plays and do plays is so people from the school can get experience from it. That's why about half the department didn't try out," Gunderson said.

Gunderson said he felt it was good for students to work with outsiders and for outsiders to work with students. He cited examples of students in other departments working with people off campus in various projects. "Why should we go outside of this campus at all? Are we not serving the community? I hope our campus doesn't become a closed shop," he said.

"This is the central philosophy of the Cool now. Cannot drama be a part of that?"

On-campus cast

Gunderson partially cast the play after the first night, and not one outsider was cast.

"Not many tried out from campus," said Colleen McElroy. "The play was canceled. "I think Mr. Gunderson will use his own discretion. I think he's fair. He'll make good judgment. His priorities are in the right place."

Another student said, "The music department doesn't get people from off campus. Why would the drama department go off campus to get people for their plays?"

Gunderson said he thought strong consideration should be given to offering academic credit for participating in a play. The actor spends 105 hours in rehearsal time for eight weeks, not counting the time he spends on his own memorizing and other preparation for the play. This is not counting the time students spend in other classes.

Up to college

"I have a strong belief it's up to the college theater to perform the classics. A course revolving around a certain play could be a tremendous thing," Gunderson said. "This is work that is not taught at the historical background of the play, the philosophical emphasis, the musical aspects, and the literary value, using rehearsals as a tool. Shakespeare is normally done every other year at Whitworth. Gunderson does not know if a second attempt will be made at "Twelfth Night." He said, "I try to develop a group each advance, depending on the mood we want to be working in. I have a thought about future programs."

There will be a meeting in the gym on Monday at 3:30 for all those interested in going out for varsity golf.
Campus clocks confuse

"SOMETHING THAT ticks a lot of people off..."

by Julie Nereson

A typical Monday morning on the peaceful and serene Whitworth campus: Joe Plaud awakens with a start, rubs his empty stomach and heads for the shower. The bathroom clock says 8:50, and hungry as he is, Joe's morning shower takes a mere 40 seconds. (The cleaning lady is still wondering who brushes his teeth at the sink and takes a shower simultaneously.) Grabbing shirt and socks in chaotic frenzy, he sprays across the Loop (is it usually this foggy at 8:50 a.m.?) and runs head-on into the Saga door. Pounding madly at the window, he discovers that no one seems to be eating this morning. Hoisting himself onto the ledge, Joe blinks at the electric clock on the wall. 6:56. He is understandably disgusted, but doesn't trust Saga's clocks either.

While maintaining a twentish mind's vigil on the door step at Saga, lights begin to appear, and Joe notices a few groggy cooks arriving to initiate the production line of toastries. Our friend is the first student to have breakfast, but his distress in the cafeteria clock proves correct. He has only a few minutes in which to hurry off toward Handwriting 128. Of course the class is painfully boring, especially since the professor shies religious with that minute band. Joe watches the clock too, intently as a track coach watches the stopwatch. Due to Whitworth electric connections, it has taken one and a half hours for the large hand to move ahead one hour. Joe tries in vain to inform the teacher of the situation, with loud grunts and obvious glances at his watch, but the slumbering professor will not yield and the class is dismissed one-half hour late.

Joe rambles toward the library for a study session. A few minutes later, at math concepts, he descends the stairs for a walk to Trafalger Square and then on to Buckingham Palace.

On the way we passed Scotland Yard, and saw the Head Guard in their fancy uniforms, marching around in circles. We went through Westminster Abbey, and were impressed with the artwork, and the silver service of the cars. We asked to him the King of Spain for defeating Napoleon at Waterloo in 1815. We were disappointed, however, since he didn't use the silver service to defeat Napoleon, it was given to him afterwards as a reward.

When we came out of the museum we got our map of London to see what else of interest was in the vicinity. The map showed us to be on the South East corner of Hyde Park. A short walk across the street would bring us to the statue of Achilles cast out of iron and brought from France in the form of canons taken from Napoleon's forces.

A few minutes later we were standing by the statue preparing to take a few snapshot shots (after all, we were tourists) when a little gray-haired guy, who smelled amazingly like a barber shop, came up to us and started up about the statue. He had quite an accent, and I couldn't understand half of what he said, but it was something like...

"It's amazing how long that statue has stood there."

Hap answered, "Yeah, it sure is."

The guy then asked us if we were Americans. When we said yes he told us that he had been to America a few times and that his parents were still there. He then asked us if we had any relatives in England and Hap said he had some in Scotland and Ireland. The guy was overjoyed at this piece of news, and told us that his name was O'Leary. We started off across the park talking to him and having a great time. He showed us the hotel where Howard Hughes was staying and asked us if we'd been to Speaker's Corner in Hyde Park yet. We hadn't so he steered us in that direction, talking all the time in an accent that made half of his words unintelligible.

He told us about the hotel where he was staying and asked us if we'd be interested in coming over in the evening and he would give us a private tour of the hotel. We agreed.

Meanwhile... Hap and I were walking in the streets of London looking for something to eat. We finally found a small shop and I asked Hap what he wanted. He told me to order whatever he wanted and then we started to talk about the hotel. Hap said that he was going to take us to the hotel and show us around.

"It's really close to the hotel where we're staying."

Hap showed us the hotel and we were amazed at how big it was. We walked around the hotel and talked about the history of the hotel and the people who had stayed there over the years. Hap showed us the library and the dining room and we talked about the food they served there.

The food was amazing and we decided to eat there for dinner. We talked about the menu and the different dishes they had available and decided on what we wanted to order.

When the food arrived, we were both amazed at how delicious it was. We talked about the different dishes we had ordered and the flavors and textures we enjoyed.

After dinner, Hap and I were walking back to the hotel when we saw a group of people walking in the streets. We asked them if they were interested in coming to the hotel with us and they agreed.

When we arrived at the hotel, we were amazed at how beautiful it was. We talked about the architecture and the history of the hotel and then we were shown to our room.

Our room was luxurious and we were both amazed at how comfortable it was. We talked about the amenities and the comfort of the room.

After that, Hap and I were walking around the hotel and we talked about the different rooms and the different amenities they had available. We talked about the history of the hotel and the famous people who had stayed there.

When we were done, we went back to our room and talked about the day we had. We talked about the food we had and the different dishes we had ordered and the flavors and textures we enjoyed.

Can you throw away that pack right now? It's not easy, is it?

In 20 years, after 14,000 more cigarettes, you think it's going to be easier? Don't kid yourself.

Quit now. You'll never get a chance like this again.

U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

This program cosponsored as a public service.
Petton B.S.
FEBRUARY 23, 1973

Dear Mr. Royal,

I love you despite the fact that you’re an elite and therefore a stock-up-smock in the family of types. However, your ways are strong and you express yourself with the most precise lettering I’ve ever seen. You’re really too much, wish I could take you home with me. sneak you into my own private room and fool around with you all night. I mean, the keys you let me strike on you are absolutely unlimited! You’re really all right! What really breaks my heart, though, is that society really isn’t ready for us. Perhaps it’s because we’re so very different. But when you really come down to it, what is personal appearance? Why should my family care if you prefer not to wear any clothes? And why should your family always complain that I’m too dominant over you? They try to make us break up by saying that I am just using you. It’s time the truth came out–I do use you. I find you absolutely sensual, inviting, and neat. I mean, how many people would let you run your fingers all over their body? Not very many. But you don’t mind at all. In fact, when I look at you and you look back at me, it’s almost as though you were telling me you wanted me to feel you. And I do. The satisfaction I receive from the short amount of time we spend together is enough to last me throughout the day and sometime, but not always, to the next evening when once again we confront each other.

There’s only one problem, as I see it, in our relationship. Sometimes I find you cheating on me. Once in a while when I chance peak my head into a room you happen to be in, I see someone else using you–and you just right ahead and let them! And when I further hear you typing your heart out, in words to another person, I just want to hide myself under your carriage and die! So now you know just how deeply I feel about you. But you can do much better express my feeling just by moving your little keys in the right places–man, you really know how to move!

I guess there’s just no solution to my continued heartache. No matter how many you spend the night with, you never get tired. Man, are you experienced.

Please, try to find it in the beat of your keys how I feel and try to type something out to console me.

So until I once again meet my fingers to your inviting body–remember, that in this world there are many persons, but only one of my TYPE!

(Anonymous)

---

Pet policy

Cats and dogs reign

by Cindy Irwin

Man’s best friend is no longer an outlaw on the Whitworth campus. Animals have been living on campus for years, but this is the first term they can officially be on campus, and live in college housing.

Although restrictions were lifted last December by the Administrative Review Board, few dorms have actually permitted pets in the building. Smell, sanitation and noise are the main concerns expressed against having animals in the dorm. “This is a college, not a zoo,” said one on campus student. “Most students don’t have the time to give a dog or cat the care and attention it needs.” Others argue that keeping an animal on campus is not that tough, and the final decision should be left up to the individual himself; whether or not he can handle the responsibility.

As of Tuesday, only Alder, Traditional II and the Co-operative allow dogs and cats in the dorm. Beyond restricted its pet population to one, “Art”, a little mixed breed dog who lived in the dorm even before the new ruling. Second floor Ballard decided to ban dogs and cats but allow some smaller animals in on good behavior. Baldwin appointed a pet committee to discuss the problem and will vote on the issue this week.

A $10.00 licensing fee is charged for any uncaged animals to come on the campus grounds. An additional $15.00 per year or $7.50 per term is required for the animals living in college housing. This money, paid to the Pet Control Committee, will be used to provide policing for stray animals. A dog-catcher hired under a work-study program will be on duty 8 hours a day. The fee will not cover damage costs or fumigation of the dorm room for the next occupant, as previously rumored.

Before an animal can live in a residence hall, its owner must sign a written contract drawn up by the Pet Control Board, stating their animal is not poisonous, unnaturally vicious, or trained to attack; has been inoculated in accordance with Washington state and Spokane city laws; will not enter a college building except dormitories or faculty offices, and will be under the owner’s control at all times. The dorms are free to add more restrictions depending on the individual animal, and to revoke the contract at any time.

---

Swanson sails, studies on world tour

Scott Swanson, 15425 N.E. 12th St., Apt. E., Bellevue, a student from Whitworth College, Spokane, has been admitted to World Campus Afloat - Chapman College for the spring 1973 semester at sea.

Swanson will join up to 500 other college students representing 200 colleges and universities in nearly all the 50 states on February 6 when World Campus Afloat departs Port Everglades, Florida, for a study-voyage to ports in Africa and Asia, terminating May 27 at Los Angeles.

Students carry a regular semester’s units and attend classes at sea between ports on the shipboard campus which is equipped with the classrooms, laboratories, libraries, studio, theatre, bookstore and offices necessary to the educational program offered. Campus for the program is the 18,000-gross ton S.S. Universe Campus, owned by Seawise Foundations, Inc., and operated by Orient Overseas Lines with head offices in San Francisco.

Now in its eighth year, World Campus Afloat has completed 15 consecutive semesters and one summer session of its unique program in international higher education. Administered by Chapman College, one of California’s oldest liberal arts institutions, is located in Orange, California.
Bucs looking for 1st road win

Last weekend the varsity basketball team went on the road, losing to Willamette, 75-69 and to Lewis and Clark, 84-65. Tonight they will still be looking for their first victory away from Grant Gym, when they travel to College of Idaho.

The two losses moved the Pirate conference record to 5-7. There are no more conference games remaining tonight and against Pacific Lutheran next Monday at home. Two victories will boost their record to a respectable 0.500 win-loss percentage.

BSU beats faculty on Valentine's Day

by David House

The Black Student Union basketball team rallied late in the first minute of play to overcome a determined Faculty 74-69 in a Valentine's night thriller. The annual BSU sports classic drew a cheering and chuckling crowd of 250 connoisseurs and lotteries.

Highlighting the consistently bright Black performance was a flashy front court 3-man weave by big George Perry and Persean King. Meanwhile, genius drives by Lynn Bennett and right-on outside shooting by Tyrone Brooks left no doubt that the BSU team meant business.

Despite the fact that some of the "fuzzies" were not as strong in their first two games, the profs were not easily stumped. Shrewd ball control and passing by the outside opened up the good shots for Faculty gunners.

Deadly Duncan Ferguson assumed Chairmanship of the Scoring Department with one-half of the Faculty's 60 points. Team organizer Bill Bennett was next in field goals, followed by relentless Dave Erb. Perry Watkins led the team in rebounds and advice to Referee Duncan Finlay, while pro Frank Homer held down the fifth position in the star-studded line-up.

But looking again at the Black side, Melvin Stubblefield was rivaled only by his sensational but unsuccessful center-line set-shot shooting wherein he scored one for two in the warm-up and zero for two in actual play.

The resultant few pitch of excitement precipitated a chain reaction of technical fouls against the BSU team in the fourth quarter. The most noteworthy violation was called against Stubblefield as he elbowed the side of a chair under the basket while trying to cement a flimsy 14-point lead.

Willard Rance ran a close second, however, with his spontaneous hugging of Duncan Ferguson as he dribbled by. Other members of the victorious BSU team were Wilbur Rance, Ed Lilly, Ernie Bligen, and Bob Alexander.

and Clark was not played poorly, it was just that L.C. was more fired up. Rieome fell. LC jumped off to an early lead and never could be caught. Once RystoId came out of a recent slump to score 26 points and Dave Tikker played his best game of the year.

RystoId continues to lead the team in scoring with a 17.2 average, that is also good enough to be third in the PNIAAC. Nazman Fosier for College of Idaho leads the conference. RystoId lost his NAIa leadership in free throw percentage but is still among the top converting 78 for 78. Malcolm Kirkwood leads the team in rebounds and Ron Holcomb is the leader in assists.

The Pirates lost their conference game, and last home game of the season will be the following Monday, Feb. 25, against conference contender Pacific Lutheran. The Lutes beat the Pirates in Tacoma in the Pirates' conference opener. But coach Reimcke says his team thinks they can beat them in Grants Gym.

Coach Reimcke's goal now is to win the remaining two games of the conference season to salvage a 500 record.

Reimcke is pleased with the performance of his players this year. "I'm pleased with the players' attitude toward the game. When you're having the kind of year we are having there is always one thing that you can salvage—pride. Whether they win or not they go out there and know that no one can take them lightly."

DAVE TIKKER'S concentration stays with this shot to show why he is part of the determined Pirate squad.
FCA loses twice
by Greg Hatch

Whitworth's Fellowship of Christian Athletes lost their record game Monday, Feb. 5 to Central Valley's high school faculty in a close scoring game 61-56.
The FCA's other setback was against Whitworth's BSU. Their record now stands at an even two wins and two losses.

High point man for Whitworth was Scott Stern with 18, followed by J. Travis with 10, S. Rasmussen 8, B. Gitchias 6, B. Stauer 5, G. Hatch 4, T. Brook 3 and D. Sommerfeldt 2.
The FCA's tentative schedule still hopes for games with Ferris, Cheney, EWCC's FCA, and a championship game with Central Valley.

Women cagers to play Cheney
by Lanita Moyer

Women cagers stomped North Idaho College Tuesday night in Graves Gym 57-36.
The team travels to Cheney this afternoon, and their last game will be against Spokane Falls here Tuesday night at 7 p.m.

Goodsell holds lead in intramurals
by Chris Bauer

Eight activities are scheduled for the remainder of the year and Goodsell holds a huge lead in the all college intramural championship. They are 27 points ahead of McMillan and 13 more ahead of Stewart. In the women's standings Washington dominates, well in front of Baldwin. Fourteen activities have been completed.

Recently completed was three on three basketball. Last Thursday the A league concluded with exciting playoffs. Stewart, McMillan and Faculty ended the season with seven wins in eight games. Stewart came out champion in the playoffs winning three games, knocking off McMillan twice and Faculty once. Stewart players were John Ansonite, Bob Jacobs, Gene Martin and Jim Travis.

In B league competition McMillan was the champion and Alder won the League title. Overall, McMillan totaled the most points in the three leagues with 23, (10 for 1st, 8 for 2nd, 6 for 3rd, 4 for 4th, and 2 for 5th. Alder has 17 and Carlson collected 14.

Stewart won the indoor track meet in which seven records were broken. Jim Travis led Stewart setting records in the mile and 880 yard run. He and Howie Kellogg were named the outstanding athletes of the meet. Kellogg took one first, two seconds, one third and a fifth. Included was a record leap in the pole vault.

Other fine performances were by Steve Iseich, winning the shotput and setting a record in the discus, and Brad Guilford who broke the 220 yard dash record and took the 440 yard dash. Margie Schenck and Sally Stowell shared outstanding honors in the women's meet, which was won by Washington. Stowell won four events and took a second while Schenck was victorious in three events.

The Goodsell "A" team defeated the Faculty in the final match of the season to win the volleyball competition. They won all seven matches without a defeat.

Faculty lost once. Washington won their playoff against Baldwin to gain the women's title. Each team had a 3-1 record in regular play.

Eight activities are confronting the tough Pacific defense, which Whitworth went on to dump.

Matmen place 5th
by K. P. Burkey

Whitworth's wrestling season has now been completed. The Bucs took fifth place at the conference meet last week with three third places and three fourths.

Joe Wilson, Al Carpenter, and Willard Hance captured the thirds while Dave Brane, Greg Velez and Stacy Taniguchi each grabbed fourth.

The Pirates went into conference with men in eight of the ten weight divisions placing six of those eight.

Coach Gunderson was pleased with the last three weeks of the season when the Whits won four of their five dual matches. Gunderson attributes the wins to the filling of four additional weight divisions which during most of the season were open.

Next September Gunderson plans to find out about his talent for the '73-74 season. Some of those who have expressed interest are John Navarro, Steve Bonneh, Chuck Collins, and Spike Gribb, all are presently on campus.

Without the return of all this season's wrestlers except Bob Puiton, Gunderson has his hopes for next year. His one request of Whitworth's wrestling fans is to notify him of any high school or junior college prospects with experience.
Picture yourself on your checks.
It's good, positive identification. And it protects against loss or theft. We'll take your picture right in the bank. Then print it on all your checks, along with other identification information such as driver's license, charge card, or social security number. Identichck. It lets people know who you are—wherever you are.

Pacific National Bank of Washington
Banking Centers throughout the State
Member F.D.I.C. • Federal Reserve System
North Division at The "Y"
Riverside at Post

Whitworth hosts PLU Monday for last home game of season

Upper Left: ONE OF Whitworth's starting five: Dave Reynolds, Malcolm Kirkwood, Gene Rostvold, Ron Holcomb, and Doug Parker.

Above: ERICKSEN and an opponent appear as if they have taken up ballet, but Stan has just shot the ball.

Lower Left: DAVE REYNOLDS was too close to the ground as he found an arm in his way when he attempted this shot.

Upper Right: Pacific National Bank of Washington
Banking Centers throughout the State
Member F.D.I.C. • Federal Reserve System
North Division at The "Y"
Riverside at Post

Upper Right: Pacific National Bank of Washington
Banking Centers throughout the State
Member F.D.I.C. • Federal Reserve System
North Division at The "Y"
Riverside at Post

Upper Right: Pacific National Bank of Washington
Banking Centers throughout the State
Member F.D.I.C. • Federal Reserve System
North Division at The "Y"
Riverside at Post

Upper Right: Pacific National Bank of Washington
Banking Centers throughout the State
Member F.D.I.C. • Federal Reserve System
North Division at The "Y"
Riverside at Post
Senate approves low drinking age

by Bob Sisson

Too much Space

A bill to lower Washington's drinking age to 19 passed the Senate by 31-15 vote Thursday. Providing Gov. Dan Evans signs the bill, into law, 19-year-olds will be permitted to buy, possess and consume alcoholic beverages beginning about June 6.

Gov. Evans reportedly had no objection to the bill, although he was willing to have the privilege extended to 18-year-olds also.

An attempt by Sen. John Snader, R-Seattle, to lower the drinking age to 18 was defeated by the Senate, as was an effort by Sen. John Jones, R-Seattle, to give 18-year-olds who are members of the armed services the same drinking privilege as 19-year-olds.

Sen. Jack Metcalf, R-Mukilteo, brought forth a proposal to put under-21-year-old drinking age on probation by providing that the measure would be voted on July 19, 1974, unless reenacted, but this was turned down by Senate Proposals by Sen. Ted Benton, R-Seattle, were also rejected. His amendment would have allowed persons under 21 to drink in licensed establishments, although the bill, if enacted, would allow them from buying liquor by the bottle. His attempt to require only 19-year-old or older clerks to check out beer and wine at supermarkets in cashiers stands was also defeated.

Eighteen from the Senate vote was taken were two Spokane senators, Robert W. Twer and Sam C. Garav, Sen. J.H. Lewis, Spokane, voted against the bill.

Committee will seek funds for fieldhouse

Another chapter in the continuing story of the Whitworth Fieldhouse begins Tuesday. A committee luncheon held in the Faculty dining room will kick off an effort to contact community members who are interested in making financial contributions.

Athletic Director Borgoovick said the committee will seek to raise $50,000 of the total $250,000 needed to finish the fieldhouse. Whitworth students will contribute another $100,000 more over the next five years. The Senate boys' and girls' bodies, or about 700 students, will vote yes for the document to pass.

Senate okays constitution, sends it for student vote

Senate Wednesday passed its approval of the new constitution, after amending and rewriting it for several weeks. They recommended March 8 and 9 as dates for the constitutional election. Members of the Student Elections Committee will go into dorms next week to get the student vote. Two-thirds of the body, or about 700 students, will vote yes for the document to pass.

Concert, jazz bands tour Montana

At 4 a.m. Thursday Dr. Donald Deubbing, band director, and his 48 concert band and jazz ensemble students began a two day tour of five Western Montana high schools and communities.

The group expects to be back Saturday afternoon from the annual trip.

Between hours on a chartered Greyhound bus the bands played at Superior High School Thursday morning and Sentinel High School of Missoula that afternoon and concluded with an evening performance for the Polish commandos.

This morning they traveled to Ronan High School, then to Flathead High School in Kalispell Thursday night. Tonight they will give a Contemporary Worship Service at the Kalispell First Presbyterian Church.

The concert program is split between the concert band and the jazz ensemble. Several individuals perform in both groups.

Six members of the jazz ensemble will play at the Kalispell church while the bands rest, reading as "Prayer," they are Allen Barnes, R-Phelps, Gary Gallegos, Denice McCoy, Tyler Liggitt, and Rich Taylor.

Last night the entourage stayed at Polson, Montana through arrangements made by the high school. Similar plans have been made at Kalispell.

Judging from previous experiences, Deubping anticipated a fine reception. He also felt the welcome break from school for his students.

The jazz ensemble will repeat its tour selection at the March 8 Forum.
EDITORIAL OPINION

Onward Christian stereotypes

Gauging down gummy macaroni and hot dog casseroles at those many missionary potlucks, I've always choked at the stereotyped view of God's devoted disciples abroad.

Just imagine those suffering nerves trudging through dusty day after day, their steaming jeans decked out in shade shorts and pith helmets. Straining from the weight of tens of pounds of Bibles, they convert heroes here and there amid canonical feats, jungle beasts, and Tarsan episodes.

All the one of the privileged theological offspring I sometimes can't call forth the patience to fathom these ridiculous uninformed ideas. Yet I have an even harder time compromising with my fault of mind Whippets roll around in.

It clearly must be in the Judeo-Christian theme to smell out the strange new brew the ASWC exec has been cooking up or question the conflicting reports concerning the real progress of the fieldhouse. It would really be a density in the human development process to squawk loudly a few times and then investigate the cause.

The Whitworthian thanks Carolyn Schaefer for her creative Letter to Mr. Royal, "He touched me!" in last week's edition.

Commute data requested

Dear Editor:

I am attempting to accurately determine meaningful data for a serious study on American communites. To that end, I wish to reach as many communites as possible.

I will be grateful if students, faculty, and graduate students, who are living in community situations, will write me indicating willingness to receive a questionnaire and/or to interview. Size of community is important; 3 or 4 people, up to any number.

Sincerely,

Mac T. Sperber
9 West 9th Street, 9E
New York, New York 10011

Drug Abuse Workshop conducted for students

A Drug Abuse Workshop for students and non-students alike will be conducted by personnel at the Drug Abuse Training Center specifically for Whitworth students.

The workshop will be March 9 and 10, Friday from 7 to 11 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and at the Drug Abuse Training Center, West 1115 Broadway.

The workshop will cover physiological, psychological, legal, and ethical aspects of drug use and their effects on personal and group relationships and will be helpful.

A panel will consist of Charles Davis, a Whitworth graduate now with the clinic; William Payson, director of the Spokane Regional Drug Abuse Training Center; Donald Whisenant, a pharmacologist, and Gary Woods, a student in interpersonal relations and group dynamics.

Junie and Payson are assistant directors of the Training Center. Students interested in attending the workshop should sign up with Carrie in Student Activities or Marian of Kay in Student Development by Friday, March 9. Riders are being arranged, but drivers are needed.

By Susan Rogers

Resident Advisors positions available for next year

There is an overwhelming number of dollars in financial aid which will be distributed by the Whitworthian to students for the 1973-74 year.

There are different levels of Achievement Awards, and resident assistant positions, in 1973-74 students will be chosen in categories according to their overall achievements.

Applications are available to students, and students who will be attending the Whitworthian for next year should sign up with the administration department for a job.

The Financial Aid Office is available to help students and to make arrangements for the availability of the Financial Aid Office in the Whitworthian Administration Building.

The Whitworthian

MARCH 2, 1973

THE WHITWORTHIAN

Page 2

Editorial Opinions

by Susan Rogers

Resident Advisors positions will be available for next year. resident advisors next year, according to a statement made by resident advisor of Arend Hall and chairman of the R.A. Board.

The change in title is intended to better define the position currently labeled "resident assistant." Selected will be resident advisors for the 1973-74 school year is scheduled to begin between March 1 and April 1. Applications, reference forms, and job descriptions will be available in the Dean's Office Development Office Monday, January 24.

There are approximately 38 resident advisor positions, and any person who will have sophomore status or better at the end of the year is eligible to apply.

Carolyn Schaefer

Wishing a $10 million dollars in financial aid will be distributed by the Whitworthian to students for the 1973-74 year.

These students include those students who will be attending the Whitworthian for next year and who will be attending the Whitworthian for next year should sign up with the administration department for a job.

The Financial Aid Office is available to help students and to make arrangements for the availability of the Financial Aid Office in the Whitworthian Administration Building.

The Whitworthian

MARCH 2, 1973

THE WHITWORTHIAN

Page 2

Editorial Opinions

by Susan Rogers

Resident Advisors positions will be available for next year. resident advisors next year, according to a statement made by resident advisor of Arend Hall and chairman of the R.A. Board.

The change in title is intended to better define the position currently labeled "resident assistant." Selected will be resident advisors for the 1973-74 school year is scheduled to begin between March 1 and April 1. Applications, reference forms, and job descriptions will be available in the Dean's Office Development Office Monday, January 24.

There are approximately 38 resident advisor positions, and any person who will have sophomore status or better at the end of the year is eligible to apply.

Carolyn Schaefer

Wishing a $10 million dollars in financial aid will be distributed by the Whitworthian to students for the 1973-74 year.

These students include those students who will be attending the Whitworthian for next year and who will be attending the Whitworthian for next year should sign up with the administration department for a job.

The Financial Aid Office is available to help students and to make arrangements for the availability of the Financial Aid Office in the Whitworthian Administration Building.
by Clady Irwin

I was scared to death. All the way up on the bus, my mind was filled with things Mom had said: "Be a good girl. Everyone will be watching you. Don't even think about those things."

But somehow I managed to turn away from the window and I took a deep breath. I was visiting high school students who were coming to the HUB.

I was determined to look nonchalant, carefree, and mature. Everyone said I looked old for my years—true, I guess. I was a visiting high school student.

Terisa was to be my hostess for the weekend. In her letter she said to meet her at the HUB, 'the first building on your right as you come into the main road.' I must have looked pretty silly heaving the luggage, because half way down the road, a young man came up and offered to help. I thought the walk was exciting.

'Not until I'd gotten inside the HUB did I notice he was wearing a red and black letter jacket. My heart leaped. This was love."

He told me his name was Gary, and he asked me my name. It was hard to be nonchalant, carefree, and mature when you're in love. But somehow I managed to answer him. He smiled and asked me what high school I was visiting from.

When Terisa came up and introduced herself, I blushed a goodbye to Gary and his big blue eyes.

Hub tree:

Terisa showed me around the HUB first. It was nothing like I'd imagined. With a name like HUB, I half expected a huge control center where students came to have their trains probed. The real thing was much less exciting. In every available space were hand-written advertisements: Cheap books for sale; cheap bills for sale; cheap houses for sale; etc. Some space-out dude was bonging on the piano as another lay sprawled on the rug, tapping his foot and singing off-key. Down at the other end we heard the steady ding, ding, ding of a machine, countered by the clack of billiard balls breaking up on the pool tables.

Campus "synchronized":

Terisa looked at the small clock, that says 11:00, and said, 'It's actually 11:00. Why don't we go on back to the dorm?'

Puzzled, I picked up my suitcases and started off for Ballard. As we stepped outside I heard something or somebody playing a tune that sounded vaguely like "Rock of Ages." Terisa explained the noise was from the tower called the Campanile. Then, it chimed 11:00.

"Hmm," Terisa said. "That's either means the organist is operating on HUB time, or it's actually 11:00."

From the outside, Ballard looked harmless, almost inviting in a coy, quaint sort of way. I pictured it's inhabitants equally as peaceful and friendly. My illusions were soon shattered when out of the door poured five giggling, screaming girls. Someone shouted, "We're going on a banger run!"

Bright and early the next morning, Terisa's new radio alarm clock woke me up to the tune of John Philip Sousa's marching band.

Saga sampled:

I didn't think the butterflies in my stomach would let me eat breakfast. But Terisa insisted we hadn't really experienced Whitworth until we'd eaten at Saga —

"GLEE and smiles"

When we got there, the line was already outside the building, where very friendly monster-sized dogs waited patiently for their owners, or anyone kind enough to bring them a small bit of food. The biggest one was particularly clumsy. Now I like dogs, but this one greeted me (why me?) like a long lost friend. His muddy paws landed on my new dress and on the way down his claws ripped my $4.00 panty hose.

I smiled, and tried to act nonchalant, carefree, and mature. The meal itself was anti-climatic. I kept hearing rumors of the meatloaf surprise they were planning for dinner, but I didn't ask. In this case I figured ignorance was bliss.

Day begins daae:

I went through the rest of the day in a daze, dodging frisbees, bicycles, and eager students rushing to class through Whitworth mud. I found the bearded, backpacking English majors particularly formidable.

By the time I had to leave I'd given up trying to be nonchalant and mature (nobody else seemed to act that way).

SAV-MORE

*Pool-Billard (9 tables)
*17 pinball & flipper machines
*Hairsouts $1.50
*Major brand gas
29.5/gal

SAV-MORE ARCADE
Francis & Nevada

New Releases From Our Record Department

CARLY SIMON ALBUM
"No Secrets" with his single "You're So Vain," featured.

ROLLING STONES
"More Hot Rocks"

ELTON JOHN
"Don't Shoot Me, I'm Only the Piano Player"

JOHN DENVER
"Thank You Mamma"

DIOCETO
"Preludes"

Sticks Donuts

38 Varieties
To Groups and Organizations

Strick's

HELLO!

The WHITWORTHIAN needs qualified types to train for our typing

Opp. Excellent pay, good company, flexible hours. Contact Carolyn Schloetel.

Peace Corps VISTA

on campus March 8-9

For the last time during the current school year, Peace Corps/VISTA reps will be on campus, March 8 and 9. We'll be in the Student Union seeking graduating seniors in:

Liberal Arts

Peace Corps/VISTA - More than a job, an opportunity to help.
Bucs trip PLU in last game at Graves

by Chris Bauer

The final game in Graves Gym was played Monday night and the Pirates ended it with a win over Pacific Lutheran, 91-79. Next year action will move to the field house, which should be completed as construction will begin this summer. This year in Graves the Bucs won their last six games in a row, all competition. Among those six victories were two against the conference champions Pacific and PLU. Fan support has always been great as the small but noisy crowds have harassed opposing players, coaches and officials, creating a definite home court advantage. Monday night the largest crowd of the season was on hand to watch seniors Gene Rossow, Malcolm Ruxwood and Mike Paden play their last home game. Rossow led all scorers with 27 points, including 7 of 7 from the line. He continues to lead the NAIA with 84 of 91. Holding just a 39-36 halftime advantage the Pirates 39-36 advantage the Pirates topped that margin to 64-40 in the first five minutes of the second half. PLU was never close from that point. Freshmen Doug Parker and Dave Tikker, who have been improving with more experience, again played outstanding games. They each contributed 10 points and showed aggressive play on defense and control of the rebounds. Playmaker Ron Holcomb dished out nine assists and 14 points (7 of 10 from the field). With the loss of just three seniors this year, 1973-74 should be a year to look forward to. The younger players gained valuable experience this year and a feel for each other's playing habits. Older players returning next year will be: Dave Reynolds, Stan Erickson, Manny Martinez, Jim Blair, Ned Cannon and Mike Manning.

Intramural activities provide wide variety for students; schedules to be posted in the HUB

by Chris Bauer

Intramural activities for the month of March will be plenty. Plans are archery, weight lifting (men only), and chess. Continuing from February are pool billiards and bowling. The activities underway are moving into the second week. Archery. Pool billiards began the second round last night as the original 74 were cut in half after a week. Participants are responsible for finding their opponents and scheduling their own match within the week. According to director Howie Killinger this method has been used at other colleges and been successful and is being tested here.

Basketball moved into the second round also with action every night of the week except Friday. Games are also scheduled for Saturday morning. In the women's league competition, Stewart, Faculty, McDill and Carlson were victorious in the first games. Archery is scheduled to be at 2:30 on Sunday, March 11 with individual and dual championships being awarded for both men and women.

The following Saturday will be weightlifting competition for men only. Weight classes will be 150, 190, 150, 140, 150, 160, 170, 180 and heavyweight. Each competitor will be allowed three trials in each lift. Bench press, curl and leg press. Combined weights will be added and winners determined.

A chess tournament will begin on March 18. Participants will again have to contact their opponents and play within a week. Schedules will be posted on the intramural bulletin board in the HUB.

Ski Sale

1/3 off - SKI WARMUPS
Ski PANTS
WIND SHIRTS
T-SHIRTS

Slater's

EXXON

Complete Auto Service

HU 7-9549

Hawthorne's Division

XL Cleaners

Laundry & Dry Cleaning

2410 N. Division
PA T-8121

Done the way you like it.
15% off to Whitworth students and teachers.

Eugene's Flowers

West 601 Francis
Phone FAX-9588

Curt's Y Drugs
9105 N. Division
HU 7-1814

SAY...

AINT BAGGIES NEAT!

BLAZERS
BAGGIES
BOW TIES

MIKE WEST

from THE MARCH MADNESS

INDUSTRY RUNS ON ENERGY

The machinery of America runs on energy. It powers industry and energizes our commerce. In this era of concern about pollutants and particulates, the clean, renewable energies, electricity and natural gas, are increasingly important. For the sake of our environment, we'll need more of these energies in the future.

THE WASHINGTON WATER POWER COMPANY

Clean Energy for a Quality Environment

There is no better way to cap off the final week of a basketball season than to knock off one of the conference champions. This is what Whitworth finished last Wednesday against PLU for their final home game of the season, and perhaps the final game in Graves Gym. Next season the field house is to be the site of Pirate basketball action.

In a recap of the 73-74 season, Whitworth has accomplished some phenomenal feats. Although the Pirate's record, 7-19, looks much to be desired for a winning season, the White did manage to win all of their home games. Included in those were wins over conference co-champs Pacific and PLU.

Perhaps next year Whitworth will be able to play all their games at home. If this should happen - look out UCLA. But since the games are divided up between schools there seems little chance of anything like that occurring.

With the basketball season wrapped up for this year, ending last Wednesday in a non-conference over-time loss to WSC 65-62, we must be content to wait for the beginning of the spring sports.

This reminds me of the agony of the time between baseball's "Game of the Week" and football's "Monday Night" games. There seems little for the sports fan to do but study. Speaking of studying I've been doing some homework on Whitworth's prospective baseball and track teams. Both seasons begin a week from tomorrow.

The Pirates' baseball squad is currently preparing for a 44 game season with 10 returning veterans and a team with as much depth and talent as this year's squad, I anticipate one of our best seasons ever.

The track season could be more unpredictable, drawing from only six lettermen. However a 32 man squad is enough to notify its opponents.

I feel I've stuck my neck out far enough for this week without expressing my opinions on the golf or tennis teams. Maybe next week.
Students determine constitution's fate

by Mary Wolzfeld

The fate of the new ASWC constitution will be decided in an election conducted yesterday and today. Two-thirds of the student body, about 700 students, must vote to make the election valid, and two-thirds of the student body must also vote yes for the constitution to be adopted.

"The idea is moving away from student government and moving toward a student government in terms of a 'business,'" ASWC treasurer Les Hyde told students. Students would, under the new constitution, be known as stockholders. "You pay $100 in this organization every year," Hyde said. "So you should expect some specific things back.

The constitution has a strong exec with legislative powers far above what they have now. Stockholders would, meeting monthly, could overrule any decisions of the exec or even vote to fire members with a vote of ten percent of the student body. Perhaps their biggest change is doing away with the student senate. Senate, in fact, recently voted to get rid of itself. It would be replaced by a Presidents' Council, made up of the president of the student body, the two强悍's, the president of the student senate, five student senators, the president of the university's student body, and the president of the student government association.

The constitution gives the executive branch a strong voice, with the public education has too much say. The constitution also gives the exec a powerful voice in student affairs, with the public education has too much say. The constitution also gives the exec a powerful voice in student affairs.

The constitution makes the exec the main arm of the organization, with the public education has too much say. The constitution also gives the exec a powerful voice in student affairs.

The constitution makes the exec the main arm of the organization, with the public education has too much say. The constitution also gives the exec a powerful voice in student affairs.

The constitution makes the exec the main arm of the organization, with the public education has too much say. The constitution also gives the exec a powerful voice in student affairs.

The constitution makes the exec the main arm of the organization, with the public education has too much say. The constitution also gives the exec a powerful voice in student affairs.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Scandalous scoops savored

Periodically aspiring to the mackraking heights of William Randolph Hearst and columnist Jack Anderson, there is nothing I savor more than a hot, juicy story with scandalous "news."

The very scent of scandal could just envision that live column banner, "Winter Cans Cream Crop: Ten Faculty Fired." The lead paragraph would contain such tantalizing "facts" as the faces of all nonseniority and replacement of all nonacademic professors by theoretical Ph.D.s.

Imagine how readers' eyes would pop to discover that Whitworth might have its own muckraking scandal that those destined by the firing squad were given little notitification of this drastic action.

In the meantime I can quite aspire to such a yellow journalistic pinnacle. It took little research to blow my fantastic headline, refute my lead paragraph and dehydrate my scoop of the month - scandalous libels.

I found that of the four professors leaving Whitworth to be replaced by Ph.D.s, one was on a visiting appointment only, and two were pressured and may have voluntarily decided to seek employment elsewhere. The others are going back to get a doctorate. These faculty were given notice two years in advance either directly from Dean Winter or through their department head. This is a full year more than required by the Association of University Professors.

The rank and promotion committee basically determined the loss being security of professors on campus. Longevity, they have not granted tenure to those without Ph.D.s despite an apparent discrimination to women. However, women and blacks are almost in the highest favorable standing to be hired at Whitworth if they complement the goal of upgrading the professional experience of the faculty. A Ms. title won't do, only a Ph.D.

The research committee carrying on the common practice to hire graduates as professors because of a seeming and obvious narrowly. Those recent graduates now hired are filling temporary positions. Yet even graduate work and a master's degree from Whitworth does not put a professor in good stead for tenure and this year we are indeed unfortunate to lose a very popular professor.

Student evaluations are a factor in the rank and promotion process but do not affect the decision for removal of any faculty. In every case the decision was made on factors other than success or failure in the classroom.

It is indeed discouraging to wave goodbye to some favorite professors on high from the imperial position of the chancellor. The discouragement seems to be so pervasive, and laziness so great among students that those tenured professors so frequently accused of being lax in some area almost receive from those same students a silent permission never receive notice of these whispered criticisms.

Perhaps the Christian stereotypes need not march onward in war. To decide that some facts are leaving but also look ahead to improvements and contributions to be made by tensured and nonreturning professors alike. Carolyn Schnellet

Senior raps Erbanism

Dear Editor,

This year, as in previous years, Whitworth students are exposed to interpersonal interaction, human creativity and ideas. Yet some processes that do not stress a grading or testing system; ideas that are conducive to human development. These are all important and constructively innovative ideas, yet into all this work there is a fact that seems to be neglected to a large extent.

For many, going to a graduate or professional school of same type in the best way to develop the skills that they feel is necessary in order to become a valuable part of their surroundings; to be a person who can truly offer something of worth to an other.

This brings-up the crux of the matter and also the points seniors can pass along. No matter how concerned or socially involved a person is, initially he or she is classified by how well they can do on a test.

The problem is compounded by the fact that Whitworth is not a large, well-known institution and others have no way of knowing how capable a Whitworth grad is except with a test.

Whitworth is finding itself on the type of nature and campus and is attempting to help along with maturity comes a realistic knowledge of the world the graduate is facing. Poetry, innovative education and Focus Days are just parts of the way. With people with a qualifying education but Whitworth must be prepared to make its students competitive so they may have the chance to use the skills offered by a small college to give students.

No matter how well one may be able to relate to people, there are some hard-rock criteria in the "real world" that a student must face. If nothing else, at least be expecting it and, better yet, be prepared for it.

Paul Gray

---

Presbyterians progress

by David Hosner

Presbyterian Past

1958 Movie watching made permissible after extensive debate.

Old movies brought to the Whitworth campus.

Dancing not permitted on campus or elsewhere.

Smoking not permitted on campus.

Drinking not permitted on or off campus regardless of age.

1969 Girls' hours extended to midnight on weekends.

1967 Dances held on campus.

1968 Girls' hours liberalized to 2 a.m. weekends for seniors only.

1970 Drinking off campus allowed for those over 21.

1971 Smoking permitted on campus and in designated rooms.

1972 Women's track inaugurated.

1972 Homecoming Queen selection discontinued by students as "archaic custom".

Presbyterian Projection

1973 Legal drinking age lowered to 19.

Drinking made permissible in designated rooms on campus after much sober debate.

1974 Christine Bros. brought in to speak during Spring Emphasis Week.

Human Potential Dares changes title to Distillery Co-op. Homecoming Dance held at the Koa Tik.

1975 New staff position: "Coordinator of Volunteer Workers in Spokane Taverns" created. Ralph Boges elected Student Body President after winning esteemed trophy of Igmar Chugay Contests. 1976 Student Body President elected by students as "archaic custom".

Whitworth alumni meetings held nightly at Union Gospel Mission.

Congratulations to Travis Prentiss, Whitworthian photographer, for being awarded a fellowship in Indiana University in journalism.

---

Presbyterians open up

Graduates and students eying the job market may find reason for encouragement this year. They may also find jobs, according to Bob Huber of Whitworth's Career Planning and Placement Office.

A national survey of 612 major employers shows that more of their college graduates in 1973 than last year. Prospective employers interested in employee's requirements may attend the Monday morning seminar for seniors. Mr. Huber hosts the seminars at 10 o'clock in the Warren lounge so that seniors may have a chance to discuss all aspects of employment and the job seeking process. Monday's session will concentrate on the resume-the key to getting your foot in any employer's door.

Another service of the Career Planning and Placement Office will soon be available for Whitworth graduates. "The Group," an additional service for alumni looking for work will be able to have their own resumes matched by computer with new jobs as soon as they are reported from throughout the Northwest.

Seniors are encouraged to set up placement files with the office. (In the Student Development Building before April 1).

By April, Mr. Huber hopes to have all Washington State Employment information available in his office on microfilm.

---

Musical group celebrates life

"Celebrate Life," a musical/drama telling the story of Christ's life, will be performed tonight at 8 p.m. in the auditorium. "The Group", 45 persons ranging from the Mercer Island-Bellevue-Seattle area to present the musical.

Told from the perspective of the four gospel writers, the hour and a half production will involve special lighting, and a sound track with some sound effects. "The Group," preparing by Mercer Island Baptist Church, has been preparing "Celebration Life" since early December. Freshman Sally Stowell, previously a member of "The Group," expressed to me this experience to be one of their best over.

Since "The Group" first formation over 4 years ago, they have grown from 12 members to 45, and have performed "Pall In Luke Is It!" at Natural High and "Show Me Jesus." A non-denominational group, they have gone on tour to numerous churches and cities in Canada and Washington.

---

The Whitworthian

THE WHITWORTHIAN

March 9, 1973

---

EDITOR-In-CHEF

MANAGING AND TECHNICAL EDITOR

BUSINESS ADVERTISING

GARY LEBAN

DICK STEBBINS

NEWS STAFF

CAROLYN SCHNELLET (Managing Editor)

HARRY NILSEN, assistant editor

MICHELE BAUGH, JUDI CRAWFORD, OWNED BY DAVE SHELTON, publisher

FEATURE STAFF

ROBERT DUGGAR, assistant editor

DICK STEBBINS, publisher

SPORTS STAFF

THOMAS O'NEILL, assistant editor

CAROLYN SCHNELLET, Mario Montes, editor

PHOTOGRAPHY

TREVIS PRENTISS, editor

LAYOUT

JANICE CRANDALL, sports, DAVID DYESK, art, PETER TRET, editor

VARTISTS

DAVID CAMP, JOHN TRIMBEE, JULIE STRALE, DEBBIE PAGE

PRINTER

THE WHITWORTHIAN

---

The Whitworthian

WANT TO BE THE EDITOR?

BUSINESS MANAGER OF THE

73-74 WHITWORTHIAN?

The student publication committee invites interested applicants to join the weekly student gain experience and insight of the publication's business activities.

INFORMATION FROM MR. A. GRAY OR CAROLYN SCHNELLET.
Stiens design, build house
by Catherine Strong

"For 20 years now I've wanted to build my own house," says Dr. Howard Stien, biology professor. A three-bedroom chalet 13 miles away in Chattererry is a dream come true for Dr. Stien, his wife Pat and their daughter Beth. A loft, open stairway and window wall enhance the home's unique rustic character.

Working with his dad, a carpenter, and then for a contractor one summer, gave Dr. Stien the background to design and put together his masterpiece with a minimum of professional help. Since breaking ground June 8, he has hammered about 200 pounds of nails!

Patience, ingenuity and hard work were as necessary as nails and lumber. "We learned to enjoy each part of the house as we added it," reports Mrs. Stien.

Shingling difficult

The most difficult job involved carrying every bundle of shakes up ladders to shingle the roof. The plumbing also taught patience, especially when a leak sprung Christmas eve.

Other unexpected situations kept workers on their toes, often literally. A 46-foot, 600-pound beam was finally in place 22 feet off the ground when workers ripped away the paper and saw that the underside read: "TOP." A high-altitude sandpapering job remedied that.

Mrs. Stien, despite a bruised ankle, helped raise the walls. She kept the books and ran errands, making up to five trips a day for supplies.

"We had to be our own "high-altitude mixing-center" to distinguish her personally designed kitchen. Many help.

Fellow professors, students from class and other Whitworthians often stopped by to pound a nail or carry a board. Dave Winkle earned the title "Fearless" from his performance on the roof and framing. A.J. Morris "raised the roof" while Scott Richter and Jim Glan­glow stayed on the ground to construct the floor. Also a builder, Dr. Thayer wrestled with the wiring.

Satisfaction has been one of the chief rewards for the Stiens. Different people, physical work and a new challenge provide a refreshing change from academics. "I like to try lots of things," explains Dr. Stien. "I'm not totally convinced that God wanted me to be a prof!"

A WINDOW WALL is just one of the unique features in the Stiens' house. Photo by Pete Trott

POGO, THE STIENS' YORKSHIRE TERRIOR, enjoys a miniature version of the 1800 sq. ft. chalet. Photo by Pete Trott
Carlson and McMillan unbeaten
by Chris Bauer

After several earlier postponements intramural archery will finally take place on Sunday. Depending on the weather it will either be in the fieldhouse or on the practice field. The scheduled time to begin is 2:30.

A new dimension has been added to the decathlon this year. It will run much like the recently completed Superstars competition in Rotunda, Florida.

Eight activities including the regular track and field are scheduled. Weightlifting will start in competition on March 17, which will not be completed until May 6.

The other activities will be bowling, free throw shooting, ping-pong, pool, badminton and par-3 golf. Participants will have to pay, at a reduced rate, for bowling and golf.

Five on five basketball is continuing with a very close race in a league competition. McMillan and Carlson are undefeated after three games, while Pancali, Stewart and Alder have one loss. South Warren has won their first two games to lead the women's division.

Pirates host MSC April 7

The Whitworth College women's basketball team will begin the second half of the season against Montana State College from Bozeman. The matches will be held on Whitworth's courts.

Fifteen players have turned out for the Varsity or J.V. teams and there is still room for more.

Last year the Pirates tied for second place with Williamette in the Pacific Northwest Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. The Pirates finished the season with an overall record of 6 wins and 6 losses. This is only the third year Whitworth has been in the conference.

The Pirates show a good depth of depth with six returning varsity players. They are: Dennis Carter, Bill Converse, Mark Fredrick, Kent Lupton, Mike Youngblood and Joe Denison. Dennisson finished the season as a semifinalist for the district #1 finals.

The rest of the squad will include Keith Carpenter, Carl Cuttier, Stan Erickson, Rod Hlavcevic, David Housser, Pete Olander, Dave Owens, Francis Tagbo, and Charles Watson.

Sally Scowell claimed honors as a member of the Pine League all-star women's basketball team and inspirational player for Whitworth.

Four veterans hold potential for golfers
by Larry Martin

The curse of the sand trap is back, and ten of Whitworth's fearless golfers are ready to encounter it, as they prepare for the 73 golf season to start.

Whitworth this year has added a new cast of characters to team up with veterans such as Bob Nieman. Nieman landed on the all conference team, and was a 5th place medalist last year.

Bruce Lewis, Chris Bauer, and Doug Parker, rookies with a lot of talent will stand in the middle of the freeway wondering where they go for their easy par.

Whitworth finished sixth in their conference last year, but this year they have added new talent, and are good at shooting, and have a good shot at being a winner in their division.

Other members on the squad include Daryl David, Tom Richter, and Ray Oelrich.

has been battling for the number one place nationally for the free throw percentage title hitting 86 of 97.

Ron Holcomb was named to the honorable mention.

Alum to tell of arrest for peace

Rollin Kirk, a Whitworth graduate and a third-year seminary student at Princeton will be on campus March 11 to March 20, speaking about his recent arrest for "sabotage," and his upcoming trial in April.

Kirk was arrested in December for cementing a railroad switch in an attempt to prevent a train which carried ammunition to planes headed for Vietnam from reaching its destination. A Christian, Kirk will be explaining his motives and why he decided to cement the switch. He was invited to Whitworth by the Committee for Peace.

"He's not just another demonstrator or protester," stated Laurie Hornberger, a member of the Committee. "He really thought about what he did."

Kirk will be traveling and speaking in other parts of Washington after leaving Whitworth in an attempt to raise money for his trial.

Peace Corps Last Day Today!

Or Campus March 9

Apply now for summer training.

Today... Peace Corps representatives will be in the Student Union seeking June graduates in:

Liberal Arts

Peace Corps/VISTA - More than a job, an opportunity to help.
Convention will produce ASWC nominees

by Mary Wolford

The first step in the race for ASWC Executive Board positions will be the annual nominating convention Monday. About 114 delegates representing the dorms and town will nominate two candidates for each of the five executive positions.

Nominees will campaign before and after spring break with final elections on Friday, April 6.

Conservative Carlton Gladden, former state representative from the seventh district, will be the keynote speaker at the convention. "I don't anticipate too many people agreeing with what he has to say, and neither does he," said Rich Clark, ASWC executive vice president. "He will stimulate the audience." Registration will begin at 3 p.m. Monday in the auditorium, with the call to order and invocation about 3:30. Also in the first session will be the keynote address, rules and credentials committee reports and acceptance, and nominating persons for positions on the Executive Board.

The 5 p.m. convention will break for dinner at SAGA and delegation caucuses until the start of the second session at 7:15. After roll call, all nominees will be introduced to the convention. Balloting will take place, and the convention will wrap up with the nominees' acceptance speeches.

The only change which the new constitution will make in nominations is in the number of special projects vice president.

Several students have indicated their desire to run for offices. Kim Hunter and Dave Reynolds are running for president, as well as Academy. Gordon Van Wechel, Bill Beard, and Gary Holsten. Vying for executive vice president are Curt Epperson, Kathy Ingles, and Steve Samm; for special projects vice president are Ken Crawford and Rod Halvorson; for programming vice president is Kent Lupton, and for treasurer, Mike Ching and Pat Bell.

Delegates to the nominating convention were selected to represent their living groups on a ratio of one to seven.

Campus to celebrate whole earth in April

by Michelle Baugh

Whitworth will be involved in a total campus experience this spring entitled, "Whole Earth Celebration." The celebration will include ethnic cultures from the campus and community, art exhibits, crafts and various music groups.

The executive board decided a major spring event Two canoes lost in Spokane River

A mishap in the Bowl and Pitcher area of the Spokane River Saturday resulted in the swamping of two Wilderness Activity canoes. Neil Bersten and Hal "Timer" Whitman, both members of last summer's Arctic Expedition tried in vain to retrieve the canoes from the rapids.

According to Whitman, the accident occurred when his canoe swamped and was later swept into an eddy with a strong undertow. The canoe's occupants managed to get out just after it was swamped.

Whitman and Bersten then tried to retrieve the canoe, but as they were running some rapids they slightly missed a small channel, tipping the second canoe over.

Half a canoe was found Wednesday, but both men plan to wait until the water goes down before making (continued on page 3)

with final elections on Friday, April 6.

Conservative Carlton Gladden, former state representative from the seventh district, will be the keynote speaker at the convention. "I don't anticipate too many people agreeing with what he has to say, and neither does he," said Rich Clark, ASWC executive vice president. "He will stimulate the audience." Registration will begin at 3 p.m. Monday in the auditorium, with the call to order and invocation about 3:30. Also in the first session will be the keynote address, rules and credentials committee reports and acceptance, and nominating persons for positions on the Executive Board.

The 5 p.m. convention will break for dinner at SAGA and delegation caucuses until the start of the second session at 7:15. After roll call, all nominees will be introduced to the convention. Balloting will take place, and the convention will wrap up with the nominees' acceptance speeches.

The only change which the new constitution will make in nominations is in the addition of the special projects vice president.

Several students have indicated their desire to run for offices. Kim Hunter and Dave Reynolds are running for president, as well as a doctorate of Gordon Van Wechel, Bill Beard, and Gary Holsten. Vying for executive vice president are Curt Epperson, Kathy Ingles, and Steve Samm; for special projects vice president are Ken Crawford and Rod Halvorson; for programming vice president is Kent Lupton, and for treasurer, Mike Ching and Pat Bell.

Delegates to the nominating convention were selected to represent their living groups on a ratio of one to seven.

Campus to celebrate whole earth in April

by Michelle Baugh

Whitworth will be involved in a total campus experience this spring entitled, "Whole Earth Celebration." The celebration will include ethnic cultures from the campus and community, art exhibits, crafts and various music groups.

The executive board decided a major spring event Two canoes lost in Spokane River

A mishap in the Bowl and Pitcher area of the Spokane River Saturday resulted in the swamping of two Wilderness Activity canoes. Neil Bersten and Hal "Timer" Whitman, both members of last summer's Arctic Expedition tried in vain to retrieve the canoes from the rapids.

According to Whitman, the accident occurred when his canoe swamped and was later swept into an eddy with a strong undertow. The canoe's occupants managed to get out just after it was swamped.

Whitman and Bersten then tried to retrieve the canoe, but as they were running some rapids they slightly missed a small channel, tipping the second canoe over.

Half a canoe was found Wednesday, but both men plan to wait until the water goes down before making (continued on page 3)
Constitution caters to apathy

With the new ASWC constitution passed and student exec elections just around the corner, the student body waits to see the effect of the changes in student government. The new constitution is to make a more accurate and more fair way to say a small percentage of the student body awaits these changes. Apathy prevails at Whitworth College. The recent constitution passed, only 72% of 1,500 students voted, just over the 50% per required. How many would have voted had the elections committee not grabbed students in line at SAGA or made it mandatory at town meetings?

MANDATORY TOWN MEETING
THURSDAY 10:00 PM - 10:45 PM.
A member of ASWC Exec. will be here to explain and vote on the new ASWC constitution passed last week by members. ALL MUST VOTE.

Senate meetings also show this apathy; a crowd of 40 apathetic people to inaugurate their offering of the new constitution. Usually there were none. Indeed, Senate voted to do away with itself.

A. Urgently urging to counteract apathy, the new constitution actually caters to it.

With the idea of stockholders' meetings, students have the chance to take personally any aspect of this by themselves rather than have the senators handle everything. Yet they can also escape any responsibility. While senators were polling, students, stockholders have the option to ignore them. The constitution states a lack in stockholders' meetings. A question for the interested few to ponder is how many students will actually attend.

Perhaps the biggest help for the apathetic is the strong exec. In essence, the exec does the planning while stockholders approve or disapprove with only a majority of those who show up at a meeting. With the exec doing the work, and the small bunch of interested stockholders giving the final approval, the uncarrying student can easily forget his responsibilities.

The new constitution was ingenuously tailored to the needs of Whitworth students. How else could so much be left to the few who care?

Mary Wolford, news editor

Syndrome claims victims

Students with children are urged to take special precautions in order to insure their offspring's health. Officials warn that the ASWC constitution and election is approaching and hopeful politicians are teeming with warm understanding and enthusiasm. American parents are especially susceptible to an infectious kis for which they may have little or no resistance.

It has been said that man is a political animal. What better way to train him than as a sheltered monarch in a foreign city outside the Spokane City Limits?

Two canoes lost in Spokane River

(continued from page 1) any more efforts at retrieving what remains.

They reportedly did not sign a liability statement when they got the equipment from the Wilderness Activities Program. According to Bob Stine, the process of getting the canoes was really disorganized. "They have not yet heard what action will be taken."

Tim Marshall, director of Wilderness Activities, declined to offer any comment.

Whitworth student Leonard Diecio, who was watching the canoes from shore, commented, "The bowl and Pitcher looked easier than it was... We were worried about their lives for a moment or two... one was submerged for about 20 seconds..." Indeed, "Elmer" circled around a large rock and pulled himself out from a pool and hit himself and he was all black from an oil slick in the pool.

Another eyewitness said one of the canoes "looked as if big teeth had bitten it in half."

Dear Editor,

In order to the editor last week, Phil Cory expressed the view that Whitworth, a college that prides itself on developing mature capable people who will be able to assume a valuable role, should not have a discussion that this is an accurate view. However, Mr. Cory went on to say that there is an increased emphasis on the "rock-hard" responsibilities of the "real world." By this phrase he means: "The world to which we gravitate to in this small community are very relevant to what society cares about now."

Consideration inadequate

Dear Editor,

We are writing concerning the "Caucus" meeting at the HUB last Friday, March 9. We could not believe the reconsideration and ridiculousness of the audience, if you could call it that. It is amazing how few performing were excellent.

Senator praises story by Sisson

Dear Editor,

Please convey our congratulations to Bob Sisson whose by-line appears on the story "Senate approves low drinking age." Bob reported factually, accurately, and resisted the temptation to editorialize in this news story.

As reported, I voted against the bill. It was mixed emotions, because I really believe that to be consistent with laws previously enacted we would have to lower the age to 18 years. The argument against that seemed valid because of the potential problems among 18-year-olds still in high school.

More than 800 voters in the 5th State Legislative District replied to a questionnaire during my campaign. To represent my district, I felt obliged to vote "no," as 63% said they did not want the age lowered below 21. Seven percent said they were willing to lower the age to 20, and only 18% said they would lower the age to 19.

"21 is the appropriate age. There is no way for a Senator to vote "maybe" or "OK for the responsible, not so for the irresponsible.""

The view strongly held that the votes are easy. I realize that many Whitworth students will have to get their last vote. My only hope is that they will understand that I was sent here as representative. Sincerely, R. H. Bob Lewis State Senator

Dear Editor:

In order to the editor last week, Phil Cory expressed the view that Whitworth is nothing but a college that prides itself on developing mature capable people who will be able to assume a valuable role in society. We don't need to have a discussion that this is an accurate view. However, Mr. Cory went on to say that there is an increased emphasis on the "rock-hard" responsibilities of the "real world." By this phrase he means: "The world to which we gravitate to in this small community are very relevant to what society cares about now."

Counseling Center stressed that children are not the only ones affected by political events. Last year one-hundred and twenty-five students reported severe withdrawal symptoms after new "friends" were either elected or lost their bids.

The Whitworthian has recognized this phenomenon for several elections and reserves extra space for publicity seeking candidates. Apparently a spring election awakens weighty issues and anxious personal opinion that have been dormant all winter.

Finally, I guess I view the word as a means of communication; it would not make us a more valuable part of our surroundings.

As we looked around at the people there, we noticed girls playing jacks on the floor and people standing around not paying attention to the music. At one point, the performer tried to get participation by hand clapping and foot stomping but very few responded and it died out rapidly.

If those people weren't there for the music, why didn't they just get their food and cut out those who were there for the music which could enjoy it? It was a good idea, but great, we can't have people playing music, and we don't have the music which could enjoy it.

The view strongly held that the votes are easy. I realize that many Whitworth students will have to get their last vote. My only hope is that they will understand that I was sent here as representative. Sincerely, R. H. Bob Lewis State Senator but we could barely hear it let alone enjoy it for all the noise. They were kind enough to play yet not even seemed interested in it.

Whitworth is 'microcosm' of real world

A coffeehouse atmosphere is supposed to be a mellow one with tables and candlelight. It's no wonder no one turns out for any social function here, they just aren't worth it. If we looked around at the people there, we noticed girls playing jacks on the floor and people standing around not paying attention to the music. At one point, the performer tried to get participation by hand clapping and foot stomping but very few responded and it died out rapidly.

If those people weren't there for the music, why didn't they just get their food and cut out those who were there for the music, which could enjoy it? It was a good idea, but great, we can't have people playing music, and we don't have the music which could enjoy it.

The view strongly held that the votes are easy. I realize that many Whitworth students will have to get their last vote. My only hope is that they will understand that I was sent here as representative. Sincerely, R. H. Bob Lewis State Senator

The Whitworthian

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
MANAGING AND TECHNICAL EDITOR, BUSINESS, ADVERTISING
Carolyn Schuetel, Cary Brodie

NEWS STAFF
mary Wolford, editor
Bob Stine, assistant editor
Maury Wolford, editor
David Houser, Cindy Irue
FEATURE STAFF
Mary Wolford, editor
David Houser, Cindy Irue
SPORTS STAFF
Steve Davis, Mike Grossman, Philip Cory
PHOTOGRAPHY
Travis Powell, editor
Janice Hamilton - sports, David Dornick - news

LAYOUT
Circulation
Travis Powell

VARTISTS
ADVISORY
Mr. Alfred O. Gray
THRUSS
Mary Wolford, assistant editor

Official publication of the Associated Students of Whitworth College, Spokane, Washington. Published weekly except during vacation periods. Circulation 1395

March 16, 1973

Editor's note: We regret that the staff-composed headline on Phil Cory's letter, the editor did not accurately represent his viewpoint. Phil did not mention or imply "Erinah..." of the weekly staff.

Want to be THE EDITOR?
BUSINESS MANAGER
of the
73-74 WHITWORTHIAN?

The STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Committee invites interested students to join the spring term staff to gain experience and knowledge of the position's responsibilities.

FURTHER INFORMATION from Mr. A. Gray or Carolyn Schuetel.

THE WHITWORTHIAN
Play, activist emphasize peace themes at Forum

The Committee for Peace will conduct Tuesday's Forum. Students and faculty will be active in performing a three-act play which will emphasize three major themes: how the world can become with peace, in keeping peace-presenting the individual, and what are the effects of failure to keep peace.

Rollin' Kirk, Whitworth graduate and Princeton Seminary student who was indigent for organizing a train switch in a symbolic act for peace, will also speak at Forum. Kirk has deep convictions about his Christian activism.

Karen Niewena, Marcy Renee, and Jeff Hansen, authors of the play, have been working on the project since Christmas, and indicated that the play holds some "surprises."

"It's not just straight dialogue," hinted Marcy. "There will be interaction with the audience."

"The purpose for giving this forum is to awaken some values in people and to make them more aware," stated Jeff. "Not just the students, but the faculty as well."

Relating the forum to the recent release of POW's from Vietnam, Marcy comments: "We have 'peace' now but in order to keep that, we're going to have to change some of our ideals and values."

The Committee for Peace encourages students to be in their seats by 10:15 a.m. as Forum will start promptly.

Admissions hold Whitworth's future

by Bob Scissors

The future life of Whitworth is in the hands of the college admissions office, as representatives are now undergoing a busy process of recruiting next year's prospective students via interviews, open houses, and telephone campaigns.

According to Admissions Director Dave Morley, "We are trying to help prospective students know we're a college where people care about one another, and to also insure that they have all the information they need to make a college decision that is in their best interest."

In February, Whitworth President Edward Lindaman travelled to Hawaii and staged an open house at the Sheraton Waikiki Hotel for approximately 70 prospective students.

Lindaman host dinner

Dr. and Mrs. Lindaman then hosted a dinner for high school counselors in Honolulu that was attended by the Whitworth-Lewis and Clark basketball team. A semiannual student, Kirk was indicted in December for eavesdropping a railroad switch to prevent a trainload of bombs from reaching their destination. Photo by Dave Dortch.

Fall schedule may change

A Summary of Action (SOA) regarding academic dates and finals was presented to the Academic Affairs Council before semester. If accepted, changes would be made in the dates of registration, reading day, and finals week.

A freshmen class of "about 400" is being hoped for next year, although Morley said it is still a little early to tell.

Concerning the number of visits to campus during February, which is reportedly three times as many as last February, Morley said he appreciates everybody's help in coordinating these visits--"I realize people have to feel imposed on. I really appreciate students hosting our visitors."

A freshmen class of "about 400" is being hoped for next year, although Morley said it is still a little early to tell.

Good Friday made better

Good Friday, April 20, has been declared an academic holiday for Whitworth students as a result of a decision by the Academic Affairs Council.

Yesterday was the final day during the semester of the Summary of Action statement was subject to requests for review, and it passed unchallenged. The effect of the SOA will be to eliminate the reading day school schedule for May 11 in order to allow for the Good Friday holiday.

The SOA further recommends that when, in the future, Good Friday does not fall within Spring vacation, it will be a holiday.

Tobacco reasons wanted

The Advisory and Review (ARB), on Monday, March 16, requested the HUB Board of Control to state their reasons in support of a decision (SOA #10) to permit the sale of tobacco for a trial period by the student co-op.

On March 3 the student co-op was allowed to sell tobacco for a trial period, but this decision will be reviewed on April 16 by the HUB Board of Control.

SOA #12 is a reaffirmation of the original student actions of 1970, which were on behalf of the Student Affairs Council. On Feb. 21 a review was requested by the Faculty Executive Committee.

According to ARB secretary Herbert Stocker, "Such rationale will provide more complete information to the campus community and the ARB in order to fairly review the request for policy change. The review will come before the ARB again on April 3 at its next regular meeting."

A policy comes before the ARB for final decision whenever an SOA is issued, a review is requested, a review is conducted and another SOA is issued on the subject, and another review is requested. At this point the ARB should make the final decision or recommendation to the President. The responsibility is to decide on the policy.

$ SPUD-NUT DRIVE IN
N. 6515 Division
phone HU9-0250

Open 6:30 a.m. - midnight 7 days a week.

$ $ $
Chemicals challenge Cory

by David Honseer

What's it like to be a pre-med student at Whitworth? Well, you're not likely to get lost in the crowd, but you are likely to get one of the most thorough and personalized educations.

Just ask Phil Cory or any of the approximately 3 Whitworth seniors going into medical school this fall. Cory is an articulate liberal arts student wanting to see how the other half lives, I decided just that and found a contagious enthusiasm for the pre-medical program here.

So I told me, "It's a good thing the way they work it here. You get some perspective on the backup work that goes into medicine. I have taken courses as diverse as Nuclear Physics and Comparative Anatomy."

Phil also emphasizes the personal attention and opportunities in a chemistry major. This year he has worked on two intriguing special projects, which he tries to pass off as "chemistry for chemistry's sake."

However, the exciting and relevant nature of the projects was apparent even to my non-scientific eyes as Phil explained them.

The first project involved building a microapparatus which uses reagents to show the alkaloid. Reagents are the compounds in minute amounts of the hard-to-measure star chemical, letting the researcher know how much is there.

As little as 50 milligrams of an ergot alkaloid would be deadly to a person weighing 100 pounds. Phil informed me that the toxic compound was the real cause of St. Anthony's Fire, the dreaded madalay of medieval times. Grain contaminated by the tasteless but deadly compound was baked into bread and consumed by the people. This happened as recently as 1951 in France, with grave results.

On the other hand, controlled small doses can have medical value. These plant alkaloids cause the muscles and blood vessels to contract—an effect similar to that of Digitalis, the drug used to regulate a diseased heart muscle. Phil has already been accepted by Loma Linda Medical School in California, which has an attractive three-year program. He also hopes to hear from the "U of W" Medical School.

Phil demonstrates microapparatus he constructed to detect ergot alkaloids.

Now polarized light, as we all know, is light that does not shine in all directions like most light, but rather shines in parallel rays, all in the same plane. "Rotating the beam of polarized light" means that the plane is turned from vertical, for instance, to horizontal when it passes through the steroid.

Phil's experiment duplicated the process used in the original research, but the results were not the same. This indicates that the polarized light was rotated in the first experiment only because of some impurity or other error in synthesizing the steroid, thus clearing up one of the minor bio-chemical mysteries of our time.

Phil attacks alkaloids

Phil's second project concerns the alkaloid compound of chemicals which are produced in some plants, and which are highly toxic even in very small amounts. Phil is working with Dr. Bockroth on the process of detecting these compounds in minute quantities and measuring how much is present in a solution. For this project he has built a microapparatus which uses reagents to show the presence of ergot alkaloid. Reagents are the microscopic scouts of the chemical world, attacking themselves to minuscule amounts of the hard-to-measure star chemical, letting the researcher know how much is there.

As little as 50 milligrams of an ergot alkaloid would be deadly to a person weighing 100 pounds. Phil informed me that the toxic compound was the real cause of St. Anthony's Fire, the dreaded madalay of medieval times. Grain contaminated by the tasteless but deadly compound was baked into bread and consumed by the people. This happened as recently as 1951 in France, with grave results.

On the other hand, controlled small doses can have medical value. These plant alkaloids cause the muscles and blood vessels to contract—an effect similar to that of Digitalis, the drug used to regulate a diseased heart muscle. Phil has already been accepted by Loma Linda Medical School in California, which has an attractive three-year program. He also hopes to hear from the "U of W" Medical School.

Suicide speaks

Roger Reinfeld

Saturday morning Feb. 24, at approximately 1:15 a.m. I was hitch-hiking four and a half miles back to school in 29 degree weather. I rode about two blocks. I was so tired I felt drunk and walked mechanically back toward campus along Country Homes Blvd. I was ill, sick from the first milkshake I'd had in six months.

I decided it was time to end it all. I threw myself in front of the next oncoming car and was crushed under its wheels.

The following in suicide note found in my pocket under the mssg. "Good-bye Cruel World! I give up. I can't go on without purpose, without hope. The small joys, the times of peace, the moments of sharing, can never be worth the pain, injustice, loneliness and boredom which so far fills my life. And I am so ignorant of so many things why can't I also know that everywhere people are suffering, crying, hating, fighting.

What am I for? God, why am I? Not just Man, but why? Why this man in this world? I'm told I'm to love and serve God. But why not make someone else who can love and serve better than me. I have trouble enough trying to believe in him. Why would be give life to someone who decides that he doesn't want it.

"The human race is really competing to fill the earth with people born to die, hoping one of 'em might find out why we're all here. And now we're filling the earth so that most of us are starving and a few of us have developed brains enough to really realize...

"We not only pollute earth but we produce the plastics and asphalt waste. In ignorance we upset delicate natural systems. In quest for comfort we're destroying our home.

"The society I come from is insane. Let us speak one way and act another sees an unspoken command. To compete, step on and climb on the pile of those you have beaten to get to the top. I cannot honestly enter the rat race. It's easier to love my life than my integrity.

"People kill themselves a bit at a time. They snuff their consciousness in drink, in chemistry, or in religious ecstasy and call it a good time. You must escape this world to be happy. I'm sure I'm lost and been crying, crying, hating, fighting.

"What am I for? God, why am I? Not just Man, but why? Why this man in this world? I'm told I'm to love and serve God. But why not make someone else who can love and serve better than me. I have trouble enough trying to believe in him. Why would be give life to someone who decides that he doesn't want it.

"The human race is really competing to fill the earth with people born to die, hoping one of 'em might find out why we're all here. And now we're filling the earth so that most of us are starving and a few of us have developed brains enough to really realize...

"We not only pollute earth but we produce the plastics and asphalt waste. In ignorance we upset delicate natural systems. In quest for comfort we're destroying our home."

"The society I come from is insane. Let us speak one way and act another sees an unspoken command. To compete, step on and climb on the pile of those you have beaten to get to the top. I cannot honestly enter the rat race. It's easier to love my life than my integrity.

"People kill themselves a bit at a time. They snuff their consciousness in drink, in chemistry, or in religious ecstasy and call it a good time. You must escape this world to be happy. I'm sure I'm lost and been crying, crying, hating, fighting.

"What am I for? God, why am I? Not just Man, but why? Why this man in this world? I'm told I'm to love and serve God. But why not make someone else who can love and serve better than me. I have trouble enough trying to believe in him. Why would be give life to someone who decides that he doesn't want it.

"The human race is really competing to fill the earth with people born to die, hoping one of 'em might find out why we're all here. And now we're filling the earth so that most of us are starving and a few of us have developed brains enough to really realize...

"We not only pollute earth but we produce the plastics and asphalt waste. In ignorance we upset delicate natural systems. In quest for comfort we're destroying our home."

"The society I come from is insane. Let us speak one way and act another sees an unspoken command. To compete, step on and climb on the pile of those you have beaten to get to the top. I cannot honestly enter the rat race. It's easier to love my life than my integrity.

"People kill themselves a bit at a time. They snuff their consciousness in drink, in chemistry, or in religious ecstasy and call it a good time. You must escape this world to be happy. I'm sure I'm lost and been crying, crying, hating, fighting.

"What am I for? God, why am I? Not just Man, but why? Why this man in this world? I'm told I'm to love and serve God. But why not make someone else who can love and serve better than me. I have trouble enough trying to believe in him. Why would be give life to someone who decides that he doesn't want it.

"The human race is really competing to fill the earth with people born to die, hoping one of 'em might find out why we're all here. And now we're filling the earth so that most of us are starving and a few of us have developed brains enough to really realize...

Our SPECIAL gift to the Whitworthian, a two-year subscription to The Pines, Whitworth's literary magazine, turn all works in to Publications office.
by Pete Trotz

By the time you’re a junior at Whitworth you have probably heard enough about the dreaded Junior English Clearance Test. This test is very simple affair. In order to take it you go to the appointed classroom anytime the test is being taken, being sure to take a couple sheets of paper and a pen. Once there, you’ve handed a sheet of paper with several topics on it and told to choose one and write from one and one half to two pages.

When asked what he thought of the test, Junior Bruce Uneda answered, “If they are going to evaluate it, they should let you write on a subject of your own choice. Besides, you have to take evaluation tests to get into Whitworth, so I don’t see why you should have one to get out.”

Junior Kyle Storm said that he thought the purpose of the test was to cull out people who might otherwise graduate and give Whitworth a bad name. He then became more serious and said that, “People who graduate from American college or university should be proficient in the English language if nothing else, and if they aren’t they shouldn’t graduate. Maybe it would be better, though, to take the test when you are a freshman and then take it again when you are a senior, and grade on improvement.”

After mulling something about his favorite cartoon character, Micky Mouse, senior Robert Foster said that when he took the test he knew that he was going to be graded on his use of grammar. He used only short concise sentences in his essay as to avoid mistakes, and he passed easily.

The Junior English Clearance Test may be necessary, but try convincing a music major of that! To which the English Department replies, “Oh, where is the sin in syntactic structure?”

New Releases From our Record Department

CARLY SIMON ALBUM

"No Secrets" with hit "You're so Vain", featured.

ROLLING STONES

"More Hot Rocks"

ELTON JOHN

"Don't Shoot Me. I'm Only the Piano Player"

JOHN DENVER

"Rocky Mountain High"

DODGAT PRELUDE-

with hit single "Never 2001 Space Odyssey"

March 16, 1973

THE WHITWORTHIAN

PAGE 5

Michelle leaves on jet plane

by Michelle Baugh

After several grueling interviews I will be leaving in a few days to begin my training at the United Airlines Training Center, to learn the responsibilities of a stewardess.

The training will involve emergency procedures, knowledge of all aircraft bodies flown, all aeronautical terms, first aid, sensitivity sessions (so I can politely refuse an obnoxious drunk another cocktail) and meal preparation. Class will last five weeks from 8:00 in the morning to 5:00 at night.

On the weekends we do "in flight training" on private flights. On a round trip flight from Chicago to San Francisco our plane will do dives, climbs and flops to get us used to all kinds of airplane motions. We will also learn in the different dives how long we have before crashing. (optimistic, huh?) Also on this same flight weightlessness will be produced by ascending at a certain speed and then decreasing that speed. This is done to observe how the trainees will react under stress; if they’ll yell, faint or what.

Another weekend will be spent at O’Hare Airport in Chicago using emergency procedures (how to avoid staid from the aircraft and end up in one piece) and learning how to use the different airplane parts.

Tests will be given weekly with a final at the end of training. Part of this final will include emergency rescue procedures in a mock-up airplane. Volunteers will go on an imaginary flight which has an imaginary accident. I have to put out the fire with an extinguisher, calm the passengers and evacuate the plane in three minutes. If I pass this along with the written exam I will receive my wings and watch $100 disappear from my hard earned pay checks to pay for my uniform.

After finishing training school I will know how to mix every kind of drink ever made, disarm a hijacker and be able to open the door on a 747 jumbo jet upside down, in the dark and under water. The glamour! I once thought this job had in slowly disappearing.

The next time you travel to far away places fly the friendly skies. I may see you there.

Students’ rights - any left?

by Cidie Irwin

You as a student have certain inalienable rights, according to Whitworth’s Student Bill of Rights, adopted in 1970.

The little publicized document concerning student rights and responsibilities covers such subjects as the right of privacy, academic and social freedoms, and standards for disciplinary action. Free copies of the Bill of Rights are now available in the Student Activities office.

AAC challenges code

Recently, Rich Clark, and other members of the Academic Affairs council challenged part of the code. They objected to the "weak" provisions given a student’s right of rebuttal to their academic evaluations.

"At present, the document reads: "...they (the students) should have the opportunity for appeal to the instructor, his superiors, or ultimately, the student-faculty committee on academic policies."

The council suggests a more active method which guarantees the student the right to comment on a professor’s evaluation. The proposed amendment reads: "Students will have an opportunity to read and discuss their evaluation with the faculty member who wrote it before the evaluation is submitted to the Registrar. In the event that a faculty member cannot modify his written statement in a manner that is acceptable to the student, then the faculty member is encouraged to submit a brief statement by the student as part of the overall evaluation."

The Academic Affairs council will vote on this matter next Monday at 4:30 in the Student Activities center. Interested students are invited to attend.

Bill protects property

Another section of the Bill of Rights guards against searches of student’s private property without “appropriate authorities being present," the college is open to control by the local enforcement agencies. There must be a search warrant or probable cause to justify the investigation.

Confidentiality guarded

The Bill of Rights also protects confidentiality of any improper disclosure of his views, beliefs, and associations that could be used against him. To assure this confidentiality, the Bill of Rights suggests that academic and disciplinary records be kept separate, and access to either be limited.

Rich Clark, ASWC vice president, contested that the document itself is outdated and in itself has no power. It is the responsibility of the individual to see that his rights are not violated, he said. This officer lies in those who take the initiative to protect their rights. He pointed out that with the school’s new constitution, the students will be able to do this, to control the governing forces and voice their opinions with a minimum of red-tape.

Peugeot Bicycles exclusively $118.00
Also: Schwinn, Czar, Velocipede, Mail repair—all makes Wheelsport Bicycle Shop
N. 1711 Division
PAS-2977

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

MEN WOMEN

WORK ON A SHIP NEXT SUMMER! No experience required. Excellent pay. Worldwide travel. Perfect summer job or career. Send $1.65 for information. 30 HOURS BOX 2069-B Trave Port Angeles, WA 98360

AAC CHALLENGES CODE

N. 1928 Howard
Rosedale Crest.
Reservations PAS-8991
Students $1.00

dorothy daisy smith

"exhibitionary comedy"

by richard clark

"exhibitionary comedy"

attended by richard clark

april 6, 7 - 8:30 p.m.
april 13, 14, 15, 19, 20, 21 - 8:30 p.m.
reservations PAS-8991
students $1.00

michelle baugh will soon "fly the friendly skies" as a stewardess.
Pirates have rough start, lose 4 straight

by Lanny Morris

The Whitworth Pirates opened up their '73 baseball season, by losing a twin bill to the Washington State and Cougars last Saturday 8-0, and 16-0. In the first game season fireballer Joe McIntosh pitched a perfect game against the Bucs while fanning seven men. McIntosh came close to giving up the perfect game in the fourth inning. The count was 3 and 0 on Pirate Rob Steidl, but then McIntosh took Steidl to the full route, and struck him out on a 3-2 pitch. "We're looking forward to having our strongest team in recent years with our top four players back from last year's team and the addition of some more strong young players," said Riehake. Bauer leads way in Pirates season-opener win over LC forward, Doug Parker, will follow coach Rianock's lead on the links along with first year men Daryl David and Tom Richter. The golfer will be in constant competition for the six playing positions on the team.

Bauer leads way in Pirates season-opener win over LC

The Whitworth Pirate golf team began its 1973 season with an impressive victory over Lewis Clark State Monday, March 12. Chris Bauer led the Pirates with a 73 over the Clarkston Country Club course. Bauer led the Pirates in the B league winning all eight events will get 45 points, second 44, third 43, fourth 42, etc. After the decathlon is completed the scores are totaled and winners determined. An entrant can compete in all but only the top six are counted. Mike Breuner and Margie Schenz were the winners in archery last Sunday. Breuner totaled 44 out of a possible 60 from a distance of 35 yards. Schenz competing at 20 yards scored 49. Goodsell won the men's overall and the women's title went to South Warren.

Intramural decathlon beginning:

Breuner, Schenz take archery

Basketball is nearing the final week and in the men's A league Carlson and McMillan remain undefeated. The two teams most meet tomorrow at 10:00 a.m. in a battle for first place. McMillan leads the B league winning all five games. In the C league Goodsell, McMillan, Stewart and Alder are in first with only one loss. The Jenkins women team edged South Warren last week 6-5 to move their record to three wins in as many tries to lead women's basketball.

 giúp vous voyager partout en Amérique et au Canada. Ce service vous permet de décider quand, où, et comment vous allez voyager. Vous pouvez planifier votre itinéraire en fonction de votre propre agenda. Les Ameripass sont valables pour 60 jours de voyage illimité.

A NEW WAY TO SEE AMERICA ON $250 A DAY

The new Greypound Ameripass lets you go almost anywhere in America and Canada. You decide when, where, and how often.

You set your own schedule. Your own itinerary.

The Ameripass is good for 60 days of almost limitless travel.

The Ameripass gives you discounts too, on hotels, sightseeing, and other good things.

The Ameripass, good for 60 days of almost limitless travel costs $149.50. That's only 82.90 a day.

So call Greypound and start packing.

A NEW WAY TO SEE AMERICA ON $250 A DAY

AVAILABLE AT: GREYPOUND BUS STATION, 1125 W. SPRAGUE PHONE MA4-5321

The new Greypound Ameripass lets you go almost anywhere in America, and Canada. You decide when, where, and how often.

You set your own schedule. Your own itinerary.

The Ameripass is good for 60 days of almost limitless travel.

The Ameripass gives you discounts too, on hotels, sightseeing, and other good things.

The Ameripass, good for 60 days of almost limitless travel costs $149.50. That's only 82.90 a day.

So call Greypound and start packing.

A NEW WAY TO SEE AMERICA ON $250 A DAY

AVAILABLE AT: GREYPOUND BUS STATION, 1125 W. SPRAGUE PHONE MA4-5321

The new Greypound Ameripass lets you go almost anywhere in America, and Canada. You decide when, where, and how often.

You set your own schedule. Your own itinerary.

The Ameripass is good for 60 days of almost limitless travel.

The Ameripass gives you discounts too, on hotels, sightseeing, and other good things.

The Ameripass, good for 60 days of almost limitless travel costs $149.50. That's only 82.90 a day.

So call Greypound and start packing.
PIRATE WIT

by Chris Bauer

Track men to compete in Martin Relays; tough road ahead

The loss of several key men from last year's squad is going to make it tougher for the track team to defend their Northwest Conference title this year. Coach Borrevik will rely heavily on the junior college transfers and freshmen if a repeat is possible.

Returning from last year are Bob Alexander, Mel Bubblesfield and Duncan Findlay all sprinters. Also triple jump champion Perseal King who is the school record holder in that event. Bill Frost returns in the hurdles after taking third in conference last year.

The heavyweight events, the shot and discus are little weak as last year's conference champ Brad Nave graduated. However, freshmen Tom Polhemus made a good showing in his first competition last week and California transfer Steve Bocchetti should also add needed help.

Last Saturday in Pullman the team opened their season competing in the Washington State indoor. Due to lack of condition-Coach Borrevik only entered eight men.

Freshman Tom Calihan was a bright spot in the competition for Whitworth. He set a school record, taking second in the 440 yard dash with a 51.5 time. He was also second in the 400 yard intermediate hurdles. His time of 57.5 was a school record as well.

Other additions this year will be some transfers from Puget Sound, Robert Mar, Mike Osula and Francesco Tagg.

The Pirates are going to travel to Walla Walla to compete in the Martin Relays.

Confessions of an ignoramous

by Bob Felton

Publications Committee Chairman

Again there seems to be an attempt to destroy that which may be labeled excess baggage on the "well-organized" campus-the student publications. In my four semesters at Whitworth it is the third attempt to take such action; once by the past ASWC Exec, once by the present Exec, and now by some of the new office-seekers hopeful. The reasons behind these attempts are difficult to number, but it is certain that they range from lack of quality, to a burden on the budget.

With little investigation, any reasoning may seem valid, but in order to better enlighten any interested students I would like to relate my opinions and experiences.

One against

In January or February, 1972, I was approached by Ron Leighborn and Richard Cizik, as representatives for the Senate, to take the position of Publications Council Chairman. I would be responsible for the committee which oversees all student publications. I was totally unaware of the council's duties at that time, but after gentle persuasions, I accepted nonetheless. I was to be liaison between the Senate and the publications. My job as I understood it, was to convince the editors of the Whitworthian and Natalski to abandon the present efforts and work together on a student magazine. One evening a special meeting was held to announce to the Publications Committee that I had been chosen as the new chairman of that committee. My appointment came as quite a surprise to all those who attended the meeting and more "surprises" followed. I then proceeded to make a presentation out of ignorance concerning the evils of maintaining the present newspaper, and the virtues of working on a magazine. Both subjects I virtually knew nothing about. Ignorance was not however limited to me. My appointment violated the constitution of the Publications Committee and at least two months; in fact, no one bothered to tell me that a constitution even existed.

In the weeks which followed, I quickly realized some problems in communication which did exist between the Student Senate, the Student Publications, and the students.

The machinery of America runs on energy. It powers our industry and energizes our commerce. In this era of concern about pollutants and particulates, the clean energies, electricity and natural gas, are increasingly important. For the sake of our environment, we need more of these energies in the future.

The Washington Water Power Company

A Clean Energy for a Quality Environment

PAGE 7
College finances pose real concern

by Bob Sisson

A somewhat behind the scenes issue, but one that greatly involves every student and faculty member at Whitworth is the vital concern of finances.

According to Development Director Donald Weber, Whitworth operates on an annual budget of $4.2 million which comes from student fees and tuition, earnings on endowment, and various constituencies.

Tuition costs for each of the approximately 1,300 students enrolled at Whitworth amount to $1,700, Weber said that tuition actually should be $2,200.

"but if it was that much, no student could afford to come here." Therefore, the college raises $600 for each student enrolled.

Another part of the budget comes from earnings on endowment, which, Weber explained, is like a "big savings account," in the form of stocks, rent, etc. Endowment totals two and one-fourth million dollars.

Contributions reaching $600,000 are issued each year from such resources as alumni, the Spokane community, churches, foundations, independent colleges of Washington, and students' parents. It is the job of the development office, working with volunteers, to raise this amount from constituencies.

In addition, the college handles funds which Weber terms "in and out income," from the dining hall, dormitories, and the bookstore. No money is actually earned from these means, but merely handled. "We break even," he said, "because we have to maintain these buildings."

Each of the above sources is a significant part of the $4.2 million upon which the college survives. "We need this to balance our budget," Weber said.

"Otherwise we have to go into endowment."

He added that Whitworth has a low endowment. "We should have $25 million.

Weber reported that after the $4.2 million is raised, $406,000 is given back to students. "Half of the students get a piece of this in the form of financial aid.

The college believes so much in the students that we take it (financial aid) right off from the top, and sometimes borrow...the school has even been criticized for this by banks," he said.

Concerning the hiring of additional faculty, Weber had this to say: "Our need for a balanced budget is so pressing that the college has been operating on a bare bones budget philosophy. Until we get our finances in order these is little room for adding much needed faculty and upgrading our maintenance. The need for the Whitworth family (alumni, students, faculty, trustees, and churches) to work cooperatively with the development office and the president's office in giving and pointing us to potential givers is urgent." He added, "Everything we raise, we're spending."

Transcript evaluations deadlocked

by Scott Wilson

Will students have any say about the credit/no credit evaluations in their transcripts? The Academic Affairs Council and the ASWC Senate can't agree, so the Academic Review Board will probably make the decision at the April 3 meeting.

The Summary of Action (SOA) no, 9 was issued February 14 by the AAC calling for evaluations to be included in transcripts. The Senate promptly protested the SOA.

Senate felt that if a student has a disagreeable evaluation, he is entitled to defend himself. The Student Bill of Rights contains such protection.

The AAC issued on March 8 SOA 14, revising SOA 9 so that it reads, "In the event that a faculty member cannot modify his written statement that is acceptable to the student then the faculty member is encouraged to submit a brief statement by the student as part of the overall evaluation."

Senate wasn't satisfied. It proposed Wednesday that faculty members be "discouraged" rather than "encouraged" to include the student's statement.

Ron Leighton, ASWC President, pointed out that the SOA pertains also to evaluations in which no credit is given. He added that he regarded evaluations as more significant than grades in a transcript.

Despite Senate's protest, Academic Dean David Winter expects Council members to keep the same stand. In the 6-4 vote passing SOA 14, all opposing votes came from students. In such a deadlock position the ARB makes the final decision.

Sometimes flying standby is mostly standing by.

That's why Northwest came up with Reserved Youth Fare.

Camping out is great. But not at an airport. Sometimes, unfortunately, it turns out that way. Now, though, we've done something about it.

If you have any airline Youth Card, you can get a reserved seat for 20% off. Make a reservation and when flight comes, just walk in and take your seat along with all the other important people. No waiting. No worrying. No getting bumped off the plane when you really wanted to go all the way home.

If you don't have a Northwest Youth Card, you should. And you can get one at any Northwest ticket office or your campus travel agent.

(Notice to bring along proof that you're between 12-22.)

Next time you can't afford to wait, remember Northwest's Reserved Youth Fare. And call your travel agent or Northwest Airlines.

FLY NORTHWEST ORIENT

P.S. STANDBY FARES. To those of you who don't mind standing by in airports and even think it's sort of neat because you meet interesting people and will get you Northwest's regular standby youth fare—40% off Coach.
Voting ends campaign; chooses candidates

Student election campaigns will come to an end Friday, April 6, as Whitworth students go to the polls to vote for next year’s ASWC officers.

A troika, composed of three people, is seeking the office of president. Junior Bill Beard, from Concord, Calif.; Gary Holsten, a junior from Spokane, and junior Gordon Van Wechel from Portland are all running together on the same ticket to combine the duties of president.

Kim Hunter, a junior pre-law major from Spokane, is campaigning opposite the troika for president.

Vying for executive vice president are Craig Grant, and his counterpart Kathy Largen. Craig is a freshman from Spokane, while Kathy, a junior, hails from Los Angeles.

Freshman Jeff Hanson, Spokane, and junior Kent Lupon, Kuhlspell, Mont., are competing for the position of programming vice president.

Program is troika’s plan

A troika of Bill Beard, Gary Holsten, and Gordon Van Wechel is running for the office of ASWC president. Their platform is based on a program rather than goals.

"We’re talking about program ideas that fit in with problems that exist," they said. The program is based on three philosophical motivations. First, Whitworth has a unique structure which permits unlimited academic freedom. The student government should facilitate that freedom. Second, Whitworth is the "real world." What takes place on campus should be relevant to life outside the school. Student government should broaden the perspective of the microcosm of Whitworth. Third, Whitworth does not have an apathy problem, but rather one of pessimism. Student government should implement a feeling of optimism toward what can be done.

Under academic development are a communications center, community experience, a learning center, and a foundation.

The communications center would consist of a twice weekly Flash, for strictly calendar type information. A radio station would carry day to day information and news. The Whitworthian would prompt interaction through editorial comment and student feedback.

(Continued on page 3.)

Hearing reviews alcohol policy

An open hearing on the alcohol policy will be held tomorrow from 4:30 to 6 p.m.

Steinem postponed

Gloria Steinem, outspoken women’s liberationist who was scheduled to speak at Whitworth yesterday, postponed her appearance until forum April 12.

Ms. Steinem’s doctor ordered her to remain in bed for three days after she pulled a muscle in her back. She called the school from her bed to explain.

Ms. Steinem will arrive at the Spokane International Airport at 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 11.

Candidates for special projects vice president are Jennifer Bundy, a junior, and Rod Halvorson, sophomore, Both are from Seattle. Pat Bell, a Junior from Spokane, and Mike Ching, sophomore from Kanaloa, Hawaii, are running opposite each other for financial vice president.

Voting places will be in the HUB and campus dining halls.

Hunter pushes not programs, but proposals

ASWC presidential candidate Kim Hunter sees the responsibility of the incoming executive as a great one for both students here now, and in the future. They will be the ones who show if the new government can work, he said in forum Tuesday.

He said the exec must work in a cohesive, organized fashion.

Hunter’s platform consists not of programs but of proposals as solutions to problems. "Before a proposal becomes a program," he said, "it has to be tried and found to work...I am not going to examine and then put out an alternative."

To the lack of student motivation Hunter proposes developing an exec with a facilitating and innovating influence, finding personal interests for everyone, letting married and town students know what’s going on and giving them opportunities for developing group cohesiveness, and requiring the exec to meet with a different dorm each week.

To the lack of student awareness of community problems and the relevancy of their education Hunter proposes expanding off-campus study, enlarging independent study areas, internship programs in the community and state, and interdisciplinary organization to find out community needs and programs to meet needs of the Whitworth community.

(Continued on page 3.)

Accident injures Becky Amend

Former Whitworth student Becky Amend is in intensive care after a car accident March 23 severely injured her. Becky had surgery Saturday at Holy Family Hospital.

A car hit Becky’s at the intersection of Atlantic and York in Spokane when she was on her way home from work Friday. Becky’s husband George did set give details except to report that she is "in fair condition.

Diana Jones, Becky’s sister, is a freshman here. Mrs. Jones flew up from Santa Barbara, “Becky loves mail,’’ she says. Letters may be mailed directly to Becky in Holy Family Hospital.

(Continued on page 3.)
The two sides of three

In order to serve the students as the ASWC election approaches, the WHTWORTHIAN addresses itself to the question - is a troika feasible? The opinions expressed are meant to inform, they are in no way meant to be endorsements of any candidate(s).

by Mary Wolfdorf

A troika candidacy precedent was challenged as unconstitutional at the ASWC nominating convention. Perhaps troika feasibility and workability should also have been challenged. As the chair pointed out before he was overruled by a majority of the convention, the new constitution grants no power to the president at all times in the singular. For example, the president's duties are stated in the constitution as follows:

The president shall be responsible for coordinating meetings of the ASWC program. The president shall serve as chairperson at all meetings of the ASWC stockholders, President's Committee, and Board. He/she shall be responsible for a monthly stockholders' report which shall consist of a detailed explanation of expenditures and programs of that month. He/she shall serve as the official representative of the ASWC.

If the presidents were responsible for coordinating meetings of the ASWC program, who would coordinate the presidents?

If the presidents were to all chair the meetings designated by the constitution, what kind of president could result? Or if they took turns at all meetings (which is likely - one member of a present troika at least should be chairperson for the nominating convention), how would one know all the details of what went on at the last meeting, president by president?

Will all three go everywhere as the official representative of the ASWC?

Any troika could have so many programs it was sheer folly. In fact they have just too busy with its own ideas to coordinate or report on or represent anyone else's.

Some has shown the world what can happen with the troika idea, at least twice in their history the troika has been tried; both times the strongest of the three killed the other two. Perhaps Whitworth should heed that lesson.

by Bob Fulton

Oddly enough, that's no change. The F.D.A. was confused, I'm sure, by the 'troika' idea. At least twice in its history the three killed the others.

To assume that a troika cannot work simply because it has not been tried at Whitworth is absurd. The potential for a successful program does not depend, may not depend, on the structure but the people involved, one to one.

A commercial which may make its way into your life every day on the television boasts that you can present "two great tastes in one candy bar." An election day for ASWC officers approaches, somewhat similar question is being asked in reference to a troika - three people to fill one office. Is it a feasible plan?

I could answer the basic question as simply (or profoundly) as one would ask questions to the doubter - Why not? or What guarantee is there that one man is capable of filling an office? In addition to asking these questions, I would like also to offer some other ideas.

First of all, it must be realized that this discussion will involve the workability of a troika at Whitworth. Since absolutely so precedent has been set, NO ONE can honestly predict success or failure of a troika. Therefore, all statements made concerning this issue - pro or con - must be realized as conjecture.

I feel that a three-person/one office idea is indeed a workable plan. If three people were to work together for the students' benefit, and they were able to implement good programs, I would think the students would benefit. And, after all, isn't it for the welfare of the student body that the ASWC officials are supposed to work?

I am not a lawyer. And it is for that reason particularly that I am not concerned about certain legalities involved in the troika form of government. I am, however, a student living within a student community, and because of that I am particularly concerned with the community's well being.

Is it possible that a troika can work at Whitworth? I am not even questioning that. Implication is being asked. Of course it can work.

To assume that a troika cannot work simply because it has not been tried at Whitworth is absurd. The potential for a successful program does not depend on the structure but the people involved, one to one.
Kathy, Craig vie for Exec V.P.

'Cooperation'

Craig Grant, running for executive vice president, realizes that when the new constitution was initiated, the executive vice president was given more time and more responsibility in dealing with the council structure.

Craig Grant

Craig believes the council structure is a unique structure at Whitworth in that it gives responsibility and power among all parts of the community. "It shows a spirit of cooperation instead of division and confrontation," he says.

As executive vice president, Craig would see his duties as executing the decisions of the stockholders, and being of assistance to the student representatives. He feels his position would include anticipating the important issues, researching variations, defining implications, presentation for decision, and execution of the decision.

While Craig feels the executive vice president should not use his office to legislate complaints, he does cite two opportunities for students to increase their roles at Whitworth.

The first such opportunity would be to investigate the social needs in Spokane. According to Craig, there are many groups trying to help people in need, but there still has not been a study showing the greatest problems in the community, and the extent to which they exist.

Craig says a second possibility for student participation is in the area of corporate responsibility. "As responsible members of the community we should be aware of our financial ties to companies," he says.

Craig lists among his qualifications his position as youth advisory delegate to the 185th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, legislative intern at the 43rd regular session of the Washington State legislature, and chairman of the Dan Evans youth campaign in Spokane County.

'Involved'

Executive Vice Presidential candidate Kathy Ingles has discovered that students want to be involved in other things besides themselves. "My role is to generate student involvement and work with students...to develop their interest and to develop it with the goals they set," she says.

Kathy feels that her job as vice president would be to make sure that the maximum number of students are involved in the decision-making process. To achieve this, she will be open to all aspects of the student body, faculty and administration, in addition to effecting work within a large spectrum of people and situations.

Through the process of task forces, set up to conceive policy by way of interdisciplinary procedures, the concerns of the entire campus can be recognized. Kathy believes she can provide many educational offers at Whitworth from government agencies, private business colleges, universities, etc., asking students to work for a short time. But only a few of these opportunities are presently being utilized. Kathy suggests that these various offers from around the country be utilized as to what way to go in life. Kathy proposes the college cease talking so much about religion, take Christ as a guide, and surfe forth in action to discover what it means to be a Christian.

Integration ideal

"I don't want to get caught up in the program; I want to be there for YOU," says Special Projects Vice Presidential candidate Jennifer Bundy. She advocates full use of Whitworth and Spokane resources.

Jennifer decided to run for this office when she couldn't support the other nominees. She is president of Baldwin this year.

Jennifer's emphasis is on interdisciplinary integration. Among other ideas, she proposes workshops, weekends, panels and debates. A HUB remodeling, she says, would give weekend study space and a weekend community with campus talent providing music, poetry readings, discussions and other activities.

Involvement in the Spoon也可

Rod Halvorson views students as the top priority in Special Projects programming. A candidate for that office, he says, "I want to make my propositions and talk them over with you, the stockholder."

Rod has been in Senate and researched the campus radio possibilities. He served on the College Insurance, Involvement, and Whole Earth Celebration committees.

Construction is in Rod's concern and he proposes a campus radio station, student directories and a listening loft in the HUB to spread information better. Other campus ideas include car rental, town student lockers and temporary dog pens.

In the community, Rod values Whitworth contributions in the elderly project; Day Care Center, Big Brother/Sister program and EXPO. He also favors inter-college gate activities and expanded use of study.

Troika stresses programs, not projects

(Continued from page 1) To the failure to utilize the social and academic possibilities offered by the concentration of colleges in the area Hunter proposes cooperation and organization with other colleges.

Students are first

Hunters pushes proposals, not programs

(Continued from page 1) to remodel the dining hall, and researching the Westminster and California primaries. She was also the Whitworth coordinator for the general election.

Jennifer Bundy

Jennifer Bundy views the Spoon as an opportunity to develop her interest and with the elderly in downtown Spokane.

Jennifer was a senator for two and a half years, a senate member of Academic Affairs for three terms, and has been politically involved in Model United Nations, McGovern campaign, mock Democratic National Convention, and has worked in the Washington, Oregon and California primaries. She was also the Whitworth coordinator for the general election.
Lindaman okays cigarette sales

Tuesday, the Advisory Review Board dealt with the contested policy intended to do away with the sale of cigarettes in the student co-op store. Because it is the stated policy of the college to discourage smoking as a health issue, the sale of cigarettes on the campus became an issue with divided opinions. Opponents of the policy felt that this would have the effect of encouraging use of tobacco, and proponents felt that the sale should not increase the use of tobacco.

President Ed Lindaman was aware that whatever decision he made would be unacceptable to certain portions of the campus community. He took the position that the student store should be free to either sell or not sell cigarettes.

Lindaman said it was very important to the life of the college that every effort be made to be completely consistent with the established life policy. This policy endeavors to give students the responsibility, as well as the freedom, for reaching responsible decisions that affect their own life on campus through group processes involving themselves and college counseling.

The decision was reached through a series of hearings. Lindaman made the decision himself. It went through the usual policy changes of the council structure.

Councils propose policy changes issued a formal request for Action (SOA). Should anyone oppose the policy, proposed by a council, he may submit a request for an additional open hearing on the question. If these hearings do not resolve the difference of opinion, the matter would be Advisory Review Board (ARB) handled, the faculty executive committee and the administrative director in the group advise the president on the issue. The president, following this advice makes the final decision.

As you read this campaign information, keep in mind that the Whitworthian's primary goal is objectivity. No quotes were taken from the candidates or their statements made in forum. We apologize for the lower quality photographs, but technical problems were experienced.

Diversity is Jeff's key

Diversity is the key word behind Jeff Hanson's campaign for programming vice president. He feels the college should offer a variety of programs to meet the needs of all the students. Jeff would like to see every student involved and participating in some program on or off campus. To achieve this goal he would like to establish a committee of dorm representatives who could act as a communications link between the programming V.P. and the students.

Lipton offers his experience

"All I have to offer you is myself and what I have done," says Kent Lipton, candidate for programming vice president. Kent feels that his experience as Hub programmer and coordinator of special events this spring have prepared him for the position of programming V.P. In addition he has worked hand-in-hand with the present programming V.P. He served as senator for the past three years as well as currently serving on the Advisory Review Board.

The major areas of concern to Kent are budgeting, a movie committee to select the year's movies, programs designed for more use of the HUB as an activity center, more dorm functions, and a wider diversity of campus and special interest group activities.

Kent sees his experience and enthusiasm for the position of programming vice president as his best qualifications for the job.
Students unite: postpone highway project

by Candy Irwin

The four lane expansion project to be begun on Hawthorne Road this summer has been officially postponed until Monday, after Whitworth students staged a peaceful demonstration. About 500 persons protested the road expansion in the Whitworth vicinity.

James Cazik met with Pat Stiley, a local lawyer, Thursday night in a meeting at the HUB. "We shouldn't be naive about reasons. They believe: 1) the construction is not environmentally sound, 2) the four lane road improvement would increase traffic in front of the Whitworth elementary school and Whitworth College.

The controversial road construction first drew the school and Whitworth and keep the construction workers from cutting down large trees.

The student's objective was to halt the construction until a new legal possibility is explored. lest the county to write up an environmental impact statement on the project. This would call for more extensive research on the road's effect on the environment.

Students objected to the proposed arterial for three reasons. They believe: 1) its construction is not environmentally sound, 2) the four lane road improvement would increase traffic in front of the Whitworth elementary school and Whitworth College.

Plans are finalized for Whole Earth Celebration

Plans are being finalized for the Whole Earth Celebration, a total campus experience which centers on understanding different skills, values, and cultures. The celebration, to be April 26-29, will feature exhibits, art, events, and music from various ethnic cultures from the campus and community.

Dorms were asked to participate. East Warren will sponsor a Japanese Tea House from Friday until Sunday. McMillan will sell hamburgers throughout the celebration, and Jenkins plans to sell homemade ice cream at the baseball game Saturday. South has tentative plans for a French bicycle race, a pastry shop, and a folk dance in the loop.

The Whole Earth celebration will start Thursday with a karate exhibit, individual campus entertainment, "stars" from the faculty talent show, and a Black Experience Theatre at 8 p.m.

A picnic will be held in the loop Friday for lunch, with entertainment presented by The Campus Calligraphy Club, Joy of Cooking, a well-known rock and roll group from San Francisco, will play Friday night.

The fiddlers and the jazz ensemble will make music outside Saturday, while folk dancers from WSU dance in the gym. One act plays called the Great Green Country Race will be performed from 11 to 12 a.m. that morning. That afternoon approximately 25 large trees of Division to make way for the road improvement. A committee of concerned college students worked quickly to organize a student protest and keep the construction workers from cutting down large trees.

The student's objective was to halt the construction until a new legal possibility is explored. The county to write up an environmental impact statement on the project. This would call for more extensive research on the road's effect on the environment.

Students objected to the proposed arterial for three reasons. They believe: 1) the construction is not environmentally sound, 2) the four lane road improvement would increase traffic in front of the Whitworth elementary school and Whitworth College.

Busy schedules are usually in order for celebrities when they come to campus, but Gloria Steinem and Margaret Sloan led hectic lives Monday night they stepped off the plane in Spokane Wednesday afternoon.

Upon arrival at the Spokane International Airport the celebrated feminists nearly walked right past the greeters from the college who were supposed to meet them. Introductions were made and Gloria and Margaret were then whisked into the ladies lounge to relax a bit.

Promtly at four o'clock the women were taken up a flight of circular stairs to a round room, filled with members of the Spokane press (at least, half were female reporters). Gloria and Margaret answered 45 minutes' worth of broad questions about the women's liberation in general and the black feminist movement.

After the press conference the women were brought to the campus where they were given the apartment in the co-op dorm for some rest before dinner.

They got almost ten minutes of sleep when they were interrupted by Whitworthian staff members seeking an exclusive interview.

Where was eaten in the faculty dining room where members of the AWS exec. and certain interested students, faculty, staff and administrators talked with the feminists, asking them personal questions.

At 8 p.m. students and people from Spokane, Cheney, and other areas attended a lecture and question-and-answer session, where the women talked about personal experiences, the black feminist movement, and gay liberation movements in general.

They were then whisked into the ladies lounge to relax a bit.

(continued on page 8)
Conscience is packaged

Consciousness raising was the point of the latest forum. Yet it seems to me an impossible task to raise the level of a conscience that has a package on it. Gloria thought she had the key: that packaging—be it conscious or unconscious—will help us in learning the lessons of conscience as well as point. But perhaps she didn’t realize that the Whittworm community considered her a joke in the first place. Her added sarcasm only gave the students more to laugh at.

Like the women’s movement, Gloria and Margaret have not been taken seriously. The crowded auditorium yesterday had proved nothing to me but the closeness-mindedness of the students around me. Certainly people are talking about her, but comments such as “She’s sure a hoychick,” “She was really a lark,” and “Was it really ‘wearing a bra’?“ amazed and angered me. No one even mentioned the issues at hand.

What is being discussed that is supposed to be open to changing ideas, where are our heads? Will we always wear our packages? Or will we slit our eyes, open the doors, sweep out the windows, take some risks, start filling the empty spaces with contemporary ideas? That’s all Gloria really wants from us now and I don’t think that’s a lot of trouble, is it? And “Was it really ‘wearing a bra’?“ amazed and angered me. No one even mentioned the issues at hand.

Attendance was a big problem. Attendance is supposed to be open to changing ideas, where are our heads? Will we always wear our packages? Or will we slit our eyes, open the doors, sweep out the windows, take some risks, start filling the empty spaces with contemporary ideas? That’s all Gloria really wants from us now and I don’t think that’s a lot of trouble, is it? And “Was it really ‘wearing a bra’?“ amazed and angered me. No one even mentioned the issues at hand.

The Beat Goes On

“Thank God the War is Over” is the title of a song being played by disk jockeys. For surviving American P.O.W.s and most U.S. military forces previously committed to South Viet Nam, it is over.

As for the people in South Viet Nam, it is doubtful the tune will make the top ten. The temporary lull during the American year of war and victory is being replaced by war as usual. The only significant difference is that the South Viet Namese are the sole operators of U.S. hardware and President Nixon is now recording a song by the North.

Meanwhile, on the home front, P.O.W. accounts of prison atrocities and actress Jane Fonda’s denial that they ever occurred are falling for all but those closely involved. Filling the gap is the bulkhead of forecasts of gasoline shortages this summer are topping some Americana’s worry lists.

But now the Whittworsh head of trustees are voting on the weighty alcohol issue and students are expressing concern over the construction of a four land road. Thank God the war is over, for some, and the beat goes on.

D. Schloetel

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

Better road ahead

The late President Truman familiarized America with the idea that we can’t stand idly by and let the “kitchen sink” go dry. President Nixon seems to have adopted a Scottish proverb that is said in the kitchen should not be heard in the hall.”

At Whittworth I find these proverbs to be somewhat the exception and not the rule. The kitchen has been rigid and the ball stifling and scary. There’s been no Jack Auberson or “Uncle Harry” on the Whittworth STAFF, to place head on the Spino Agendas of the senate and student body at large.

As Thomas Jefferson aptly put it, “No government ought to be piled up and made too heavy to take the breath from one’s soul.” Currently there is no real freedom on the Whittworth STAFF to comment and report the activities of student political leaders. Such freedom has been curtailed, amidst economic disaster for the student press letters and shards responsible coverage of political decisions and serious limits students in the struggle for the right to know what affects them.

The fund withdrawal was especially felt when Vary-type composting equipment was purchased to cut settings common at the average high school. Frequently the size of this investment and the ramifications for the Whittworth being misconstrued as many find it “much easier to be critical of the ‘Benjamin Franklin’ than to Whittworth.” It is indeed interesting and amusing to me that during my four years on the Whittworth STAFF, the greatest source of criticism has not been from the faculty nor administration but from the students. That which has been “too controversial” or too embarrassing to those involved has not been reported in order to appease our benefactors.

As meetings with incoming ASWC President Kim Hunter convince me that there will be a better road ahead. After the atmosphere of WHJI, the Whittworth STAFF;

Consent issues at hand.

I am trying to get the Whittworth community to realize that we as teachers will be forced to make decisions in the area of sexual behavior is contributing to such severe in some areas due to lack of organized thought and planning. We wish to affirm community and friends.

The most effective thing that can be done to change the world is probably to face the world as we see it for what it is. But perhaps God means us to be more open, more willing to discuss these things as a whole community. There is no way that we can talk to the present staff and student body. If we could we would try to convince them that we as teachers will be forced to make decisions in the area of sexual behavior is contributing to such severe in some areas due to lack of organized thought and planning. We wish to affirm community and friends.

Relationships: The truth is that the most difficult task of composition, tension, and success raise serious questions about honesty among students, faculty, and the community. We know that all of us fail under pressure. Some students will advance at the expense of others do occur among all groups. We wish to affirm community and friends.

We wish to affirm community and friends. The truth is that the most difficult task of composition, tension, and success raise serious questions about honesty among students, faculty, and the community. We know that all of us fail under pressure. Some students will advance at the expense of others do occur among all groups. We wish to affirm community and friends.

We wish to affirm community and friends. The truth is that the most difficult task of composition, tension, and success raise serious questions about honesty among students, faculty, and the community. We know that all of us fail under pressure. Some students will advance at the expense of others do occur among all groups. We wish to affirm community and friends.

We wish to affirm community and friends. The truth is that the most difficult task of composition, tension, and success raise serious questions about honesty among students, faculty, and the community. We know that all of us fail under pressure. Some students will advance at the expense of others do occur among all groups. We wish to affirm community and friends.

We wish to affirm community and friends. The truth is that the most difficult task of composition, tension, and success raise serious questions about honesty among students, faculty, and the community. We know that all of us fail under pressure. Some students will advance at the expense of others do occur among all groups. We wish to affirm community and friends.
Seniors named to Who’s Who

Twenty-one Whitworth seniors have been named for honor in Who’s Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges for 1973.

Every student nominated by the college was accepted for that honor.

The students are: Sherry Bang nervo, Michelle Baugh, Tanita Chapman, Kathy Coon, Rich Chitak, Bill Converse, Sue Daun, Bob Foster, Carol Gleen, Mary Louise Hammond, Ron Leighton, Doug MacLay, Wanda Mansfield, Paul McDowell, John Rainlow, Carolyn Schoelct, Christie Smith, Gary Stembucks, Ed Ufled, and Jan Wigen.

Dawn service honors Easter

Students are invited to greet Easter morning with a sunrise service at 6 a.m. in Pirate's Cove, followed by a 6 a.m. breakfast at BAGA.

The dawn service, a community affair, will start before daylight and re tell the story of Christ's resurrection. The service is one of three events in the celebratory weekend. Each day, South residents will sponsor an Easter egg hunt for underprivileged children, and church members will get together with senior citizens from Hawthorne Manor to prepare eggs and bags for the hunt.

by Bob Sloan

Gloria Steinem, outspoken women's historian, arrived at Whitworth Wednesday to promote the college's belief in women's total liberation for both sexes. Accompanying her was black feminist Margaret Sloan.

Ms. Steinem said in a press conference at the Spokane airport that the biggest gain in the women's liberation movement has been consciousness. "Gaining new insights and new experience," she said, "is it.'s only approach ing tokenism in terms of real power.'"

Margaret Sloan said in relation to her stand, "Any black women involved in a woman's liberation addresses herself to the larger half of the black nation, which is black women."

Concerning the child care bill, Ms. Steinem said, "The most important of the women's movement has always been to get Casper Weinberger to retract these laws that attack the very core of the child care."

Ms. Steinem said, "In an exclusive interview with Whitworthian staff members, Ms. Steinem said, 'I think the vision of the movement is that it is college students...but actually it is probably other women who have been in the work force for awhile.' She recognized that women on campuses are not just fighting to get into the work force, but that certainly is not the right of every child in this country.

"Marriage is an unconstitutional contract," according to Ms. Steinem. She said marriage declarations that one person is financially responsible and another person has to supply certain kinds of domestic fulfillment, but that certainly is not the right of every child in this country.

"The Bible's problem. She said The Bible is a very patriarchal book, and came out of a very patriarchal era. She also feels The Bible is very racist."

Ms. Sloan said, "Christians and Jesus Christ are two different things...Christians are not going to change Christianity to begin with." Speaking to a near-capacity student audience in Cowles Auditorium Thursday morning, the two women emphasized that the women's movement is a revolution and not a reform. We are trying to eliminate in the deepest way in which women are organized," Ms. Steinem said.

Ms. Steinem said women are not going to be "lookies," and they think they have no identity without man. They want to feel we have to have a man standing there. If only men realized how little it matters for which man is standing there!"

Ms. Sloan stressed that a black woman experiences double jeopardy because she is black and she is a woman. She said she experiences discrimination because she is black.

The importance of the movement, she said, is opening up all options for women. Ms. Steinem advised the audience to "fight for the human potential inside each one of you."
Natashi finished;
Editor comments
by Pete Trot

Yes, Virginia, there is a Whitworth yearbook and it's done. You'll see it on May 12. According to editor, Bob Payne, the final section was finished on March 22 after 72 hours of nonstop work, and has been sent off to be printed up. There will be a supplement coming out next fall to cover events not covered in this main part, making a total of 192 pages. Many of them are in color.

Bob said that in order to make a go of this year's annual, the staff had to meet three requirements. They had to stay in their budget, pay off one-thousand dollars on debts that have accumulated from past annuals, and get the yearbook out on time.

They met most of the requirements, but succeeded in staying under the budget. The annual staff tried to make sure that everyone who wanted their picture in the yearbook got one in it. This was done by taking group shots of the separate dorms, and including those group shots over 2,500 shots were taken for the annual. Of course not all of them will be used.

Problems slow progress

There were many problems involved in getting the yearbook finished. At the start of the year no money had been allotted to the yearbook, and the staff didn't have an office or a darkroom.

There was so much apathy towards the annual that we had to cancel the Jan. Term section because no one would give us any pictures of what they did during January," said Bob.

"Our biggest hassle was with Senate though, because they were mostly against having an annual."

Student listings withheld

Bob said another one of the things that ran up against the fact that the registration office wouldn't give him a list of students which he needed so that he could contact seniors about senior pictures.

"They felt that the list might get into the wrong hands and become a mailing list, but the school has given a list of students which not only has their school address on it, but also their home address and the parent's occupations, to Buchanan Chevrolet."

Other minor problems included the fact that Bob hadn't been approved as the Natashi editor until half way through the year.

Most of the pictures taken for the annual will be available to the student body on regular printing stock for five cents each.

Hunter seeks to serve students better

by Mary Wolford

Kim Hunter, new ASWC president, sees his role as being a person to whom students can bring their concerns, ideas, and beefs, and if they don't have a solution, he will try to find one. "I'll tell them the pros and cons as I have been able to find them out," he said, and then he will give it back to students to decide.

Kim thinks government under the new constitution is going to work. "The most important area is student involvement," he said. "That's the only way the new constitution can work.

He said now students will have to take a part in it, and see that they can take responsibility so they can have a student government, not an office government or a senate government. "When they get what they want and voice their opinions and concerns, affirmative and negative, they'll find out much wider can happen," he said.

Kim wants right away to start an interdisciplinary organization made up of faculty and students from a wide range of departments to find off-campus opportunities in Spokane or in the state.

Off-campus study "good"

He sees the possible requirement of a semester of off-campus study as a good thing. "If they're going to require off-campus study," he said. "there should be areas open where students can get off-campus without spending half the term just organizing the project."

"The Whitworth community is going to permeate out," he said, and what he will gain will be brought back in.

Kim was a town student for two years and now lives in Bell and Chana with his wife, Janet. He would like to open up involvement more to town and married students. "I'd like to see married students become a cohesive group," he said, and change the thought that being married means you're off-limits to talk to or you're strange.

Kim has been preparing for the office of president for a year and a half, although he feels he's behind in his preparation due to some personal calamities. Much of his time lately has been spent representing his family in a court case, which he won. That was a great off-campus learning experience for the pre-law major.

Kim hopes to go into "law for law's sake, not politics." He wants to be in corporation or international law rather than criminal law.

Surprise symphony ...

Kim AND Janet Hunter live in Ball and Chain. Kim is for more married student involvement.

AS THE temperature rises, spring fever rages. Steve Hegg, Brian Anderson, Susan Morris and Mark Riese move outdoors to practice their music.

Strick's Donuts

38 Varieties To Groups and Organizations

FA-8-9001

N. 320 Monroe

It's the real thing. Coke.

Myers' west

BODY SHIRTS

Up to $16 - Now $6

BAGGIES

Up to $16 - Now $8

BLAZERS

Reg. $60

Now $40

Curt's Y Drugs

9108 N. Division

H.U. 7-1814

PAGE 4

THE WHITWORTHIAN

April, 1973-Friday the 13th
A FEW students did not eat meat last week.

Students beef at high meat prices

Marilyn Deppe, Joanie Suttle, Ed Morgan, and Ginny Latbem were among the few who observed the meat boycott last week. Jim Talbot, assistant SAGA manager, put up signs that encouraged students to at least think about the high cost of food, particularly meat.

SAGA spends $2000 per week on meat, including the approximately 300 pounds of steaks for Saturday nights.

Every meal except breakfast features a meat item. Rising costs may affect student SAGA fees next year.

Many students felt it was silly not to eat meat they have already paid for. "The boycott doesn't hit college students as hard as it does people supporting families," explains Jim Talbot. "I think Americans eat too much meat," he added.

Seniors plan varied futures

by Cindy Irwin

Spring has sprung, the grass is ris­ing...along with a lot of rising anxieties for many Whitworth seniors still looking for jobs.

This year approximately 200 students will be gradu­ating from Whitworth, and many are finalizing their career plans. Many students plan to continue their education, or work at temporary jobs until employment in their chosen field is open. For some, the solution is to get married.

Specialized jobs scarce

Forest Farriss, a biology major, sees almost "zero possibilities" of landing a job in wildlife protection, his first choice of employment. Instead he plans to work in his father's grocery store, or as a pharmaceutical salesman. "If I wasn't married I wouldn't com­promise. I'd go for a masters or wait until job opportunities are open. But when you're married, you have other responsibilities you need to worry about."

Rich Mulcahy, who plans to go to intermediate graduate school at the University of Washington, says "Sometimes there is no alternative than to become a professional student when there are no job opportunities."

More school for some

Three graduating seniors, Ed Lilly, Anne Lilly, and Marilyn Moffit have applied for graduate school here at Whitworth.

Andy Lau will be going to the University of Oregon to study for his graduate degree in mathematics.

Deon Shrinier, a soci­ology major, will seek under­graduate degrees in Bio­logy and Chemistry next year to help him prepare for an eventual career in medicine.

Education popular field

Seventy-three students from Whitworth are applying for teaching jobs. Although job prospects look better than they were last year, "There is still a flood in the education market," according to John McGraph, who graduated in February from Whitworth with a degree in Physical education. "It's tough to find work," he said. "I've been beating around the bush for over a month now."

Mike and Linda Young-blood are hoping to find teaching positions in their homestate of Alaska. "Job opportunities look better up there than they do down here," Mike said. "I don't know what I'll be doing next year, said one Whitworth co-ed, "but one of the frightening things is that you can look to marriage as an escape from the responsibility of finding a job."

Travel postpones job

Travel represents another alternative to the working world. Doug Weaver plans to go on a world tour with Leonard Diiorio this fall. They hope to travel as far south as possible, and visit such countries as Peru and Bolivia.

English major, Cara Van Marter admits she's a bit nervous about her future since she decided not to go into teaching. "But I figure something will come up."

A JOB board gives leads on employment.
Women take second, Smith leads the way

by Lanita Moyer

Whitworth secured second place in a women's track meet held here last Saturday.

Flathead Valley won the meet, with EWSC, CWSC, and WSU participating as well.

Claudia Smith led the Whitworth team with a winning long jump of 17 feet 9 inches, and a first in the 220 yard dash. She placed second in the 100 yard dash. Cynthia Lloyd grabbed second in the high jump, and Margie Schenz had thirds in the 100 meter hurdles and 220 yard dash.

Coach, Steve Mine, and the team travel to Seattle tomorrow for an invitational meet at the University of Washington.

Co-captains Cynthia Lloyd and Lanita Moyer lead the Whitworth team: Doris Brown, Shala Dobrom, Kathy Cheek, Laurel Hall, Lynn Lorimer, Margie Schenz, Cindy Smith, Claudia Smith, and Holly Staab.

Pirates host U of I in tomorrow's meet

by Chris Bauer

The Pirate track team will face a major task when they host the University of Idaho tomorrow at 1:00 in the Pine Bowl. Whitworth will need top efforts in all events if they are to defeat the Vandals.

The team is coming off a narrow loss in a three-way meet last weekend in Portland. Lewis and Clark won the meet with 70 points, Whitworth had 64 and Whitman 44. Several recorded their seasonal bests in the competition. Among them was a double win by Ray Fahlen in the sprints, taking the 100 in 9.8 and the 200 in 21.9. Tom Pohemus continued his winning ways, sweeping the shot and discus events.

The meet was not decided until the final events, the mile relay. A Whitworth sweep in the 440 intermediate hurdles, won by Keith Hagg, earlier closed the gap. But a second place finish by Lewis and Clark in the relay secured victory.

Another victory for the Pirates was the 440 yard relay team, clocked in 42.1. Several others recorded seconds for Whitworth.

Individual competition that should prove to be interesting tomorrow, will be Fahlen battling Idaho sprinter Al Bergman. Both have recorded the same time. The weight events and jumping events should also be close.

Field events for the next meet tomorrow will begin at 1:00 and the running events at 4:00.
Calendar's bottom cut in "poor taste"

The bottom half of 200 copies of the April/May ASWC calendar were cut off Thursday by members of the ASWC because, according to new ASWC President Kim Hunter, seven of the nine members of the ASWC in transition supported the opinion that the calendar was in "poor taste."

"The calendar did not go through proper channels before being printed. If I will be my responsibility to put that out next year," said incoming programming Vice-President Kent Lupton.

Next year's calendars will have to meet with his approval before being printed.

Treasurer Les Hyder said the thought was considered in poor taste. Financial Vice-President elect Mike Ching agreed.

But Executive Vice-President Rich Cizik said, "I didn't sanction the decision, I don't support it, and I didn't have anything to do with it."

Of 2,200 calendars printed, 200 were in circulation before 200 were cut, 200 mysteriously disappeared.

Bob Huber, director of student activities, did not mention the calendar but supported the exec's actions. The Board of Trustees had little to do with the decision, nor did the faculty or administration. In fact, very few faculty members saw the calendar before it was taken out of circulation.

The seven Exec members who supported the decision to cut had variant opinions on which part of the calendar was in "poor taste," among them suggestions of nudity and suggestions of marijuana.

Weekend is packed with activities

Friday's movie is "McCabe and Mrs. Miller," at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium. A street dance will follow at 9 p.m. in front of Arend, sponsored by Carlson.

Saturday will be a home track meet against the University of Idaho. At 1 p.m Carlson will sponsor a Sun Bust at Pine River Park near Wandermere. The event will include foot races, bike races, gundy sack races, possibly a greased pig contest, a frisbee contest, and other games.

A luau will be held at 5 p.m. in the gym by the Hawaiian Club.

Baldwin will sponsor a faculty talent show in the auditorium at 9 p.m. in the gym by the Hawaiian Club. A street dance will follow at 9 p.m. in front of Arend, sponsored by Carlson.

Thursday morning's schedule was just about as filled as the night before. Gloria and Margaret were guests of honor at a downtown breakfast for female members of the press in Spokane. Then they came out to Whitworth where they spoke in Forum.

Who let this get into the paper?

by Bob Fulton

In the last issue of the paper, it was said that our former ASWC president spent up to thirty hours a week "organizing people, meetings and programs." I know for a fact that time spent on the paper by this year's editor is at least equivalent to that. (And if you know that a choice be made, you're destroying. The editor is ultimately responsible for everything that appears in print. If the paper is to be useful, the editor must take the blame. If an opinion is expressed, the editor must know about it; if a mistake is made, the editor will apologize.)

In regard to salary, the president/editor analogy only differs. The president is ultimately responsible where the editor for Ms, magazine and the Philadelphia chapter of Women in Communications.

Want to be The EDITOR

of the

WHITWORTHIAN

or NATSIHI?

THE STUDENT PUBLICATION COMMITTEE invites interested applicants to submit their resumes by Friday, April 29, at 3:30 P.M. For further information contact the respective publication, Bob Fulton, or Professor A. O. Gray.

SPUD-NUT DRIVE IN

N. 6515 Division

phone HU9-0250

CHICKEN DINNER SPECIAL 99c includes Chicken, Fries, Salad, Toast and Honey.

Open 6:30 a.m. - midnight 7 days a week.

A WORD OR TWO ABOUT CLEAN AIR

Ashless, sootless heating, electrostatic air cleaning, humidity control, air conditioning. Electricity and natural gas provide clean, healthy indoor environment within the reach of everyone.

Glorifying fuel and modern, clean operating generation plants have moved us a giant step closer to a cleaner, healthier outdoors.

In a word or two, clean energy means better living.

THE WASHINGTON WATER POWER COMPANY

Clean Energy for a Quality Environment
Construction controversial:

Student action delays construction endangering the lives of students, and 3) misinformation was given regarding the actual improvements.

(continued from page 1)

Eight o'clock Thursday morning, over 300 Whitworth students and 5 faculty members assembled at Hawthorne Road to protest the construction. They were soon joined by 114 fourth and fifth graders from Whitworth Elementary armed with ecology posters. The signs varied from "Save our Trees" to "We want quiet classrooms." At one point the young activists cheered "Save our trees" as a 5th grader, Matt Clark, waved his poster on the end of his crutch. The children were studying Washington government and ecology and wanted to see if in action.

In about a half an hour, the area was jammed with police, neighborhood housewives, students, reporters, and the County Commissioner.

County Commissioner, Ray Christensen, talked to a crowd of students for nearly an hour. He explained that the road was widened to accommodate traffic, and allow for easier transportation from the proposed North-South freeway.

"The time has come," he said, "in my opinion, if people want good roads, they have to give a little." When he left the scene, he promised that no trees would be cut down for the time being, pending a legal decision on the situation.

Except for one incident involving a stolen pair of pruning shears from the back of the workmen's truck (which was returned within 15 minutes) the demonstration stayed within the law.

Edward Lindaman, the college president said, "Today's effort was in so way a protest. It was a responsible demonstration of a genuine concern on the part of students as citizens for their environment that goes far beyond saving the trees. I'm proud of the way they handled themselves."

His reaction to the demonstration was somewhat different from that of two housewives whose property is affected by the construction.

Mrs. William Bertenshaw of W. 118 Hawthorne Road, said, "My feeling is that these kids mean well, but are not well informed. It's too bad they're widening the street, true, but there are a lot more serious environmental issues they should spend their time on."

"I think it's utter stupidity," said Mr. Baroot of 115 Hawthorne Road. "If they're that concerned about ecology they should walk instead of hot rodding to the store all the time."

Robert S. Turner, County Engineer, said that Hawthorne is being widened to four lanes but County Commissioners have yet to decide if the road will be two lanes (with a lane of parking) on each side or four lanes with no parking.

Opposers of the road expansion claim that the county's intentions were misrepresented to some of the area property owners. If this is true, it is grounds for calling a rehearing with an injunction.

Pat MacDowell, professor of psychology at Whitworth College, lives on college property at W. 423 Hawthorne Road. "What the college was told is not what's happening," she said.

Tom Erickson, pastor of Whitworth Community Presbyterian Church, W. 512 Hawthorne, said, "We were led to believe that it was not be be a four lane road (or potentially) and secondly, I was led to believe that it was going to mean paving the sides of the roads...to dress up the road so to speak. There's already at least an accident a month on that corner. I'm afraid a four lane road will make it worse. You bigger roads to hold more cars, and you get more cars, it's a vicious circle." whole earth falters, good times survive

by Mary Wolford

The Whole Earth Celebration planned for this week has been cancelled due to the last-minute cancellation of several major groups and the big-name entertainment.

Many of the performances are still scheduled for Thursday through Sunday, however. "We'll call it a good times weekend," said Ron Leighton, past ASW president and committee member.

Leighton said seven or eight groups cancelled last Thursday and Friday. "We met Sunday," he said, "took a look at what we had left, and decided the expectation level of the targets wasn't really high, and what we had left didn't meet the expectations."

Most of the groups cancelled because they didn't have time or they were not sure if plans would be adequate security for their exhibits, although the committee had planned three guards all the time, besides insurance. The committee had to cancel many exhibits themselves because the cost of security wasn't worth it.

Leighton indicated the committee favored a similar event for next year. He felt next year's committee should set firmer commitments, but the concept of the Whole Earth Celebration is worthwhile enough to try again.

The committee tried to rely on community help rather than spending a lot of money on exhibits and entertainment. They were going by the experience of Unfair two years ago which lost about $7,400.

Much of the entertainment will be in the campus. Thursday evening will be a Black Experience Theater, followed by a coffeehouse in the HUB.

Friday a sickie ceil anaemia workshop will be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Little Theater. A karate exhibition will be held in the loop at 15:30.

A Puncz and Judy show in the loop at 13:00 will use an original 1850 script, and the Huskies will sponsor a dance in the gym at 8 p.m.

The children's theater class will present "The Great Cross Country Race" at 9 a.m. Saturday. At noon there will be a picnic in the park with a band, and old time fiddlers will play at 2 p.m. in the loop. A black variety show will be held in the auditorium at 8 p.m., and a band from Omaha, Nebraska, will play at a street dance in front of McMillan.

Contemporary worship will be led Sunday morning in the Student Life and Physical group, Prayer. The rugby team will play Gonzaga at 1 p.m., and the annual soccer game with hapifaces from Coeur d'Alene playing at half time. The Jazz Ensemble will play in the loop at 2 p.m., with Daybreak, a rock band, at 3 p.m. Gospel choirs will be in the auditorium at 8 p.m., with free games spinning in the HUB at 10 p.m. in the time of two campus groups.

Seniors finalize graduation plans

Graduation ceremonies for Whitworth seniors will be Sunday, May 21. Graduation will begin at 10 a.m. in the auditorium, and commencement will start at 2:30.

Roger Hoyes, President of the American Council of Educators of the University of California at Berkeley, will be the speaker for commencement. Other speakers and participants have not yet been selected for either commencement or baccalaureate.

The Commencement Task Force of the Academic Affairs Council will meet next week to choose faculty and students to take part in graduation ceremonies, as well as finalizing other decisions. Music will be selected and a decision will be made concerning the tentative plans to hold commencement in the loop.

Seniors Debbie Benedetti, Bob Fulton, Debbie Carter, and Ted Mattie comprise the Task Force, and suggestions or opinions about baccalaureate and commencement may be directed to them.

Approximately 200 Whitworth students will be participating in the 1974 spring graduation.
The Food and Drug Administration has threatened to require that the sugar content be clearly printed on the first page of WHITWORTH TODAY if any snide sweet adjectives are used.

When Gloria Steien was asked about her married life in the Spokane press conference she replied, "Would you ask Ralph Nader that?" When Ralph Nader is asked what make of car he drives he informs, "Would you ask Gloria Steien that?"

Just for your information! today's forum speaker is John Powell! He may be afraid to tell you who he is.

"I'm just a typical FINESS editor! "I KNOW I shall never see a poem as lovely as a tree."

A student has to pay $1.00 for every transcript the college sends out. It makes cents for the Registration Office but not for me.

"Let me escape from a weary FINESS editor! "I know I shall never see a poem as lovely as a tree."

After being read, digested and regurgitated, the faculty leaves would pass the junior English clearance exam to fulfill graduation requirements.

Gloria Steien and Margaret Sloane didn't exactly fit into the theme of Jesus Christ but they came on full strength on the human development theme of wholeness - and halfness.

If Whitworth smokers don't inform the student co-op soon what brand of cigarettes they prefer, "they'll have to walk a mile for a Camel."

College policies require professors to be Christians. We wonder the administration will play this role who has enough faith.

Officials agree

(continued from page 1)

represented by Edward Lissman, Duncan Ferguson, Gordon Homall, and trustee, Joann Jochum.

The committee also discussed a compromise of constructing two lanes of traffic, with two lanes of parking. "If we believe that the compromise to two lanes of traffic and two lanes of parking will remain, we are naive," said Debi Benedetti.

"At this point," she continued, "it looks like our fight is over with that one stretch of road where contractors have already been let; which is only at the intersection but does not include the rest of Hawthorne Road, and Whitworth Drive. Our energy from this point should be directed in the remaining area of Whitworth Drive and Hawthorne Road."

(continued from page 1)

"Booze boozed by Trustees"

Last week's Whitworthian printed the faculty's statement on alcohol. It supported the present policy.

In deciding the Student Life Committee held that this limitation was properly outside the student decision making process. Known as "Process legislation," it puts the responsibility of decision making to dorm residents.

In a statement of the rationale for their decision the Board wrote:

"Some Christians see the abstinence from alcohol as a matter of Christian conscience, while others view the use of alcohol as a matter of personal choice. The committee realizes the potential for destructive ness to oneself and others with the abuse of alcohol. Consequently, it is the feeling of the Board of Trustees that the emerging value judgements made by students can best be negotiated in an environment where pressure to consume alcohol is absent.

In order to insure that neutral environment, the Student Life Committee requests that students refrain from drinking alcohol on the campus."

"Affirmation of the present alcohol consumption policy is not intended to negate the process model of residence halls. Rather, after listening to information from all constituencies in the college, the committee has determined that alcohol consumption is a very important decision for all members of the college community, not just members of the residence halls. It should be noted, however, that the Student Life Committee is pleased with the quality of residence hall communities to the community within the process system, but believes that it is in the best interest of the entire college to continue the present policy as a limit outside the process system."

The vote on the committee realized alcohol danger. Differences arose whether it was right to make restrictions that don't exist off campus.

"HUB listening loft section looking east"

A listening loft above the east end of the activity room in the HUB should be completed and ready for use next week, said the Board of Trustees last week.

The loft is part of a $19,000 project which will include a hardwood floor in the main room, new linoleum in the halls, and new paint. The loft will include head-phones, pipe, a booth suite and individual reading areas with high intensity lamps. "We feel the student will start construction on the loft portion before school's out," said Lew Hyder, a member of the past ASWC exec which started the project. The flooring and interior decorating may have to wait until Christmas vacation depending on whether a loan can be obtained which could be paid back in the fall.

The ceiling under the loft will be seven feet high, and will not interfere with the present use of the area as a walk thru area.

Hyder said the college is going to apply for special maintenance funds in excess of $40,000 for a new ventilation, heating, and cooling system for the HUB. If that is approved, it will be completed sometime next year.

"HUB releases $20,000 for fieldhouse"

Twentv thousand dollars from the HUB development fund will be advanced toward the original pledge of students in the completion of the fieldhouse project. The funds will be released when construction begins on July 1.

The $20,000 will become a gift from the ASWC, in addition to their original pledge of $15 per student for three years, if the college has authority to verify by November 1 that the necessary funds or pledges have been committed to complete the fieldhouse through the fifth of six phases. If funds and pledges are not sufficient by November 1, the $20,000 will be returned by the college out of original fees being paid at that time toward the fieldhouse.

Four stipulations were accepted by the college regarding the gift: The fieldhouse will be available for recreational use at all times, rather than being used primarily for sporting events. ASWC will be allotted 20 hours per week for ASWC- sponsored student activities. The fieldhouse has been rented by ASWC to act as a scheduling intermediary between ASWC and the athletic department. The activities coordinator will be provided office space in the fieldhouse.
A weary PINES staff spent 50 pages of poetry, stories, photos, and drawings to press Tuesday. The work of some 25 contributors plus a loyal staff. It will be sold for 50¢ a copy beginning May 1. Those who buy in advance can get a 10¢ discount. "We tried to publish as many people's work as we could. Past issues have been too exclusive," says editor Catherine Strong. "We still had to be selective, though, because of our space and so tried to choose the better two-thirds of the entries."

Helping the editor, Carma Jo Littlefield, Beth Hamer, Ginny Lathem and Karen Cornish developed their proofreading and layout skills, Jill Osterberg and Steve Hites illustrated the book, and Travis Proctor processed photographs. The PINES materialized late last fall in an effort to save the publication from extinction. It had been "tabled" because of a lack of interest and funds. Depending on the success of this issue, the PINES will appear twice a year.

Pieces featured in the PINES range all the way from 4-line clinicians, songs and prayers to sketches and "eerie" poetry. Perhaps the most unusual entry was Carolyn Schlotel's composed after a marathon stint of type-setting: There once was a sputikist for verse. Who typed some and stories so fast she worked hard one day. For say half a mile. Until words were listed into lines.

When the editors were asked what poetry signposted the future, Academic Dean Dr. David Winter explained that final acceptances have to be sent to faculty prospects, who then have a week to decide whether or not to come. Although faculty positions are not being increased, six new faculty members will be hired: two in sociology; one each in history, music, religion and the library. If some positions are not able to be filled, Dr. Winter said temporary instructors will be accepted from the community. "We're coming along with all of them," Dr. Winter said, "and we're close to making decisions."

by Bob Sisson

Gourmet meals from around the world were enjoyed by 80 students in the Cosmopolitan Club, plus a few of their American guests, who attended a dinner Sunday at the home of Ms. Lillian Whitehouse, associate director of student development. Foreign students present represented Canada, Ethiopia, Hong Kong, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Nigeria, and Thailand. Also present at the get-together was Carolyn Schlotel's compiled after a marathon stint of type-setting: There once was a sputikist for verse. Who typed some and stories so fast she worked hard one day. For say half a mile. Until words were listed into lines.

by Bob Sisson

Gourmet meals from around the world were enjoyed by 80 students in the Cosmopolitan Club, plus a few of their American guests, who attended a dinner Sunday at the home of Ms. Lillian Whitehouse, associate director of student development. Foreign students present represented Canada, Ethiopia, Hong Kong, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Nigeria, and Thailand. Also present at the get-together was Roland Wurster, registrar, who is retiring this year as one of the Cosmopolitan Club advisors. Ching Taraphittiphol from Thailand, this year's club president, said on behalf of fellow foreign students, "He has done so much for us, we are very thankful for everything both he and Mrs. Wurster have done for us."

New Cosmopolitan officers who will take over next fall are Ayodele Chi, Nigeria, President; Pui Lan Lau, Malaysia, vice-president; and Carolyn Meil, Korea secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Whitehouse and Mrs. Ellison Hendrick are remaining as advisors, along with newly appointed Mr. and Mrs. Lillian Wong.

According to its constitution, the purpose of the Cosmopolitan Club is to promote understanding, assistance, and fellowship among students from various parts of the world in Whitworth College. The club is not limited to foreign students.

A WORD OR TWO ABOUT CLEAN AIR

Ashless, smokeless heating, electrostatic air cleaning, humidity control, air conditioning. Electricity and natural gas provide clean, healthy indoor environment within the reach of everyone.

Non-polluting fuel and modern, clean operating generation plants have moved us a giant step closer to a cleaner, healthier outdoors.

In a word or two, clean energy means better living.

THE WASHINGTON WATER POWER COMPANY
Clean Energy for a Quality Environment
Whitworth drops 4 of 5; play-off hopes dwindle

by Travis Prewitt

The Whitworth College baseball team had its play-off hopes crippled last weekend as the Pirates lost four of five games in an important Idaho road trip. "If we don't put it together we're not going to do as conference champs," says Whitworth baseball coach "Spike" Grovenor.

Wednesday the Pirates lost both ends of a doubleheader by Lewis Clark State. LC pitchers allowed the Pirates just five hits in each game, winning 5-1 in the opener and 6-5 in the second.

Friday and Saturday the Pirates lost two of three conference games to College of Idaho. "In the first game we played from the third inning on in real bad weather," said Grovenor. "We were down 7-2 at the end of the 4th innings, but umpirs didn't call the game then." In the bottom of the fifth inning COI scored once as Paul Badeaux was blown off of the pitching mound by the wind with the bases loaded. They scored twice more when Paul Jelinek fell in the mud trying to catch a routine fly ball. After COI had taken the lead with 6 runs in that inning and the Pirates had come to bat and rapped three hits, the game was stopped. "The ump didn't really understand that he was ending the game," said Grovenor. "But you can't give up six runs in one inning and expect to win."

Saturday the COI series was moved to Adrian, Oregon, because of the bad weather and the Pirates split doubleheader with the Coyotes. "The wind blew at 35-40 mph," said Grovenor. "But we don't have any excuses. It was just as bad for them to play in it."

"We are definitely struggling at this point," said Grovenor. "I don't think the problem is skill or talent, but one of motivation, and that's part of my job," he said. "The mystery to me is that I believe we're a stronger team this year than last year's team that won the conference." The Pirates return to conference action Saturday with a doubleheader at Willamette, then play Lewis and Clark in Portland on Monday.

South leads decathlon

by Chris Bauer

South Warren is currently leading the first Whitworth intramural decathlon. Donna Sommier, who is competing for South, Gary Frank of South is in third.

Bucs host Central today

Whitworth's tennis team will be in action this week. Today defending NAIA District 1 champions, CWVIC, visit Whitworth for a 3:00 p.m. match.

The Pirates travel to Eastern Oregon Friday for a 3 o'clock match and Saturday Whitworth Alumni have the honor. Saturday's match is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Last week the Pirates dropped all three of their matches, Gonzaga won 7-0, L-C swept the Bucs 9-0, and Whitman managed an 8-1 win.

South leads decathlon

by Chris Bauer

South Warren is currently leading the first Whitworth intramural decathlon. Donna Sommier, who is competing for South, Gary Frank of South is in third.

Bucs host Central today

Whitworth's tennis team will be in action this week. Today defending NAIA District 1 champions, CWVIC, visit Whitworth for a 3:00 p.m. match.

The Pirates travel to Eastern Oregon Friday for a 3 o'clock match and Saturday Whitworth Alumni have the honor. Saturday's match is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Last week the Pirates dropped all three of their matches, Gonzaga won 7-0, L-C swept the Bucs 9-0, and Whitman managed an 8-1 win.
Tortoise and hare race in great classic

A Children’s Theater class project culminates this weekend with performances of THE GREAT COUNTRY RACE by Alan Broadhurst. The play is an English version of the famous race between the tortoise and the hare. Besides entertaining a Whitworth audience at 10 tomorrow morning, the cast of friendly animals and silly humans will perform for Shriner’s Hospital, Lakeland Village and Mead School District. Admission tomorrow is free with student ID. The Mead School performance on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in the auditorium is open to students also.

The drama centers around the animals. Very human, they speak intelligibly while people converse in “pabladoo.” A national theater designer, Irene Cory devised stage make-up and costumes to highlight the animals. The cast used special make-up demonstrations in the HUB window to advertise the play last week.

Starring as the hare, Paul Blott races the tortoise, Chuck Collings. During the race, he is sidetracked by humans and stops to feast on a fisherman’s lunch, gets trapped in a family poaching bag, spies on a pair of “soppy dates” and finally is pinned to a clothesline by his ear! Meanwhile, the tortoise plods to the finish line.

Gail Schierman assists Mr. Albert Gunderson in the direction. The cast served their own costumes. Steve Hites, a hedging stack his final quill on Thursday morning. “This play is great for kids and adults,” he commented.

Others in the play are: Stuart Shawen, Larry Morris, Debbie Clinton, Marcia St. John, Connie Safford, Steve Nelson, Kenneth Kunee, Brian Zimmerman, Laurie Dingman, Rick Smith, Colleen McLean, Tim Marshall, Holly Anderson, Katherine Pennington, Marilyn Moffitt, and Barbara Donnelly.

Road construction takes root

A solution to Whitworth’s tree issue was accomplished at the courthouse Monday when a decision was made to improve the intersection at Hawthorne and Whitworth Dr., and to keep as many trees as possible.

According to ASWC President Kim Hunter, Hawthorne will be widened from Division to the Whitworth gate, while the stretch on Whitworth Dr. from Ivanhoe St. to Ball and Chain’s entrance will also be widened. Both streets will be able to accommodate four lanes of traffic, although they will be zoned for only two lanes, except possibly at turn areas, Hunter said.

Approximately four trees will have to be chopped down for the construction, he said. A six-foot wide sidewalk will be paved with ramps onto the street for bikes and wheelchairs, and workers will try to wind the walkway around any remaining trees standing in the way.

Hunter explained that the intersection itself will have a red light at all times, until an approaching car transistorizes the light, turning it green. Pedestrians will also be able to automatically switch the light.

It would be useless for students to take any action against this decision, according to Hunter. “There is no need to-unless we want a lawsuit against us,” he said. He does believe there is no need to widen the road from Whitworth’s gate. Walk or used students to watch the papers for other things, such as mass transit, to become involved in.

The proposed road expansion and threat of destroying pine trees lining Hawthorne and Whitworth Dr. has been a heated controversy for the past two weeks. About 500 people, joined by children from nearby Whitworth Elementary School, staged a peaceful protest April 12, successfully halting construction for the time being.

Jacquie Baucom presents violent children’s comedy

Using an original 1841 script, Jacquie Baucom presents a “Punch and Judy” puppet show this afternoon at 1:30 and 3:00 in the loop. The performance is free.

Punch is a grotesque character who beats his wife Judy and strangles his children. Originally produced in England, this “children’s comedy” began the theatre of cruelty. Because of the violence portrayed, it was banned for a time.

As a graduate student, Jacquie researched the script and constructed the hand puppets for a drama project. Three students assist her behind the puppet theatre and Bruce Talkington handles the audience.
EXPO job applications accepted in December

Job applications for Expo 1974 will not be accepted until December 14. Applications are being accepted by Huber, director of Career Planning and Placement.

In December students may obtain applications from that office to apply for such jobs as make-up artists, ride attendants, custodians, ticket sellers, and a wide range of other jobs.

About 1000 positions are directly associated with Expo, and 3000 in the Expo area will open up for the local tourist trade, franchise and display staffs will also be hired independently.

Salaries will be based on competitive wage rates, with the minimum for most positions expected to be about $2.00 an hour. Work will be scheduled for two- to eight-hour shifts.

Applications will be processed through the Career Placement Office, where preliminary screening will be done. Applicants are to apply “in blocks” for a particular type of work. Students in the immediate Spokane area are given preference for employment.

Sixty-five to travel for Christian College Sunday

On Sunday, April 27, approximately 65 Whitworth students and their parents or friends will be going out individually, in pairs, or in small groups to participate in Christian College Sunday.

Participants will be traveling to 27 churches throughout Washington and northern Idaho, sharing themselves and their faith and relating how Whitworth has been a stimulus to their development.

Some Whitworthians will be presenting musical programs, others will be sharing with the residents their work, and others with Sunday school classes, and most with church organizations.

Most of the churches requesting speakers are Presbyterian.

Families in the various participating churches will be giving Dick Cole, Director of Church Relations, “because students are so honest. And it goes to heighten the churches’ appreciation of what Whitworth is trying to do.”

Last year about twenty churches were invited to share in Whitworth’s Christian College Sunday. This year, an open invitation was issued, and sixty churches responded, some requesting speakers on other Sundays in April, or on May 6.

The national date for Christian Colleges is May 6, but due to Whitworth’s early completion of the school year, this date for Whitworth was advanced.

Participants in Christian College Sunday will be traveling by chartered bus or car, and will leave Whitworth at 4:30 a.m. tomorrow, returning Sunday evening.

Whitworth’s SAGA is providing lunches for the trip, and SA at Seattle Pacific will prepare lunches for the return trip.

Dear Editor:

Perhaps the illusion that one can look back on the years which didn’t come up was a little too far fetched in the April 3 issue of The Whitworthian. But I did make an excellent point that the maintenance department has some very important things to do. I think that word means what it sounds like, a fortuitous occasion, but take a minute and find out what Webster has to say about it.

Stone, Selbo, Ricketts, Ertell fill AWS offices

by Becky Oltman

Expo 1974 Officers for Women: Students and staffs have been named by the outgoing executive council. The students ran unopposed for their offices, while the staffs have been a stimulus to their development in the Whitworthian.

In December Mary Stone, N.O.W. Career and Publicity Chairman, was issued, and was reluctant to see her departure. She was going to be going out to Sears, and planned to attend Expo.

She hopes to publish a whole new issue, which will be based on the Whitworthian paper. This issue will be given to the new officers, who are trying to improve the paper. Mary Stone hopes the new executive council will have a lot of ideas and pride in their work.

Sixty-five to travel for Christian College Sunday

Getting back to the point of that fantastic comedy act straight from the big top of Ringling Bros. and Bailey, our very own Maintenance Men. I am sure that everyone here at Whitworth, bar none, has seen some of the quality (pun intended) work of some of this select group of men who have given many of the college’s better minds a real challenge in attempting to formulate how it takes two days, at least, to do a job which could be done in a period of time equal to a missed afternoon nap.

The incident which brought on this article happened April 18, the second day of Passover, for those interested in trivia. Working in a service station has brought me into contact with quite a few weird incidents concerning students enrolled at this basilica for higher education. But those stories are for another time.

In mind is the case of an esteemed student who made the almost fatal mistake of driving to the library for some books instead of being geological and acting like a biped. Intending to run in and leave, he pulled up to the side of the library, just off the road, did his business at the library, and left—almed.

While poling away, he chanced to wheel his car over a curbstone of some sort (probably steam line, or sewage; I don’t know) and I asked my friendly maintenance man he would probably have to go to the steam plant to look at old records to find out, but he really didn’t know the hole was there in the first place. Yes, I did pass the kindergartner’s guide to Fuller Life and Happiness, oops, I mean the Justice Department’s Clearance Test. Whew! I didn’t have to say it, for one else has.

Anyway, the boards fell apart and the car’s wheel quickly sank down into the seven or eight foot hole.
by Dave Homer

Recently arrived on Ball & Chain Lane is Cyrus Facciano, Jim and Marcia Facciano's five week old son. Being something of a night owl like his dad, Cyrus enjoys socializing and has had quite a welcome.

The Faccianos have no relatives in Spokane but Cyrus does have three adopted grandmothers here. I asked Marcia how Cyrus came up with three admirers so devoted. She said, "One of the ladies I had worked for and the other two just sort of found us. One of them gave us a crib and they have brought us cookies, rolls, bread, and some baby booties. And they just sort of come over and talk to me and see how I am." Cyrus's other grandmothers live in California.

Cyrus's dad, Jim, is a Whitworth math major and teaching assistant who will fulfill his requirements for graduation by next December.

At this stage, Cyrus would only be interested in one kind of formula, but Jim's mathematical projects may prove very interesting as Cyrus gets a little older. They include some handmade wooden games and puzzles consisting of blocks, pegs, and disks with holes in the middle. Jim says, "They should develop his coordination and logical thinking while he's playing with them."

Family enjoys apartment

Right now, while father Jim is working on his studies for the college grounds department this summer, Cyrus is content to spend his time daydreaming and sunning himself with Mom. She keeps busy doing art, reading and writing poetry. Both parents claim to be taking Ball & Chain Lane in stride, Marcia says, "We weren't from wealthy backgrounds so we didn't have to adjust so much. A lot of people have trouble getting used to doing without things."

Surviving in

Ball & Chain Lane is easier "if you have some experience handling money or living on your own, or if you had to do any marketing or fixing food in your parent's house."

And she says, "It depends on how much you love each other, how much you're willing to do without."

Housing offers advantages

Marcia and Jim have found a number of advantages to living on the Ball & Chain. They cite the low rent, the part-time work available on the campus, and the garden they are planning across the street. There are social advantages as well. Marci tells me, "We have friends dropping over all the time, but the walls are so thin you can hear each other's voices. And Cyrus and I have come to an agreement: he doesn't make any noise after his 3 p.m. feeding as long as I let him go back to sleep between us in our bed."

Candidates for graduation

*Expect to complete requirements during summer session

Areas of Concentration

Business and Economics
Dennise Alan Carter, Friday Harbor
William Patrick Curry, Sunnyvale
Carol Eileen Goble, magna cum laude, Spokane
Craig Henry Johnson, McCall, Idaho
Chito Ruiz, Jr., Fairchild Air Force Base
David Edwin Schloetie, Thousand Oaks, California

David Allen Shearer, Spokane

Chemistry

Phillip Charles Cory, cum laude, Spokane
Nancy Jean Mitchell, San Clemente, California
James Francis Omerberg, Nine Mile Falls

Earth Science

James Mark Johnson, magna cum laude, Bishop, California
Thomas Davenport Beldenberg, cum laude, Santa Rosa, California

English

Carol Ann Atchley, Vancouver
Tommie Ann Bette, magna cum laude, Cupertino, California (double major)

Wayne Scott Dalgaas, cum laude, Fair Oaks, California

Christine Lynn Henning, magna cum laude, Spokane
Paul Douglas Jelnick, Spokane
Richard Bruce Muters, Spokane
Richard James Mulcahy, Spokane
Sally Anne Nelson, Spokane
Debra Dye Park, cum laude, B. Merien, Idaho

C. Hans Peter Peterson-Nelson, Spokane

William Rene Roos, Spokane
Marvel Renauld Ruiz, Fairchild Air Force Base
George Ann Townsend, magna cum laude, Spokane

Morris Frederick Townsend, cum laude, Spokane
Carolyn Geyre Van Marter, Tacoma

John Douglas Weaver, Pullman, California
Shu Lin Wong, magna cum laude, Hong Kong

(continued on page 7)
Student ignorance concerns Dr. Snyder

by Mary Wolford
and Bob Sisson

Making students informed about their health problems is a concern of Dr. Kenneth Snyder, college physician. "We would like to see students know more about health problems," he said. "Many don't know what is to be done or can be done."

Dr. Snyder indicated that rumors often are spread among students regarding the health center. "We don't get very much direct complaint," he said. "If something is bothering the student population, we certainly do hear about it. I think this is one thing students should strive for—if they haven't had problems they shouldn't go to another student to find out about it, because this medicine is a very complicated profession."

Mrs. Ruth Morris, one of the three nurses at the health center, said: "If students do have questions about their health, they should come ask the doctor or nurse." She explained that medicine is not 100 per cent perfect, and that's why it is called 'practice medicine.'

Occasionally a student is treated for one illness, and after a period of time he is discovered to have something different. Dr. Snyder explained: "Many diseases start out with a prodrome (symptoms of one disease may look like those of another). The symptoms may be those of an ordinary cold or sore throat, and there is no way to detect that there's anything more than that."

Mrs. Morris said students don't realize that it takes about five days for a culture to fully develop so they can be certain of a disease. "Sometimes students are very critical of this," she said.

When a student goes to the infirmary with a problem, the nurse screens his symptoms from her own knowledge and standing orders. Mrs. Morris said this usually involves simply talking with the student.

Sometimes students are treated by the nurse, but if a condition in serious enough, they are referred to the doctor. Dr. Snyder said he tries to see anyone who feels he needs a doctor. "Anything that I feel cannot be adequately taken care of I refer to another doctor or see them in my own office later on. Some can do more complete work," he said.

Besides his private practice, Dr. Snyder is in the health center 9-10 a.m. every weekday. He treats an estimated 7-10 students per morning, which is why he feels a fulltime doctor would be good. He said most small colleges don't have the finances they need for a fulltime physician.

"I feel so that medicine is not per cent perfect, and that's why there is a concern of Dr. Snyder. We don't get very much direct complaint," he said. "If something is bothering the student population, we certainly do hear about it. That's why it is called 'practice medicine.'"
Students given the treatment offer reactions to infirmary

In a recent Whitworthian poll, a random group of students were asked if they had ever been treated in the infirmary, and if so, how they felt about the treatment. Opinion was both complimentary and negative.

One student who was diagnosed incorrectly and consequently spent several weeks in the infirmary offered these comments:

"The doctor doesn't have enough time. I think we should have a doctor who comes in an hour a day and is there all day at least one day a week." He said the doctor sees six to ten patients, and with the check-up and forms to fill out, he can only give each patient about five minutes.

"The nurses are really good," he continued. "They are really on the ball. They're not only friends while you're in there, but they're knowledgeable, will tell you about yourself, and do everything for you.

"The nurses try to make you feel at home. When I was in isolation, the nurse sent people to the window and delivered notes.

"I think the whole problem of the health center lies in the doctor. It's not that he's a quack, it's just that he doesn't have time...When the doctor has time he's really great.

"One thing that makes me mad is that people go in one night, and then come out and really criticize the health center and say it's awful. I really got to appreciate the health center.

"Randy Schafer, junior, said, "I went there once with a broken finger and the doctor said it wasn't broken. I went back a week and a half later and he said to come back in a week. Then he took X-rays and it was broken.

"Schafer continued, "One time I went there with the worst sore throat I ever had in my life. They wouldn't give me penicillin because the doctor wasn't there. That was on a Friday, and I had to wait until Monday to do anything."

Senior Kathy Hurst claims service is "excellent." She said the staff is very personal, and "they cracked jokes and I felt like I was in my own family...It was nice to be able to watch the TV donated by Mr. Wurster.

"Willie Williams, junior, said, "I think the service is really bad. The nurses are nice, but I think there should be an RN there. You really need somebody there who knows what to do in an emergency.

"They're more than willing to get you anything you want," sophomore Karen Schenz commented. "You go in and they treat you like a sick person-want you to get well. The nurses are willing to converse with you if you've up to it.

"Sophomore Ken Crawford agrees the nurses are very competent-"Especially Mrs. Chance and Mrs. Morris," he said. "As far as doctors, I feel a doctor should be on campus at all times, especially during the day.

"Chris Watazake, sophomore, feels she got pretty good care. 'I wish they could set up some kind of a deal where the infirmary could cook their own meals,' she added. 'It's ridiculous for people with problems with ulcers to eat SAGA pizza.'

"The only thing I think that's wrong is that the food is crummy--it's not hot and it's just rotten," sophomore Ken Kurose said.

"One time there was no heat in my room--for two days in winter," he said. "Kathleen Joe, a sophomore, feels the doctors is not always confident in his medical examinations.

"Kathy Ingles, junior, said, 'I had appendicitis and they thought I had the flu for five days. It was a tricky diagnosis but they never took any blood tests. The nursing staff is good.'

"Sophomore Warren Herman claims the service was "good, and I've nothing to complain about."

"Margaret Walker, sophomore, said she once went to the health center with a abscessed cyst. She was going to give her surgery right in his office, but didn't on the advice of her LPN mother. Margaret went home to her family doctor with the problem and was put in the hospital four days. She said her home doctor told her the cyst should never have been cut open as such cysts require surgery.

"Carolyn Yatako, sophomore, said that when she went to the doctor with a problem, he didn't examine her, but gave her something without really diagnosing the problem.

"Freshman Sue Ondersch said, 'Sometimes I felt like I go in there and the doctor just prescribes pills for me, like they've got pills to hand out for every little pain you've got.'

"Linda, a sophomore, said, 'I was in the infirmary for two days with headaches. His diagnosis was a cold in the nose, actually it was emotional problems. This spring I went to him and he never tell me what was wrong with me.'

"The doctor made me feel like a hypochondriac,"

'Making door' policy supported by Center

by Susan Rogers

Maureen Sheridan, a member of the Whitworth Counseling Center staff, describes mental health as the ability of people to "be on their own two feet to function in society.

The Counseling Center at Whitworth attempts to facilitate the development of independence and realization of personal potential. Miss Sheridan expressed the attitude of the Center, stating, "I don't see myself as giving out happiness, but as opening doors so that the individual can make decisions for himself; not dependent on someone else for his decisions.

"We do not view mental health from a medical sort of model," indicates Dave Erb, a counselor on the staff, "but more from a developmental viewpoint."

Based on this outlook, growth and development programs play a primary role in the Counseling Center's program, in addition to services of personal and group counseling offered by the Center.

The Counseling Center is presently headed by Dr. Don Roberts. The counseling staff will be among those who take up residence in the new Student Development building when it is completed. Presently, offices of the staff are located in the auditorium.

The Counseling Center is not the sole means of promoting mental health on campus. Dorm life, the system of resident advisors and resident counselors, student-teacher relationships and campus life in general are intended to promote a healthy and stimulating intellectual and emotional environment.

The campus Counseling Center associates with the Spokane Mental Health Center in providing students who desire counseling with those services.

"Opening door' policy supported by Center

by Susan Rogers

Maureen Sheridan, a member of the Whitworth Counseling Center staff, describes mental health as the ability of people to "be on their own two feet to function in society.

The Counseling Center at Whitworth attempts to facilitate the development of independence and realization of personal potential. Miss Sheridan expressed the attitude of the Center, stating, "I don't see myself as giving out happiness, but as opening doors so that the individual can make decisions for himself; not dependent on someone else for his decisions.

"We do not view mental health from a medical sort of model," indicates Dave Erb, a counselor on the staff, "but more from a developmental viewpoint."

Based on this outlook, growth and development programs play a primary role in the Counseling Center's program, in addition to services of personal and group counseling offered by the Center.

The Counseling Center is presently headed by Dr. Don Roberts. The counseling staff will be among those who take up residence in the new Student Development building when it is completed. Presently, offices of the staff are located in the auditorium.

The Counseling Center is not the sole means of promoting mental health on campus. Dorm life, the system of resident advisors and resident counselors, student-teacher relationships and campus life in general are intended to promote a healthy and stimulating intellectual and emotional environment.

The campus Counseling Center associates with the Spokane Mental Health Center in providing students who desire counseling with those services.
Whitworth leads league; two starters are injured

"If we can win two and sweep PLU at home this weekend we'll lock up the conference title." Those were the words of Whitworth's baseball coach, "Spoke" Gruenewor, just prior to Monday's twin bill with Lewis and Clark.

Last weekend provided Whitworth with a half-game lead over the conference when they stripped Willamette 5-2 and 10-1 as Rick Hanson and Rod Taylor went all the way for the Bucs.

The Pirates managed to split with LC, 4-1 and 3-6, running the season to the wire this weekend for a three game series at home with PLU Friday and Saturday.

Whitworth however will be operating without two of their starters; short-stop Jim Travis, and outfielder Gary Martin. Travis is out with a broken hand, he sustained in Monday's game while batting, Martin, chasing a deep fly, smashed into the fence and knocked himself out. Martin's scalp wound later required eight stitches. While Martin was down LC's Jim Soffo produced the only run the Bearcats received in the first game with his inside-the-park home run.

In the second game a dissertation on hitting, first inning of three errors, two singles, and a double allowed 5 LC runs to score.

Other action throughout the conference saw College of Idaho move into second place by whipping Willamette 6-2 and 7-6. Linfield and Pacific, who each own a piece of third, split games with PLU and Whitman respectively.

Northwest Conference

      W.  L.
Whitworth     9 - 5
College of Idaho 7 - 4
Linfield       8 - 5
Pacific        8 - 5
Whitman        6 - 6
PLU            4 - 7
LC             4 - 9
Willamette     3 - 8

Golf squad looks good for tournament this weekend

by Chris Bauer

The finest golf team in recent years at Whitworth traveled to Portland this weekend to compete in the Northwest Conference tournament. A fine man team will make the trip with a solid chance to take the team championship.

Lewis and Clark, Pacific Lutheran and Whitman are expected to be the main opposition for the Pirates at the tourney. If the Pirates can handle their team and stroke a stroke average for the year they could come home with the title.

Sophomore Bob Nieman, who finished fifth in the tournament last year, is the team's number one man this year. Senior Bill Curry is number two and followed by transfer Bruce Lewis, freshman Chris Bauer, and senior Bob Hess.

The team has engaged in the qualifications of the Northwest District title. It will take a surprise win to stick with the Pirates this weekend.

Track season ends tomorrow

by Lamia Moyer

An invitational meet at Cheney tomorrow completes the regular women's track season, and has some members looking on to district and the nationals.

Claudia Smith has qualified in the long jump, 100, and 220-yard dashes for the national meet to be held May 11-15 in Hayward, California.

The 440-yard and 880 medley relay teams will try at tomorrow's meet to qualify for the Northwest District meet, May 15-19, in Kalispell, Montana.

The past two weeks have been rather hectic for the sports staff of the Whitworthian. Between as though, the sports section has somehow managed to be printed. Unfortunately running short handed forces emphasis on the major sports around campus. In an effort to publish as much action that occurs in as much space as permitted, I have decided to run a brief look at what's happening along with my comments.

GOLF: The PINAC Tournament begins this weekend. Friday's action is in Portland, moving to a course near McMinnville on Saturday, and finishing Monday on a course near Eugene.

Rieckert said his team is looking forward to the tourney. With PLU and LC as front runners, Rieckert said "Third place would be a good goal for us."

If Curry, who shot a hot 78 in Monday's 114-3 win over Whitman, along with Neiman, Bauer, and the rest of the squad play up to their potential consistently throughout the tournament, I wouldn't hesitate to pick Whitworth as a very strong contender for first.

TENNIS: The tennis team is at Walla-Walla this weekend for a Friday match with College of Idaho and a Saturday match with Pacific University.

Last week Whitworth's Joe Dennison made a brilliant performance by upsetting the 1972 District singles champion Ken Van Amberg, of Central.

BASEBALL: This weekend wraps it up for the '73 season. Whitworth is currently on top but must sweep a three game series from PLU tomorrow and Saturday and hope College of Idaho drops at least one game.

The Pirates have produced one of the finest climatic home seasons since last year's Major league American-East division, but for a team with 14 lettermen I really expected a run away. As long as the remainder of the team stays healthy I'll go with the Bucs to win the championship.

TRACK: Willamette, PLU, and Whitworth will have a triangular meet Saturday at SFCC. PLU, expected to dominate the weight events, is a narrow favorite. Willamette has a well balanced team and will be relying on their depth. Whitworth needs to command the sprints.

In this instance I'd tip a cap for first place between PLU and Whitworth, and hope Willamette loses its balance and falls.

WOMEN'S TRACK: Coach Steve Mize has not had the depth most track coaches like to see but the team has fared well this season.

Claudia Smith has been the mainstay of the team's success and has qualified for the nationals in the long jump, 100, and 220-yard sprints. Many of the girls will be trying for the qualifications of the N.W. District tomorrow at Cheney.

WOMEN'S TENNIS: Tomorrow holds a busy schedule for the netters of Whitworth, as they finish their last home matches of the season. At 9:00 a.m. the girls entertain the University of Montana squad and at 3:30 p.m. they play Whittier.

Tuesday coach Voldal takes the team to Eastern and Western and they will be at Central. The team needs to beat Eastern by at least a 6-1 score to capture the league title.

It will take a super effort from the entire team, but with Julie Nerness healthy again Whitworth just might come away with a surprise win.

"If we can win two and sweep PLU at home this weekend we'll lock up the conference title."

"Spoke" Gruenewor, just prior to Monday's twin bill with Lewis and Clark.

The Pirates managed to split with LC, 4-1 and 3-6, running the season to the wire this weekend for a three game series at home with PLU Friday and Saturday.

Whitworth however will be operating without two of their starters; short-stop Jim Travis, and outfielder Gary Martin. Travis is out with a broken hand he sustained in Monday's game while batting, Martin, chasing a deep fly, smashed into the fence and knocked himself out. Martin's scalp wound later required eight stitches. While Martin was down LC's Jim Soffo produced the only run the Bearcats received in the first game with his inside-the-park home run.

In the second game a dissertation on hitting, first inning of three errors, two singles, and a double allowed 5 LC runs to score.

Other action throughout the conference saw College of Idaho move into second place by whipping Willamette 6-2 and 7-6. Linfield and Pacific, who each own a piece of third, split games with PLU and Whitman respectively.

Northwest Conference

      W.  L.
Whitworth     9 - 5
College of Idaho 7 - 4
Linfield       8 - 5
Pacific        8 - 5
Whitman        6 - 6
PLU            4 - 7
LC             4 - 9
Willamette     3 - 8

Golf squad looks good for tournament this weekend

by Chris Bauer

The finest golf team in recent years at Whitworth traveled to Portland this weekend to compete in the Northwest Conference tournament. A fine man team will make the trip with a solid chance to take the team championship.

Lewis and Clark, Pacific Lutheran and Whitman are expected to be the main opposition for the Pirates at the tourney. If the Pirates can handle their team and stroke a stroke average for the year they could come home with the title.

Sophomore Bob Nieman, who finished fifth in the tournament last year, is the team's number one man this year. Senior Bill Curry is number two and followed by transfer Bruce Lewis, freshman Chris Bauer, and senior Bob Hess.

The team has engaged in the qualifications of the Northwest District title. It will take a surprise win to stick with the Pirates this weekend.

Track season ends tomorrow

by Lamia Moyer

An invitational meet at Cheney tomorrow completes the regular women's track season, and has some members looking on to district and the nationals.

Claudia Smith has qualified in the long jump, 100, and 220-yard dashes for the national meet to be held May 11-15 in Hayward, California.

The 440-yard and 880 medley relay teams will try at tomorrow's meet to qualify for the Northwest District meet, May 15-19, in Kalispell, Montana.

The past two weeks have been rather hectic for the sports staff of the Whitworthian. Between as though, the sports section has somehow managed to be printed. Unfortunately running short handed forces emphasis on the major sports around campus. In an effort to publish as much action that occurs in as much space as permitted, I have decided to run a brief look at what's happening along with my comments.

GOLF: The PINAC Tournament begins this weekend. Friday's action is in Portland, moving to a course near McMinnville on Saturday, and finishing Monday on a course near Eugene.

Rieckert said his team is looking forward to the tourney. With PLU and LC as front runners, Rieckert said "Third place would be a good goal for us."

If Curry, who shot a hot 78 in Monday's 114-3 win over Whitman, along with Neiman, Bauer, and the rest of the squad play up to their potential consistently throughout the tournament, I wouldn't hesitate to pick Whitworth as a very strong contender for first.

TENNIS: The tennis team is at Walla-Walla this weekend for a Friday match with College of Idaho and a Saturday match with Pacific University.

Last week Whitworth's Joe Dennison made a brilliant performance by upsetting the 1972 District singles champion Ken Van Amberg, of Central.

BASEBALL: This weekend wraps it up for the '73 season. Whitworth is currently on top but must sweep a three game series from PLU tomorrow and Saturday and hope College of Idaho drops at least one game.

The Pirates have produced one of the finest climatic home seasons since last year's Major league American-East division, but for a team with 14 lettermen I really expected a run away. As long as the remainder of the team stays healthy I'll go with the Bucs to win the championship.

TRACK: Willamette, PLU, and Whitworth will have a triangular meet Saturday at SFCC. PLU, expected to dominate the weight events, is a narrow favorite. Willamette has a well balanced team and will be relying on their depth. Whitworth needs to command the sprints.

In this instance I'd tip a cap for first place between PLU and Whitworth, and hope Willamette loses its balance and falls.

WOMEN'S TRACK: Coach Steve Mize has not had the depth most track coaches like to see but the team has fared well this season.

Claudia Smith has been the mainstay of the team's success and has qualified for the nationals in the long jump, 100, and 220-yard sprints. Many of the girls will be trying for the qualifications of the N.W. District tomorrow at Cheney.

WOMEN'S TENNIS: Tomorrow holds a busy schedule for the netters of Whitworth, as they finish their last home matches of the season. At 9:00 a.m. the girls entertain the University of Montana squad and at 3:30 p.m. they play Whittier.

Tuesday coach Voldal takes the team to Eastern and Western and they will be at Central. The team needs to beat Eastern by at least a 6-1 score to capture the league title.

It will take a super effort from the entire team, but with Julie Nerness healthy again Whitworth just might come away with a surprise win.
Spring brings birds, blossoms and babies

by Camma Jo Littlefield

With the advent of spring and the Easter season thoughts turn from the drab coldness of winter to warmth, light and newness. Eyes search for budding flowers, green grass and new born animals.

The Whitworth community is seeing its share of springtime birth. The most recent event was the birth of a granddaughter to Mr. Roland Wurster, college registrar, and his wife Alice on April 11. It was the first child of their only daughter, Mrs. Emily Hitchens and her husband who are living in Seattle. The baby’s name is Amy Elizabeth and she weighed seven pounds, ten and three-fourths ounces.

Dr. Howard Gage and his wife Judith had their second child March 22. He is the first child March 22. He is Marcia Lee Winkelman, magna cum laude, Morgan Hill, California.

With the advent of spring and the Easter season thoughts turn from the drab coldness of winter to warmth, light and newness. Eyes search for budding flowers, green grass and new born animals.

The Whitworth community is seeing its share of springtime birth. The most recent event was the birth of a granddaughter to Mr. Roland Wurster, college registrar, and his wife Alice on April 11. It was the first child of their only daughter, Mrs. Emily Hitchens and her husband who are living in Seattle. The baby’s name is Amy Elizabeth and she weighed seven pounds, ten and three-fourths ounces.

Dr. Howard Gage and his wife Judith had their second child March 22. He is the first child March 22. He is Marcia Lee Winkelman, magna cum laude, Morgan Hill, California.

With the advent of spring and the Easter season thoughts turn from the drab coldness of winter to warmth, light and newness. Eyes search for budding flowers, green grass and new born animals.

The Whitworth community is seeing its share of springtime birth. The most recent event was the birth of a granddaughter to Mr. Roland Wurster, college registrar, and his wife Alice on April 11. It was the first child of their only daughter, Mrs. Emily Hitchens and her husband who are living in Seattle. The baby’s name is Amy Elizabeth and she weighed seven pounds, ten and three-fourths ounces.

Dr. Howard Gage and his wife Judith had their second child March 22. He is the first child March 22. He is Marcia Lee Winkelman, magna cum laude, Morgan Hill, California.
New staff replaces publication officers

NEW CO-EDITOR of the Whitworthian, Bob Sisson was assistant news editor this year.

MOVING UP from news editor, Mary Wolford will co-edit the newspaper with Bob Sisson.

CAROLYN SCHLOETEL GRADUATES after two years as Whitworthian editor.

DAVE SCHLOETEL MANAGED the newspaper's business and advertising.

NANCY PORTER is the Whitworthian's new advertising manager.

LOOKING FORWARD to managing Whitworthian business is Stan Warren.

BOB CARLSEN, formerly assistant editor on the yearbook, is 1973-74 editor.

SENIOR BOB FULTON chaired Publications Committee this year.

PAT BELL takes over as the new Natsihi business manager.

BILL CUREY was in charge of Natsihi business.

SPUD-NUT DRIVE IN
N. 6515 Division
phone HU9-0250

BURGERS normally 45¢, now ONLY 25¢
ONION RINGS usually 35¢, JUST 24¢

No limit per coupon Valid through May 3, 1973
Open 6:30 a.m. - midnight 7 days a week.
A 127-vote (with three abstentions) approved next year's ASWC budget at sparsely attended stockholder's meeting Tuesday night. Mike Chang, Financial vice-president, explained to students that a committee had evaluated some $3,533,12 of requests before granting funds totaling $50,565-65. About $4,000 is left in reserve. At a meeting attended by four dormant presidents the President's Council also okayed the proposal. Forer treasurer Les Heider, committee members who had planned the budget till 3-30 a.m. and a few others wanted to pass the budget immediately. Erica Thompson objected and pointed out that several items "needed to be discussed." Questioning priorities, Bob Diogolero, Dave Hou­ser and Erica wondered why $200 was budgeted for spring party and how the $2500 allotted housing accommodations were used. "It just takes too much," Resi Lup­ton, programming vice-president explained. "They both include more than one event, too." Other objections were to choir and Lilac Plaza's cut funds. The budget committee ruled that projects receiving academic credit such as choir, debate and dramas should be funded by the ad­ministration within 24 months. ASWC contributes $373 toward the elderly pro­gram's expenses and hopes for monetary cooperation to come from Lilac Plaza. Some budgets were cut back significantly, including the Committee for Peace. The requested funds to sponsor a peace weekend were re­ferred to Forum and Inter­face Board. A similar suggestion was made to the BSU and AWS was encouraged to collect dues from mem­bers. Reduced to $7500, the social budget shows a $100 cut.

Salaries for executive officers staying on campus this summer costs are $4210 to $4610. Students pay $57.50 stu­dent body fees each semester. Of this, the Board of Trustees allocates about $45, and the remaining goes into the ASWC pot totaling $64,750 for the year.

May 11 declared Moratorium Day

Moratorium Day has been declared for Friday, May 11, by the Committee for Peace, the BSU and interested faculty members. A protest will be held that day to "mourn the loss of America." Lunch will be in the loop that day, and music will be on hand to supplement an open mike for students, faculty, administration, and community people who may wish to speak.

We'll focus attention on critical current national issues and encourage our spokesman for the Committee for Peace, "We're not going to go into the past and re­argue Vietnam."

The chief issues of the protest will be the Grant, heavy Cambodian bombing in recent months, Nixon's budget.

Grant said he did not expect the moratorium to have a big effect on present situations. "Our present leaders are unresponsive to many of the frustrations that we are feeling. This may not have an effect now," he said, "but it will become the next election." Grant said people can't learn all about elections in a week, but it has to be a four-year process.

The Committee for Peace is also involved in a project of trying to raise $2,000 to assist the Grant, a young man from the First Presbyterian Church in Spok­ane, who is conducting an offer to reconcile Protestant and Catholic boys in Ireland. They have asked each of the 218 churches in Spokane to contribute $15.

Stockholders approve next year's budget

ASWC favors peace tax

A World Peace Tax Fund Act currently in the U.S. House of Representatives was looked on favorably by students at Tuesday's stockholder's meeting. As they voted to petition their representatives in Washing­ton, D.C to support the bill.

The act would provide a legal means for people opposed to war on moral or religious grounds to choose not to participate in the funding of war machines. Their money would, instead, be channeled into peaceful projects around the world. The conscientious objectors status would be established with the IRS through due process.

According to Craig Grant of the Committee for Peace, 60 per cent of the federal budget goes into war-related areas such as the military, the CIA and National Security Council, and parts of foreign aid and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Grant said this may be the biggest religious ques­tion to face our country. "Pacifism is a legitimate form of Christianity," he said. "Those who believe sincerely in it should be able to act on it."

"What priority do we put religious liberties aside?"

Mike Harmon, a veteran and Whitworth student, said war may not be necessarily Christian "but it is a fact of life... This proposal is no good if other nations don't join us."

Andy Frazier, a registered Democrat, said he thought do­ministic programs would suffer from this bill. Grant re­plied, "We only want to say if Congressional ap­propriated money has war as a priority, we cannot sup­port that priority."

Domestic priorities were not a factor. On Frazier's motion, those present at the meeting agreed to a sentence in the ASWC's letter to congress­men stating that the stockholders' decision to petition for support of the bill was not unanimous.

May 11 declared Moratorium Day

Music major Paul Heider won the thousand dollar Howard Howard award on Monday night. Young Artists award in the Greater Spokane Music and Allied Arts Festival.

The award is not given every year, but only when judged a special time person "considered to possess a rare and unique talent worthy of encouragement of whom the other students and accom­plishments are not in competition with the author's abilities and accom­plishments."

Music major Paul Heider won the thousand dollar Howard Howard award on Monday night. Young Artists award in the Greater Spokane Music and Allied Arts Festival.

The award is not given every year, but only when judged a special time person "considered to possess a rare and unique talent worthy of encouragement of whom the other students and accom­plishments are not in competition with the author's abilities and accom­plishments."

Music major Paul Heider won the thousand dollar Howard Howard award on Monday night. Young Artists award in the Greater Spokane Music and Allied Arts Festival.

The award is not given every year, but only when judged a special time person "considered to possess a rare and unique talent worthy of encouragement of whom the other students and accom­plishments are not in competition with the author's abilities and accom­plishments."

According to Craig Grant of the Committee for Peace, 60 per cent of the federal budget goes into war-related areas such as the military, the CIA and National Security Council, and parts of foreign aid and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Grant said this may be the biggest religious question to face our country. "Pacifism is a legitimate form of Christianity," he said. "Those who believe sincerely in it should be able to act on it."

"What priority do we put religious liberties aside?"

Mike Harmon, a veteran and Whitworth student, said war may not be necessarily Christian "but it is a fact of life... This proposal is no good if other nations don't join us."

Andy Frazier, a registered Democrat, said he thought doministic programs would suffer from this bill. Grant replied, "We only want to say if Congressional appropriated money has war as a priority, we cannot support that priority."

Domestic priorities were not a factor. On Frazier's motion, those present at the meeting agreed to a sentence in the ASWC's letter to congress­men stating that the stockholders' decision to petition for support of the bill was not unanimous.

$1,000 awards to go to faculty

Seven awards of $1,000 each will be granted in November or December by vote of the faculty in commem­oration for special contrib­ution to the college. Dean Witten stressed that these stockholder's awards are not desig­neated to reward faithful service, as a promotion raise would, but were created as experimental merit pay by the Board of Trustees.

The Dean is currently seeking input from all faculty and will discuss suggested recipients in de­tail with the Kauk and Pro­motion committee.

Heider decided it would be a nice way to end the year. The spring party will take place Monday, May 13, from eight until midnight. It will be at the Spokane Country Club, northwest of the col­lege. The cost is $5.00 per person.

African dances were featured acts at the BSU's talent show, "We the People." Last weekend, Here Mike Oosal and Saya Ali of Nigeria perform to the beat of a drum.
Goodbye Camp Carefree

No-smoking rule supported

Moistening my quill to scumble out one last editorial reminds me of the efforts to solicit postcards home from summer camp while caked with calamine lotion and itching from poison ivy...It seems rather unfavorable to be "graduating" from Camp Carefree as a whole person complete with a synthetic sleepless diploma.

Perhaps others of my 176 graduating comrades will also miss the library lights, delicious Spag. mystery meals, stimuliame company chimes, cozy card rooms, or laughoognous and busy forum speakers. After suffer withdrawal symptoms from my weekly dose of publications, I will probably forever hallucinate in living black and white with corrections, obtuse numbers, impenetrable shorthand, odd spellings, editorials, and staff members jumping around to the tune of the rooster's triple call.

Carolyn Schloetel

Stockholders apathetic?

Spring weather, approaching finals, or other meetings may have kept 1,250 stockholders away from their biannual meeting under the new ASWC constitution.

More likely the case for most students was just plain apathy. To know this area with the 60 or so stockholders who could make the meeting.

Sixty people voiced their opinions which counted for every Whitworth student. And, 1,240 people will just have to accept the decisions made at this meeting as final. The stockholders had their last say. It's too late to change their minds now.

By the time the budget rolled around on the agenda, only 25 stockholders were on hand to challenge or approve the budget for their 1,280 fellows. Twenty-two students spent, in one way or another, a total of approximately $30,505.65 in a budget which either raised none, slashed others, and gave the Whitworthian more than they requested. The exec did their best to be fair and contemporary in dropping up the budget, but some stockholders may have wanted things different. Now they will never get their say.

Perhaps people won't be concerned with the new year until they are actually living in it. Perhaps in the fall students will get out of their shells and make things happen. But if things stand as they did Tuesday night, our government and our stockholders won't be much different than it was under the old system - government by an elite few.

by Mary Wolford, news editor

Five-week Orient trip lacks interest

by Bob Sisson

People often talk a lot about how interesting a trip to China would be. But when Dr. Sanford, the social science department coordinator, actually does offer a trip to the Orient, that interest seems to be lacking.

Presently, only three people are planning to go on the trip June 29 - August 25. Led by Dr. Sanford, the group will visit Japan, Hong Kong, and Taiwan, with five weeks spent in the city of Taipei for the purpose of acquainting students with Chinese culture and people.

Dr. Sanford said he has talked to the Chinese Council of Students at several Eastern colleges and at Soochow University, as well as having inquired of professors, teach students (in English) about the Chinese culture. "A lot of students know this will be at little or no cost. The Chinese government is going out of their way to host us..." Dr. Sanford said.

But with only three people showing interest it rather an embarrassing situation. An Dr. Sanford explained, Nationalist China is trying to win friends, particularly American students and professors, in an effort to survive as a country separate from Communist-ruled China. "Most Americans are now infatuated with Peking," he said. But Tai­wan does want to be a part of mainland China, and they are afraid of the future.

"The trip itself will include several homestays and personal escorts around towns. We're trying to line up people so we can have personal tours, and have friends so they can show us what tourists don't see," Dr. Sanford said.

Students may study Chinese, art, history or political science for credit. Dr. Sanford expects a group of five to go, but he would like to see ten in order to make it more worth the time of the Chinese government.

He said people can still sign up, although the Calif­ornia-based charter flight could be filled any day now. He cited June 1 as probably the final day to decide to go. For more information, Dr. Sanford's office is located in Auditorium 107.

Total cost ranges from approximately $900-$1,000.

Health center expresses appreciation

On behalf of the Health Center Staff, I would like to express our appreciation for the success and the help that the 25-odd people to comment and act upon this issue. We've all heard of "the majority rules," but at Whitworth the opposite seems to be the case. A minority of the students and they are getting away with murder.

We feel that the "No Smoking" rule (in the Hub, for example) needs to be understood and enforced. We have a right to breathe, smoke is allowed outside and smokers should be helped to smoke. They're the minority and they should make con­cessions, not us.

We feel that this letter around, and answering questions about it, I thought I should make its purpose more clear to those who didn't sign because they felt it was vague. First, the "No Smoking" rule exist in the Hub as I should have written before, in the Auditorium. Secondly, this rule is broken too often. Thus enforcement is necessary and this was, I feel, a good way to show the need for enforcement and to encourage people to put away their cigarettes and act upon this issue. I hope to see more comments in the Bulletin and will start it by adding mine now.

Many persons argued that a person has a right to smoke where he wishes. I argue that I have an equal right to breathe smokeless air. Where the "No Smoking" rule exists. I feel that my right to a smokeless environment outweighs another person's right to break the rule and smoke. As for enforcement, I think the Whitworth students have enough sense of responsibility to enforce the rules themselves. Students know when smoking is illegal and they have the strength of character to refrain from smoking or to stop when reminded, I hope I haven't misjudged the students, I am sure they all try their best to obey the rules.

Linda Z. Hurlock

Budget contributions sought

by Scott Wilson

Next year's budget is in its most critical period as the Business OfficeSeeker $460,000 in contributions, reported Business Manager Gordon Hornall at a college meeting Friday.

Tuition covers between 30 and 40 percent of the Whitworthian's expense. Another 15 to 20 percent comes from sales, and the college is trying to cover this 15 percent deficit by "There is no time more tense than this time."

The Development Office is assisting in the field of deferred giving. Hornall reported that with "one big deal, small deals and give gifts income totaling $16 million. He added that although these the day we're dead," Hornall said.

He added that the present financial difficulty may not go back five years. But he expects the year when the Business Office will be concerned with one year's funding. "The day we don't have money trouble is the day we're not giving the education we should, and that is the day we're dead," Hornall said.

After all, is the biggest business in the world. Hornall said that with our creative faculty, problems arise in funding new projects, send in the same budget every year," Hornall said.

The Whitworthian

THE WHITWORTHIAN

MAY 4, 1973

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

MANAGING, AND TECHNICAL EDITORS

EDUCATION, BUSINESS, ADVERTISING

Carolyn Schloetel

Dave Schloetel, manager

NEWS STAFF

Mary Woldor, editor

Bob Sisson, assistant editor

FEATURE STAFF

Cindy Smith

David Hooser, Cindy Irwin

Sports Staff

Kerry Burke,编辑

Diana Cramland - sports, David Duhan - news, Pat Horsman - feature

LAYOUT

Janice Crandall - sports, David Duhan - news, Pete Fosti - feature

ART DEPARTMENT

Advisor

Yordi Jimenez

Cover art

Tommy Mott, "The Whitworthian" by Mike Clingan

dccmme eC us of the Associated Students of Whitworth College, Spokane, Washington, Published weekly except during vacation periods. Circulation 1208.
Spring fever's costly

Like any other disease, spring fever has side effects. Did you know that you are paying over $3.50 per hour for that blissful day you spent basking in the sun—instead of going to class? The average Whitworth student pays approximately $3.55 per class hour from his tuition, according to Dayne Nix, the college Bursar.

When money talks, people listen. Who knows, it may be the cure for this disease!

ONE TAXIDERMY student stuffs a St. Bernard.

Students stuff animals

by Pete Trott

Have you ever had that stuffed feeling after eating at SAGA? There are quite a few creatures on this campus who know what it's like, but they didn't get the feeling from eating at SAGA. No, they were stuffed complements of the Whitworth taxidermy class.

Radio station waits for FCC license

According to Rod Halvorson, the Whitworth radio station now hinges on the F.C.C. and whether or not they will give Whitworth a license to operate. Halvorson said that he has written to the F.C.C., but has not yet received a reply.

"We are all ready to go to work if we get the go-ahead," said Rod, "We've got a man who will help us with the technicalities, but depending on the F.C.C., it may be a week or six months before we can get started."

This issue marks the last under editor Carolyn Schiloetel and business manager Dave Schiloetel. Next week the new editors and business personnel will take over.

Students stuff animals

by Pete Trott

Have you ever had that stuffed feeling after eating at SAGA? There are quite a few creatures on this campus who know what it's like, but they didn't get the feeling from eating at SAGA. No, they were stuffed complements of the Whitworth taxidermy class.

According to taxidermy student Bill Slater, it takes anywhere from two days to two weeks to stuff an animal. In order to get an A in the class he had to stuff at least eight animals, so he spent a lot of time working on his stuffings.

First nearly everyone in the class stuffed a Chucka, a type of game bird. The Chuckas were shot on the day that they were to be stuffed. Since the flesh of the birds was not going to be used for anything, one of the students took the bodies home and made a good meal out of them. With the price of meat as high as it is, you can't afford to waste it.

One person in the class decided to try stuffing a skunk, but in the process of skinning it he accidentally cut open the scent glands. The resulting odor was quite evident to the olfactory senses of the entire campus for several days afterwards!

Another person (whose name has been changed to protect him from the abuse of those who believe in the Easter Bunny) bought a live rabbit which he planned to stuff. He was going to wait for a few days to stuff it, but didn't have anywhere to keep it in the mean time, so he took it home and let his sisters play with it for a while. When he was ready to stuff it, he brought it back to campus, gassed it, and went to work. On Easter day he took it back home, but it was not too well received by his sisters or his mother!

A couple of the students in the class have finished products in the glass case at the library which they are selling.
Whitworth captured at least a share of the Northwest Conference title last weekend, sweeping a three-game series from Pacific Lutheran.

The Pirates finished with a 12-5 conference record. Second place Lindfield, who beat Pacific 6-3 Tuesday, must win tomorrow against Lewis & Clark to share the title. In case of a tie between Whitworth and Lindfield there will be a play-off for the championship.

Coach "Spike" Grosvenor had this to say, "The first game we were three runs down and the guys came back to win it. Then the second game went ten innings. I was really pleased with the way we battled back to win.

In Friday's game Hansen pitched a strong eight innings, allowing only three runs, before Taylor came on in the ninth to put out a PLU rally. The seventh inning produced three of the Bucs four runs. Roy Jacobson singled home the tying run and scored the winning run on Bob Stoldt's single.

In the first game on Saturday Paul Badeaux battled Mike Berger for ten innings to win the game 5-1. With the bases loaded, Steve Olsen came through for Whitworth when he singled in Roy Jacobson for the winning score.

A four run first inning for the Pirates in the second game along with Rod Taylor's five-hitter saw Whitworth end the conference season by closing the Knights 10-1. Taylor lost his shut-out in the last inning.

The Pirates picked up a total of thirty hits off PLU's pitchers during the weekend. Bob Stoldt finished the 17 game season as Whitworth's RBI leader with 19. "We hit the ball pretty well," said Grosvenor, "but the key was good defense and pitching. Steve Rasmussen did a good job playing shortstop for Jim Travis who is injured and was crucial to us."

Whitworth has a good shot at a playoff berth. The Pirates finish the regular season Saturday with a doubleheader against Gonzaga.

Three qualify by Lanita Moyer

Freshman Claudia Smith travels to Hayward, California next Thursday to compete in the D.G.W. Nationals.

Claudia qualified in the long jump, 100, and 220 yard dashes, but will participate in only two of those events. Her best jump of the season was 17'0", and has times of 11.5 in the 100 and 26.9 in the 220.

Lynn Lorimer has qualified for the district meet with a shot put of 34'5". Cynthia Lloyd's 4'6" high jump qualifies her in that event.

Whitworth took third at Cheney's invitational meet last Saturday, against Eastern, North Idaho College, Eastern Oregon, Washington State, and the University of Montana.

Whitworth takes fifth PLU wins crown by Chris Bauer

The golf team had a forgettable weekend as they competed in the Northwest Conference tournament in Oregon. Expected to finish among the top teams, the Pirates had a poor start and only managed fifth place.

Pacific Lutheran easily took the team championship, while Lewis and Clark was second in the 72 hole tournament.

Bill Curry finished seventh, just missing the all-conference team which takes the top six.

The team is currently competing in the Eastern Washington Invitational at Hagman Valley.

SOIL, AIR, WATER AND ELECTRIC POWER

Top priority today: air pollution abatement, waste recycling, sewage disposal, mass transit. It adds up to a monumental national housecleaning job — underfoot, overhead, and in the waterways.

Electricity is the cleanest of energy to get this job accomplished. We need a lot of it now, and a lot more in the future.