New President Announced

By Laura Hutchison and Debbie Reinward

Doctor Robert H. Mounce, from Bowling Green, Kentucky, was recently nominated and accepted as the next president of Whitworth College. Mounce, who has a wife and five children, ranging in age from 35 to 22 years old, has a wide variety of education and teaching experience. He received a Bachelor of Arts degree in music from the University of Washington in 1946. He received a B.D. from Fuller Theological Seminary in 1954; a Th. M. in New Testament Studies from Fuller Seminary; a Ph.D. in Biblical Criticism from the University of Aberdeen, Scotland; and completed post-doctoral studies in archeology in Israel.

Doctor Mounce has had teaching and administrative experience at places such as Western Kentucky University, where he has been the Dean for the past eight years; at Bethel College, St. Paul, Minnesota; Linfield School, California; and Guatemala City, where he was the director of a radio station.

Mounce is also the author of eight books, some of them highly technical commentaries on the New Testament, and others, commentaries for laymen set against a technical background. Mounce is currently in the process of writing a commentary on the Pastoral Epistles. Besides writing books, Dr. Mounce has also contributed regularly to many journals, including Eternity, Lutheran Magazine, and The Standard.

The new president is anxious to arrive at Whitworth.

Pioneer donates land

By Lisa Heniges

Hilda Horn Schumacher has made Whitworth College and Pacific Lutheran University co-beneficiaries of a 372 acre ranch. The land, cultivated mostly in wheat, is valued at more than $500,000. Acting President Duncan Ferguson said, "It's early yet to know exactly what will be done with the money. The land is being sold and we're keeping in touch with Pacific Lutherans."

Ferguson added that the money would definitely go towards Whitworth's own endowment.

Railroad provides college insulation

Thanks to a grant from the Union Pacific Railroad, Whitworth College should be able to cut back on this year's fuel bill. The grant provided $30,000 to help winterize several buildings on campus. The $30,000 grant is to be spread out over the next three years and divided into two phases. The first phase, which concerns $10,000 worth of insulation being installed in several buildings, has been completed. The science building, McCaskeys Hall, Arens, Stewart, and the Warrens received another layer of Thermo Guard insulation.

The second phase of the project will occur over the next two years, with the remaining $20,000 to go toward storms windows for various buildings on campus.

Comments on the Nuclear Arms Race

Editor's Impressions

What's happening around town

Football standings

Soccer Club on the road

Classified advertisements

Continued on page 11
Feature New Faces

by Wendie Varner

Dr. Jim Larson is the new athletic director at Whitworth. Dr. Larson received his Master's degree from California State University in Fresno and his Ph.D. from UCLA. He has been the chairman of the Department of Education and assistant basketball coach at Dixie State University, Malibu. He enjoys jogging and playing raquetball. His family includes his wife, Ann, and two sons, Aaron and Peter. Dr. Larson says he is looking forward to having a "strong, quality athletic program."

Terry Kershaw has now joined the faculty at Whitworth and is in the Sociology department. He has been at Washington State University, after being a teaching research assistant at Ohio State University. He and his wife have one child.

Dr. Townsend Shelby

Dr. Betty Malmstad has joined the education department. She received her M.A. in Special Education from the University of Denver and is just completing her Ph.D. in Administration and Supervision from the University of Houston. Dr. Dean's Grant is providing work for Dr. Malmstad at Whitworth. The grant provides released time for staff to plan program changes." Dr. Malmstad and her husband are living in Deer Park where they own a home, until they relocate in Spokane.

Dr. Betty Malmstad

Dr. Jeff Stinson joins the German department after receiving his B.A. and M.A. from the University of Missouri. Dr. Stinson is working towards his masters degree in business while completing his Ph.D. at Whitworth. Jeff belongs to the German-American Society.

Dr. Jeff Stinson

Lee Anne Chaney joins the Whitworth staff in the science department after recently receiving her Ph.D. in Genetics at the University of New Hampshire, where she was a graduate research student. Earlier, she received her M.A. in Botany from the University of Alabama. Being a botanist, Dr. Chaney is very excited about learning all of the plants in the area. She also wants to return to playing the organ and piano in her spare time.

Dr. Lee Anne Chaney

Dr. John Yoder comes to Whitworth from North Park College in Chicago. There he was Chairman of the Department of Political Science, having received his Ph.D. from Northwestern University. Dr. Yoder's family includes his wife and two children, Luke and Rebecca. He is very excited about being in the west and is impressed with the openness and friendliness here.

Dr. John Yoder

Parisan impressions of America

by Bob Livingston

"I really like America," says Fred Westercamp, Whitworth student from Paris. "It's a great experience! I (studied) here (to attend Whitworth) because I loved it so much."

"To see one's society, it helps to know how it is viewed by others of a different culture, so the Whitworth Pressed Westercamp to reveal his observations and criticisms of American life. His simple English is a poignant mirror for us to look into.

"What I'm seeing is something here at Whitworth," comments Westercamp on his treatment here after being in the U.S. "Americans are usually very nice—I have been welcomed all over the states. I had great contacts in Iowa. I was invited a week into someone's home without paying. Even though they were not rich they share everything with me. But there is a special feeling here—maybe because it is a 'Christian school.'"

"I like people—but some people in France would be very shocked at the familiarity here. (Especially) shocked by the way professors and students talk to each other. You often use (professor's) first name? I'm not shocked—it's great! Sometimes in France we have a young teacher who is more liberal, but I remember when I was little I used to call my teacher, Master, and Master means teacher is everything; always right and student is nothing."

"From the bone to the skin I am French," as Fred reveals a touch of homesickness and reasserts his desire to always live in France. "U.S. is a brand new machine and everything that comes out of it is the same and perfect. You don't have old building or cathedral. You don't have any past, (and so) Americans are less interested by art and old, old culture. You don't have any background. You have modernity. You have a Civil War, but you don't have any old time like we do have. I like old people, old furniture, old things, clothes—it's great!"

"America is too big. Everything is big. I like the small French boutiques. In a small shop you have contact with sales people and they know your name. You can speak about your life and family with salesperson and everybody talks to each other. A small shop so cool! I just love it!"

---

Play rehearsals

By Diane Pindell

Rehearsals for the fall play, Tartuffe, have begun after the tense time of auditions on September 9 and 10. Twelve roles were cast out of the 33 who auditioned; five female parts and seven male parts.

Tartuffe is a 17th century comedy by the French playwright, Moliere. It is a farce of morals: the villain, Tartuffe, played by Stan Borg, is irreverently revolting to most of the household he has chosen to infest are either disgustedly noble, stupid, or both. The home is that of the wealthy Orgon, played by Jim Dobygery, whose wife Orgon (a wife thief and a pious impostor) has incriminated himself. Tartuffe magnificently succeeds in winning the respect and devotion of the head of the household. He then tries to marry Orgon's daughter, played by Karen Neufeld. He attempts to seduce his wife, played by Sandy Smith. Meanwhile, he tries to scrounge the deed to Orgon's property. He nearly gets away with it, but an enemy from France, Louis XIV arrives in time to recover the property, free Monsieur Orgon, and Paul Tartuffe off. Mr. Al Gunderson, head of the Theatre department, will be directing the play, and Mrs. Gunderson will be in charge of the voices of the performers.

Tartuffe is done in the poetic style and the con cerns will be highly stylized in the French Renaissance period. Mr. Gunderson will be using a page 7, Column 4.
Stop the Race: an analysis

By Brian Beer

Today nuclear war will not occur. The US and the Soviets know that if they attack each other, both of them willware peace. The Pentagon claims that the ability to launch our nuclear weapons is not enough to deter an attack by the Soviets. Thus, the best way to keep the peace is to stop the arms race.

A new US nuclear strategy, announced in August by the President, is being implemented. The official strategy describes the situation as being a step away from war. There is a second view, however, that the new strategy is fully implemented, nuclear war will be an almost certain event.

What is Presidential Directive 59? According to White House officials, it is a new and improved nuclear policy. According to the Senate, it is a new nuclear war strategy which will change the role of nuclear weapons from a duty to national security to a duty to national survival.

Another plan is to create a new arts building near the new music building. This would require a new director and complete the fine arts program.

In the immediate future, Maintenance plans to take care of routine grounds work and the unending succession of work orders. Amongst this, they will try to find time to refurbish portions of Alder Hall, making it more bearable for the students living there this semester.

Although Holden's seems to feel the wrath of being a department which is alternately ignored, griped at, and replaced by his budget, his outlook is basically optimistic. He feels that Maintenance has a good chance of being along with the rest of the campus and that 'most people realize the money and time they spend on keeping the campus running.'

Faithful to his optimistic veila, Holden concluded by saying, "It's nice to see the students back. The hubub, it's exciting!"
By Laura Hutchison

Last May brought with it quite a few cases of on-campus robbery. Various dorm rooms left unlocked were ransacked. Others were subtly pillaged from, and many wallets, jewelry, and other small items began to disappear. Alligator, all the contents of student lockers were stolen except for his room keys. When one girl in Arend Hall walked to the HUB and returned minutes later, $7 was missing from her wallet. One particular theft hit home in my mind because the final result of the robbery was so amazing.

It was mid-May of last year, and most people in my dorm were carefully locking their doors, even for short trips to the bathroom. The thievery that had been occurring across campus seemed to be at a high point. Two roommates living down the hall from me went to class, leaving the door unlocked. They returned, shocked, to find their room totally ransacked. Desk drawers were pulled out and clothes strewn all over the floor. Both girls’ wallets, some jewelry, and various other articles were missing.

The thief was not apprehended, and the rip-offs continued. The cooperation this time only lasted one week. Apparently, the girls received an anonymous package in the mail. The package contained every single item that had been stolen. The girls were amazed to see that their belongings had been returned. They conveyed the extreme gratefulness they felt to whoever decided to return them.

The girls wanted to know how the returns were to be paid for. The money was returned, the packages were complete. They didn’t want the money to be returned, they wanted to know how the thief was paid.

The more I thought about this crime, the more I came to the conclusion that this person did care about the items that were being returned. It was amazing that they had to be so careful, yet the thief was so willing to return the items. The only possible reason I could think of was that it was a test to see how long it would take to find the culprit.

It was a test of the ingenuity of the thief, and perhaps the thief became a Christian over the summer and was repenting for that past sin.

I was discussing these possibilities with a group of people, some of them began admitting that they had done wrong years ago and still felt guilty about. One person had been involved in a hit-and-run; another had borrowed a book, ruined it, and returned a newly purchased book of the same kind. And yes, the people involved in these incidents are Christians.

Stealing is only one of the many sins that all of us are guilty of. Though the Bible says that any sin is as bad as another, we tend to put stealing near the top of our “ten worst sins” list. Perhaps this is because so many people are hurt by the consequences of robbery, as well as it being a federal crime.

The more I thought about this crime, the more I came to believe that all of us can learn from the person who ransacked the dorm room, and three months later, returned everything that was stolen. We must consider that this person did care enough to return the items. We should then search our own hearts for hidden or blatant faults and reconcile those before criticizing another. The Bible has many things to say regarding this. For example, Romans 13:10 says, “The commandments, You shall not commit adultery. You shall not steal. You shall not covet.”

I believe we do. Applied to the case of the dorm room ripoff, these scriptures can teach all of us some very important lessons.

By Debbie Reinwand

The school year started off quietly for most students. Sure, there were the usual pranksters, but generally, the college’s reputation was left undamaged behind their College Crew members, wondering where to get the books for Forum. You could hear the traditional ‘Whitworth scream’ as old students waved good-bye to each other. And if you were at the right time and place, you could even witness one of the low-key initiation activities. All in all, it was a typical beginning for most students. But, for a handful of guys staying over in Alder, a previously condemned dorm, it was the pits.

A little history about Alder: Along with Calvin Hall, Alder was the first dormitory to be built on campus. When the dorm had been used as an extra classroom by upperclassmen. Both buildings were decaying and the school’s financial situation was deteriorating.

For the past two years, the school has been in an “overdue situation”. Due to the somewhat confusing process of room deposits, and the increased enrollment, Whitworth has had to bump students out of the regular dorms and into Alder Hall. All this jargon aside, it boils down to the fact that 25 freshmen guys were forced to live in Alder Hall.

Speaking from experience I can tell you that there is nothing more depressing than walking into the creaking, spider-ridden barracks and realizing you have to make it liveable. To top it all off the football team travelled to Oregon to compete in the ‘Whitworth Bowl’. After scoring in the first two quarters, Oregon took control of the game.

The theory behind opening Alder on these past two falls, is that new students and others will take over the dorm and put a new face on it. It is also a way for the school to avoid the Department of Health’s regulations.

It’s understandable that Whitworth’s budget is tight and the expense of not keeping Alder open, but renovating it may be out of the question. But, it seems that it is Whitworth’s responsibility to comfortably house the students who are paying their board and room. While Student Life will not divulge how many Alder residents are paying, a dorm member informed me that it is comparable to what students across campus are paying – for a double room.

The main problem in keeping Alder open seems to be money. This year, Whitworth has received many endowments, and grants and bequests. Some of these are for application to specified projects, but some have not been designated yet. The ASWC has a large Reserve Fund which is also available for projects. Possibly, an “Alder Renovation Fund” could be started.

A survey could be drawn to Alder’s plight, and the school could apply for grants to fix up Alder as they did with several other buildings on campus.

The most important, and not many students have to contribute, are the things we are students. Other people can do. Alder is being supplied with paint and other materials through a “sweep of the dorm.” We could volunteer our services to help them with their ‘sprucing up’. Also, we have been asked to keep dorms with hot showers, and a dorm t.v. Shouldn’t Alder residents have the same comforts?

Finally, everyone knows that the three basic human needs are clothing, food, and shelter. One Alder freshman informed me of another, very basic need. He said, “Tell them, we need locks! We want to be able to hear a voice muffler, ‘regular advertising rates.

Some sports section will be expanded to include scores of past games in the NAIA, as well as scores of professional games in the past and dates of upcoming games.

The editorial section will be featuring some new material. It will include guest editorials from prominent people involved in some of the controversial issues our nation faces today.

We hope to expand the “Letters to the Editor” section, and urge you to contribute your thoughts, ideas, and arguments.

A large internal change which took place this summer was the addition of a new, 300 film processor, used to develop the paper. The money was allocated by the ASWC. This addition will allow actual production to flow more smoothly and quickly.

A major event taking place on campus this fall is the change of advisers. Mr. A.O. Cary, long time adviser to the paper, has been replaced by Mr. H. A. Gray, long time editor and co-editor. Ms. Anne Hildreth is the new adviser.

Rounding this year to the editorial staff and moving to the position of Co-Editor is Debbie Reinwand, a senior.
The liberally educated person

By Dr. Duncan Ferguson, Acting President, Whitworth College

Note: This article is a piece of the 1980-81 convocation address delivered September 4, 1980 at Forum.

To achieve our goals at Whitworth is that our graduates will leave the college as liberally educated people. To be a liberally educated person is to be able to appreciate and enjoy the rare, and to know that we want our students to be exposed to the finest which has been thought, said, and done in the history of the human enterprise. We believe that this kind of exposure is liberating, that it sets us free to achieve our full potential as human beings. We can remember as a child having a fairly mild case of polio and being confined to a hospital bed for several weeks. I wasn't terribly ill like so many of the children who surrounded me in the hospital ward. I still had enormous energy, and I wanted to get out of bed, run, jump, play ball, and use all the energy God puts inside little boys. A couple of times a week, as part of my therapy, I was allowed to go downstairs to the hospital pool and swim all I wanted. For me, this was pure liberation, to be able to exercise my full powers in a human being. This is what a liberal education should do for us, allow us to realize our full potential. And, in spite of a national mood which is shifting away from humanistic and liberal learning and toward pragmatism and vocationalism, we are deeply committed to providing a liberating education.

To say it another way, to be liberally educated is to have the capacity to see the beauty and complexity of all that surrounds us and of all that is inside us. To be educated is to have the scales drop away from our eyes so that, all of a sudden, a starry night, a crashing ocean wave, a dazzling red sunset, and a glistening snowy peak are there for us in a way they've never been before. So, too, is the complex world of human thought and human experience. That is, the essence of life is wrapped up in the verb "to see." To be fully human, to become all that God wants us to become, is to have the capacity to see clearly.

To be educated is to see new views and perspectives, to see new relationships and connections, to see the depth and subtle meaning. It is the capacity to see the many in the one, and the one in the many.

More specifically, it is to have a sense of self, to know who we are and who we are going. To be exposed to the great and the good, to have our human nature is to put a mirror before our face and see ourselves for the first time. A quality education produces self-awareness.

To be educated is to have a sense of place, to know one's roots, one's cultural identity, one's personal history, how we fit into the flow of time through space.

The Whitworthian is an official publication of the Students of Whitworth College monthly, except During January, by students. Circulation 1500. Opinions expressed are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Whitworthian or Whitworth College.

PAGE 5 THE WHITWORTHIAN SEPTEMBER 22, 1980

issues and opinions

The liberally educated person

By Dr. Duncan Ferguson, Acting President, Whitworth College

Note: This article is a piece of the 1980-81 convocation address delivered September 4, 1980 at Forum.

To achieve our goals at Whitworth is that our graduates will leave the college as liberally educated people. To be a liberally educated person is to be able to appreciate and enjoy the rare, and to know that we want our students to be exposed to the finest which has been thought, said, and done in the history of the human enterprise. We believe that this kind of exposure is liberating, that it sets us free to achieve our full potential as human beings. We can remember as a child having a fairly mild case of polio and being confined to a hospital bed for several weeks. I wasn't terribly ill like so many of the children who surrounded me in the hospital ward. I still had enormous energy, and I wanted to get out of bed, run, jump, play ball, and use all the energy God puts inside little boys. A couple of times a week, as part of my therapy, I was allowed to go downstairs to the hospital pool and swim all I wanted. For me, this was pure liberation, to be able to exercise my full powers in a human being. This is what a liberal education should do for us, allow us to realize our full potential. And, in spite of a national mood which is shifting away from humanistic and liberal learning and toward pragmatism and vocationalism, we are deeply committed to providing a liberating education.

To say it another way, to be liberally educated is to have the capacity to see the beauty and complexity of all that surrounds us and of all that is inside us. To be educated is to have the scales drop away from our eyes so that, all of a sudden, a starry night, a crashing ocean wave, a dazzling red sunset, and a glistening snowy peak are there for us in a way they've never been before. So, too, is the complex world of human thought and human experience. That is, the essence of life is wrapped up in the verb "to see." To be fully human, to become all that God wants us to become, is to have the capacity to see clearly.

To be educated is to see new views and perspectives, to see new relationships and connections, to see the depth and subtle meaning. It is the capacity to see the many in the one, and the one in the many.

More specifically, it is to have a sense of self, to know who we are and who we are going. To be exposed to the great and the good, to have our human nature is to put a mirror before our face and see ourselves for the first time. A quality education produces self-awareness.

To be educated is to have a sense of place, to know one's roots, one's cultural identity, one's personal history, how we fit into the flow of time through space.

The Whitworthian is an official publication of the Students of Whitworth College monthly, except during January, by students. Circulation 1500. Opinions expressed are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Whitworthian or Whitworth College.

Co-Editors: Laura Hutchinson, Debbie Reinhard
Business Manager: Lisa Weaver
Production Manager: Pat Williams
News Editor: Mark Meyer
Feature Editor: Steve Greggs
Sports Editor: Marc Kubota
Editorial Board: Mike Wendlandt
Photo Editor: Brad Boersma
Advisors: Carol Buchanan, Ann Hollfield
Reporters: Tom Tag, Deanne Stone, Claudia Kiever, Wendy Vannier, Lisa Heniques, Kathy Crossman, Deanne Stohl, William Jenkins, Marquisa Nuby, Joe Gallego, Lori Bair, Paul Graham, Bill Burchfield
Production Crew: Susan Frink, Barb Wright, Greg Wright
Published by Thoms Publishing

New Whit.

political science/journalism major, and Laura Hutchison, a junior English/education major. Last year's Editor, is returning as Production Manager. Pat is a senior journalism major. Also returning from last year is Mark Meyer as News Editor. Mark is a sophomore journalism major. Brad Boersma, a junior business major, returns to the staff as this year's photo editor.

The editorial staff also includes several new faces. The new feature editor is Steve Greggs, a junior English/education major. Michael Wendlandt, the new opinion page editor, is a junior English/philosophy major. Sports Editor Marc Kubota is a junior journalism major. Lisa Weaver joins the staff as Business Manager. She is a freshman and has not decided on a major. Also joining is the Advertising Manager, Sherré Porter, a sophomore Advertising major.

So, with many new changes in store, the Whitworthian staff will be working hard to make the paper the best it can be this year. We have a very enthusiastic staff and many new reporters who are anxious to begin work on the paper.

Your opinion counts, too. If there are changes that you would like to see made in the Whitworthian, feel free to let us know. This is your paper—the student's voice, funded and produced by and for the students of Whitworth College. Voice your opinion here...if you don't, you aren't one of us.

vote

By Michael Wendlandt

On Tuesday, November 4, the United States of America goes to the polls to decide "a choice between two futures." Each American citizen has a responsibility to be an informed voter in that process. Also on that day the state of Washington had its elections wherein it shall decide who will fill its major positions of power. The match-ups are as follows:

President: Jimmy Carter (D) Ronald Reagan (R)

John Anderson (I)

Governor: Jim McDermott (D) John Spellman (R)

Leutenant Governor: John Chereborg (D) John L.ynch (R)

Secretary of State: Don Dotzauer (D) Ralph Munro (R)

State Treasurer: Robert O'Brien (D) Maury Hickey (R)

Attorney General: John Rosellini (D) Ken Eikenberry (R)

John Miller (I)

Insurance Commissioner: Joe Davis (D) Richard Marquis (R)

U.S. House of Representatives: Tom Foley (D) John Snow (D)

Van Dyk (R)

U.S. Senate: Warren G. Magnuson (D) Slade Gorton (R)

Land Commissioners: Bert Cole (D) Brian Boyle (R)

Spokane County Commissioners: District 1 John R. McBride (D) Maury Hickey (R)

R. H. Lewis (R)

5th Legislative-Rep: Position 1

Geraldine McCormick (D) V.R. Van Dyk (R)

Position 2

George Diana (D) Dick Barret (R)

5th Legislative-Senate: Jerry Hughes (D) R.H. Lewis (R)

If you want to vote on November 4th, you must be registered as an American citizen, whether you are registered somewhere else or not, all you need do is go to the Spokane County Fire house. It is one block east of Division Ave. It is open Monday-Sunday, 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. and all you need for registration is your Social Security number and valid identification. Whitworth students are intrusted. If you would like more information on any of the candidates running, you can call the Republicans of Spokane County at 624-1331, or the Democrats at 456-8802.
Jeff Lorber Fusion coming to Whitworth

by Steve Gregg

"Jeff Lorber Fusion", one of the West Coast's most popular jazz-oriented groups, will be performing at Whitworth Saturday, Sept. 20 at 8 p.m. in Cowles Memorial Auditorium.

In a telephone interview with Jeff, the leader of the group, the got the idea that he is excited about performing. This comes as no surprise, since as a child growing up in Philadelphia, he began taking lessons in classical piano at the age of four. Jeff gave a recital of his own original music while still in grade school.

I was surprised, however, when I asked Jeff about what happened between those early days and the time when Fusion was born. "That's an interesting question," he said. "Actually, I spent quite a few years deciding whether I wanted to be a musician. I spent some time in disillusions." After high school, Jeff first attended Berkley College of Music. After a short time, he moved out to Boston, and studied Chaplain's staff, and so important. Finally, he ended up at Clark College in Vancouver, Washington, where I was surprised, however, years later.

I asked Jeff about what happened between those early days and the time when Fusion was born. "That's an interesting question," he said. "Actually, I spent quite a few years deciding whether I wanted to be a musician. I spent some time in disillusions." After high school, Jeff first attended Berkley College of Music. After a short time, he moved out to Boston, and studied Chaplain's staff, and so important. Finally, he ended up at Clark College in Vancouver, Washington, where I was surprised, however, years later.

I asked Jeff about what happened between those early days and the time when Fusion was born. "That's an interesting question," he said. "Actually, I spent quite a few years deciding whether I wanted to be a musician. I spent some time in disillusions." After high school, Jeff first attended Berkley College of Music. After a short time, he moved out to Boston, and studied Chaplain's staff, and so important. Finally, he ended up at Clark College in Vancouver, Washington, where I was surprised, however, years later.

College Crew helps out

by Deana Stone

Throughout one's life, various types of people are encountered. Growth is a result of getting to know people and learning to care for them. On the campus of Whitworth College there are many types of people who are willing and anxious to love, some of whom are the dorm chaplains.

The duties of the dorm chaplains are: organizing Bible studies and prayer partners, being a more visible resource person, working with the resident advisors and the chaplain's staff and most importantly, being available to support students who are experiencing homesickness, loneliness, or even guilt. Probably one of the most distinguishing aspects of the dorm chaplain is that he or she is not under obligation to report a student who has violated a rule on campus. The reason why they aren't under obligation is that a student can have someone to turn to and talk to if they need it.

Lorber's emphasis on jazz music, as a result of the band, was born. "That's an interesting question," he said. "Actually, I spent quite a few years deciding whether I wanted to be a musician. I spent some time in disillusions." After high school, Jeff first attended Berkley College of Music. After a short time, he moved out to Boston, and studied Chaplain's staff, and so important. Finally, he ended up at Clark College in Vancouver, Washington, where I was surprised, however, years later.

The College crew is in charge of the dorm chaplains, to help incoming freshmen and transfer students get acquainted with the campus, to let them know about various programs and activities, give some academic advising, and to help them get to know people.

Jeff Harty, a sophomore, is a member of college crew and she feels that the program has been very successful, and wishes that Whitworth had had the program when she was a freshman. As with most ministers and services people tend to benefit from ministering as much as from being ministered to. Heidi made the following statement about her stay on college crew: "It forced me to get to know more people, and understand how the college works."

It appears that most of the groups have been quite successful and their success has been exemplified through the fact that many of the groups are going to continue to meet. Stephanie Porter, a freshman, was interviewed in order to get a freshman's reactions to the program. Stephanie's leader was Gail Stephan. In their first meeting they spent time getting to know each other.

In summary, the program has demonstrated a caring and loving attitude to new students, and seems to be successful so far.

Calendar of Events

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Location</th>
<th>Time</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sept. 23</td>
<td>Forum Spencer Shaw, Author and Producer</td>
<td></td>
<td>10:15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sept. 24</td>
<td>Intramurals Golf</td>
<td></td>
<td>10:15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sept. 25</td>
<td>Forum Leon Atkinson, Classical Guitarist</td>
<td></td>
<td>10:15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sept. 26</td>
<td>NBA Exhibition Basketball</td>
<td></td>
<td>7:30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sept. 27</td>
<td>Supernovas vs. Trailblazers at WSU</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Whitworth Invitational Volleyball Tournam.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>ment</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 2</td>
<td>Intramural Badminton Tournament</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 3</td>
<td>Men--Novice Rue</td>
<td>Aud.</td>
<td>8:00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 4</td>
<td>Jeff Lorber Concert</td>
<td>Aud.</td>
<td>8:00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 5</td>
<td>Forum</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Pam Kall/Hall/Scott</td>
<td></td>
<td>7:00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 6</td>
<td>Wesley Brown</td>
<td>Opera House</td>
<td>10:00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 7</td>
<td>John Anderson &quot;One Man Show&quot;</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 8</td>
<td>Forum Tony Conners, Author</td>
<td>Aud.</td>
<td>10:15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 9</td>
<td>Movie--Camerot</td>
<td>Aud.</td>
<td>8:00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 10</td>
<td>Forum Gold</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Melissa Manchester Concert</td>
<td>Opera House</td>
<td>8:00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 11</td>
<td>Football</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Whitworth vs. WWU</td>
<td>Home</td>
<td>1:00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 12</td>
<td>Valley Fall Festival Rodeo</td>
<td>Fairgrounds</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The Roommate ordeal

Kelly Rice and Laura Hutchinson

The following story is true. The names have been changed because both of us were guilty. The events related in this story formed our own experiences with former roommates and with each other.

During August I received the news and address of my living companion for the next academic year. Excitement and curiosity mounted as I sent off my first letter. We seemed compatible. My roommate was as much into sports as I was.

Upon arrival at my dorm room at "Camp Whitworth," I immediately began to unpack. I changed the closet door, the drawers, the bed, and the mattress. I put up all my posters and set up my stereo, just like at home in my own bedroom. Then, I eagerly awaited my roommate's arrival.

After an almost endless period of 15 hours, my roommate finally showed up. Her parents helped her get settled in three hours of philosophy, calculus, and theology books, not to mention the four versions of the Bible! No where did I see a basketball, tennis racket, baseball mitt, or even jogging shoes. My heart sank; I wanted to go home! That night I didn't sleep.

Early the next morning, I was rudely awakened by the loud buzzing of my snoring roommate. Thinking that a shower would cool me off, I quickly grabbed a towel and headed down the hall to the bathroom. After greeting the many other early risers in my dorm and waiting in line for fifteen minutes to use the shower, I quickly discovered that there was no hot water, and that there was no curtain in the community showers. This wasn't turning out to be anything like I had expected.

When I got back to my room, my roommate had MY stereo blaring with the latest rock music. Of course, I only listen to Contemporary Christian. The curtains were wide open and I hastily closed them before changing my clothes. My roommate looked at me in disgust and said it was one of her characteristics.

I realized that we should have a talk about whose carpet we would use and suggested that we discuss it over a cup of coffee with Mr. MacDonald. My hopes were dashed when my roommate replied that she was a vegetarian, and also a perpetual dieter.

As the week progressed, I discovered all too quickly that my roommate knew a lot of people on campus, including many specimens of the male type. Those men began to show up at all hours of the day and night, interrupting both my studies. However, I quickly learned to adapt to this "convenience." My roommate was all right!

The following week confirmed my speculations that my roommate was a perfectionist. She insisted upon me making my bed BEFORE I left for classes. I noticed that while I threw all my clothes into one washing machine, my roommate carefully separated her whites, colors, towels, and sheets into four separate loads. As a result, my influence prevailed, and she adjusted to my mode of efficiency by mid-semester. She also learned to have her bed unmade until after lunch.

Theoughout the year, my roommate and I learned to compromise and sympathize with the different habits that our parents had drilled into us. I learned to enjoy my veggies, and my roommate was just as much as she enjoyed having Five Mile Pizza, Bob & B., Christian rock, and sports.

By the end of the year, my roommate had become one of my best friends.

Chaplains cont.

Students Show Pirate Pride

By Steve Greggs

This past summer, most of us were probably thinking of Whitworth College far from our minds. For Sam Wiseman and Curt Carr, however, thoughts of Whitworth were probably all-consuming.

Sam and Curt are both athletes on Whitworth's football team. With the help of fellow students Charlie Storeboe and Toni Swanson, they did the new painting in the Pine Bowl during the summer. This included painting each of the press boxes, the cement wall along the foot of the stands, and the goal posts.

In a recent interview with Sam Wiseman, he revealed that between four of their friends spent 106 hours on the job, earning $1.25 an hour. "We were done by the middle of July," Sam said, explaining that all of them had fulltime jobs on weekends.

The money for materials came from ASWC funds. Since it was obviously not a high-paying job, I asked Sam the reasons for his effort. He said, "We wanted to upgrade the appearance of the stadium".

The most attractive feature of the job is the lettering "Whitworth College" and the Pirate logo painted on each of the press boxes. The owners liked the way the letters and shapes of the letters were laid out, and the colors were used upon viewing the stadium.

The finished product is very attractive, something for the Whitworth community to be proud of.

In a recent interview with Sam Wiseman, he revealed that between four of their friends spent 106 hours on the job, earning $1.25 an hour. "We were done by the middle of July," Sam said, explaining that all of them had fulltime jobs on weekends.

The money for materials came from ASWC funds. Since it was obviously not a high-paying job, I asked Sam the reasons for his effort. He said, "We wanted to upgrade the appearance of the stadium".

The most attractive feature of the job is the lettering "Whitworth College" and the Pirate logo painted on each of the press boxes. The owners liked the way the letters and shapes of the letters were laid out, and the colors were used upon viewing the stadium.

The finished product is very attractive, something for the Whitworth community to be proud of.
Larson brings winning ways to Whitworth

by Barry Adams

You may be wondering what the former head basketball coach of Westmont College and Cal State Bakersfield, with a combined record of 96-46 at those two schools is doing at Whitworth?

When presented with that question, new head basketball coach and Athletic Director Dr. Jim Larson, gave three reasons. "First," he said, "I really like the combination of Athletic Director and head basketball coach. Second, my wife and family have been looking forward to moving to the Northwest for some time. After 17 years in California we though a change was due. Third, I thought the chance to come to a Christian school with a good atmosphere, was very attractive.

Dr. Larson, the Doctorate is a degree in administration and P.E.-Athletics at UCLA, was assistant basketball coach at Pepperdine University in Southern California for the last two years. On top of his outstanding credentials in the college arena, Larson compiled a 142-28 record as a high school coach, including six league championships, and two Southern California titles in seven years of coaching high school basketball.

Another reason Larson is here stems from the fact that despite going to the district playoffs last year, Whitworth has not had a winning season in seven years. Most of the great coaches have turned program around, and certainly Jim Larson has this in mind. With his additional duty as athletic director has has a chance to turn the whole Whitworth sports program into a very successful one.

As far as basketball goes for this year, Larson feels that he had an excellent recruiting year, considering that he started in late May, the time most schools are finished. The two outstanding recruits are college arena. Larson compiled a 142-28 record as a high school coach, including six league championships, and two Southern California titles in seven years of coaching high school basketball. Larson feels the Bucs can play with anyone in the league this year with the talent they have.

Although Larson is not the type to make predictions or promises for the season, he says, "Our goal is to have the best possible season, I feel we’ve got to come through the non-league season with a winning record to be prepared for league battle."

With a coach like Jim Larson and his .744 career winning percentage, and a Pirate team that seemed to jell at the end of the season, with wins over PLU, and LC-State, it’s hard to imagine how the Bucs can go wrong this year.

A swarming Pirate defense closes in on the quarterback in a scrimmage in the Pine Bowl.

Bucs shooting for Title

by Barry Adams

Coming off a mediocre 4-11 year, the Whitworth Football team had, "the best recruiting year since I’ve been here," according to third year coach Daryl Squires.

With all conference returnees Jim Judd, Randy Schwartz, Bruce Olgard, Dave Pomante and Sam Wiseman, Squires has a great nucleus for the new crop of recruits to learn from. Squires feels that the senior leadership is going to make a great different this year.

The strongest part of last year’s ball club, the defense, is even tougher this year despite the loss of two outstanding defensive backs, Ken Pecka, and Greg Strom. The defensive squad is centered around 5’10”, 205 pound Dave Pomante. Last year, Pomante was named “Washington State All-College Defensive Player of the Year." He won the award over the linemen from both University of Washington and Washington State. Also back on the defense are Wiseman, a 6’6”, 250 point defensive tackle who came to Whitworth two years ago after the College of Idaho dropped their football program. Along with Wiseman is Randy Schwartz, a 5’10”, 195 pound linebacker, who is always around the ball, according to Squires. Other returnees include linebacker Wayne Brown, defensive end Kim Hatch, defensive end John Perkins, and defensive back Dennis Trotter.

"The Bucs feel that this year is going to be their year to win the conference title," Squires says. "Training camp has been great. People are hustling and key players are jumping everywhere, it’s been an interesting two weeks."

With last year’s conference champ PLU, ranked number 1 in the N.A.I.A national polls, the Pirates are going to have to be jumping all season long. Squires sees Linfield as the other team to beat in the conference. "It’s important that we win the first game at Eastern Oregon so we can be going into the Eastern Washington game with a win. It’s easier to win one after you’ve done it," said Squires.

The offense has improved this year, Squires noted. "We’ve got a lot more speed in our receivers which is going to open up our running game a lot."

Offensive returnees are 6’8”, 222 pound fullback Jim Judd, who rushed for 825 yards, second in the conference last season. Squires sees him as having an excellent chance at breaking the 1,000 yard mark. Linemen Bruce Olgard, Brad McGuire, Kevin Johnson and Mike Matthews are back, as is Bob Tietz who sat out last season with a leg injury. Also back are running back George Hays, receiver Don Galante and tight end Mark Archuleta. The burning question is: who will start at quarterback? Squires asked away from the question and said that it was very close between returners Bob Bracht, Mark Hansen, Jim Dor and new man Dan Harter. Squires said the starter will be picked later in the week.

Squires added, "If the students and other fans aren’t excited about football this year, then they never will be."
Runners optimistic toward season

As the last golden rays of summer hit the Whitworth campus, many students retire their faithful Nike's into the closet until spring and good running weather. But for some dedicated Pirate runners it is only the beginning of a long hard training season led by Coach Terry Kelly and his Assistant Coach Cindy Standley, a graduate and four year runner for the Pirates.

Cindy was very pleased with the 42 participants on this year's squad. "We always have a good turnout for cross country," she explained. "There is an abundance of potential on this years squad, and they will really go far. They are looking real good," Cindy added, "Both the men's and women's teams look stronger than last year's. The women's team hopes to go all the way to Nationals again this year and place higher than last year's twelfth place."

"The men's team hopes to place first or second in both Conference and District meets," Terry commented. "We have four men this year running faster times than last year's top man."

The men's toughest opponents will come from Willamette in conference and the defending District Champions, Central Washington University. Returning to the Pirate's men squad are: Charlie Lewis, Art Kelly, Ray Robertson, Wes Hikida, Jeff Rahn and Craig Detz. The other varsity hopefuls include Ken Clark, Brad Johnson, Jay Hodge, Steve Avolio, Steve Cred, Dale Edwards, Bob Lake, Kevin Sea, Mike Wendlandt, and Dave Williams.

"The women Pirates are also stocked with talent. Returning from last year's National team are Kathy Armstrong, Susie Jeffreys, Julie Dixon, and Lori Carlton. Returning from an injury is Clara Oswalt. Elizabeth Kiemle is a new addition, transferring from Linfield. Some of the freshmen to watch are Dana Betsch, Carol Lewis and Sally Elliot. The rest of the team consists of Karine Allen, Cindy Chamberlain, Paula Cullen, Greg Elliott, Wendy Halter, Cyd Kawamura, Beth Kinsler, Nancy Ladish, Kelly Rice, Annette Swanston and Sue Wright.

An alumni cross country meet was held September 13th here at Whitworth. Both men and women competed in typical courses of five miles and 5,000 meters respectively. The meet began at 10:30 a.m. with the women running first. The only alumni runner was the team's assistant coach Cindy Standley. She placed third behind first place Carol Lewis, and second place Annette Swanston. The other runners in the meet were: 4-Elizabeth Kiemle, 5-Sue Wright, 6-Lori Carlton, 7-Paula Cullen, and 8-Cindy Chamberlain. The alumni men came in behind the varsity with the Varsity 20/Alumni 38. The winner of the five mile run was Dave Sanderson with a time of 27:34. Second and not far behind was Charlie Lewis followed by Phil Codd, Art Kelly, Ken Clark, Ray Robertson, Wes Hikida, Steve Cred, Dave Williams, Earle Carroll, Dale Edwards, Randy Morgan, Steve Avolio, Brian Hafferkamp, Bruce Haferkamp, John Johnson and Tim Smith in nineteenth place.

Pirate Jeff Rahn is one of the 16 varsity hopefuls this year. (Bottom right) Freshmen hopefuls Dale Edwards running in the Pellow Invitational at Whitworth last Saturday. (Top right.)

Soccer Club has new look

by Marc Kubota

The Whitworth Soccer Club has a new look this year as well as a new coach and a new league, and they're excited about it.

The new look is one of organization which hasn't been a trademark in the past for the soccer club. Player/organizer Scott Tanner reflected on last year's season. "We had to cancel three or nine games last year because we didn't have enough guys to play, and that's because we weren't organized. Thirty players have turned out for the team this year and 18 will be left after a cut has been made. Because of the cut, new Head Coach Frank Liebert believes that the 18 left on the team will be players committed to playing every game."

Coach Liebert, a sociology professor at Whitworth, volunteered to coach since the school does not have a club for club sports. Liebert stated that the main reasons he was coaching the team is because he's working with a "tight bunch of guys" and he's committed to seeing Whitworth soccer become a varsity sport.

An enthusiastic Liebert, looking forward to their season opener against the University of Idaho, has three goals for the season. "We want to win a lot of soccer games, we want to have a good time, and we want to win well, with class."

The Pirates have also joined a league this year. The newly formed Central Northwest Collegiate Soccer Conference is an eight team conference including: Washington State University, University of Idaho, North Idaho College, University of Montana, Gonzaga, Eastern Washington, and Central Washington. Not every team in the league is a club team, and the conference has decided, according to Tanner, that only a team with Varsity status is eligible for the playoffs at the end of the season. The league would eventually like every team in it to become a varsity team.

The Pirates home opener will be against the University of Montana on October 5. The conference has scheduled games so there would be no conflict with football. Coach Liebert, who has been involved in soccer all his life, said, "It's a great sport to watch, and it's exciting, and I would really like to see some student support. We've got some good soccer to watch."
Nutrition
1985
News

Welcome back '85ers and all newcomers.
We've opened with great energy and enthusiasm and I want to direct thanks to all of you who helped organize the pre-registration and interview process. It worked and things moved along smoothly as we registered 316 people for 1985.

Our theme for this month is "Introduction to Nutrition 1985" and "Simple Lifestyle." On September 2, faculty members Ilsa Rhodes and Dianne Murphy spoke at our Information Dinner regarding Nutrition 1985 and the purposes it can serve. Later this month, Mary Ellen Galfity-Brown of the Spokane Peace and Justice Center will be sharing ideas with the group concerning simple living.

A series of film strips entitled "Living Simply" will also be featured during the next three weeks, the dates and times will be announced later.

During this past summer, Brian Best, Jim Craig and Kim Henritzy collaborated on development of a multi-media show that gives an overview of the 1985 program. The show has been viewed by many students at Triennium, The National Youth Event, and back here at Whitworth. It has been received with interest and excitement and we are very happy to have it. Thanks for all those long hard hours.

Get three square deals on three square meals.

THE COKES ARE ON US DEAL
Buy any 16-inch or larger pizza and we'll throw in a free pitcher of Coca-Cola® that's a $1.90 bargain. So, before you get a hot thist, cut that coupon out first.
Good only at
Pizza Haven.
Flour Mill W. 1212 Franklin Ave. 238-4805
W. Valley N. 1611 Mullan Rd. 928-5303
One pitcher per coupon. Not valid for delivery or take-out. Cannot be used with other coupons. Expires September 30, 1980.

SLICE THE PRICE OF PIZZA DEAL
When you order any 14-inch or larger pizza, we'll take $1.10 off.
So try a Mexican Style. Or a Pizza Haven Special. Or any kind, you want. Then do some pizza serving next time you get a pizza craving.
Good only at
Pizza Haven.
Flour Mill W. 1212 Franklin Ave. 238-4805
W. Valley N. 1611 Mullan Rd. 928-5303
Not valid for delivery. Cannot be used with other coupons. Expires September 30, 1980.

STAY AT HOME MEAL DEAL
If you can't come to our place, let us come to yours. Just call and we'll rush your pizza to you. We'll also give you $1 off any order of $5 or more. So call tonight. Then leave the driving to us.
Good only at
Pizza Haven.
Flour Mill W. 1212 Franklin Ave. 238-4805
W. Valley N. 1611 Mullan Rd. 928-5303
Cannot be used with other coupons. Expires September 30, 1980.

Here's your chance to take a big bite out of the rising cost of eating.
Just grab a pair of scissors and cut out for Pizza Haven.
We'll serve you some of the best pizza you've ever laid a taste bud on.
And we'll slice our prices when you hand us these coupons.
So come to Pizza Haven.
And get some good square deals on some great round meals.

Nutrition 1985
News
and begin his duties. Why did he choose Whitworth? Dr. Mounce said that he had talked with liberal arts colleges (Bethel College) much like Whitworth. He would work at a college of a similar campus (Kentucky U.) so that he could live among his col­leagues, yet was separated from the world. He felt that his work there never had anything to do with the Kingdom of God in our world, and, soon, he became in­terested in Whitworth. He felt very encouraged by this op­portunity.

When he returns, Mounce comes to Whitworth with an open mind. “I don’t come with any sort of idea ahead of time of what I’m going to do,” he said. “I’m very much faculty oriented, going to do an awful lot of listening so I can learn where we are, first of all,” he commented. Mounce expects to continue any dramatic changes to occur next year. Mounce said, “We need to look back at the past and we need openness to appropriate change.”

Mounce went on to comment on his personal faith in Christ. He is totally com­mitted to Christ and to the historic Christian faith. He seems himself as an Evangelical Christian, but not a “finger-pointing, narrow-minded” one. Mounce believes in the reality of a personal relationship with Christ. He said that the heart of the Christian faith is knowing Christ, who is not just a figure in history, but who is eternally contem­porary.

On the less serious side, Dr. Mounce mentioned that he is an avid sportsman. He has played handball three times a week since 1951. He is a pilot and “loves to fly.” He is also interested in tennis, and dormitory he was rafting in to the sport boating, Mounce likes individual sports, and believes “in participation in sports.” Mounce says that he “loves this section of the world,” and that he spent all summer in Oregon camping in a tent-trailer with his wife.

Mounce expects to continue his role as a Biblical scholar after he begins his work here at Whitworth. In that respect he will be different from other president’s Whitworth has had. His background and scholarly influence should be an asset to Whitworth as we enter a new chapter in our history.

To remedy the situation, Student Life proposed in 1977 to change Dorm Decision Day to Community Building Day. Now, besides making inner dorm problems, students can attend the pancake breakfast, the cross-campus games, and of course, the worship service.

In the beginning, the event was known as Dorm Decision Day. The day was validated by the Academic Affairs Council, and was set aside as a time to carry out Student Life’s philosophy that students could learn and grow from the experience of making decisions about their environment, values, activities and expecta­tions. It was placed on fellow residents.

Dorm Decision Day was carried out successfully for a number of years. However, according to Kaye Von Mickelson, Assistant Director of Student Life, conversations with students pro­ved that Dorm Decision Day was inadequate. Community was being built within the dorms, but students complain­ed to Mickelson that they weren’t getting to know anyone across campus.

To remedy the situation, Student Life proposed in 1977 to change Dorm Decision Day to Community Building Day. Now, besides making inner dorm problems, students can attend the pancake breakfast, the cross-campus games, and of course, the worship service.

It seems there was a real ef­fort to try something new this year. Of course, there were the typical dorm outing to parks and lakes, but Baldwin-Jenkins opted to spend the day making improvements on dorm such as painting the halls and basements, and adding a banana court. Baldwin emptied their treasurers and produced a barbeque and all-campus bar­dance with a live country-rock band. At least one theme dorm decided to do absolutely nothing.

Along with these im­provements and repairs, maintenance had its regular summer work to accomplish—painting, watering grounds, etc., and all this was put three weeks behind schedule because of an unfortu­nate volcanic ash) fallout that occurred on May 18.

When asked about the ex­tensive cleanup, Mounce could only reply that “It was a lot of fun.” He told how the crew dragged a lot of old fire hoses that needed to be replac­ed, tied them all together, and squirmed and sloshed and cleaned to their heart’s con­tent. One day they even got secretaries, and students out to wash buildings. According to Mounce, it “...turned into a real fun day, people squirting each other with hoses.”

Although the first official President’s Council meeting took place on September 15th in the HUB, representatives from every dorm in atten­dance. After President Doug Nave called the meeting to order, the first order of business was the adoption of the minutes from the last meeting.

After brief reports from the other executives, vice­president John Perkins and vice­president Tho­mas Chell, the council got down to the business of the day. First on the agenda was a special report from Ann Kinnel, who asked the council for their support of the SEWBE program. The next item of business concerned the investment of the ASWC funds. The council ap­proved of the investments which consisted of $10,000 in a six month money market cer­tificate and $30,000 in a money market fund.

The council then took up discussion over the Wilderness Foundation’s plans for the fall. The council was in favor of the plans and endorsed the council’s ideas to continue the wilderness trip.

The first official President’s Council meeting took place on September 15th in the HUB, with representatives from every dorm in attendance. After President Doug Nave called the meeting to order, the first order of business was the adoption of the minutes from the last meeting.

After brief reports from the other executives, vice­president John Perkins and vice­president Tho­mas Chell, the council got down to the business of the day. First on the agenda was a special report from Ann Kinnel, who asked the council for their support of the SEWBE program. The next item of business concerned the investment of the ASWC funds. The council approved of the investments which consisted of $10,000 in a six month money market certificate and $30,000 in a money market fund.

The council then took up discussion over the Wilderness Foundation’s plans for the fall. The council was in favor of the plans and endorsed the council’s ideas to continue the wilderness trip.

The first official President’s Council meeting took place on September 15th in the HUB, with representatives from every dorm in attendance. After President Doug Nave called the meeting to order, the first order of business was the adoption of the minutes from the last meeting.

After brief reports from the other executives, vice­president John Perkins and vice­president Tho­mas Chell, the council got down to the business of the day. First on the agenda was a special report from Ann Kinnel, who asked the council for their support of the SEWBE program. The next item of business concerned the investment of the ASWC funds. The council approved of the investments which consisted of $10,000 in a six month money market certificate and $30,000 in a money market fund.

The council then took up discussion over the Wilderness Foundation’s plans for the fall. The council was in favor of the plans and endorsed the council’s ideas to continue the wilderness trip.

The first official President’s Council meeting took place on September 15th in the HUB, with representatives from every dorm in attendance. After President Doug Nave called the meeting to order, the first order of business was the adoption of the minutes from the last meeting.

After brief reports from the other executives, vice­president John Perkins and vice­president Tho­mas Chell, the council got down to the business of the day. First on the agenda was a special report from Ann Kinnel, who asked the council for their support of the SEWBE program. The next item of business concerned the investment of the ASWC funds. The council approved of the investments which consisted of $10,000 in a six month money market certificate and $30,000 in a money market fund.

The council then took up discussion over the Wilderness Foundation’s plans for the fall. The council was in favor of the plans and endorsed the council’s ideas to continue the wilderness trip.
College plans building renovations

By Lisa Heniges

"Originally we had four projects in mind and asked for $730,000. But the people from the Murdoch Trust fund rejected one of those projects and withdrew $50,000 from the other two," said acting president Duncan Ferguson. Dr. Ferguson is primarily responsible for Whitworth College receiving a $600,000 grant from the Murdoch Charitable Trust.

The trust was created by the will of M.J. "Jack" Murdoch, the co-founder of Tektronix, Inc., of Oregon. It began in 1975 and is the largest private foundation in the Pacific Northwest. Developed to seek out and support institutions sponsoring creative programs, the trust recently added Whitworth to its list of recipients, granting the college $600,000.

More than fifty percent of the donation will go towards the renovation of the Old Whitworth Music building which can find its roots dating back to World War II. The structure was vacated by the music department in 1978 and will become the Whitworth Seminar Center for Professional education. The center will be headed by director Bill Yager who hopes to offer management-level people, "opportunities to interact with each other and experience mutual learning about the real problems of management, ninety percent of which are human relations problems."

The lower portion of the Seminar Center will be designated to include housing for visiting faculty and the Social Science division. Located upstairs will be seminar rooms and spacious areas for classes.

Another of the accepted projects is the partial reconstruction of McKay Hall to make room for additional office space. The trust also approved costs for an increase in staff for the Continuing Studies Center. Hired will be an assistant director and an extra secretary.

McKay Hall handles evening, summer and extended or off-campus classes for adult students. Usually these students are part-time and are continuing their education for a variety of reasons. "Continuing education is a lifestyle. Adults are coming back to school for career changes, personal enrichment, and to update their on-the-job skills. A lot of women are coming back because their children are all grown, out of boredom, or because of inflation," responded Jackie Fick, director of the Center.

Calvin Hall, a former student residence, now houses the Graduate Center for Applied Studies. Improvements made possible by the Murdoch grant are the addition of research services to businesses, social service agencies, and the college, explained Marilyn Smith, program director.

"The theme for all three projects is to introduce education for the non-traditional, or student over 23," reflected Dr. Ferguson. "We are tremendously encouraged by the news of this grant. It enables us to move forward in a very important area of service to Inland Empire residents and businesses. We have been challenged by the need for these programs and feel confident that with this help, we can increase our effectiveness in addressing that need."
Community Musical in Planning Stage

By Kim Pedersen

An event which could become a tradition at Whitworth is now in the planning stages. The all-campus event, slated for next March, will be an evening of crazy drama and song entitled "Whitworth Sings." The idea for "Whitworth Sings," came from Darrel Lynn, a graduate student in residence at South Warren. He was in such a production at Westmont College in California. After tossing the ideas around in his head and sharing it with a few Sophomores, it was decided that a similar event would be good for Whitworth.

According to Lynn, "It wasn't so much the event that mattered. 'Whitworth Sings' became a vehicle for a greater purpose—to get students working together on a short term project that could utilize everyone in each dorm, and students could have fun in a comic relief situation."

For the production, each dorm will put together an eight to ten minute musical with singing, dancing, drammatics, lighting, and choreography. By putting their own lyrics to familiar tunes, working out drama and choreography, painting backdrops, and creating costumes, each dorm will tell a unique story related to the show's theme. Because there are many details involved in putting together a quality production, everyone should be able to find some way to participate.

Sophomore Lori Cloninger volunteered to take charge of the planning when Lynn found it would require more time than he could allow. According to cont. on page 12

Village Provides Presidents Council Update

Unique Living

The Village is a group of cultural techniques, teaching dorms clustered together on the northwestern corner of Whitworth's campus. These dorms care programs, "Two years are unique in that in each year a girl who had taught individual dorm the students English while completing her living here there are all agreed ministry work was asked to continue their living after a come back in her professional common theme."

The Akili theme dorm for and continue teaching," is advised by a group of three revealed Jim Hunt, advisor to professors, Drs. Jim Hunt, the tour, Ross Cutter and Joann Atwell-Senior. Dr. Hunt stresses the tour will be spent in Mexico dorm's theme as being the concentrating on exposure to Central America Study-Ser-Urbanizing service program. The prime reason behind of the residents of Akili will be the involved students living to-involved in a project that will gather in a single dorm is to take them to Costa Rica for youth group activities. Dr. six weeks of language school Hunt feels "...that it will be and then on to Honduras for difficult enough for these two another six weeks of service to go into an unfamiliar work."

During the service work without their having to cope the students will be placed with unfamiliar faces as well. in a variety of community. And as a single living

The President's Council faced a full agenda for their meeting held on September 29. Among the subjects discussed were funding for the Drama Department, funding for "Whitworth Sings," and discussion of the presence of military recruiters on campus.

After the Executive Reports and the adoption of the minutes from the last meeting, the first order of business concerned funding for the Drama Department. Dr. Al Gundersen appeared before the council to ask for more funds for the Drama Department's annual plays. In last year's budget, the Drama Department was granted money, which would allow them to charge admission to students. The money that hasn't happened at past plays. The council decided to have each of the representatives take this issue back to their dorms for discussion before a decision was to be made.

Next on the agenda was a presentation by Lori Cloninger. She is trying to organize a musical production entitled "Whitworth Sings." She presented the proposed budget for the production, as well as giving a general description of what the production would be like. In her proposal, the musical would be staged in the Opera House's downtown. Several rent, for ushers, and for a stage crew. The council asked Lori to cont. on page 5

John Stuart Anderson gave his impression of Lord Byron this past Thursday night in the Auditorium.
Issues and Opinions

Honor's Code Refuted

by Debbie Reinwand

One of the latest endeavors of President Council is the formulation of an Honor's Code. An addition that was approved last week, 11 in favor, 5 opposed and 2 abstaining, reads: "Whitworth College is only as strong as its obligated members, and it is important for students to recognize that the credibility of our academic programs is directly related to their integrity, and realizing that Whitworth does not currently have our honor code, which embodies student integrity. Also realizing that a strong initiated honor code would guarantee the recognition of student maturity and ability, not as a series of rules, but as a formal statement applicable to all work done for academic credit. Be it hereby resolved, that the President and the Faculty Executive in order to write a code which shall be submitted to the President's Council and the Faculty as a statement of the facts of the situation.

Let me start by saying that I am not against honor, per se, not against the people who initiated this. What I am against is connected with an 'Honor's Code.' While the people proposing it feel it would be an indication of student morality, I feel it would have a negative effect of that of distrust and suspicion.

All students entering Whitworth bring with them a commitment to Christianity. The mainstay in the Public Relations literature students receive. It is also reflected in the way the administration, the staff, students should understand, and the students will not be tolerated. If the school is doing its job in presenting a Christianized campus, there should be no need for an 'Honor Code,' honor should be evident.

Another side to this issue is the fact that students pay close to $7,000 a year for their educations. So, most students are here for the knowledge they can acquire and the abilities they can achieve. It hardly seems possible to neglect their way through their education and undetected. Since all college bound students are either admissions bound or ACT (these are virtually the same), the problems are in the testing of admission standards. If there is a problem with upholding academic integrity perhaps the admission standards should be challenged rather than our integrity.

Honor's integrity, by the time a person reaches college they have acquired a role, a role that is not always correct. A role that is not always right. Signing a piece of paper won't stop someone from cheating. It may make them look over their shoulders, but they're cheating. Why will students do this to the classroom? Will students be watching over each other, like hawks, simply because they're afraid of what? Simply because they're afraid of what their classmates might say? What will they do to the classroom? What will they do to the honor system?

Editor's Impressions

Ronald Reagan? No Way!

by Mike Wendlandt

In the closing remarks of the Anderson-Reagan debate, an unchallenged disagreement cropped up. Ronald Reagan discussed the idea that America's leadership was foreordained for a special breed of people to inherit. John Anderson, currently commenting on Reagan's feeling, said that he felt the three greatest issues which the mainline parties failed to address were atomic war, use of nuclear force and imperialism. If we feel that at least one of these, Nationalism, has been addressed by the opposition candidate, Mr. Ronald Reagan, and it is Nationalism, looking at global issues in terms of the self-interest of the United States, that I find repugnant in the campaign of Ronald Reagan.

John Anderson referred to this Nationalism with such words as chauvinistic and parochial. I would like to add one more: unchristian. I am unable to reconcile the essential call of Christ to love our neighbors with the call of Mr. Reagan to make our country great again by reducing expenditures, increasing defense expenditures. At the heart of these methods of making our country great I find the theories of self-interest, which is nothing more than a talk about selfishness.

In reducing taxes, I see Mr. Reagan telling the American people that they have had to give too much of their personal lives to this nation through taxes placed on their earnings. Yet what is too much. The Americans who this tax-cut benefits will be those who already have much more money than is necessary to live on. I recognize Mr. Reagan's claim that this returned money will be re-invested, and thus create jobs for those who do not have enough money to live on, yet his proposals give no assurances that re-investment will occur. Rather I hear in the proposals the voice of Dr. Milton Friedman telling us that this money should not have been taken in the first place, and that each American should do with the returned taxes as s/he sees fit. This is contradicted by what is perceived by Friedman and the Republicans, the right of self-interest. An individual's right to control his/her political system which is not only grossly unfair, but not fair.

It is my belief that this issue is a political system which not only works well, but which is so universally correct that if it is seriously challenged, we are justified in sacrificing the lives of countless millions. Self-interest combined with military might suggests a rejection of wisdom and discussion in favor of strong arm tactics which forces another to agree or suffer the consequences. At the heart of increased defense expenditures I perceive a massive goal of selfishness supported by an amazing conceit which would have us transcend the desires of a loving God as expressed in holy scripture.

Because I see the central motivation of Governor Reagan is Nationalism, and because I see this Nationalism as represented by his sense of never having enough, and to increase defense expenditures as having its primary motivation as self-interest/selfishness, and because I see self-interest/selfishness as being the same thing as the call of Christ Jesus. I reject Ronald Reagan as a candidate to receive my vote.

If you have some other ideas write me a letter and we'll let everybody read them.
The Bible and the Conscientious Objector

By Brian Nelson

Being a conscientious objector is minority position in the American military, is it? After exploring my CO's status to my Christian parents and other church members this summer, and through experience and observation, I will share my views and thoughts in relationship to this issue that has become such a part of my life.

Upon the social issue we must first go to God's word to know Him and His will. Jacques Ellul in "An Essay of Conscientious Objection" captures the sentiment of many in the wilderness. The first temptation in Matthew 4 is very relevant: Satan tempted the man Jesus who had not eaten in forty days to turn stones into bread. This being a materialistic temptation would have been wonderfully helpful for Jesus' body. But to take part in food was not yet in God's plan, and to do so would have been disasters for the Trinity and our salvation. To refute Satan, Jesus used Deut. 8:3, proclaiming that "man does not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God." Here Jesus uses the written word of God to silence Satan.

This passage is analogous for the social activist who perceives with his human senses that the material or social condition is not good and must do something about it. The temptation is to jump on the "cause," truly going to God's word first.

Here are some basic facts, many of which tempted me to react "passionately." Our population is apparently dying at an annual rate of a half billion a year due to lack of food, and another half billion are malnourished. We are rich in the acres very responsible for this; how much is in debate. Whatever our responsibility, we must respond as rich nations to the poor nations. Instead our response to the world is fear, resulting in a $500 billion annual expenditure for the war to contain the "threat". The world is spending approximately $150-200 billion on the military with plans of continual escalation. These facts create a picture of a war that is beyond simple fear and politics. Let us see beyond this crime grows more monstrous with the destructive power of nuclear war systems at hand. The U.S. alone can destroy the earth many times over (black hatred).

This tempted me to quickly respond by jumping on the "cause." But this is the great mistake to do. I know that working for peace is a godly characteristic, but let us who are peacemakers keep our cause in the right perspective, and not jump on the "cause." In the variety of the Church body, what is a more widespread notion in the Christian church? What is the answer we give Christ Jesus? "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us" (and we beheld His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father) "full of grace and truth" (John 1:14). God is love, therefore we must love: a love that extends unconditional love, and we must love not only our own, but our enemies: as Christ said "love your enemies." The Bible is full of passages challenging us to the perfection of following Christ and His example of love. "How is it possible to fulfill the law of Christ when one does not love his neighbors to whom one has demonstrated the love of Christ?" (Gal. 5:14). Dear children, let us not love with words or tongue but with actions and in truth. (1 John 3:18). Here my reaction to Christ's witness in lies of the world's present situation is to be an absolute pacifist, as was the early Church. But I am not.

Saint Augustine (A.D. 354-430) developed the just war theory. This enabled the Christians to fight in the Roman army for just cause. Applying this Western-Greek doctrine, a Christian weighed the evils of combat to the good that will come out of a victorious war effort, then decides to participate or not. The Church has adopted this method throughout the rest of history, though it deviated occasionally for crusading reasons. The church in America's history has sanctioned many "just wars": the Revolutionary War, the wars "to end all wars," and the Vietnam "conflict." But today even if the just war theory is applicable, possibility, many Christians, myself included, are reassessing the scales to see if there is ever a chance that a nuclear super power could engage in a war where the costs of combat would be outweighed by the "victory." With the ever-growing possibility of a nuclear holocaust, perhaps its impossible that the application of just war theory is possible...the scales are overwhelmingly heavy on the side negating the possible use of our military. Even with the oppressive and tyrannical governments in Mao's China, many do not support such a war. "I'd rather be dead than Rom." The Communist persecution could be great, but we are not called to suffer and rejoice in it. (Gal. 6:7).

Assuming that participating in the U.S. military would be a problem, how can the alternative be drafted where his C.O. status was not accepted, the conflict of authority would arise. Our authority is ultimately only God, but according to Paul in 1 Corinthians 9:17, "whatsoever things ye do in word or deed, do them all to the glory of God." It seems that one who resists authority would mean resisting God Himself. Biblically we can balance this out with Acts 4:19 where Peter declares his allegiance to the "higher law" when in conflict with the Jewish Court. Also, in Revelation 13 scripture proclaims that Satan has been given power over all earthly authority and powers. Therefore, for him to mandate here for another war, is simply beyond the authority issue. It is an individual matter on how the Lord led the Christian about he live out.

If the Christian stands with the C.O. and against some of the U.S. government's military policies, an option to not being just "protest" or "make a stand" is to be a pacifist, whether Christian. This option can possess an unconditional loving attitude toward the world hope in Christ and act in a way that matches nationalism. God as Judge judges our hearts and not our intellectual choice of what is the most practical influential political policy. Today the popular political choice is our "protest" in the arms race. Let us not fall prey to perceiving that this is the only way to deal with the Communist leaders. Since we are free in Christ, we must be free from cultural "norms." This is not to say all cultural "norms" always have evil produce, but we must be aware of them in order to be free humans.

There are other alternatives to promoting a nuclear super power, i.e. the positive power of non-violence espoused by Gandhi and Martin Luther King. The power of praying to our omnipotent God is not only an alternative but a biblical commandment.

I suspect many of the fifty million "born again" Christians and their children in the U.S. are "out of the bomb" if they are placing their personal security in our nuclear defense systems instead of on the power of our sovereign Lord. Once again, this is a God issue, and his time and place. This can be done, and thus the "pacifist" may be seen with Asyrya and Egypt. Instead of relying on God's might, they placed their security on the strength of charis and horses (Hosea 8:9-10,13-14, Isaiah 30:31). Let us not fall equally into this idolatry.

We need to speak out against this idolatry and return to God's word and reliance. But God's written word does not speak to all in the same manner. To participate in the U.S. war effort, then God is, and not whether is His word constantly against wars and killings (see Joshua). We cannot biblically state that all wars are wrong. God's word today have made clear and consistent of war where the main peace activists have given support in the name of Christ. Dietrich Bonhoeffer's political activities aimed against Hitler's life is one example and there are, and have been, many Christian revolutionaries throughout Latin America and Africa whose cause has been sanctioned. It remains to be seen whether Christian to be an absolute pacifist and a bolder one who proclaims it is our only moral option.

So what is the answer? God is not afraid of extremes in our world's horrific fragile and ugly state. Since 1968 the U.S. government has shipped their total atomic arsenal, the megatonage bombs and warheads (Solomons, Sept. '80, pg 4). If we as Christians, are applying our faith to relevant social issues in the forefront of our thinking, we have a responsibility to point out a God's will. Shouldn't the question be, "should I go over the fence?" rather than how do I participate in the service if drafted?

Blessed are the Peacekeepers, for they shall be called children of God.

---

Hunger, Development, and Action

by Jim Craig

The reality of world hunger is still upon the minds of many students and faculty at Whitworth. Often this reality stymies our imagination and resources. It leaves us powerless to do anything about it. We despair at the thought of what can be done to end world hunger. What difference can individual students make? How can I respond? These questions must first be answered, or the issue of hunger becomes an academic toy for our intellectual pleasure and a whip to castigate our sour consciences.

It will be a great relief to anyone who asks these questions to be told that a group of students attempting to find some answers. They are not self-appointed "prophets" dogmatically dispensing social salvation, but rather quiet intellectuals between the "pine cone curtail" movements and "water beds" issues. They are the organizers of "Hunger, Development, and Action" project who are scheduled to take place at Whitworth for the spring semester of 1980.

Because of the unique nature of Whitworth, information and resources are easily obtained. Many Whitworth students practically grows on trees, just waiting to be picked. Therefore, the conference can afford to cover more than just the basic information and facts on the global food crisis. It will provide information that allows the participants to explore in depth the possible steps toward solutions—and ways to incorporate these efforts in the movement to end hunger in the world. The conference organizers plan to empower those who participate—to help them respond to hunger that are possible and practical.

Brian Best, Shelly Frase, and Kim Henrey are the three people behind "Hunger, Development, and Action." A possibility.

Address to the Editors of The Whitworthian, 202 Waterbed Hall, Whitworth University, Kennewick, WA 99336.

Whitworthian is an official publication of the students of Whitworth College and is published twice monthly, except during January, by students. Circulation 1800. Opinions expressed are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Whitworthian or Whitworth College.

Co-Editors: Laura Hutchinson, Debbie Reinward
Business Manager: Lisa Weaver
Production Manager: Pat Williams
News Editor: Mark Meyer
Production Assistant: Chris Proctor
Sports Editor: Marc Kubota
Editorial Editor: Mike Wendland
Photo Editor: Brad Boeoms
Photography: Carol Buchanan, Ann Holliday

Photographers: Brad Adams, Lynda Stone, Paul Graham.
Reporters: Sun Tan, Deann Stone, Claudia Klever, Wendy Miller, Penny Crostman, Deanna Stoll, William Jenkins, Marquis Nub, Joe Gallegos, Lori Bair, Paul Graham, Bob Livingston, Barry Adams, Hans Christenson, Patrick Rose
Production Crew: Susan Fink, Barb Wright, Greg Wright

Published To The Publishing.

DISCOUNT WATERBEDS

Waterbeds Starting From $119.95

Ask About Our Rebate Plan. As Low as 99¢ a Day

We will not be undersold. Prices subject to change.

W. 211 Second

(509) 747-0960
Oct. 24-30
PICNIC AT HANGING ROCK (1975)

Director: Peter Weir
Cast: Rachel Roberts, Dominic Guard
90 min.

A group of young girls from a Victorian finishing school go on a Valentine's Day outing to Hanging Rock, where they encounter a massive volcanic formation in the Australian bush. Four of them and a teacher climb the Rock; only one returns. Incoherent; the others are never seen again. Director Peter Weir (The Last Wave) uses haunting music, dreamlike cinematography and rich imagery to depict a visual civilization confronted with unexplainable mysteries in the world of nature. In English. (PG)

Nov. 21-27
APOCALYPSE NOW: THE WRATH OF GOD (1977)

Director: Werner Herzog
Cast: Klaus Kinski
94 min.

Around 1550, a group of Spanish conquistadors vanished in the upper reaches of the Amazon. In director Herzog's box-office flop, the story of this expedition falls into the hands of one Don Lope de Aguirre, a power-hungry fanatic who dreams of establishing an empire in South America. Klaus Kinski creates a magnificent portrait of Aguirre, who comes across as a brooding combination of Hitler, Attila the Hun and Richard III. Filmed in wild, awe-inspiring settings, this short epic is one to be remembered a long time in German, with English subtitles. (Not rated, probably G)

Dec. 26-Jan. 1
THE PICTURE SHOW MAN (1977)

Writer-director: Joan Long Cast: Rod Taylor, Judy Morris, John Mellow
99 min.

Based on an autobiography of an Australian movie pioneer, the charming film recounts with Raffaello and wit the adventures of a showman who brought early films to entertainment-starved bush and backcountry people. Combined with a fine cast of character actors, Picture Show Man has been described as the most enjoyable new film in years. In English. (Not rated, probably PG)

Jan. 16-22
THE WONDERFUL CRICK (1977)

Director: Cleo and Gustave Gasset
Cast: Gerard Depardieu, Marlene Jobert
112 min.

A news item about a small businessman who pulled off a robbery in order to pay his employees was the inspiration for this film by Gasset (The Lacemaker). The original title, Pas Si Melancolie Que Ca, or Not As Bad As That, aptly describes the comic, appealing Robin Hood who blunders into one sad mishap after another, including an extramarital romance. His adventures, set in sunny Switzerland, weave a pattern of subtle jokes, display genuine fun in French. With English subtitles (not rated, probably R)

Feb. 20-26
THE TREE OF WOODED CLOGS (1978)

Writer, director, photographer: Emanuelle Olmi
185 min. (Shown only once each evening of 7:30, matinees of 4:00)

This Connes Film Festival Grand Prix winner is a tapestry in semi-documentary style that intertwines the lives of several Italian peasant families at the turn of the century. Using short vignettes and non-professional actors, Olmi captures the slow, lyrical pace of the seasons, the rituals, joys and tragedies of individuals at the mercy of nature and a highly structured, autistic society. "A quiet masterpiece." In Italian, with English subtitles (not rated, probably G)

March 20-26
THE MARRIAGE OF MARIA BRAUN (1979)

Director: Werner Fassbinder
Cast: Hanna Schygulla
120 min.

Germany's recovery after the devastation of World War II is the setting for this story of a beautiful, clever woman who rises from the ruins to success as an actress. In route to the top, she uses sex and love to manipulate her husband, family and employees. Director Fassbinder's unique blend of Germany's most prolific new film-makers, allows many parallels to modern German society in this tale of dreamis relentlessly compromised. In German, with English subtitles (R)

April 17-23
BREAD AND CHOCOLATE (1978)

Writer, director, Franco Bressi
Cast: Nino Maderni, Anna Karina
127 min.

The hero of this funny, wistful comedy is Nino, one of many ambiguous Italian immigrants who scramble for menial jobs in prosperous Switzerland. As he goes from one cultural blunder to another, struggling for the luck of being Austrian, Swedish and Nordic, Nino's misadventures provide satirical commentary on national temperament in Italy, Austria and Switzerland, with English subtitles (not rated, probably R)

May 22-28
PERCEVAL

Director, writer, Brigitte Fontaine
Cinematographer: Emanuele Olmi
137 min. (Shown only once each evening of 7:30; matinees of 4:00)

Bride, who directed such delightful and unusual films as Les Orpailleurs (L'Eclaireuse) and Enfant de la Nuit, does her best to re-create the spirit of medieval theatre. The adventures of Perceval, a country bumpkin who becomes a great knight, are based on the 12th-century poem by Chrétien de Troyes, and contain much to please lovers of historical romance and myth -- silly humor, damsel in distress, Arthur's court, and religious ideals. All are conveyed with brilliantly colored, stylized sets, narrative styles and music of the period -- an extraordinary departure from the usual history epic in French, with English subtitles (not rated, probably PG)

THE SECOND SPOKANE INTERNATIONAL FILM FESTIVAL

These recent productions by major international directors and performers have won widespread critical acclaim and promise a season of great entertainment!

All films will be shown at the Magic Lantern Theatre, S. 124 Wall St., Spokane, for 1 week, twice each evening at 7 and 9:30 p.m., and at 2 and 4 p.m. matinees on Saturday and Sunday, except as noted. A film critic or teacher will introduce each film on Monday nights at 6:45, and will lead a brief discussion after the showing for those who wish to participate.

SEASON TICKET SAVINGS:
I. General public admission: all 8 films for $20, or only $2.50 per film, 25% saving
2. General public season tickets on sale only at the Magic Lantern Theatre before Oct. 31. Regular admission for each single film: $3.25
3. Students and faculty full-time at any area college or university: all 8 films for $10, or only $1.25 per film, a 35% saving
4. Faculty or staff of any area college or university: all 8 films for $18, or only $2.25 per film, a 30% saving
5. Student and faculty season tickets on sale only at Oct. 10-31 at the following locations:
   - Eastern Washington University: PUB Information Desk
   - Ponce Union Bldg
   - Gonzaga University: Information Office, Room 400, Administrative Bldg.
   - Spokane Falls Community College: Office of Student Activities, Bldg. 17 (The SFC)
   - Whitworth College: English Dept. Office
   Pick up all Category II and III checks payable to the Eastern Washington University Artist and Lecture Committee.

ALL SEASON TICKETS GOOD FOR ANY SHOWING. ANY DAY EACH FILM IS SCHEDULED

SPECIAL GRAND OPENING KRBX — KRBX BENEFIT CELEBRATION
Thursday, Oct. 21: 7:30 and 9:30 at the Magic Lantern Theatre

DINNER FOR ADELE
A great party of the Nick Carter murder mystery, in which Nick and his lady friend are the main suspects. Adele, depicted with much Edwardian mannerism, grandeurs and spectacular gowns, is a comic gem from Czechoslovakia promises an evening of sheer fun! Entry champagne punch, refreshments, one night only showing of a great new film

$5.00 minimum donation to season ticket holders, $7.50 for others. For reservations, call the Magic Lantern at 359-1747 or KRBX at 3-477-5709

Sponsored by the Eastern Washington University Artist and Lecture Committee and the Magic Lantern Theatre, 359-2379 or 747-1747.
The conference has been conceived to meet three needs: first, to provide a fresh perspective on an issue of extreme importance that has become the focus of a great deal of controversy; second, to strengthen the involvement and commitment that the scope and complexity of the issue demands. Finding fresh means to communicate this scope and complexity is a priority for the planning group. Art, music, and movies will embellish the usual program elements. Popular and incite speakers, such as John Alexander of The Other Side, have been invited to attend. Overall, the conference should be an exciting and stimulating event to attend.

Secondly, Brian, Kim and Shelly hope to initiate discussion on the possible solutions to world hunger. Resources on this aspect of hunger have not always been available to Whitworth as a whole—on one reason why despot or not, is the prominent tone of the campus. The conference wants to integrate these resources into the conference as part of the program. The participants are to make possible responses to hunger in their lives.

Finally, the conference will provide direction to those who seek specific and concrete measures to respond to the situation. An issue of world hunger development, practical projects, and personal skills are related to the world will be a major theme of "Hunger Development, and Action." Celebration, not the usual mood of radical life, will take place as well—through a concert and worship service. The planners firmly believe in the investment of all human resources—creative, spiritual, analytical, and practical—into the solution of hunger.

The conference, however, may never take place. The detailed work of following through with preparation for the conference remains unfinished due to lack of support. So the future of this project—a conference that provides hope, not despair—depends on the availability of volunteers giving their time to make it happen. Several options for involvement, for flexible and diverse amounts of commitment, exist. But because financial arrangements must be contracted in advance, support is needed to make it happen. Several options for involvement, for flexible and diverse amounts of commitment, exist. But because financial arrangements must be contracted in advance, the conference may not happen. Several options for involvement, for flexible and diverse amounts of commitment, exist. But because financial arrangements must be contracted in advance, the conference may not happen. Several options for involvement, for flexible and diverse amounts of commitment, exist. But because financial arrangements must be contracted in advance, the conference may not happen. Several options for involvement, for flexible and diverse amounts of commitment, exist. But because financial arrangements must be contracted in advance, the conference may not happen. Several options for involvement, for flexible and diverse amounts of commitment, exist. But because financial arrangements must be contracted in advance, the conference may not happen. Several options for involvement, for flexible and diverse amounts of commitment, exist. But because financial arrangements must be contracted in advance, the conference may not happen. Several options for involvement, for flexible and diverse amounts of commitment, exist. But because financial arrangements must be contracted in advance, the conference may not happen. Several options for involvement, for flexible and diverse amounts of commitment, exist. But because financial arrangements must be contracted in advance, the conference may not happen.

The Whitworth, October 6, 1980
KQRS: maturiug yearly

by Deana Stone

Have you ever awakened to the inspiring words of "Family Forum" and gone to sleep to the sound of 'Jill Bauermeister?" If you have, you had the experience of listening to the best of both worlds; but maybe you should tune in to KQRS, Whitworth's radio station. KQRS has just celebrated its third birthday.

Much of KQRS's existence is due to the work of John Flora, a former student of Whitworth College and President Lindeman, about four years ago. John and several other students had the dream of starting a radio station here at Whitworth and it finally became a reality when it was approved by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) on September 27, 1980. KQRS had its grand debut several days after that.

Starting a radio station isn't as easy as it sounds. It took one year or so to get the approval of KQRS from the FCC. Plans of forms had to be filled out, filed, and signed and re-signed. Getting the approval was going to be a big task; however, the approval difficult, but the financing was as well.

Most radio stations start out with about $25,000 but Whitworth's started out with only $10,000. Now the funds for the station come from the students and underwriting for the most part. The station now has a budget of $8,000 a year. When the station first started it obviously needed a tremendous amount of equipment. The station received some equipment from a high school in California, some old equipment from KHQ radio station, and Hurton's Hi-Fi sold equipment to KQRS at reduced prices.

KQRS is a class D 212 radio station and is on a frequency of 90.3. Because it has a large area of listeners, the FCC doesn't require any more than 100 watts. KQRS is hoping to become 100 watts and it is very optimistic about doing so.

Whitworth's radio station is one of the best in Washington state because it is part of the educational system. When Whitworth decided to take on the responsibilities of having a radio station, it had to promise to do so months to hours. According to Jill Bauermeister, the General Manager of KQRS, the stations devotes time to education by training students to learn how to speak well and possibly become disc jockeys. By keeping the college and the community aware of the important news stories, and by giving a Christian witness. The station has also educated its listeners by playing different types of music such as classical music.

KQRS has a tremendous impact on the life and atmosphere of Whitworth. The radio station really wants to do what the students and faculty at Whitworth want. Probably one of the stations greatest problems is that nobody knows what to expect. To overcome this problem, the station consists of students and that they are students first and not have the experience of working in a professional station.

One of the other majorGenerating of the KQRS staff is the station's Christian perspective and outreach. Their main question is whether the station has been, "What should we do as far as giving suggestions from the listeners was emphasized a number of times. The staff is very approachable and hopefully the listeners of KQRS will begin to feel free to offer their suggestions.

In conclusion, KQRS is starting its fourth year now and Chris Frimoth, the Production Manager, said, "Every year that goes by is a maturing process." As the philosophy of Whitworth changes and maturing, so does the philosophy of KQRS. Listens to KQRS and being a student-run station because it isn't just a college. The station would like for the students to listen to KQRS. The station will be involved and be afraid to voice their opinions. Through an interview with the General Manager and the Production Manager, the desire for the reporter of this article.

KQRS 90.3 FM

Poets, write!

A $1000 grand prize will be awarded in the Sixth Annual Fall Poetry Competition sponsored by the World of Poetry, a quarterly newsletter for poets.

Poems of all styles on any subject are eligible to compete for the grand prize or for 49 other cash or merchandise awards.

Says Poetry Editor Eddie Lou Cole, "We are encouraging poetic talent of every kind, and expect our contest to produce exciting discoveries like Virginia Bates, a housewife from Woodbine, Maryland. She won our grand prize last year with her poem "PIETTA.'

Rules and official entry forms are available from World of Poetry, 2431 Stockton Blvd, Dept. N, Sacramento California 95817.
McMillan - A brotherhood tradition

by Claudia Klawer

 dor-mi-to-ry (dor-ma'te-rë) n.1. A room providing sleeping quarters for a number of persons. 2. A building for housing a number of persons, as at a school or resort.

That is how the American Heritage Dictionary defines the word dormitory. Here at Whitworth College, however, dorms are more than temporary living quarters. They are unique communities within the larger community of Whitworth College. Aside from just providing a room, they also offer guidance, leadership, opportunities, fellowship, support and recreation. Each of the dorms on the Whitworth campus has its own distinct history and reputation. Even more importantly, each has a personality which is shaped by the individual personalities of the residents of the dorm. This year, The Whitworthian will be highlighting the various dorms on campus.

An appropriate beginning is McMillan, not only the oldest dorm, but actually the original building of Whitworth College. At one time McMillan was both the residence hall and the administration classrooms building. The area called "The Shack" by the residents of a block of single rooms, was originally the college chapel. The history of McMillan seems to carry with it a certain unprecedented prestige and reputation.

Another aspect of McMillan's reputation is its elaborate and tradition-bound freshman initiation. Although some people view the initiation as that one field, while not getting "bumped" by some of the freshmen who went through the initiation this year were positive. Tomy Boa, a freshman for McMillan, explained that through the initiation he became closer to the other residents. He felt it was a good thing that should be continued. Ron Clark, another freshman, said the experience was great, and that through it the freshmen got to know each other and the upper-classmen and to learn to work and have fun together. He remarked that the upper-classmen were not degrading them, rather they were continually checking to see if they were all right and offering their support. Stan and Becky Fishburn, head residents for Ballard and McMillan, expressed their feelings that each initiation activity had a specific idea in mind for building community spirit.

The initiation, along with other fellowship activities, appears to have been successful in this respect. Many of the residents of McMillan seem to respond to the close community and friendship. During the majority of their years at Whitworth, this is seen in the diversity of the students: the dorm houses approximately equal numbers of freshman and returning upperclassmen, along with transfers from other schools.

A large part of a shaping of dorm life is the initial portion of the year as achieved by McMillan. Stan and Becky Fishburn, head residents have had experience with similar leadership roles as Program Facilitators at Tall Timber Camp. Being Whitworth graduates themselves, and now both students again, working on Masters Degrees, they can identify with the students as individuals. Working with the Fishburn's experiences in leadership and planning for the continuity of support provided by the Resident Advisors: Lee Jennings, Roosevelt Travis, and Dana Schlipfert, the involvement of the leadership and organization is provided by the dorm officers: Vice President Carmen Van, Treasurer Curt Nelson and Intramurals Representative Tom Bowman. Some of the annual dorm activities that are in the planning stages are the haunted House, Heart Strings Week, Casino Night, and McMillan's annual talent show. Other activities being planned and discussed are a dorm scavenger hunt, Ski Chute, and sponsoring a dance in the HUB. Along with the sharing and support on the social and mental levels, the dorms also place an emphasis on spiritual support in both formal Christian fellowship activities and informal sharing. Dorm chaplain Scott Anderson views his position as one of service, being an organizer of Bible studies, prayer groups and sharing activities which meet the needs of the residents. He puts his emphasis, however, not on his own plans for Christian fellowship, but on Jesus Christ as the facilitator through whom the Whitworth Brotherhood can develop into an intense Christian brotherhood.

Womens' resource center active

The Women's Resource Center, run by Ingrid Anderson and Rosemary Raynaud, is the one quiet room in the active HUB. It is located across the hall from the SERVE office in the back corner of the building.

When walking down the hall, people are often seen discussing the women's center, which usually deal with student activities. The center presents seminars, speakers, and special programs according to the student interest. The room contains a lending library and has references to services such as the TWCA and other public organizations.

Each Tuesday, a weekly movie-related discussion group meets at 3:30. Also that day, the Women's Resource Center provides free transportation to and from Gonzaga University for women.

Future activities include the movie, "Like a Rose," on October 28 which deals with sex and women in prison. The Blue Flame is the place to watch the movie. "Mr. Women's Resource Center Talent Show" on the Friday at 3:30, "Ain't Nobody's Business," will be shown on November 4th.

The Resource Center is beginning to prepare a series of workshops which will plan student interest activities and discuss any issues that students feel are important. Students are encouraged to stop at the office and talk to either Rosemary or Ingrid about programs that they might be interested in.

Ingrid said a lecture series on women in the community is being planned. No specific dates or times have been set.

The Women's Resource Center will present "Women's Week," Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from 2:30 to 4:30 and Tuesday and Thursday in the food court. Students are welcome to stop by to talk and to stop at the office and might have for the Center and it's activities. It's also a job for student to read, study, and just chat.
Japanese student adopts America

by Bob Livingston

Tomohisa Ito, (Tom), McMillan Frosh from Osaka, talks to the Whitworthian in the second of a series of articles on Whitworth's foreign students. Tomo enthusiastically describes the U.S. as a country of full of opportunity and one he would wish to adopt permanently.

"To learn to speak English and customs I decided to come to America and since I came here I have had many surprising experiences," gets Tomo as he recounts his first days on campus. "Especially initiation! The freshmen went around Whitworth and visited many dorms and showed us their song. I can't explain the leader shout "Ding Dong!" I wasn't sure what leader shout and we shout back. Then we went White Christmas and Buffalo girls and danced this kind of cowboy dance. Then we escorted some girls to Saga and after eating came back to girls dorm and kissed her goodbye. Last day of initiation all of us were soaked of sweat. I can't explain."

McMillan men have been friendly. I think I get close to them through initiation and I feel as if they are my brothers. On last day, we sang and received some hall and after, there is sand hill, (behind the fieldhouse) and all the freshmen go up that by helping each other and so we can help each other in anything.

"I never get homesick for Japan. I want to immigrate. I will graduate from college in America. I like America more than Japan. When I was a little child I like my town, but recently, Japanese gang crime and many kind of bar increased in my town. Nineteen years is enough there."

"I feel disappointed about Japan. One problem Japanese company (when they hire a person) want a person well educated from a high school class. I hate that. For example, suppose Whitworth and EWI agree Japanese schools. I think that Japanese student has fun they spend much money, but American student don't have much money. It is true, I think."

"I want to become American, but I can't forget that I'm Japanese. Sometimes I can't be friendly with Americans because my English is biggest problem for me. When we have lunch with my friends I usually be quiet and just listening what they are talking about because I can't keep up with their talking and sometimes my friend introduce their friends to me, but next time I meet that person I say only 'Hi' or 'Hello' and I think they think I'm not so friendly so it's my biggest problem English."
Sports

Pirate Women Dominate Tourney

by Joe Gallegos

Whitworth's women's volleyball team proved they are a powerhouse once again by defeating the Whitworth Invitational Volleyball Tournament.

The Pirate women faced six opponents and beat five in two games.

On the first day of the two-day tournament the Pirates bombed Big Bend City College 15-1, 15-3, and then Western Washington University 15-4, 15-7. Eastern Washington University, Whitworth's bitter rival, topped Central Washington University and then beat Gonzaga that same evening.

On the following day the Bux played the University of Puget Sound and the Washington State junior varsity, winning both matches 15-12, 11-9, and 11-9, 13-11 respectively. The victory over Washington State sent Whitworth to the semi-finals where they were pitted against ZWU.

According to some of the players, this match was the most important. Each of the two battles were won by two points: 15-13, 17-15. "After we beat Eastern in the semi-finals, we felt confident that we would win the tournament," said Sally Solwer, the Pirates explosive six-foot lefthander. Both Whitworth and Eastern were in the national tournament last year.

Whitworth won the championship match in three games, beating Lewis and Clark State 15-10, 2-15, 15-8. Lewis and Clark finished second followed by Eastern and the University of Idaho took fourth place.

"This year we are not yet at full strength," said Coach JoAnne Atwell-Schriver. Stacy Shagoo and Holly Schroeder are red-shirted due to injuries. Doris Hoffman is also on the injury list but will be back in action soon.

The active players are Lynn Becker, Mary Dunlap, Nancy Hammer, Emily Kallman, Elaine Moneymaker, Janice Saunders, Sally Scrivner, Kerry Servas and Judy Wareham.

"We have the height and explosive power to do what we want offensively and defensively," says coach Scrivner. "The girls are in excellent condition and are mentally tough. This is a team we can all be proud of!"

Elaine Moneymaker tags winner to the side of defensive blockade as the Pirates swept the Whitworth Invitational.

Grouping Key to Success

by Delana Stohl

The Women's Cross-Country team won their first meet of the season while the men finished second in the Whitman Invitational. On Saturday morning, September 27, the Whitworth Cross-Country team traveled to Whitman for the second official meet of the season. The Pirate runners were enthusiastic and worked hard to claim the victories they carried home.

"Grouping was the key to success in both the men's and women's races," Coach Kelly stated, predicting, "If we can continue to work on the concept of group racing, we'll be able to run with anyone when the championship meets roll around."

The Pirate Women won the team title by defeating Central Washington University with a score of 27-59. In cross-country it is the low score that wins. Leading the Pirates to victory were freshman Dana Betsch; 2nd and Carol Lewis; 4th with times of 1:46 and 1:11 respectively. The winning time for the women was 15:40 ran by Eastern Oregon State College runner.

"It's really fun," freshman Carol Lewis expressed. "We've been working hard on team unity between the men's and women's teams."

The next group of Pirate runners ran in thirteen seconds of each other were: 6th place; Lori Carlton, 7th place, Clara Oswald, 8th place; Elizabeth Klemie, and 10th went to Annette Swanson.

The times were between 17:26 and 17:39. The women are doing really well this year," assistant coach Cindy Stanley states. "Right now we have only one returning varsity runner from last year placing among the top seven marks on this years varsity team. Susan Jefferys," she explained, "ran very well last year, but hasn't been able to compete this year because of injuries. Susan will be going with the team to Fort Casey to compete. We will be looking at Susan to make a strong comeback."

In spite of injuries, the men's team is strong with a credible second place by Eastern Washington University with a score of 25-27. Craig Dotz led the Whitworth men with a time of 27:45 to place sixth overall. He was soon followed by an impressive group taking the 11th through 14th places. They were runners: Ken Clark, Steve Credle (28:31), Ray Robertson (28:45), and Charlie Lewis (28:50). Out because of injuries for the remainder of the season, are two runners, Art Kelly and Paul Christianson. Jeff Rame, another key runner for the men's team has been unable to compete because of injury. He will be competing in the near future, though, according to Coach Kelly.

The men's and women's teams both have a good chance of going to nationals. "Having our overall times close adds to the winning advantage,"

There are two super strong teams on the West coast, Dana Betsch, only a freshman, has led the Whitworth's Women's Cross-Country team in each of the last two meets, taking second in last week's Whitman Invitational.

AIA succeeds in travels

By Marquis Nuby

Whitworth baseball players Mark Lehman, Keith Ward, and Paul Christianson played for Athletes In Action this past summer. They traveled to and played teams in Korea, the Phillipine Islands, and the Micronesian Islands. They were very successful, winning eighteen of twenty games.

The AIA (Athletes In Action) baseball players also shared their Christian faith with the audience, the opposing teams, and anyone who asked them about Christianity. In doing so, AIA baseball players changed many people's views on Christianity.

The main purpose of the trip was to witness for Jesus Christ. Before or after every game, one of the AIA team members would share his faith with the audience, relating what Jesus Christ has done for his and many other's lives. This was not an easy task because Christianity is very rare in the areas the AIA played in, especially among baseball players. North Pacific baseball player's entire lives revolve around baseball, and they very rarely show any interest in living a Christian life.

The testimonies made by the Athletes In Action amazed many of the spectators, and many people were interested in Christianity. Over 2,000 titles were asked for by people who had seen or heard about Athletes In Action. The AIA was invited to several Crusaders for Christ. The Campus Crusaders helped the Oregon team get acquainted and involved with Christian churches.

Mark, Keith, and Paul all agree that the trip was a period of greatly growing experience. Mark Lehman said, "It was my greatest life experience." Does the three Whitworth baseball players really feel it was important to be a part of with their actions because they were constantly being observed.

The trip was an overall success. Everyone on the team, spiritually and physically. Christianson gives credit to God for the team's success, and refers to Romans 8:28 which states, "...And know that God causes all things to work together for good to those who love God, to those who are called to his purpose..." And AIA players were truly called to God's purpose.

Washington, which is out Whitworth's, and Central Washington. The men's team placed the sixth in years against Eastern at the Whitman Invitational. In the future Washington we will be number two behind Central, and will be able to go to nationals," Craig emphasized.
Sports Roundup

Pirates Smash Western

by Barry Adams

The Whitworth Pirate football squad thrashed WWU 47-12, Saturday in the Pine Bowl. Quarterback, Jim Dorr led the Bucs, throwing for three touchdowns and running another. Whitworth coach Dave Squires noted, "Jimmy Dorr scrambled well and made some big plays out of very tough situations." Dorr completed nine of fourteen passes for 131 yards.

The Vikings outgained Whitworth 356 yards to 286, but it was the six Whitworth turnovers that made for the lop-sided score. Fullback Andy Wolf scored the first two touchdowns for the Bucs on four and one yards on their first two possessions. Jim Dorr took it over himself in the second quarter from the 20, following a recovery of a Western fumble by Chris Edwards at the five. Defensive back Jeff Geyer's interception and return to the 3 set up Marc Archuleta's reception of a 20 yard pass from Dorr for the touchdown. Western got on the board in the second half, when quarterback Blue hit receiver Randy for a 6 yard score. Whitworth came charging back with a 48 yard bomb from Dorr to 5'7" 150 pound Alan Magaway, who ran away from the Western secondary linebacker Curt Carr's interception and return to the seven set up a Dorr to Dor pass. Quarterback Jim Dorr's six yard strike to receiver and brother, John Dorr, for six points.

Western scored again in the fourth quarter when Ric Moore ran five yards up the middle. The Pirates scored their last touchdown of the game when dimbul halfback, Brian Haynes scooted around left end for a 15 yard score.

The tough Buc defense forced six turnovers, reaching a goal they set before the game. Squires added, "I feel it was a good team effort." It was the Bucs first win of the season against two losses coming at the hands of Eastern Oregon and last week's 21-14 by Dorr.

The EWU game was one of many fingers for the Bucs. Two early fumbles gave the Eagles field position inside the ten. The Bucs two scores came late in the game on a 15 yard, Dorr to Walsh pass play and a 12 yard run by Hans Christenson. The Whitworth plays CWU on Saturday, a team they tied last year in the Pine Bowl at 1:00 p.m.

The Pirate defense surrounds an Eastern runner in last weeks 37-14 loss to Eastern Washington University.

Pro Football Standings

American Conference

East: W L

Buffalo 5 0
N.E. 4 1
Miami 3 2
Baltimore 3 2
NY Jets 2 3

Central: Pittsburgh 4 1
Houston 3 2
Cleveland 2 3
Cincinnati 1 4

West: San Diego 4 1
Seattle 3 2
Oakland 3 2
Denver 2 3
Kansas City 1 4

National Conference

East: W L

Dallas 4 1
St. Louis 2 3
N.Y. Giants 1 4

Central: Detroit 4 1
Minn. 2 3
Tampa Bay 2 2
Green Bay 2 3
Chicago 1 3

West: St. Louis 4 1
New England 2 1
Baltimore 3 0
Miami 1 7
Denver 1 9
Cleveland 1 6
Atlanta 0
Phil. 24 Wash. 14
St. Louis 40 New Orleans 7
Kansas City 31 Oakland 17
Buffalo 26 San Diego 24
Green Bay 16 Cincinnati 9
Dallas 41 N.Y. Giants 3

Sunday's NFL Scores:

Pittsburgh 23 Minn. 17
Seattle 26 Houston 7
New England 21 N.Y Jets 11
Baltimore 30 Miami 17
Denver 19 Cleveland 16
Atlanta 0 Detroit 20
Phil. 24 Wash. 14
St. Louis 40 New Orleans 7
Kansas City 31 Oakland 17
Buffalo 26 San Diego 24
Green Bay 16 Cincinnati 9
Dallas 41 N.Y. Giants 3

Pac-10 scores:

Michigan State 21 Cal 13
U. of Pacific 24 WSU 22
USC 23 Arizona St. 21
Stanford 35 San Jose St. 21
Washington 24 Ohio St. 18
UCLA 17 Ohio St. 9
Arizona 5 Ira 3
Northwest Conference:

Willamette 20 S. Oregon 14
PLU 24 CWU 3

by Hans Christenson

The Whitworth Soccer Club's season is in full swing with the team competing in two contests last week. One Sept. 27 the team played the University of Idaho in Moscow and lost by a score of 4-2. Despite the score, the team played well, tying Idaho at halftime 1-1. In the second half the Idaho club wore down the Bucs who had only three subs, and picked up the rest of their lost goals.

"Idaho overpowered us in the second half" said fullback Dave Flesher, "but they are a much stronger club."

Against Gonzaga the club ran into hard luck as Gonzaga got two quick goals on penalty kicks in the first ten minutes. This put a lot of pressure on Whitworth as their offense stifled by the Gonzaga defense. The Bulldogs picked up another goal in the second half that made the final score 3-0.

When asked what might by the key to bringing the club together Flesher said, "We have potential. After people got used to their positions I think our play will improve especially between the midfield and front line. The pressure on our defense has hurt us so far, we need to give more support to back line."

Flesher did feel that the club's attitude is still up after the two losses. "The attitude is good, we just need more experience and work on the fundamentals. Our defense is still strong, we have to create a strong balance with our offense, but I think we can do it."
Whitworth’s Sports Spotlight:

Sally Scrivner

by Marc Kubota

Eastern Washington transfer, Sally Scrivner has blessed the Whitworth women’s volleyball team with a new dimension to their game, adding offensive punch to an already explosive team.

Scrivner, a junior from Vancouver, Washington, is the only left-hander on the team, and at 6’0” is a very powerful force at the net. Being left-handed, Sally gives Whitworth “more offensive punch!”, according to Head Coach and Sister-in-law, JoAnn Atwell-Scrivner. “For three rotations she’s powerful.”

Most teams will start their weakest blocker on Sally’s strong hand side, which gives Whitworth “more scoring potential.” Sally’s height and jumping ability strengthens the Pirates defense. “Because she is tall, she adds blocking power to our defense,” said Atwell-Scrivner. “She has improved most on her jumping, but all the girls have improved on that.”

Sally Scrivner (left) showed a lot of improvement on backcourt play, according to Coach Atwell-Scrivner.

It might seem hard for a transfer like Sally to fit in with a group that has played together and has gone to the national tournament the past two years, but according to coach Scrivner, she’s had no problems. “Most of the girls on the team knew her before this year, because of the relation to coach Scrivner. She just fit in,” said three-year veteran Elaine Monymaker. Coach Scrivner also reflected on how well Sally has made it. “She fits in well and the girls have just accepted her.”

Sally is also no stranger to national competition. Last year she led EWU to the national tournament. She was also chosen unanimously as a NCAA Division II Northwest All-Star.

But Sally didn’t initially come to Whitworth because of the sports program. Sally came to Whitworth to take advantage of the Rehabilitation, Developmentally Disabled program, which is her major. She also likes the small school atmosphere at Whitworth.

When asked about playing for her sister-in-law, Sally cooly replied, “She’s a good coach, being related doesn’t interfere at all. I just play to win.”

“With Sally’s defensive strength, she’s a very strong middle,” Stohl commented. “She has a much bigger and more explosive energy.”

Atwell-Scrivner’s daughter, Sally, is a three-year veteran of the Pirates. Her have a much bigger and more student body Asst. Director. “We are going to make Sally part of the program, and work on some of her weaker areas.”

Intramurals begin! get involved

By DeAnna Stohl

Friend, does the constant string of bumbles make you weary? Do you have an “excess of time and energy” stored at the end of the day? Do you want the chance to show your athletic talents without turning out for a sport? the best. In the past everythmg on Sally Busbee is the program’s training area director. She works in the Student Life Center and is available to answer any questions or to help solve any problems that might arise. Sally has thecharge of making up the schedules.

The intramurals representatives from each of the dorms are playing a very important role in the success of the intramural program this year’s program. “We had good representatives last year, but this year seems much more organized. The best way to get people involved is to make them aware of what is happening.”

Sally had a busy time last year. She had to do almost all of the work myself.” She continued, “This year we have a much bigger and more enthusiastic staff.”

One addition to the program this year is the penalty of a “forfeit fee.” At the beginning of every major match, the dorms wanting to participate pay a twenty-five dollar fee. For every game the dorm forfeits they lose five dollars. On the fourth Forfeit the dorm is out of the game.

Some of the upcoming events in October are pickleball (a game like badminton), only played with ping-pong paddles, and a wiffle ball. Unlike badminton, you are allowed one bounce. A score is the first player to gain a match at the Bowling alley. A scholar

The women’s scores are as follows: Off Campus: Arec, 4-2; BJ/West Warren by forfeit; and South Warren by forfeit; and South Warren.

The men’s teams have showed some excellent talent. The current favorite is Stewart #1. They have scored ten points so far, and have made unscorched against all teams.

On the 28th, the men play two games with the following results: Theme Dorm/Carlson 2-0; Stewart #1/Scrivner 3-0; Stewart #1/Stewart #2, 2-1; South Warren, 1-6; and McMillan #2/Theme Dorm 2-0, and Stewart #1/McMillan 2-1.

Some of the upcoming events in October are pickleball (a game like badminton), only played with ping-pong paddles, and a wiffle ball. Unlike badminton, you are allowed one bounce. A score is the first player to gain a match at the Bowling alley. A scholar

The Whitworth and Eastern Washington teams will attempt to break the record for consecutive double innings played beginning at 7:00 PM on October 14, at the Spokane Fairgrounds.

The two teams will attempt to break the record of seventy-five innings, by playing games all over the area. The teams have been preparing for the marathon which will last all day. Each team will break its team into three squads which will play in two hour shifts.

The game will feature man of the new recruits that Coach Dave Vaughn has brought to Whitworth, as well as some returning players from last year’s Northwest Conference Championship team. Some of the new recruits that will be featured in Saturday’s games are five pitchers that have Coach Vaughn really looking at spring. “I’m really excited about the team’s possibilities this spring. Through recruiting our pitching staff has been tremendously improved from last year”.

The Pirates are still seeking sponsors to pledge money for each inning played. Proceeds from the baseball marathon will help finance a trip to California where the Pirates will play some of the best West Coast and San Luis Obispo. Anyone wishing to make a pledge is urged to contact the baseball coaches or any of the players.
Musical cont. from page 1

Cloniger, there was some concern that there wouldn't be enough interest in such a production to make it successful. So she spent two weeks asking across campus, "Can we do it?" The response was favorable, and now going full steam ahead.

A tremendous amount of planning is needed for an event like "Whitworth Sings." Representatives from each dorm are now working on committees which will provide such things as publicity, finances, awards, judges, rules, art, sound, technical work, and orchestration.

The planners are hoping for a turnout from the community of Spokane. To facilitate this, they hope to get celebrities such as the mayor and Disc Jockeys from KREM-FM just as they did last year. The cost of prizes will be given to the winning groups (there will be a winning women's group, men's group, and one grand prize winner). Volunteers for the orchestra will be called for in a few months.

Along with there were hopes that "Whitworth Sings" could be put on at the Opera House in downtown Spokane. It will not unless a miracle happens," stated Cloniger. The cost would be $1,500 beyond the cost of a production at Cowles Auditorium. The planners have applied to ASWC for $475 in funding, and expect notification from this admission for non-students.

Any extra proceeds after repayment of ASWC will be put into a budget with hopes that "Whitworth Sings" will become an annual event.

Village cont. from page 1

...equally enthusiastic about the dorm theme: simple living. The idea for the dorms have come up with three definitions of simple living. The first concerns the moral issue of a small percentum of the population consuming such a major portion of the world's resources. The second is to widespread starvatio Number two delegates into the technical issue of simplicity, i.e., the research of alternative energy sources. And last is the spiritual issue behind the theme. Being aware that God is with each individual, that still, small voice that says, "Know that I am God." Hence is a theme center around Medieval studies.

Forum topics for the month of October range from economics to a presentation describing an arctic expedition. On October 7, Peter Clark, an economic journalist from Scotland, will be the forum speaker. His talk is sponsored by the United States Industrial Council Educational Foundation.

"Central America in conflict" is the subject of Juan Olano's talk on October 9. Olano is a geographer from the University of Guatamala. He is currently visiting Fullbright professor at the International Studies Center at Hamline University. The first Chapel of the month is on Oct. 14. Lorraine Robertson, Whitworth Associate Chaplain, will be the speaker.

The cost of prizes will be given to the winning groups (there will be a winning women's group, men's group, and one grand prize winner). Volunteers for the orchestra will be called for in a few months.

Along with there were hopes that "Whitworth Sings" could be put on at the Opera House in downtown Spokane. It will not unless a miracle happens," stated Cloniger. The cost would be $1,500 beyond the cost of a production at Cowles Auditorium. The planners have applied to ASWC for $475 in funding, and expect notification from this admission for non-students.

Any extra proceeds after repayment of ASWC will be put into a budget with hopes that "Whitworth Sings" will become an annual event.

Future Forums

Forum topics for the month of October range from economics to a presentation describing an arctic expedition. On October 7, Peter Clark, an economic journalist from Scotland, will be the forum speaker. His talk is sponsored by the United States Industrial Council Educational Foundation.

"Central America in conflict" is the subject of Juan Olano's talk on October 9. Olano is a geographer from the University of Guatamala. He is currently visiting Fullbright professor at the International Studies Center at Hamline University. The first Chapel of the month is on Oct. 14. Lorraine Robertson, Whitworth Associate Chaplain, will be the speaker. She has just returned from four months of study-leave at San Francisco Theological Seminary.

On October 21 the forum is entered "Arctic Barrens." This is a popular forum where students share their experiences in the northern wilds as part of Whitworth's Arctic Barrens program.

"Sex and Spirit: Get It Together" will be the title of Dr. Dyson Donnelly's forum on October 23. This topic is the subject of Dr. Donnelly's seventh book which she has recently lectured at Protestant and Catholic seminaries of the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, California.

Drugs, which borrow heavily from the works of J.R.R. Tolkien, is being formally organized on "at least 200 campuses" by various kinds of boasters. Tolkien's devoted fan, Marta Crosby of the Tolkien League, "Assassin" and its namesake "Assassins" and its namesake boom exceeded prominence last winter, when black lists of reports of students hunting "Assassins" were revealed. If they get the participants, they're being played everywhere. Dungeons & Dragons

For sale:

Dungeons & Dragons

For sale:

Hiking Boots, size 6 1/2 men's, in good condition. For only $25. Contact Carol Barnes, extension 526, East Warren, Third Floor.
Volume 71, No. 3 October 20, 1980
Whitworth College, Spokane, WA 99251

Homecoming - A Week for Involvement

By Steve Gregg

Whitworth College's Second Annual Waterbed Bash will be held today at 4 p.m. in the loop. Students will attempt to break their own unofficial world's record, kicking off a full week of homecoming activities on the theme of "The Way We Were." A coordinate for this event, coordinator Nancy Connolly, the week should be a great success.

Tomorrow (Tuesday, 23rd) will be a "piggyback" event in the Waterbed Bash. The bash will be followed by a free ice cream for all faculty, staff, and students.

For Wednesday there will be a 23rd, three-legged soccer game in the Pine Bowl at 4:00. Students should see their intramural representative to get involved. At 7:30 p.m., there will be a "Student-Alumni Pine Bowl" in Cowles Auditorium. Teams from each class consisting of both students and alumni will compete. There will be a variety of game, designed to be enjoyed by memory and wit. Mike Cunningham will emcee, and admission is free. Then, the homecoming game will be played against the loop, and all in attendance will get into it. I hope a lot of people get involved, and I played a lot of fun.

On Friday students are asked to dress in red, black, and white, the school colors of Whitworth. The annual Homecoming Concert will begin at 6:30 p.m. in Cowles Auditorium, featuring pop and jazz as performed by the concert choir and jazz ensemble. A limited number of tickets will be given away beforehand, on a first-come, first-served basis. Following the concert at 9:30, there will be a pep rally at Graves Gym. The final event of Friday will be a "pre-game huddle," held at Savage House Pizza in the Fairwood Shopping Center. All students and alumni are encouraged to attend, and see a special film presentation on the history of Whitworth football.

The day of the homecoming game is Saturday, October 23rd. In the morning, the women's basketball team will play Whitman at 11:00 a.m. in the Fieldhouse. Pizza will be served, and the football game begins at 1:00 in the Pine Bowl, kicking off against Limbridge.

The homecoming formal dance will be from 9:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. on Saturday night, in the Mary Viola Wadsworth room of Spokane's Davenport Hotel. The band Orpheus will be playing. Tickets are $7.50 per couple or $4.00 per person.

Nancy Connolly expressed enthusiasm over the coming week, saying, "People need to put this into it. I hope a lot of people get involved, and I should be a lot of fun."

Candidates Visit Nutrition 1985

by Kim Pedersen

Recently students in Nutrition 1985 were privileged to hear two congressional candidates share their views on numerous issues.

Representative Tom Foley, a Democrat, visited Nutrition 1985 at dinner on Oct. 9, and John Sonneland, Republican, came on the evening of Oct. 13.

Foley is challenging Foley for the 5th District Congressional seat he has held for 10 years. The candidates were invited because of the result of a Political Committee meeting. The committee's mission was to find out the candidates' views on issues relating to hunger, defense spending, and energy.

There were a number of planted questions in the dining hall on both occasions, and the idea was to have a parallel presentation from two candidates.

The night of Foley's visit was introduced as being the most important man in the world—concerning hunger issues," according to Dr. Ed Lindaman. Foley is chairman of the Agricultural Committee. In opening remarks, Foley zeroed in on foreign aid, calling it the "most unproductive money the U.S. spends," but at the same time stated that it is important for the U.S. to remember that we have a responsibility to help developing countries, and that the world's third world has been "brutally crushed" by the U.S. Foley revealed that Congressmen are at war which will provide for a 4 million metric ton food reserve for food shortages in the world.

When Sonneland was introduced we were told that the candidate is not a physician and small businessman in Spokane and that he has worked in the past with Young Life and the Salvation Army. The candidate began his presentation by saying that he saw the most important issues of the campaign to be the cost of living, taxation, jobs, and energy. When asked about world hunger, Sonneland said it is impractical to expect the U.S. to feed the world, and that "we ought to be talking far more about the methods of growing food in foreign countries."

Concerning energy issues, both candidates called for increased use of coal, and decreased dependence on foreign oil. Sonneland wants to see more money going into research and development of nuclear power, and desires that we "move beyond a shadow of a doubt if it is or is not safe." Foley simply stated that, depending on public acceptance, the future of nuclear power in the U.S. is "very uncertain." He also said that Congress is "overstretching it" with the amount of money that is being poured into solar research.

Both candidates stated that by the mid-1980's the Soviets will have won the arms race. In Foley's words, the Soviets will soon have "first strike capabilities" (meaning that they could destroy our missile bases with a nuclear war without fear of retaliation). Sonneland said that by 1984-5 America will be in a state of "defenselessness." Both called for increased arms control. Foley called surveillance our only (cont. on page 5)

Congressional Candidate John Sonneland

Inside

Volume 71, No. 3 October 20, 1980
Whitworth College, Spokane, WA 99251

Student Life Renamed

by Cindy Ples

Student Life is a division of Whitworth College that supports Whitworth students with help and information pertaining to their specific needs.

The Student Life building is filled with an excellent staff, including: the Vice President, Phil Green; the Director of Resident Life Kaye Via Mickelson; Area trainees: Gillian Dill, Assistant Director of Professional Training; Pick Hudson, Academic Advisor, Career and Placement Gwen Bake, and Assistant Deana Kinkel; Director of Minority and International Affairs Joe Franklin; Counseling Psychologist Dave Olsen, Coordinator of the Whitworthian Print Shop; Program Kim Ashley, Housing Coordinator Midra Seraji and Assistant Carol Barnes, and the graduate students Ernest Lawrence and Chelli Lesler. Making sure all these services run smoothly are Sue Garvin and Chris Burkmaster who will greet you with warm smiles upon entering the center. Also incorporated into the center is information pertaining to campus activities, student employment, student government, the health center, and various aspects of campus life.

The Student Life building started out as a dorm and then was transformed into the Whitworthian print shop. In the early '70's the Student Life building was reconstructed and remodeled into what is now a modern building with a pleasant atmosphere. Many students have taken advantage of all the open opportunities that this building now offers in their career planning.

Fifteen years ago a well loved woman by the name of "Mom" Hendrick was asked to be a Resident Counselor after her husband passed away. She accepted and devoted fourteen years of her life to actively working on campus with the Whitworth community. She encouraged many students, as well as anyone that came to her with a problem. She was outgoing lovable, and most of all a dedicated Christian. Last January the whole of Whitworth College mourned her passing. The memories of her still remain in the minds of the hundreds of people she had the privilege to know her. She to the students, "Mom" was truly a mom.

Last Spring the idea of dedicating the student development cont. on page 5

Issues and Opinions—page 2,3
Letters to the Editor—page 4
FCA—page 6
Ballard profile—page 7
Fireside: Lose Thriller—page 9
Intramurals—page 10
Sports Roundup—page 11
Campus Issues
Resolution #8081-5 (Voting Powers)

by Mike Wendland

Resolution #8081-5, (Constitutional Amendment: Voting Powers). The concept is okay, but the resolution is bad. It is bad because there are 1,224 total full-time students enrolled at Whitworth. Of these, 705 need living power to the 65% of the student body who live on campus. This is unfair to those students who choose to live off-campus. Yet the percentage is a bad resolution. It provides an actual count of the actual number of people interested in Resolution 8081-6, and result in a truly representative policy of all interested students on off-campuses.

But if the second view is taken, that the Dorm President is elected by his/her mates with the expectation that s/he has the ability to represent their interests, while actively participating in the policy-making of the ASWC President's Council, then the current constitution is sound. It is sound for it allows that student body policy be made by a group of people who make special time to think over the problems of student body. This wise decision is made with a dorm president having in mind both his/her dorm's concerns as well as the concerns of the entire community. The dorm they have on their presidentship is that if s/he votes in ways which are contrary to their wishes, the dorm is in vote his/her out of office. Another check are dorm meetings where a Dorm President might take votes on resolutions up before President's Council, and then considers his/her dorm's opinion as a piece of the information which s/he uses in deciding how s/he will cast their votes on the President's Council.

Resolution 8081-5, (Constitutional Amendment: Voting Powers), is a bad resolution. Yet it has in the sand of the students' votes which, through general lack of understanding as to its role, has become weak. Personally, I favor strengthening the system we have now. It can be improved. Both the dorms and the ASWC President as presented in the second view above. Yet if the President's Council wants a more representative body policy of 84, I then suggest toasting Resolution 8081-5, and writing Resolution 8081-6 along the lines described above as the first view.

Saga of the lost meal card

by Laura Hutchison

At the beginning of each year I make a solemn promise to myself that I will NOT lose my meal card. But, as fate will have it, I never fail to do the inevitable. I lose my precious, combination ID, library card and athletic stamp and meal sticker.

During my first year here, my ski jacket containing my identification card and driver's license was stolen. Last year during spring break, I found it in my back pocket somewhere on the streets of San Francisco. Many of my acquaintances have experienced the same fate as I. It seems to have a way of disappearing quietly and unobtrusively. I have had the same scene again. They love to fall out of pockets, go through the wash or bury themselves at the bottom of drawers.

Bob Ward, Saga Food Service Director, gave some statistics on how many meal cards are lost each year. He calculated that the average, thirty to fifty cards are lost, and twenty to thirty percent of those lost are returned. This year about one out of every four meal cards is stolen. During the first month of school, twelve to fifteen percent of those lost medical cards is stolen, and this is more than twice as many as are normally lost.

Being one of the seventy percent of those who have lost a meal card and never found it has caused me to reflect on the possibility of having separate ID and meal cards.

First of all, the pros. One person said, "When you lose your meal card, you lose your identity." This is very true. The majority of people who lose their meal card wait around for a couple of days for their card to turn up before spending $7.50 for a new one. During this time they cannot check out books because they cannot present the card in order to do this. Also, one person cannot cash checks in the Business office due to the same reason. They cannot eat at Saga without paying, and they cannot attend any athletic events for lack of the little purple stamp on the ID card.

My suggestion is, why not have two cards, a combination ID-athletic events library card for $3.50.
A Case for Freedom
by Steve Meyer

The beauty of the conservative conception of government is its emphasis on citizens the unique opportunity to be faithful to both their government and their souls in a manner which is not mutually exclusive. It is possible to be good Jews, good Christians, good atheists, and be good citizens.

The American constitution never assumed its citizens would desert values, ideals, or fulfillment from the state. Further, this view on a man remarkably similar to the Biblical view.

This is not to even remotely make a case for a diversely interconnected society. It is only to make clear that both the constitutional documents define so highly the dignity of man, they realize more to man than loyalty to his state or economic system. This is in sharp contrast to the dialectical materialism that undergirds the socialist/communist idea.

Man is reduced to be determined by his economic need, incapable of making truly free choices at the fundamental level. But by the constitutional view, a man is a creature of free will with certain inalienable freedoms and must be free to serve the ends of his own soul above the interests of the state. The role of government was thus limited in definition to be the guarantor of the individual's freedom.

This relationship where the interest of government is subservient to the interest of the individual and affords no legitimate loyalty to state. Further, the fundamental agreement between primary statements of American governmental purpose and the Judeo-Christian view of man, allows women and men of faith the unique opportunity to serve God and nation. God and nation do not need any justification for those who would say, "my country, always right" or worse, "my country right or wrong." Nor is it an exact measure of the problems of the interrelated nations, or the poor in our own. It is to say however, that the structure is intrinsically immoral about American national interests.

Many objections to the Reagan candidacy occur along this view. Such conceptions as "the United States is already too affluent," and "Nationalism is obsolete." are heard. Such objections are best mistranslated. What real correlation is there betweenconstitution of American industry through heavy taxation, and improving the lot of the underdeveloped world? Yet, Americans generally advocate the immediate intervention of a world system of government with even a finite chance of becoming more just or ethical than the American democracy? Why is there so little population of our 7 billion underdeveloped nations, or the poor in our own? Is it to say however, that the structure is intrinsically immoral about American national interests.

There are many who would argue that the American people are becoming more complex. The high cost of living has become a burden on the family. The increased federal, state, and local regulations have increased the cost of living. The increased amount of taxes have increased the cost of living. The increased amount of government has increased the cost of living. The increased amount of government has increased the cost of living. The increased amount of government has increased the cost of living.

One more reason for the increasing complexity of our lives is the increasing amount of government. Does big business and big labor benefit from big government? Of course it does, but how big? Candidate Reagan, who opposes disbanding the Social Security, the Welfare system, or the Consumer Protection Agency.

Rather, he plans to streamline important programs and cut unnecessary ones. This is imperative not only to remove many petty hindering regulations, but to lighten the tax burden on the American people and the inflationary pressure in the economy.

The federal judiciary estimated that last year twenty-five billion dollars of federal tax money was wasted through fraud and mismanagement (U.S. News and World Report, Oct. 6, 1980). Clearly, government is at least twenty-five billion dollars too big.

Yet, many will still ask, "Isn't such a conservative view of government outdated or too simple for the complex world? No. A sound theoretical conception of government is that government ideally out is to be necessary if a president is to successfully solve the particular problems of the American people.

The writers of the Hebrew proverbs knew this power of ideas better than without a dream the power of the idea to initiate action. Ronald Reagan is one who has clearly articulated, and I believe, defined his policies by what is best for the American democracy. This is the only policy of individual freedom and opportunity for all its citizens. Let us be this American dream.
I am writing to you with a concern that I believe is shared by many. I believe the recent actions of the Reagan administration are inconsistent with the values upon which our country is built. Specifically, I am concerned about the cuts in social programs and the increase in defense expenditures. These decisions appear to be made in a way that is not in the best interests of the American people.

I understand the need for a strong defense, but I believe that the cuts in social programs are shortsighted. It is essential that we invest in education, healthcare, and other social programs that will benefit all Americans. These programs help to build a strong and healthy society.

I am also concerned about the cuts in the budget for the Department of Education. I believe that education is the key to a strong and prosperous nation. It is important that we invest in the future of our children by providing them with the best possible education.

I urge you to consider these issues carefully and to support policies that will benefit all Americans. It is my hope that together we can work towards a better future for all.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
in a very informal manner. My suggestion was that Kerouac and Ginsberg were the fathers of contemporary American poetry during their moonshine period. I am interested in this period (between songs) program, particularly if it is sponsored by the station's musical staff has a journalistic approach to the media, rather than an orientation to the arts and literature, but I was dismayed that my proposal to devote a total of maybe 7 minutes (3½ per show) per week would not be seriously considered.

To resurrect my suggestion I would point out that KWFJ, in the interview-centered approach, its listeners by playing different types of music such an approach. For an educational radio station poetry is only one more step. If KWFJ were to aim at not the simple, boring trivial verse often heard in texts we were shown when we were younger, but rather the exciting, challenging writing of "the inner circle of good poetry that has been self-published," this was the mind of Phil Eaton who is professor of Contemporary American Poetry here at Whitworth. My opinion is that with KWFJ's financial backing, Whitworth students might gain an important opportunity in which thoughts could be communicated.

Finally, I understand the difference between offering listeners professional musicianship and offering them voices of Whitworth students reading contemporary poetry. While I do not question our student's ability to understand the importance of understanding the ability of some students to read. I do mean to suggest that KWFJ could with the help of the English department reach professional readers of contemporary poetry, or the poets themselves, and perhaps when poets do visit Whitworth through their work on their work on the radio. We could provide the opportunity of a student who is willing to play an important part in the program. In that regard I will mention that I myself am in the Contemporary Radio class this fall and am very willing to be that facilitator.

Poetry, cont.

--Lori Bair

As each representative approach the podium, there is a certain air of determination in their eyes. We are the ones who will have a part in deciding the new president, and making their job to bring their candidate words to us, the people.

The election issues was the topic of the October 16 forum. A representative for each candidate: Carter, Mondale, Reagan-Bush, and Anderson-Lucey were there to inform us of what we would be voting for in the candidate and what qualifications they have.

The first question was on behalf of President Carter. He stated that the primary reason for Carter's re-election is his political courage. He went into great detail about the President's reaction to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and what he did about it. He stated that the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan was successful and that there was a 39% increase in exports. The draft was lifted to indicate to the world that we will not tolerate another invasion in Afghanistan. He went on to say that 80% of people are against the Congress were passed in closing. He said "It began this year in four years anymore." "I ask you to support Jimmy Carter and let us finish the job." The second representative was up in support of Andrew Young. The only thing that he revealed about his political platform was that he spent 20 years in the House of Representatives, and that his defense plan calls for recognition of real priorities. The substance of his speech went somewhat like this: "Ronald Reagan will lead us into the 19th century." "Carter and Reagan tell us that we can have our cake and eat it too." In closing, he said "We accomplish security not with hardware, but with people who can operate that hardware." "Carter is bubble-headed, and Reagan is melodramatic read." "You are asked to choose between the loser of two stalwarts. He sat down not having told us anything more than we knew already.

Carter"

The third man up was in support of Reagan. A somewhat reserved speaker he too turned away from press. The candidate for the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. We're not trying to learn to cook and keep bringing back recipes that were for children, but contained many highly processed types of convenience foods. The negative side he said that "inflation has been stripped under Carter's reign," "He has no problem, cont. on page 5"

(continued page 12)

The idea for the book came out of two experiences of Mrs. Hunt. The first was when she and her husband adopted a Korean boy who sensitized them to the concerns of world malnutrition. The second incident was when they were trying to learn to cook and keep bringing back recipes that were for children that contained many highly processed types of convenience foods. The negative side he said that "inflation has been stripped under Carter's reign," "He has no problem, cont. on page 5"

The idea for the book came out of two experiences of Mrs. Hunt. The first was when she and her husband adopted a Korean boy who sensitized them to the concerns of world malnutrition. The second incident was when they were trying to learn to cook and keep bringing back recipes that were for children that contained many highly processed types of convenience foods. The negative side he said that "inflation has been stripped under Carter's reign," "He has no problem, cont. on page 5"

Roosevelt

10% Whitworth Discount
for your Homcoming

OCTOBER 25
483-8593

We will not undersell you.
Financing Available

509-627-0960

THE FLOWER HUTCH
10% Whitworth Discount
for your Homcoming
OCTOBER 25
483-8593

N. 9111 Country Homes Blvd.
Feature

FCA-Practice in sharing

by Deann Stone

Fortunately for us, God uses infinite ways to touch, guide, nurture, and reveal Himself to His creation. Because of the diversity of His complex character, God has presented to man, more people, through the vehicle of the human element - the essence of God, His active role in the world, and lastly, His awesome love for His people.

Whitworth seems to have followed God's example in many aspects, because it indeed tries to proclaim and reveal God through many different programs. The program that will be presented in this article is the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Unfortunately, a large number of people are not very familiar with the ministry that FCA has. FCA is a nationwide, interdenominational program available to Jr., High School, College, and college students. As stated on one of their pamphlets the "purpose of the FCA is to present to athletes and coaches, and all whom they influence, the challenge and adventure of receiving Jesus Christ as Savior, in and through the life of His servant, serving Him in their relationships and in the fellowship of the Church."

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes presents itself at Whitworth meets every Thursday evening at 7:00 in the Chapel. The main focus of the group is to provide a supportive Christian group for those interested. Throughout their meetings, time is spent in prayer, Bible study, and intimate sharing of relevant issues in the participants' lives. The program tries to integrate the topics of athletics, as well as the struggles experienced by everyone in everyday life. Occasionally, the program presents various films and or speakers. Quite often, the speakers are faculty members of WU or other area professors.

The campus advisor for the program is Skip Pritchard, one of the assistant chaplains. Skip appears to be very excited about the FCA fellowship group, it became apparent that the group has an important ministry because it allows the students to have fun together, worshipping, praying, and get to know new people. For the most part, the fellowship group has.

Doobies concert slow

by Kathy Grossman

Our expectations were high on the evening of October 6th. After all, we were going to see the Doobies Brothers! We were all set for a night full of music, entertainment, atmosphere, and great times. What we found was a different story.

Photo by Joe Holm

Next before I have seen such an apathetic crowd. The music was hot, but the audience was lukewarm. It seemed as if people were taking in the music and getting into the throngs of the audience. The music was loud but the audience didn't react at all. The sound engineers were on top of their game and the audience was just there. I doubt the people in the stands were alive.

"Compared to California" wasn't as rowdy as everyone thought. There was no audience participation and no "get into the music". The audience in the stands didn't appear to be enjoying anything, and I doubt they even cared about the music. The Doobies Brothers were on top of their game and the audience was just there. I doubt the people in the stands were alive.

"I didn't like it, people were wilder at Disneyland Californians rock out better!"

"Wow, I was shocked and surprised that the crowd was so rowdy. I doubt it just didn't seem like a concert. I could have been just as rowdy as a movie. A concert where you can talk at a normal voice level is the furthest thing from a concert I can think of!"

Even though some of the options differed on the quality of the concert, most remained the same when asked about the warm-up band, "yuck! It was a "New Wave" band called "News. Any- thing would look great following them."

In the other hand, the locals said, "I thought the band had great communication with the audience. It was a great concert, everyone I went with thought it was really good. We were standing right in front of them so we couldn't help but get involved. I don't like the new music as much as the old though."

The Doobies have a new album coming out that is harder rock than their old music. A lot of the music played at the concert was from their new album. The album looks like it should be pretty good, very different from the Doobie Brothers. I was really excited about the new music and the concert was even better.

The Doobies are a band that I would definitely see again. Their music is great and their concert is something that everyone should see. I would definitely recommend that people go to the concert and enjoy the music. Without a doubt, the Doobies Brothers are a great band and I would definitely see them again. I would love to hear their new music and see if they can top their old music."

Heart brothers, sisters in mood for fun

by Wenda Varner

"I'm in the Mood for Love." That was just one of the songs we heard at Aikins Hall last week. We were serenaded with many other songs and enjoyed some good times, our heart-brothers at Stewart. Our heart-brothers gave us secret gifts ranging from candy bars to posters to liquor bottles to stickers."

In turn, we at B-J were given a name, to whom we would be a heart-sister. Each night, the kitchens were transformed into a work of art with the pursuit of fresh baked cookies filling the room. These cookies were accompanied with other good things as well. We also gave study breaks with goodies like 'peanut' or apples, cards through campus mail, and handmade certificates.

YES!

We do have 2 cu. ft.

DORM-SIZE, NEW REFRIGERATORS

for RENT! (with locks)

rap id rent a-pl ance

Reserve yours now!

Come in today

OPEN 9AM-9PM

Monday thru Friday

900/534-0795
Ballard has mellow atmosphere

by Claudia Klawer

Often when people think of Ballard Residence Hall, they think of it only in reference to its exterior. The dormitories are large and modern, with many common areas that provide a variety of options for students to socialize. However, what many people do not realize is that the interior of the dormitories is just as beautiful and inviting as the exterior. The dorms are adorned with artwork, plants, and comfortable furniture, creating a warm and welcoming atmosphere.

The dorms are also known for their student-led activities and events. Every week, there are different events hosted by the dorm residents, ranging from movie nights to dance parties. These events are open to all students and provide a great opportunity for students to get to know each other and build a sense of community.

The dorms are also located near many of the university's facilities, making it convenient for students to access resources and participate in activities outside of the dorm. Students can easily walk to the fitness center, the library, or the student union.

Overall, Ballard Residence Hall is a great place to live and is known for its welcoming atmosphere and the opportunities it provides for students to get involved and build community.
Magazine Internships Available

NEW YORK, October 13-College juniors working toward careers in magazine journalism are invited to apply for the 15th annual Magazine Internship Program sponsored by the American Society of Magazine Editors (ASME) with a grant from the Magazine Publishers Association (MPA).

Interns will spend the summer of 1981-from June 9 to August 21-on individual assignment to the editorial staffs of participating consumer magazines and business publications in New York City and elsewhere. They also will have the opportunity to meet with a variety of magazine executives, editors, and writers for informal weekly discussions on magazine editing and publishing.

The students attended 51 colleges and universities across the country.

Interns are selected on the basis of the following criteria: academic courses and journal articles (especially in writing, reporting and editing), participation in campus journalism, previous summer internships and jobs at magazines or newspapers, and published articles in magazines or newspapers.

For further information and/or application forms, students should contact the editor of the dean of the school of journalism, an academic advisor or the office of career counseling and placement, or write directly to Mr. Robert E. Kenyon, Jr., director, Journalist Internship Program, ASME, 575 Lexington Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. Phone (212) 752-0055.

The deadline for receipt of applications is December 15, 1980.

Election Forum, cont.

of his expectations," and that Carter is pleasing "I've got you into this mess in a half year give me four more to get you out." In closing he states that under Reagan's reign "Problems will be solved and justice administered.

FRENCH BRAIDS!

UNISEX HAIR DESIGN

Tue. Sat. 10 6:30
BIRD OF PARADISE

747-3063
NINE NORTH BROWN
SPOKANE, WASHINGTON 99201

On Friday night, all hearts were pounded together with a reunion in the B-jam. Everybody introduced themselves and became acquainted with their brother or sister. These casual discussions, cookies, and cool-

Mood for fun cont.

On Saturday night, the two dams had a reunion in the McKillians' house. "Is that a get-together where everyone was introduced, there was a chance.

The week was fun for all who participated. It was a great way to meet new people and get a good change from the regular, routine things." But not only was it fun but it opened many doors to new friendships between us.

Ballard and McKillian family sent their dad's brother and heart-sisters. The dams gave each other gifts of plants, breakfast in bed, etc.

Help Youth Advocates

This year, approximately 500 youth in Spokane County will be placed on Community Supervision (Probation) with the Juvenile Court Department. Many of these youngsters characteristically exhibit problems associated with unstable family situations, the wrong kind of friends, drug and alcohol abuse, habitual involvement in delinquent activities, apathy and withdrawal, and lack of opportunities. About 450 of these youth are boys, who often lack a positive adult male model in their lives.

In order to more adequately meet the needs of these youngsters, the Juvenile Court Department is implementing a Citizen Volunteer Youth Advocate Program. The program's objectives are to provide an adult advocate for those youth who have appeared before the Juvenile Court and have been placed on community supervision. The role of the youth advocate is to provide support and guidance to the young offender throughout the duration of his/her period of community supervision (average length 6 months to 1 year). The primary objective is to assist in meeting the goals outlined by the Court in his/her probation program; for example, continuing transportation of a youth to a school appropriate for him, contacting the school to check on a youth's progress, obtaining employment, or appearing in court to respond to disciplinary actions in the interest of a youth. The length and degree of involvement in any given case will necessarily depend upon the identified needs of the youth, from an average of 2.3 hours a week to a weekly telephone call. Out of the needs that a Youth Advocate could be called upon to meet, a relationship between the Youth Advocate and the person may develop. Common interests and activities may provide the framework for a real friendship.

In further information on how you can become involved as a youth advocate, call Marianne Jolley (Volunteer Program Specialist) at the Spokane County Juvenile Court, 626-3222. The program for Youth Advocates will consist of three evening sessions on Wednesday, November 5th, 12th, and 19th. The training is free. However, attendance at the training sessions is mandatory in order to participate in the program.
Bucs lose heartbreaker to Lutes

By Barry Adams

Nobody gave the Whitworth Pirates much of a chance against the undefeated, number one nationally ranked Pacific Lutheran Knights, except the Pirates themselves. The underdog Pirate team fell one point short of knocking off the tough Lutes, losing 29-28 in the waning moments of the game played in Tacoma Saturday.

The Knights mounted the winning drive that ended with a 35 yard touchdown pass with 1:13 to go in the superlative played game. Quarterback Carlson and Receiver Ellison teamed up again on the two point conversion to win the game.

Quarterback Dan Dietz started his first game of the year and directed the Pirate offense brilliantly, passing 17 of 36 for 299 yards and three touchdowns. His main target was freshman receiver John Dorr, who snagged 6 passes for 104 yards and one touchdown. Running back Keith Hylton caught one pass, but it was for 53 yards and a TD. Hans Christenson led the defensive side of the ball. While running attack the second week in a row, rushing for 102 yards on 11 carries, Jim Judd carried the ball 17 times for 65 yards, and the Bucs gained 223 yards on the ground.

The Pirates out gained the vaunted P.L.U. offense 462 yards to 388 and the jugular. Pirate offense held the Knights to just 26 yards rushing. "It was a super game, it's just that we came out on the short end of the score. Despite the high score I felt our defense did a good job," said head coach Daryl Squires.

Linebacker Randy Schwartz had 9 solo tackles and two assists, tops on the team. Tackle Dave Pompiani and end Kim Hatch both had 5 tackles and two quarterback sacks. Defensive back Mike Suko had seven tackles as P.L.U. passed 35 times.

Whitworth drew first blood in the game when Hans Christenson pulled in an eight yard pass from Harder, mid-way through the first quarter. P.L.U. struck right back when Carson hit Westerling with a 7 yard bomb.

P.L.U. scored again 10 seconds into the second quarter and the teams exchanged field goals to end the half 17-10 for P.L.U.

The Knights scored on their first possession of the third quarter increasing their lead to 24-10.

Whitworth narrowed the gap to a touchdown in the middle of the third quarter when Christenson broke loose for a 53 yard ramble. The Knights put together a drive to go up 10 points ahead, when J. Rohr took it over from the two yard line. Whitworth put on an awesome offensive show in the 4th quarter scoring three times in ten minutes. Judd scorched on a 1 yard run, Dan Dietz threw 17 yards to John Dorr, and Keith Hylton caught his 53 yarder putting the Bucs ahead 38-31. P.L.U. then mounted their drive for the winning touchdown.

P.L.U. is 5-0 on the year, while Whitworth dropped to 2-3. The Pirates will have their hands full again next week when they take on the nationally ranked and undefeated Linfield College team at the Pine Bowl.

Cross-Country teams

Confidence Grows

At the Willamette Invitational in Salem, Oregon, the Pirate runners got an edging advantage look at their toughest conference and regional competitions.

"We really had a good race," freshman Dana Beitz expressed, continuing, "Some of the men had outstanding personal performances.

The men's team took third, closely behind Lewis and Clark and Willamette. Regaining his number one position of last year is junior Charlie Lewis, team captain of this year's squad. Charlie finished with a time of 26:07. Not far behind, and maintaining the "grouping" as the key to success, were Pirates Ken Christenson (26:11), Craig Delitz (26:26), Jeff Rohr (26:40)." We're really running in groups," Charlie indicated. "Our top four runners are in the first group and generally stick together. The second group includes the other three men. If we do this at conference, we can easily take a second over Willamette." The second group of men to finish were: Steve Cred (27:12), Ray Robertson (27:13) and Wes Hikida (27:24).

"The men had their best performance of the year," Coach Terry Kelly reported. "Our top four ran a lot closer together than they have been, virtually every time was faster than last year's on the same course." Leading the Pirate women to a third place victory was again freshman Dana Beitz. Dana ran the course in 18:26; not far behind her was another freshman, and Lewis, with a time of 18:33. Lori Carlson, Annette Scott, Sue Wright, Nicki Kiemle, and Clara Osvald teamed to gain the advantage. They came in with times of 20:19, 21:08, 21:15, 19:15, 19:28, and 19:44, respectively. The women's team has been working hard at achieving their pre-season goal of going to nationals. On October 25, they will try to start the process of making their goal a reality. The men also hope to find their spot in nationals.

"We have the ability to take a second at conference," Charlie proclaimed. "The only thing that will hold us back is the mental edge of believing we can win.

The process of making second at conference includes shutting out Willamette's fifth man, Charlie explained. "Conference will be held at Pacific Lutheran University this year so we both will be facing a different course." Competing for the top positions at conference will be four teams: Lewis and Clark, Willamette, Whitworth, and Pacific Lutheran University. Charlie believes that a lot of the team's success at conference will be determined by Jeff Rohr. "Jeff is probably the team's best runner, but he hasn't had a good race all season because he has really been pushing in his workouts.

Craig Delitz, another outstanding runner, has also shown the fatigue of tough workouts. Craig who usually takes first in his races, has run third at Willamette. If Jeff gets a high place at conference we will almost surely take second.

Workouts, Charlie assured, have started to taper down so the teams will be rested for Conference. The cross country season was winding down, and the women's team has been running. This year Coach Terry has been able to keep the team a real unity. "We really do a lot together," Dana emphasised. "On order days we can take time and talk so we get to know each other, as well as explore Spokane."

"One reason for the unity," Charlie explained, "is that we spend a lot of time together in fellowship. Not only on the long road trips, but every evening at nine-thirty we have a Bible study.

Something new for this year's team is a "performance-of-the-week." This year we are making a special award to be given to the outstanding runner(s) each week for his/her efforts," Cindy reported. "To achieve this unique distinction," the coach continued, "The runner must demonstrate qualities of endurance, strength, speed, and mental toughness that exceed his/her usual expectations."
by Marquis Nuby

This year, the 1980 Whitworth women's volleyball team is having an outstanding season. Despite numerous injuries and sickness, the volleyball team has managed to win consistently. The Pirates have played in five invitational tournaments and won two from them. The women are 1-0 in league play and are looking forward to successful league and post-season play.

Pirate Coach Joanne Atwell-Scrivner has her team playing well. They possess a superb 17-4 record despite the team's poor health. Karine Servas has had an injured achilles tendon, Lynne Becker and Elaine Moneymaker both have had shoulder problems, and Doris Hoffman had minor surgery. However, the Pirates still have managed to win 17 matches losing only to Oregon State University.

In tournament play, the Bucs placed 7th in the Portland State tournament, 3rd in the University of Idaho tournament and won both their own Whitworth tournament and the Oregon College of Education tournament, which included a big victory over Linfield, who had beaten the Bucs last year.

The team is 1-0 thus far in league play, posting a recent win over Eugene. They are looking forward to not only successful league play, but also to a victorious post-season. Three year veteran tagger Steve McGonigal said that Whitworth and Linfield will be the top teams in the region.

The team's overall health is getting back to normal, and with this the women's volleyball team will look for an even better second half of the season. We don't like to lose," Hoffman stated. Evidently this is true, looking at the Pirates' present record.

Stewart team
Looks tough

By DeAnna Stohl

41 downset; but one. Hunt two. The quarterback turns to his left and hands the ball to the fullback on a powerful short yardage run. No, this is not the Pirate's football team in action, it is a group of enthusiastic students letting off steam, frustration and some extra energy by participating in the intramural football program.

The football tournament began about six weeks ago. But because of poor weather, many of the games were canceled. The teams competing in the men's division are Stewart 1, South Warren, McMillan 1, Stewart 2, McMillan 2, South Warren 1, Deane, Stewart 3, and Carlson. Baldwin-Jenkins, Off-Campus, Goodwill-Washington, West Warren, and South Warren are the teams competing in the women's division.

Although there hasn't been a great opportunity to play, many of the teams have shown some outstanding talent. The really awesome team in the men's division is Stewart 1. From the results received at the time of publication, Stewart 1 has been able to remain unscathed against. Doing an excellent job of quarterbacking the team is Joe Gallegos. Joe, along with other team members such as Chris Garrion and Brian Stans, produce enough momentum to secure the team's victories.

"Joe really has a lot of talent," Saff informed. "He does a lot of running and does most of the scoring for his team. He does an excellent job.

"I really love to play football," Joe expressed. "I would have liked to play for the Whitworth team, but I'm ineligible.

The 2nd Annual Whitworth College Junior Varsity Cross Country Meet, held last Wednesday, October 8, provided exciting competition for runners and spectators alike, as teams from EWU, SCC, North Idaho, Gonzaga, and Whitworth converged upon the loop to test their endurance and speed over the hilly, challenging 2.5 and five mile courses.

"In most cases, only the top seven travel to the various meets," explained Coach Terry Kelly, "so last year we came up with the idea of having two meets for the J.V. runners, so they would also have the opportunity to compete."

The women's race was won by Renee Riedel of GU who clocked a 16:47 over the 2.5 mile course. Freshman Wendy Halleen was the first Whitworth finisher, placing 4th overall with a time of 18:43, a 22 second improvement over her time on this course at the beginning of the season. She was followed by freshman Karine Allan, 5th in 18:57, amazingly enough her first race ever. Her strong kick enabled her to edge out sophomore Cindy Chamberlain who clocked an 18:59, good for 4th place and an improvement on her previous best time on this course by 1:06. Freshman Sally Eckert, in her first collegiate race, ran a 19:44 to finish 7th overall. So more Paula Cullen and Senior Kelly Rice completed the Whitworth contingent with respective times.

In the men's race, EWU's Paul Frederick won in a time of 27:36. Dave Williams, sophomore, one of our premier quarter-milers was the first Whitworth finisher placing 10th with a time of 29:45, a 33 second improvement over his previous best. Right on his heels were freshman Dale Edwards and Jay Hodge, who placed 11th and 12th with identical times of 29:46. Steve and another of our premier quarter-milers was the next Pirate finisher placing 20th, with a time of 31:53, his best time this year by 28 seconds. Two seconds later was Kevin Sea, who in his first race since a two year layoff due to injury, placed 21st with a time of 31:55. And rounding up the Whitworth Junior Varsity Team was Freshman Mitch Frey who placed 22nd. The collegiate race placed 29th with a time of 34:54. Thirty runners competed in the girls event. It was a competitive race.

The team's success is because of the varsity's training programs are both designed for the runners to peak during the cross-country season. They culminate in the regional meet which is the date for the next junior varsity meet, and is considered by many a "post-season" because it is the same week as the varsity race. Coach Kelly explained; "The varsity and junior varsity's training programs are both designed for the runners to peak out during the cross-country season. This means that the opportunity to culminate the season with potentially their best performances.

"One reason the team is so hot," Saff continued, "is that we have good teams. We have that a lot of good teams work together. No one tries to be the butt of the joke or work against a team. We thought that it would be a tough struggle for the women's teams a while to catch on. "It's hilarious to watch the women play," one bystander acknowledged. "It's supposed to be tackle, and half of the team is on the ground of penalized for off-sides.

"I've noticed that the majority of women playing are out mainly to have a good time and blow off some extra steam," Saff continued. "The men's teams are more competitive. They follow the rules directly.

"South Warren looks as though they are the tough team this year," Saff commented. "But it's hard to tell because they haven't played as much as the men's teams."
Craig Deitz is running better than ever and could be key to the Whitworth men's cross country teams hope for a trip to the national championships this November.

A fourth or fifth man on last year's team, Deitz has been the top Pirate runner in three of the four races this year. He's been slicing more than a minute off the times he was running a year ago. At the Peller Invitational last year Deitz ran the course in 28:39. This year he breezed in at 27:00.

What's been Craig's turnaround? This year, he's mentally tough. During the summer, Craig believes that he began to gain a mental edge over everybody else, because he knew what he can do.

A hold-up in the mental confidence that Craig has been showing lately, might be attributed to his high school days. Craig was the fifth man on the 1976 State Champions, Meadow High School. Being covered by Meadow greats: 1976 State Champions Jay Bendewald, Bob Bundy, and Deitz, running for UN-Reyn., and Rahn, Deitz hadn't realized his capabilities, and just recently gained the confidence of "Everybody's" happiness with the satisfaction of his accomplishments and thankful for God's hand in keeping him healthy. "Teammate and long time friend, John agrees with Craig." His mental motivation is a lot greater than I've ever seen it in my whole life."

Rahn also believes that with Craig's physical ability he has a greater mental edge over everybody else, because he knows what he can do.

At the Whitworth soccer championships, the Bucs will be entering the College Cup tomorrow. The Pirates will play the University of Montana in the Final Four on a score of 5-0. October 9, the team traveled to Washington and lost again, 3-0, but the score failed to indicate what the Bucs had to cope with. Waterman, Bleur, Dave Flesher scored winning goal against the University of Idaho.

by Hans Christenson

The Whitworth Soccer Club has had its problems this year, but their season is already turning around as they continue to improve.

First, October 5 the club played the University of Montana in the Final Four, losing by a score of 5-0. October 9, the team traveled to Washington and lost again, 3-0, but the score failed to indicate what the Bucs had to cope with. Waterman, Bleur, and Gallegos.

Dr. Liebert, coach of the Whitworth baseball team played 100 innings with Gonzaga in a recent Annual Event. The Pirates lost 56-51 in the first round.

The marathon, raised between $3,500 and $4,000, which helped finance a spring trip to California. Beach and Oregon. Louis Obispo will be among the colleges the Bucs will play in southern California. Coach Dave Vaughn would like to thank the 250 sponsors, Special thanks goes to Medical Service Corporation for their contribution of $1,500.

The game started at 7:00 a.m. Friday, lasted until 3:30 p.m. "I didn't think we would ever reach 100," said Coach Vaughn, "we didn't waste a minute of it. I thought the game up, finishing sooner than we had originally expected." Each team stayed at bat for six outs, clearing the bases before the game was eliminated. It was waste in the change over between innings.

Buc defense played fine defensive talent. The Pirates had only eleven errors, which is an average of about one every ten innings. Gonzaga had a record 24.5.

Many players hit well, including Mark Lehman, Dave Flesher, Jay Bleur. Kirk Kraush and Mark McGowan, and the Pirates compiled 115 hits, and Dave Moore added a home run. Thursday, a tough day on the field. The defense was key.

The marathon will become an annual event.

Sports Roundup

Sports Spotlight

Pirate soccer sees Improvement after wins

by Marc Kubota

Craig Deitz is running better than ever and could be key to the Whitworth men's cross country teams hope for a trip to the national championships this November.

A fourth or fifth man on last year's team, Deitz has been the top Pirate runner in three of the four races this year. He's been slicing more than a minute off the times he was running a year ago. At the Peller Invitational last year Deitz ran the course in 28:39. This year he breezed in at 27:00.

What's been Craig's turnaround? This year, he's mentally tough. During the summer, Craig believes that he began to gain a mental edge over everybody else, because he knew what he can do.

A hold-up in the mental confidence that Craig has been showing lately, might be attributed to his high school days. Craig was the fifth man on the 1976 State Champions, Meadow High School. Being covered by Meadow greats: 1976 State Champions Jay Bendewald, Bob Bundy, and Deitz, running for UN-Reyn., and Rahn, Deitz hadn't realized his capabilities, and just recently gained the confidence of "Everybody's" happiness with the satisfaction of his accomplishments and thankful for God's hand in keeping him healthy. "Teammate and long time friend, John agrees with Craig." His mental motivation is a lot greater than I've ever seen it in my whole life."

Rahn also believes that with Craig's physical ability he has a greater mental edge over everybody else, because he knows what he can do.

A hold-up in the mental confidence that Craig has been showing lately, might be attributed to his high school days. Craig was the fifth man on the 1976 State Champions, Meadow High School. Being covered by Meadow greats: 1976 State Champions Jay Bendewald, Bob Bundy, and Deitz, running for UN-Reyn., and Rahn, Deitz hadn't realized his capabilities, and just recently gained the confidence of "Everybody's" happiness with the satisfaction of his accomplishments and thankful for God's hand in keeping him healthy. "Teammate and long time friend, John agrees with Craig." His mental motivation is a lot greater than I've ever seen it in my whole life."

Rahn also believes that with Craig's physical ability he has a greater mental edge over everybody else, because he knows what he can do.

A hold-up in the mental confidence that Craig has been showing lately, might be attributed to his high school days. Craig was the fifth man on the 1976 State Champions, Meadow High School. Being covered by Meadow greats: 1976 State Champions Jay Bendewald, Bob Bundy, and Deitz, running for UN-Reyn., and Rahn, Deitz hadn't realized his capabilities, and just recently gained the confidence of "Everybody's" happiness with the satisfaction of his accomplishments and thankful for God's hand in keeping him healthy. "Teammate and long time friend, John agrees with Craig." His mental motivation is a lot greater than I've ever seen it in my whole life."

Rahn also believes that with Craig's physical ability he has a greater mental edge over everybody else, because he knows what he can do.

A hold-up in the mental confidence that Craig has been showing lately, might be attributed to his high school days. Craig was the fifth man on the 1976 State Champions, Meadow High School. Being covered by Meadow greats: 1976 State Champions Jay Bendewald, Bob Bundy, and Deitz, running for UN-Reyn., and Rahn, Deitz hadn't realized his capabilities, and just recently gained the confidence of "Everybody's" happiness with the satisfaction of his accomplishments and thankful for God's hand in keeping him healthy. "Teammate and long time friend, John agrees with Craig." His mental motivation is a lot greater than I've ever seen it in my whole life."

Rahn also believes that with Craig's physical ability he has a greater mental edge over everybody else, because he knows what he can do.

A hold-up in the mental confidence that Craig has been showing lately, might be attributed to his high school days. Craig was the fifth man on the 1976 State Champions, Meadow High School. Being covered by Meadow greats: 1976 State Champions Jay Bendewald, Bob Bundy, and Deitz, running for UN-Reyn., and Rahn, Deitz hadn't realized his capabilities, and just recently gained the confidence of "Everybody's" happiness with the satisfaction of his accomplishments and thankful for God's hand in keeping him healthy. "Teammate and long time friend, John agrees with Craig." His mental motivation is a lot greater than I've ever seen it in my whole life."

Rahn also believes that with Craig's physical ability he has a greater mental edge over everybody else, because he knows what he can do.
news

Psychologist Olson to replace Phillips

by Lisa Heniges

Dr. Dave Olson will be joining the DAU Psychology Department this fall as Professor of Psychology. Dr. Olson is here on a full time basis whereas psychologists in the past have been on hand only part time. The need for a full time psychologist was first recognized by the Student Life people who, with student encouragement, decided to prod the Department.

Students are encouraged to bring their problems by for visit, whatever the reason, and just talk. People consult a psychologist for a number of reasons, these may concern other personal or social problems, or students seeking help may be dealing with dependencies or chemical dependency problems.

Dr. Olson is coming from the Whitworth College and has a Ph.D. degree from the University of Washington. He is an Assistant Professor of Psychology and specializes in child psychology. In his private practice, he major in Political Science at Lewis & Clark College, then he continued on to get his Ph.D. degree in Clinical Psychology at the University of Wyoming. He has taught Psychology in the University of Washington in Psychological psychology (specializing in child psychology), and in Health Institute and private practice.

"One reason I came to Whitworth was to be able to practice psychology in a Christian atmosphere. As a psychologist I had been frustrated at having to direct people into themselves as I am now free to use the Christian faith to integrate the physiological, emotional, and spiritual aspect," says Dr. Olson.

"Another reason is that I have been offered an academic position, and the opportunity to help Whitworth become a more Christian oriented university."

Dr. Olson can make appointments to meet with Dr. Olson through either the Student Life Center where he can be reached any weekday or through the Health Center where he will be available Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 to 9:00 pm.

CPS News in Brief

NEW YORK, N.Y. (CPS)—Fears that law schools won't be able to find jobs for their graduates have been dispelled, according to a new survey that found 95 percent of 1979's law graduates have found employment.

The National Association for Law Placement conducted the survey of 1,399 law schools to find out if the lawyers "sit" on the job, and if law schools should therefore cut back on law admissions.

The association discovered that virtually all the schools' graduates found a job in the field within nine months of getting their degrees. Fifty-four percent of them were offered jobs by the second week. Seventy-five percent were employed by the fourth week. The job was on their resume.

"You just can't walk away from that kind of responsibility," he argues.

Brown, in addition to numerous student and anti nuclear groups, moved that the regents terminate the contract last year, soon after the new-milsoft took at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania. Brown's motion was defeated then, too.

The university created the weapons research program at Los Alamos, N.M. lab 35 years ago, and the book is the art work, it was all done by grade school children in the Mead School District, Sebo Park, a Korean artist, took some of the children's drawings and rendered them onto the book that were used for the book's cover as well as for special sections.

One of the opening parts of the book is devoted to telling the story of a dream as part of the five thousand with two fish and five loaves of bread. Each section of the book is devoted to cooking tools, tips, recipes, and the English language. Then comes over 100 recipes, ranging from "Lynn's Easy Cream Sauce to Pilgrims' Roast Turkey." The recipes in the book are divided into four sections: Snacks, Sandwiches, Celebration Food for Holidays, and From Other Lands.

The Huntington, who is not a purist book, the recipes within the book use many of the ingredients that are found within the home. "The book

College Tuitions May Rise

(CPS)-Even before students finish writing the check for this year's out-of-rental and the administrators are drooling over how much money is to be made. When you consider that tuition for the 1981-82 academic year will be going up again.

Failing inflation and rising costs, state administrators forecast next year's increases could range anywhere from Arizona's 8.5 percent to Texas' proposed hike of 11 percent in general. Out-of-state students in most public systems are expected to be the hardest hit by the next round of tuition increases.

Arizona was the first higher education system to adopt 1981-82 rates. The state Board of Regents unanimously decided last week to raise 8.5 percent for non-residents at the University of Arizona and Northern Arizona University, and 12 percent at Arizona State University, and 12 percent at Northern Arizona University. Student tuition will jump 8.3 percent.

Robert Huff, the board's executive director, says the caliper charge much more.

Arizona, like other systems, based its increase on inflation rate, not what it expects next year. "We calculated what our expenses last year, and to come close to keeping up with inflation by that amount," Huff explains.

Inflation rates are even affecting Texas state schools, which are breakers of a complex of energy funds. If a state legislative committee has its way, state college and universities will impose a whopping 100 percent increase on its students.

But student protest has indeed, the fear of widespread student protest. The increases has apparently convinced some college administrators to delay announcing them.

The National Association for Law Placement conducted the survey of 1,399 law schools to find out if the "lawyer shortage" was real, and if law schools should therefore cut back on law admissions.

The association discovered that virtually all the schools' graduates found a job in the field within nine months of getting their degrees. Fifty-five percent of them were offered jobs by the second week. Seventy-five percent were employed by the fourth week. The job was on their resume.

"You just can't walk away from that kind of responsibility," he argues.

Brown, in addition to numerous student and anti nuclear groups, moved that the regents terminate the contract last year, soon after the new-milsoft took at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania. Brown's motion was defeated then, too.

The university created the weapons research program at Los Alamos, N.M. lab 35 years ago, and the program at the Livermore lab in Berkeley in 1953. It has supported the research ever since.

The research came under increasing criticism last year as part of the anti-Vietnam war protest, and again as the anti-nuclear power movement swelled in the mid and late seventies. Brown terms this "more public attention to a research program, and a research program that is concerned with nuclear and with world hunger." Included in the book are recipes that can be made by the college aged student as well as to the grade school student.

Mrs. Hunt said, "The book is not a purist book. The recipes within the book use many of the ingredients that are found within the home. The book

Unique Cookbook Provides Insight

By Mark Meyer

One of the hottest selling items in the Whitworth College Bookstore is the book. It's no ordinary cookbook, however. The book was written for children and provides them with insights into healthy eating in a world of limited resources. The name of the book is Leaves and Fruits, the Neighbor Cookbook, and it is written by Linda Hunt, Marianne Fears, and Doris Liebert, whose husbands are all professors at Whitworth.

The first printing of the book sold out in two months at the national level, and the second printing is also selling well. According to Mrs. Hunt, "The national response to the book has been great."

The authors have worked for two years getting the book ready. According to Mrs. Hunt, "People and the biggest problem encountered was trying to make sure that the cookbook was safe for children, that it would appeal to children, and be simple enough for them to do, but still remain interesting. Each of the hundred or more recipes in the book is kid-tested to see if kids could follow the directions and prepare the dishes. Only the recipes that passed the kid-testing were included in the book. All of the author's children participated in the testing.

An interesting aspect of the book is the artwork, it was all done by grade school children in the Mead School District, Sebo Park, a Korean artist, took some of the children's drawings and rendered them onto the book that were used for the book's cover as well as for special sections.

The opening part of the book is devoted to telling the story of a dream as part of the five thousand with two fish and five loaves of bread. Each section of the book is devoted to cooking tools, tips, recipes, and the English language. Then comes over 100 recipes, ranging from "Lynn's Easy Cream Sauce to Pilgrims' Roast Turkey." The recipes in the book are divided into four sections: Snacks, Sandwiches, Celebration Food for Holidays, and From Other Lands.

The Huntington, who is not a purist book, the recipes within the book use many of the ingredients that are found within the home. "The book
Football problems: Move over Pac-10

by Debbie Reinward

The season record for the football team is 3-3. Unfortunately, drastic errors in the college's admissions process has resulted in the forfeiture of two of those games.

Bob Tierzi transferred from Golden West last year and played football for Whitworth. This year, he was one of the Friday's players to be notified that he was ineligible. Bob was informed the day before the first game of his ineligibility.

Gill Harris also transferred from Golden West. He was recruited by Whitworth last spring, unaware that he was going to have trouble transferring units. Gill was on the bus prior to leaving for E.O.S.C. when he received a phone call and was told he was ineligible. He was short 25 units.

Mike Matthews' case is a little similar. He asked to transfer into the season he was told he was a .10 grade point below the average needed to participate in intercollegiate athletics. One of his classes was reassessed, and he was pronounced eligible. By a fluke, Mike was injured in the two games Whitworth won, so his ineligibility didn't affect the Pirate's win/loss record.

President's Council Update

The President's Council meeting held on October 27 was dominated by two issues: the N.A.I.A. regulations and the Whitworth Tuition Hike. The only two decisions made during the meeting was to raise tuition for the next school year and to determine eligibility in that same issue.

Last year tuition will increase $125 to $4,475. Room and board costs will also go up, up to $5,000, a rise of 12%. According to Mike Goins, the increase in tuition is due to increased costs of running the college, mainly the rising costs of utilities. We're looking at a 42% increase in utilities from last year. Last year, utilities increased as well, an increase of 71% in utilities costs.

The Admissions Committee reported that enrollment was up slightly for the fall quarter, bringing in 1,225 full time undergraduate students, and a total of 1,786 students.

One special note, the Board of Trustees, the Chairperson of the Board of Trustees, the George Whitworth Medal is given for outstanding service to the college. According to Mike Goins, only four other people have been honored.

The Whitworth Board of Trustees, held October 26 at the Fellowship Hall of Whitworth Presbyterian Church. About the only major decision made during the meetings was to raise tuition for the next school year.

Plans are already being made for the establishment of the Whitworth Seminar Center in the Old Music Building. The old music building was vacated two years ago, but now, thanks to a grant from the Murdock Trust Foundation, it is being renovated to house the seminar center.

The basic plan for the building is to be divided into two levels. The lower level will house faculty offices for the social science division, which includes business and economics, sociology, history, political studies, and communications. The upper level will combine classrooms, seminar rooms, a reception area, a lounge area, and storage for audio-visual equipment. "Idea is to make this so we could have management level seminars in an attractive environment." He went on to say that there is a big market for seminars and post-graduate courses, especially in the business field, that don't involve a masters degree.

Meetings have met and come up with preliminary designs. An Implementation Committee was formed to work with the architects and plan Ahead. According to Bill Yager, the committee was made up of Shirley Richter, Marilyn Smith, Joe Pick, representing Continuing Studies, Dan Sanford, for the Social Science Department, Mike Goins, Don Hoden, Director of the Physical Plant, Mike Levy, representing the center for Economic Education, and Duncan Ferguson. According to Bill Yager, "We owe the fact that we got this grant to Duncan Ferguson. He worked long and hard to see it through."

Work should begin on the inside of the building any day now. The outside is to be gutting the inside of the building. Completion of the project is expected to take place in August of 1981.
Why not the Best?

by Jim Craig

I am supporting the re-election of President Carter because he is the best person for the job.

He is the best person because in his policies of the last four years Jimmy Carter has shown a high degree of integrity. This integrity is comprised of highly idealistic goals and a practical understanding of the degree to which these goals can be realistically reached. The decisions made by President Carter cannot be viewed separately. They need to be seen as segments of an overall policy, one which realistically faces front a hard world with an idealistic conscience, resulting in decisions based upon the long range goals of peace, human dignity, and determining the shape of the United States of America.

No one wants war, and President Carter has proven his ability to wage peace by choosing non-military means to protect the interests of the United States of America.

In his response to the invasion of Afghanistan, President Carter refused to show his force, foreign aid, and diplomatic command position, its military and autonomy.

At home, international control must be mediated. Internationally, President Carter has chosen to use quiet diplomacy to work for human rights and an ending of the solidary with the existing regimes. Again, the integrity of President Carter has assumed a middle ground whereby the United States stands and works for rights, yet with the knowledge that this policy is a goal to be achieved, not one to be immediately implemented.

In the area of the economy, President Carter has proven himself above the fray of political passions by sticking to a course which has driven interest rates up at the major banks in America. By this action he has decreased the 1980 projected annual rate of inflation from a high of thirteen percent in January, to below ten percent for the entire year. Thus the current recession, which many economic indicators show may continue throughout the summer, will be even shorter and of a shorter duration than the recession of 1974-75, under the Republican administration of Gerald Ford. And in the area of jobs, President Carter can boast that eight and a half million new jobs were created during his administration.

In conclusion, President Carter should be re-elected because he has proven himself a man of high integrity.

He has been willing to make the hard decisions required of a United States President, while keeping the goals of peace, human dignity, and economic prosperity as the basis upon which these decisions are considered. Because one person is elected to head our government, I suggest the moral idealism that has proven himself as one who can combine individual righteousness with the practical reality of a difficult world.

Vote the D-Candidate

by Mike Wendlandt

I have been very unsettled during this entire election campaign. Somehow I feel that the American electorate has been led by choosing non-military means to solve the hostage crisis.

This resulted in Iran being ostracized from the world community, his one movement away from non-military policy, came in the attempt to rescue the hostages. This attempt, in deviating from his non-military stance, shows a President who is willing to make the hard decisions when it is necessary and appropriate. Yet when this action is viewed as a small part of a much greater policy, I see a President committed to peaceful methods of conflict resolution.

On March 17, 1977, President Carter addressed the United Nation's General Assembly.

"The search for peace and justice also means respect for human rights. Inasmuch as this is a part of the United Nations charter, we have pledged ourselves to observe and to respect basic human rights. Thus, no member of the United Nations can claim that mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business. Equally, no member state is free to escape responsibility to review and to speak when torture or unwaranted deprivation occurs in any part of the world."

Herein President Carter proclaimed his personal commitment to international human rights. Yet his policy has not been applied to this goal. Rather it has been a practical application of these principles in a sometimes evil world.

in the cases of Nicaragua and Iran, when the indigenous populations chose to overthrow their governments, govern- ments in the United States and now also know both the brutal oppression of their citizens. President Carter chose a hands off policy. He respected the right of a nation's city zeny to choose its own destiny, and by this allowed governments known for their brutality to fall from power. Yet, when these countries are in need of aid, we see a change of policy, as demonstrated by Iran.

Although knowing of the oppression of the people by their governments in such countries as the Philippines, South Korea, El Salvador, and the Soviet Union, President Carter has chosen to use quiet diplomacy to work for human rights and an ending of the solidary with the existing regimes. Again, the integrity of President Carter has assumed a middle ground whereby the United States stands and works for rights, yet with the knowledge that this policy is a goal to be achieved, not one to be immediately implemented.

In the area of economy, President Carter has proven himself above the fray of political passions by sticking to a course which has driven interest rates up at the major banks in America. By this action he has decreased the 1980 projected annual rate of inflation from a high of thirteen percent in January, to below ten percent for the entire year. Thus the current recession, which many economic indicators show may continue throughout the summer, will be even shorter and of a shorter duration than the recession of 1974-75, under the Republican administration of Gerald Ford. And in the area of jobs, President Carter can boast that eight and a half million new jobs were created during his administration.

In conclusion, President Carter should be re-elected because he has proven himself a man of high integrity.

He has been willing to make the hard decisions required of a United States President, while keeping the goals of peace, human dignity, and economic prosperity as the basis upon which these decisions are considered. Because one person is elected to head our government, I suggest the moral idealism that has proven himself as one who can combine individual righteousness with the practical reality of a difficult world.

The New Pharisees

by Kim Ashley

Election year 1980 has the ominous look of a holy war. Millions of born-again Christians, 70,000 evangelical preachers, have left their religious duties and entered the political arena.

And they enter it with the power of moral indignation. For they truly believe that the traditional values of God, country, and family are being abandoned through government legislation and a rising tide of secular humanism.

For the most part, the leaders of this holy war are the Christian Right. James Robison, Jim Bakker, and Jerry Falwell—who use their Good Times House to spread the message of the New Christian Right. Reaching an estimated 20,000 viewers each week, they urge massive voter registration and direct a crusade for right wing politics.

And through political organizations like the Christian Coalition, Majority, they ask Christians to support candidates who "stand for the Christian faith" and embrace pro-family positions against abortion, birth control, and same-sex marriage.

The impact of this New Christian Right is undeniable. In the last 20 months, it has recorded some important political victories. It has helped unseat two liberal senators, blocked passage of the ERA in 15 states, disrupted the National Conference on the Family, and most recently, exerted a major influence at the GOP national convention, where it helped reshape the Republican platform.

But even though this New Christian Right may have a sincere desire to reject the morbid values of this world, and to speak their message in Biblical rhetoric, their religious zeal and self-righteousness is so extreme that they, in fact, block a free discussion of vital moral issues and thereby undermine our most important tradition—religious and political pluralism.

In short, this New Christian Right betrays its own Protestant inheritance. First, it is too self-righteous. It zealously proclaims that its vision of a moral America is divinely inspired and the only true one. But such a proclamation is idolatry. A true Protestantism recognizes the measure of pride and presumption about the human understanding of faith. No man, no human institution, no religious group is perfectly good or right or beyond God's judgment. It is the true Christian community that stands under the cross. This means that the community will claim final truth for any moral vision in the context of its self-judgment, and every attempt to equate human concerns and values with the will of God is idolatrous.

(Cont. page 4)
A Critique of the Reagan Tax-Cut Economics

By 'Paul' Martin

Three of the major things that Governor Reagan, in his bid for the Presidency, promises us are, an increase in military spending, a tax cut and a smaller government. If implemented, these platform stands would cause the most influence on Reagan’s ideas. He believes that they will provide the necessary stimulus to put the economy back on the track to high productivity and economic growth. These policies sound very good to most Americans, but before we consent to support them, we should understand exactly how they are supposed to work. The cornerstone of Reagan’s economic policy is the tax cut. This tax cut would be 10% in 1981 and an additional 10% in 1982 and 1983. Traditional Keynesian economics tells us that a tax cut is appropriate in times of recession and tends to cause or increase the deficit in the Federal Budget. By putting more money into the peoples hands, taxes are supposed to increase the overall amount of goods and services demanded by all the consumers in the country. This increase in overall demand eliminates the recession. This sounds pretty good so far, but things are not as simple. Depending on the conditions in the economy, an increase in the Federal Deficit may be marginally or highly inflationary. If the economy is already producing all the goods and services it can, or its response of increasing overall goods and services is sluggish, then a tax cut and increase in Federal Deficit are both going to increase inflation. If you have followed me so far, you may be asking yourself: “But we now have inflation and recession at the same time. How will the tax cut effect the inflation we already have?”

The insights of Keynesian economics tell us that under these circumstances, the inflation rate would stay the same or increase. This is because the tax cut will eliminate both the recession and inflation. He supports a somewhat new theory in economics. This theory is at the heart of the Republican-Rittenhouse economic policy. Reagan believes that the economy is extremely opposite. “If Joe Salazar, a typical American worker, is a loyal employee, that the tax cut would be to get his interest on the county, and stay the same or increase. This is how he proposes to balance the budget.”

In the eyes of this analyst, the above reasoning presupposes some very questionable premises. Some of these are: that the general size of the economy is the main oppressor of the economy, that the economy may resume its previous growth rates, and that self interest motivation is so important and presently too low.

In the letter of these, let me simply say that Americans are learning that three cars, a house, a boat, and a summer cabin do not in themselves bring happiness. America is not the same as Western society used to be. If it has its citizens personal self interests are not quite so demanding.

Reagan’s tax cut economics will not work because it assumes that big government is the only, or at least the major, oppressor of the economy. The rising cost of energy is a good example. Another is the American foreign goods and services, which are tradable in the world’s largest market. The government responds rapidly with a major increase of goods and services produced and consumed, then the tax cut and deficit increase and in turn, becomes inflationary. The government will not be happy if the tax cut and deficit increase and become inflationary. The government would not be happy if the tax cut and deficit increase and become inflationary. If the tax cut and deficit increase and become inflationary.

Reagan believes that the economy is extremely opposite. He also believes that the taxes are so high that they stifle the economy. The reasoning for this is simple. If Joe Salazar, a typical American worker, is a loyal employee, that the tax cut would be to get his interest on the county, and stay the same or increase. This is how he proposes to balance the budget. The government will not be happy if the tax cut and deficit increase and become inflationary. If the tax cut and deficit increase and become inflationary.

Reagan believes that the economy is extremely opposite. He also believes that the taxes are so high that they stifle the economy. The reasoning for this is simple. If Joe Salazar, a typical American worker, is a loyal employee, that the tax cut would be to get his interest on the county, and stay the same or increase. This is how he proposes to balance the budget.

The opinions expressed on the editorial pages are those of the Whithorisation staff or the students of Whithorization College. Please deposit Letters to the Editor in the Whithorization Mailbox, Westminster 202, or give to the Circulation Office. No responsibility is assumed for unsolicited manuscripts and letters is the Friday before publication. Publication is every other week.

The Whithorisation is a student publication of the students of Whithorization College and is published twice monthly, except during January, by students, Circulation 1500. Opinions expressed are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Whithorization or Whithorization College.

Co-Editor...............Lois Hutchinson, Debbie Reinwund
Business Manager..............Lisa Weaver
Production Manager............Pat Williams
News Editor.....................Mark Meyer
Feature Editor..................Steve Gough
Sports Editor....................Bob Hutchison
Editorial Editor...............Mike Wendlandt
Photo Editor.....................Brod Boersma
Advertising Manager...........Jeri Hansen
Photographers: Brad Adams, Lynda Stone, Paul Graham.
Bob Livingston, Barry Adams, Hans Christenson, Patrick Rose
Production Crew: Susan Fink, Barb Wright, Greg Wright
Published by Those Publishing
Nave refuted

I would like to seriously criticize the editorial clash of our ASWC President. I found Doug Nave's words more damaging to himself than to anyone else involved with the government of the Whitworthian. It is my judgment that his harsh language and accusations towards the Whitworthian advertisement policy were well beyond the limits of his job as an ASWC President. Mr. Nave, I have lost a great amount of respect for the position he holds within the ASWC. You not only failed to show a defensive position, but have abused your own authority as President of the Whitworthian.

You have made an emotional argument out of something clearly out of your field, also putting unnecessary emphasis of the Whitworthian staff.

I realize my own name was "used" for namesake in the supplement editorial that was presented in the last political issue. I was shocked to see it there, along with another student who was so surprised, this is not the issue. It is your incapability to understand facts from your obvious.{censored} and emotional stance.

You have passed judgment without really seeing what is in front of you. Have you had your judgment powers blocked out any understanding of the real issues? If this is the kind of judgement that is making decisions for me, then I must outspokenly cast a negative vote.

Sincerely as a student,
Chris Frimoth

Meal cards

I was extremely pleased to see two full columns in the last Whitworthian dedicated to the pressing and universal problem of lost meal cards. Among this age of political, social, and economic unrest, it seems like a major concern.

In response to Laura Hodes's piece for student feedback, I offer these comments:

Attending college and living away from home is a difficult task. Many students are economically inadequate to pay for their meals, which are not always available at the Whitworthian. Due to this, meal cards are a necessity.

Many times I have sat in and watched the slide shows of the trips Whitworth students have taken. They are breathtaking experiences. Mr. Nave's editorial impacts this year's students in their journey towards their own decision-making process. As an ASWC member, I find it appropriate to bring up these issues to the Whitworthian.

I would like to take a moment to thank the Whitworthian staff and the teachers of the campus for their hard work and dedication. Mr. Nave has made this school a very "positive" place to be.

Many times I have sat in and watched the slides of the trips that Whitworth students have taken. Thank you for bringing these issues up. I find it appropriate to bring up these issues to the Whitworthian.

Sincerely as a student,
Chris Frimoth

Pharisees, cont.

Second, from the standpoint of historical Protestantism, the New Christian Right is too absolutist. It claims an ultimate truth for the literal interpretation of scripture to the modern world. The New Christian Right is not the New Christian Left; it is the New Christian Right, and it is the New Christian Right that requires the literalism of the New Christian Right.

The New Christian Right is not the belief in moral codes or ethical truths but the individual's sense of trust in the event of Jesus Christ and the meaning He gives to life.

Foley-Sonnell, cont.

National Journal made such a speculation, which it appears that more than one Republican candidate gets his information from newspaper clipping.

Unfortunately, the Speaker-Review has not identified the New Christian Right as a separate group, and is doing its best to remove one of Washington's most capable legislators. If he succeeds, the paper will surely get what it deserves.

As for Sonnell himself, the bankruptcy of his candidacy is self-evident. Without the experience of a young man who has just been defeated in the federal government, and without any convincing reason to believe that the Republican candidate (which Foley has evidently not convinced the Voters), Mr. Foley has been a disappointing figure at his opponent. And this, surely, is the line of common decency.

Bill Yager, Asst. Prof., Business and Economics

Thanks, Again!

I would like to take a moment to thank the Whitworthian staff for their hard work and dedication. Mr. Nave has made this school a very "positive" place to be.

Many times I have sat in and watched the slides of the trips Whitworth students have taken. Thank you for bringing these issues up. I find it appropriate to bring up these issues to the Whitworthian.

Sincerely as a student,
Chris Frimoth
PAC - Knowing the Alternatives

by Deanna Stone

"We have grasped the mystery of the atom and rejected the sermon on the mount. Ours is a world of Nuclear Giants and ethical infants. We know more about war than we know about peace, more about killing than we know about living," said General Omar Bradley.

The Peace Action Coalition has this saying printed on their posters because it illustrates their thirst for peace and their apparent desire for people to be educated, especially in terms of alternatives to war and violence.

The Peace Action Coalition just had its first birthday this past month. The group was basically initiated in response to a request made by the Whitworth Presbyterian assembly of Churches. The request that was made by them was that Presbyterian institutions disallow military recruiters on their campuses. The Peace Action Coalition formed as a result of the request and as a result of a proposal formed within the council that the college go along with the request. At first, PAC agreed with the proposition but eventually changed its mind. They were for basic reasons, they felt that the recruiters should be allowed on the campus. First of all, they felt that if such an action were taken it wouldn't be in com-function with the theme of the school. In other words, Whitworth does not strive to force ideologies, philosophies, and behaviors upon the students, but rather present various alternatives. Secondly, it was felt that such rejection of the military would not serve any purpose because Whitworth would not be taking any risks for its beliefs. As a result of PAC's stand and suggestions, the President's Council revised its proposal and suggested that the administration initiate peace study classes as a part of the curriculum.

After talking to Liz Calvin, the student coordinator of PAC, it became apparent that the group does not desire to force the ideal of peace upon anyone, but rather present the alternative. The organization hopes to be an educational tool instead of a force. The people that have been involved in the group have apparently held differing values, beliefs, and attitudes. Of course there have been personalities representing attitudes from the extreme pacifist to those that believe that violence is unavoidable at times.

In conclusion, much of the Peace Action Coalition's philosophy can be summarized with the following quotation, "we are committed to helping each other know the alternative ways of meeting conflict other than with violence." The Peace Action Coalition Organization seems to offer an opportunity for the students of Whitworth to be informed as to the alternatives of war and nuclear weapons. Consequently, they can be more aware of their world and attempt to influence it.

The Peace Action Coalition meets every second and fourth Tuesday from 4 to 5 p.m. in the Chapel.

The program was originally funded by the students involved in it but this year, ASWC has budgeted money for the promotion and educational aspects of the organization. The money is needed for the cost of some of the speakers and films. Some of the speakers in the past have been Dr. Bruner and Dr. Hicks and the issues have included the responsibility of the Christian in the military and the effects of radiation from nuclear war. In November, Dr. Laura Blochham and Dr. Liebert will be speaking. The organization also hopes to get John Howard Yoder to speak.

Meals Card cont.

approximately 93.7% of on-campus students who somehow manage to hang on to their cards for a full nine months.

For those unfortunate souls who have such trouble keeping track of their meal cards, I would propose the institution of a more permanent form of ID, say nose rings. The number of lost and stolen nose rings would be well below that of lost and stolen meal cards. An added feature in nose rings is their virtual indestructibility, another of Mrs. Hutchinson's concerns.

I am aware, however, that there are the individuals who, regardless of the amount of inherent safeguards, will find a way to lose something. To accommodate this special breed, I recommend tattooing their ID number and any other pertinent information on their foreheads. This would make loss and theft impossible and would allow these students to concentrate their energies on other aspects of adapting to life away from home.

Tom Hoback, senior

PROSPECTIVE LAW STUDENTS

Law School and Legal Career Information

DATE: Friday, November 7, 1980
TIME: 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.
PLACE: Whitworth College

Further information available: Chelli Lefler, Career Life Planning

McGeorge School of Law
UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA

J.D. DEGREE (Full Time, Part-Time, Accelerated Evening Division)
MASTER DEGREE PROGRAM—MASTER OF LAWS (Taxation and Business Taxation) — INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS—ACCRREDITED; AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION—MEMBER: ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN LAW SCHOOLS Put yourself where you're needed

Peace Corps and VISTA Volunteers have a tradition of sharing their knowledge and skills with the people of developing nations and here at home. They're individuals who combine a special sense of adventure with a desire to help other people.

Your college degree or appropriate work background may qualify you for the experience of your life. Our representatives will be pleased to discuss with you the many volunteer openings beginning in the next 12 months.

ATTENTION SENIORS: Assignments for positions beginning May through December 1981 are now being made. Early applicants have a greater chance of selection and a wider choice of assignments. We encourage you to apply NOW for these positions.

NOVEMBER 10:Information. 10AM-6PM in the HUB.
Slide Seminar 3:30PM-5PM in Dixon Room 214.

Ineligibility cont.

However, it did, and along with the other cases of ineligible players, it has led to a lot of frustration and anger, as well as hurt, on the part of the football team. The main problem appears to be the lack of communication and understanding of the requirements that transfer athletes must meet.

Olsen agreed that there is a need for a "joint effort" between athletics and admissions. Transfers should be informed of credit or requirement problems ahead of time so they can take care of these and avoid the problems experienced this year.

Some of Olsen's suggestions include sending prospective athletes a detailed list of conference and national regulations. "We've been remiss in this," Olsen admitted.

Despite the efforts of the admissions office, the fact remains that because of these errors, Whitworth holds a 1-5 record, when it should rightfully be 3-3. This doesn't go for the football team. Tiezzi thinks "the whole thing is ridiculous. Every year is happens, it's getting to be a joke. I don't buy it anymore." In addition, Tiezzi says, "I don't think it was someone's mistake. There's a lot of promises to keep the football program, but I think there's a lot of people that don't want it."

Olsen disagrees with the rumor that the football program, or any other athletic program is in danger of being cut. "I think there's more support than before."

He concluded by saying that hopefully, clearer scrutiny will be given to the rules and the athlete's transcripts. He hopes that combined with a more informative recruiting process, the college can prevent such unfortunate incidents in the future. "All it takes is one mistake. The rules are very strict and nothing is subjective."
sports
Defense dominates in romp over L.C.

by Barry Adams
The Whitworth Pirates sacked the Lewis and Clark Pioneers 31-7 Saturday in a Northwest Conference game. The Pirate defenders were everywhere as the Bucs "D" intercepted four Pioneer passes, recovered two fumbles and held LC to minus three yards rushing and only 76 passing in the rain soaked game.

Following a lackluster first quarter, the Whitworth offense caught fire as reserve quarterback Mark Hansen led the Pirates on two scoring drives. Wayne Christenson kicked a 27 yard field goal for the first Whitworth points, defensive end Kim Hatch blocked the first of two punts for a safety and Hansen ran seven yards for a touchdown to put the Bucs ahead 12-7 at halftime.

Hansen connected with end John Dorr on a seven yard scoring pass to open the second half as the Whitworth defense had no answer for the first Whitworth points. The Bucs dropped to 1-1-1 in the rain soaked game. The Pirates are now 1-2 in conference play while LC dropped to 1-1-1.

Fullback Jim Judd powered for 110 yards, his first hundred yard day of the season. Judd scored Whitworth’s last touchdown on a one yard dive, halfback George Hays had 72 yards including a 62 yard jaunt that set up an Andy Wolfe touchdown in the fourth quarter.

The Pirates will return home this Saturday against Willamette and end their season Nov. 15 at Pacific.

Whitworth lost their Homecoming game to Linfield 17-7. The undefeated Linfield team beat PLU, 20-14 this week and will most likely take over the top spot in the N.A.I.A. polls, originally held by PLU, a team Whitworth lost to 39-38 in Tacoma.

 Spikeys record Climbs to 24-4
by Marquis Nuby
The Whitworth volleyball team raised their record to an impressive 24-4 mark by placing third straight victories over Gonzaga University, Whitman College and Eastern Washington University. The Pirates seem to be prepared to face the task of playing in a tough tournament in Southern California.

Whitworth beat Whitman College in a fairly tough match in four sets. During the first set Whitman was really playing well. However, with solid play by Doris Hoffman, the Bucs managed to win the set 15-13. The second set was totally dominated by Whitworth as the whole team played superbly and blitzed Whitman 15-5. In the third set Whitworth began to start their own rally and took a 13-5 lead. Whitworth rallied at 8-5, but Whitman managed to hold them off to win the set 15-7. The Bucs won the fourth set with ease by a score of 15-8 to win the match.

Eastern Washington gave Whitworth a run for their money last Tuesday night, but the Whitworth women managed to averge their early season loss to them by winning the match in four sets. Whitworth, behind the serving of Lynn Becker, started off with a quick 4-0 lead. Whitworth continued to coast as they increased their lead, 12-3. Eastern then initiated a couple of rallies to make the score 14-12, but a clutch ace served by Elaine Moneymaker won the set for the Bucs, 15-12.

In the second set Whitworth once again came out with a fast start to lead 6-2; as play continued, EWU outscored the Bucs 13-2 to win the set 15-8. In the third set Whitworth and Eastern were tied 5-5 in the early portions of the set, but five plays by Doris Hoffman, Nancy Hammock, and Sally Scribner led the Pirates to win the set with a 15-11 score. The fourth set began with a 1-2 Eastern lead. But once again, the Whitworth women, behind the leadership of Doris Hoffman, scored eight consecutive unanswered points for a 9-2 lead. The Eastern Washington Eagles just couldn’t stop the "Whitworth Machine" as Whitworth went on to win the set and the match by running off a 6-1 rally.

The Whitworth women’s volleyball team left Thursday for the 10th Annual Occidental College Invitational tournament in Southern California. Occidental is hosting four of the top teams in the nation in Division III competition, including Azusa Pacific, Sacramento State, University of California-Davis, and University of California-San Diego. Whitworth was invited to the tournament last year when they participated in nationals at Occidental. Part of the funds for The Trip are coming from the volleyball budget, as no air fare will be needed to fly to the national tournament this year, since it is being held at Whitworth.
Sports Roundup

Sports Spotlight

-Dave Pomante-

by DeAnna Stohl

Senior Dave Pomante has set his sights on a goal and is determined to attain it. Dave's desire, "to be the best possible football player I can possibly be," seems to be close to realization.

Dave, a 5'8" defensive tackle for the Pirates, is determined to get the ball carrier "for the best in the Northwest Conference," according to Coach Dave Squires.

Last year Dave received a trophy for being the best defensive player of the year in the NWC. "Dave Pomante works as a good football player," Coach Squires commented, "so he worked hard and is a good football player. There are a number of men on the team with the same talent. Dave is an inspiration to us all." "I had my goal and I think I prepared myself well," Dave admitted. "He's really become a top leader of the team," a teammate noted. "I remember last year when we had about three or more inches of snow on the field but Dave went out and cleared an area so he could do his workout. That's dedication."

By looking at his statistics it is obvious that all of Dave's hard work has not gone unrewarded. Dave leads the team in tackles this year with a total of 71 in the first six games. Last year he led the team with a total of 108. Dave also leads in assists and has been the cause of four fumbles. Dave may be second this year in quarterback sacks, but he holds the overall record for any Whitworth player.

On October 19 the club traveled to the University of Montana with only 11 players and dropped the game by a score of 4-1. The team played tough in the first half and trialed at halftime by a score of 2-1, but the second half wore them down without substitutes. Montana picked up two more goals, with Scott Tannehill scoring Whitworth's only goal.

Next, the team invaded W.S.U. for a night game with a big, physical Cougar team, on artificial turf. Whitworth lost again by a tally of 5-0. Whitworth held W.S.U. in check most of the first half, but once they fell behind by two goals, the Cougar team dominated. Once again, the Bucs didn't have any substitutes to rest a tired team.

October 25 saw the team travelling to C.W.U. in Ellensburg to take on another tough opponent. "Momad Drias a key striker, missed the game," Coach Squires stated, "but we have a number of substitutes to rest a tired team."

The disadvantages we have against us include running on Simon Fraser's turf. Western Washington is also very familiar with the course while ours are only gaining our advantage. But all is not lost for the Pirate runners. Team captain Charlie Lewis, "I think we can get the mental edge, we can and will beat them." The women did not compete last weekend, but they were busy preparing for the N.C.W.S.A. Regional Championships in Missoula, Montana on November 1st.

The women enter Regionals rated fourth. "It is very promising that they will finish among the top three teams and make it to nationals," Terry said.

The men competing for the top spots are Western Washington, Pacific Lutheran and Linfield, who have been racing neck and neck.

"We fall just a little behind Linfield and P.L.U.," Terry reported.

"The way the women are running this past week, along with the improving mental and mental preparation; aid the team in taking one of the top three places," he continued, "but the top three go to nationals again this year; finishing higher than last year's twelfth place."

The Pirate team will include the following runners: Dana Bethel, Carol Lewis, Lori Carlson, Susan Jeffreys, Fliedot and Wall.
Whitworth Opens Valley Center

by Lisa Heniges

The Valley Center for Continued Studies opened its doors officially October 15th of this year. The Center is an educational outreach of Whitworth College and was inspired by the Opportunity Project of the Church. Feeling a need to help its community in dealing with occurring changes of the 1980's and 1990's, the church decided to use education as the best route.

After choosing Whitworth as the vehicle and adopting a large space of land east of Spokane in the Valley, the program was begun in the fall and includes two classes. The "Values Clarification for Parents and Teachers' programs is instructed by Mr. Mitch Denning. It is for adults working with young people. The other class, "Guidance and counseling for Teachers" is taught by Dr. Nick Faber. "It's been going really well. I average anywhere from 22 to 25 students per session. I'm helping them to clarify their natural, personal style of helping people," said Dr. Faber.

Jacki Pick, director of McKay Hall, effusively stated, "It is a new concept for the church and Whitworth. A combination of groups to help people in the community."
I find myself, in recent days growing into an increasing sense of helplessness. I've discovered that it's a part of my political activism went down to defeat in the polls yesterday, perhaps it's that winter seems to be coming around again, or it is my friends are moving away, and moving on. If this true then "this too shall pass", but somehow I think it's something more. Sometimes last year I was asked to write a piece for a Whitworthian series on the 'Theme of the College.' I was pleased to do so, understanding (and correctly) of the mission and purpose of College as He(and Whithward) nurture our growth and change. I have been of the opinion that it is always best to opt for integrety and thought and honesty in relationships and in life choices although I know full well that this is the more difficult(and often intensely painful) way to operate. I've said and believed this because our humainty is our most valuable and precious gift. In a world that asks for easy answers the selection of status-quo, it seems that our corporate and individual call as servants to Christ was to point the way to so much more abundant life. Jesus is my rock and my salvation, what have I to fear? We can build a beautiful city with sweet rejoicing to the creator and sustainer behind beleving.

My dream has gone sour: I have realized that for all myart in the city, and my zeal, human responsibility, the world is still too much with us'. One evening this week at Dr. Lindaman's our housing our venturing about the 'find my way as an exploration to the hips and city. I'm heading for the city. Jim first of all states that Reagan proposes a renewal of the 'sectional culture' based on ideology, power, and individual autonomy. Then Jim turns his head, disallowing that it could ever be, I find no hope in that kind of attitude. But if my memory serve me right, whom he says "sees long-lasting peace through a balance between East and West..." Jim forgets too readily that we have all seen the postion toward SALT, which has been a position of imbalance giving power and sway to the Soviets. Rather, Mr. Reagan sees long-lasting peace through a balance between East and West, wherein our resources, our size, and weight are the key to that peace.

I am disappointed with his efforts at understanding and 'goading' the foreign American people like myself, when Jim says "the continued use of bureaucratic commissions and Cabinet departments over the private sector will continue the nation's progress in human rights and economic stabi-

I read on, deeper into the cement beneath Jim's shallow patde of despair. He says the candidates 'treat North South crises as accidents, occasional incidents, or cases of Eastern intrusion, rather than seeing a critical threshold in international politics, which is one by which we can tell what we are or are not going to be. Jim that Mr. Reagan's plan to strengthen the military's plan which he trots out as opposed to Mr. Carter's tendency to look for the bottom line in his budgets. I think the government is the only possible answer, the government putting my money into hown when I think it should go into my California neighborhood.

This article is meant to be an editorial that points out the wrong direction that the candidates are moving in, and that it is the reader's duty to do something about it.

The world is your home, too.

A guest editorial
By Andrew Young

I am always amazed at the real power college students have at their command, and how much of it they are wasting.

That is a shame. Because student power could provide that critical margin, that extra measure of push needed to channel our national policies, our energies and our convictions into new ways of meeting the pressing needs of the people of this world.

In my own generation, I feel we have increasingly become myopic and self-centered. Whether we are in college or have already graduated, we have to find ways of sharing our knowledge and experience with the people of this world.

Let me talk for a moment about the students. As Andrew Young, the power students have as individuals. You have a decision to make whether you will use your knowledge and experience you are gaining to help
Tailings, Campaign '80

by Mike Wendlandt

Some figures from the election. Ronald Reagan received fifty-one percent of the popular vote. This fifty-one percent of the popular vote represents the opinion of approximately twenty-five percent of the American electorate to whom you all call yourselves, the American people. I wonder if you all call yourselves, the American people, the people who have reached an American Presidential Election, but not the people who have an initial political look.

Four years ago, then-President Jimmy Carter was re-elected President of the United States of America, D.C. and balanced the federal budget, reduced waste in government, reduced inflation, reduced fraud in the welfare system, and rid America of high unemployment. Last Tuesday he was ousted from office by an angry America who felt he had failed. I pray that Ronald Reagan, God willing, will at least have the former situation.

When President-Elect Reagan becomes President Reagan, those of us who have our primary interests in human rights and do not receive hunger will try to increase our efforts. For although I am sure President Reagan will have an interest in these areas, it will not be a primary concern. All our efforts should be directed at other areas. Thus this country's role in global implementation of human rights and wiping out hunger will basically rest in the hands of its citizens who believe these of primary importance. For all you people who have thought these were nice ideas you can't even afford to be involved in Hunger Network, Bread For the World, or Amnesty International, to quote a winning slogan. THE TIME IS NOW.

And finally, I would like to make an implicit policy explicit. As editor of the Issues and Opinion page, I wholeheartedly, strongly, pleadingly, and unconditionally encourage everyone and anyone from the Whitworth College community or the world at large to submit articles and letters to this page. I would like to point out that every piece of writing that is sent to the office is included in the body of the slips, has been printed without any changes, except a typographical error or two. Letters to the Editor are usually about, the maximum allowable length being 500 words, or approximately two pages, if printed. More over Page 10.

Please deposit Letters to the Editor in the Whitworthian Mailbox, Westminster 202, or give letters to Steve or Mike Wendlandt. Letters to the Editor is the Friday before publication. Publication is every other week.

Please deposit Letters to the Editor on the editorial pages are not necessarily those of the Whitworthian staff or the students of Whitworth College.

Editor clarifies ambiguous statement

by Debbie Reinnand

I would like to clear up several issues. In Issue 2 of the Whitworthian, in a story titled "Football Problems", Mike Wendlandt, in an interview with Registrar Paul Olson, the term "Admissions" was used loosely to refer to the working of the Whitworthian Office and Registration.

I would like to clear up any uncertainties as to the process of determining athletic eligibility.

In a letter to me, Dave Vaughn outlined the process of checking an athlete's academic standing and eligibility.

First, the coach reports his prospective team members to Registrar Paul Olson. Olson checks to see that the athletes have taken the necessary credits in the previous two years to be set up by the NAIA. Since the date for不符合 the first competition, there have been problems, as well as this issue this year by the football team.

The blame for this problem, season can't be traced to any one office of person.

Between the Northwest Conference and national requirements, Vaughn says that "these procedures are so detailed that we would need to be experts in the field for advising any athlete."

I would like to thank Dave Vaughn for drawing attention to my misunderstanding of the process of determining eligibility, as well as my terminology in the article. I would like to apologize for any problems incurred by the article.

Anonymity and cowardice

by Mike Wendlandt

Between the Sunday before the Alaska Primary Election and the Sunday after, a few things have happened. First, three hundred pieces of Democratic literature were removed from the foyer of SAGA. Earlier in the campaign, a bumper sticker and that literature were recovered from the Adams/Gallagher offices. And now the literature can be seen between the foyers double entrance doors. Second, someone sent a banana peel to me in the small, and third, on Wednesday, November 5, on walking into SAGA, noticed that someone had spelled out WARI in - Reagan-Bush bumper-stickers in the window next to the doors.

I suggest that a person's unwillingness to take responsibility is a weakness and that to name their actions is not only more effective but cowards. I further suggest that this cowardice essentially underlines the power of their statements. If what is being said by these actions represent truth, their people are not here; therefore, they should not be afraid of direct criticism. Because they do not acknowledge their actions, this says to me that they feel home and feel strong enough in what they are saying, and because of this they are not afraid to let it be known. I refuse to seriously consider the fact that they are not willing to make.
Whitworth and stealing

by Claudia Klaver

The Ideal of Whitworth College as expressed on the front cover of the view book is believable as our foundation, our center, our home. It is an ideal of perfection that one cannot expect to be met in all and everywhere at the college. Yet the word "imperfectios" is a bit mild for some of the things going on here at Whitworth. These are destroying much of the unity and loving atmosphere. I am speaking specifically of the stealing that plagues the campus. Although the work of only a few individuals, it has directly affected many, and indirectly affected the whole campus.

Whether it be little or big, theft is destroying the trust on campus. In our dorm one can not leave their door unlocked when they go to make a phone call, much less when they go to dinner. At the beginning of the term our RA left her room unlocked and a thief walked in, for people to use as a retreat or study room. Now, after all of these reports of theft just on our hall, she can no longer safely offer any service. The thieves have ranged from the disappearance of $2.00 in change from a shelf, to a whole bank full of change, to $45.00 out of a purse in a room. And money is not all that has been taken. Other thefts vary from people not leaving twenty cents in a donation jar, to a common rottia girl on our floor making rolls, etc. for those who like to sleep in on Saturday mornings, and asks that people leave twenty cents to cover the cost of ingredients) or someone pocketing an eight hundred dollar ring left in a shower for an hour. All this has happened on just one hall.

Institutions like Whitworth are part stock, perfect, for the mere fact of its humanness; yet there is enough blame to go around for the grievous actions that have occurred. I call those who are indirectly related to the stealing on campus to think of the results of their actions and effects on the victims. There is no real need for any stance at Whitworth College to steal; if one needs money there are legitimate means available. Perhaps you don't think Whitworth is an ideal of perfection that to use as a retreat and indirectly affected the cup when they were weak militarily, not because we were strong. Reagan believes in a strong military to show aggression to the U.S. and its allies.

Readers' Opinion

Whitworthian rapped

It's a sad, sad world that doesn't care enough to stand up and shout against that which is wrong.

Similarly, it's unfortunate that those students who feel that the editorial pages of THE WHITWORTHIAN are clearly sided with some of their own. One Whitworthian, stand up and voice your opinions. How can you allow the editors to "speak out in THE WHITWORTHIAN past by unspoken?" In every issue, the editorial pages are filled with liberal politics, liberal economics, and worst of all, liberal Christianity.

May your don't think that Carter's record is quite as crystal-clear as Mike Wendlandt says it is. Perhaps you don't perceive Keynesian economics with quite as much enthusiasm as Paul Martin has for it. And maybe you believe that the American legislation is, in truth, abandoning the traditional values of the family, God, and country, though the Moral Majority may be going about it in the correction of such injustices in the wrong way.

Maybe you wonder when it will all end.

The truth is that it may never end. It is your responsibility to express your opinions if you see injustices going around our campus. When you see entire editorial sections devoted to a single philosophy, it is your responsibility to let the editors know that something is wrong.

Those of us with Mike Wendlandt, Paul Martin, Jim Craig, and others, write in to THE WHITWORTHIAN and let the campus know.

Show that you care enough to voice that which is wrong--if you don't like it, don't stand for it.

William L. Jenkins

Moral weighed

November 5, 1980

And so the election is over. This morning it is being called an end to an era—the era of environmental concerns, anti-war feelings, New Deal sentiments, etc.

And it is being called a mandate by the voters to return to our moral roots.

Much talk is of the role played by religious and political groups such as the Moral Majority and Christian Voice. It is being said that these groups are in a large part responsible for the amazing election results, for the end of an era.

But I am mystified.

Does not God call us to care for the earth? Certainly this is a moral issue.

And what about peace? "Blessed are the peacemakers. How can the defeat of one of the main peacemakers in Congress be called a moral victory?

And is a stronger national defense moral when close to home? That is, does our policy of nuclear defense really make us safer?

Senator McGovern is a Christian. He is one of the most concerned Senators about hunger and peace, and he said this morning that the Moral Majority and Christian Voice was "busted and lost" and not found. Or another example, last Saturday a girl took a backpack full of books to breakfast and after dancing found that her backpack was no longer on the shelf or anywhere else.

In conclusion, I'd like to express again that no human institution is perfect, for the mere fact of its humanness; yet there is enough blame to go around for the grievous actions that have occurred. I call those who are indirectly related to the stealing on campus to think of the results of their actions and effects on the victims. There is no real need for any stance at Whitworth College to steal; if one needs money there are legitimate means available. Perhaps you don't think that Whitworth is an ideal of perfection that to use as a retreat and indirectly affected the cup when they were weak militarily, not because we were strong. Reagan believes in a strong military to show aggression to the U.S. and its allies.

A special Thanksgiving

Just being a citizen of the United States of America is reason enough to be thankful this year at Thanksgiving. Millions of Americans, including myself, will be giving special thanks to God because of the results of this year's general election. Beginning in January 1981 we will have a President in this country that cares about this country as much as any man can. That man is Ronald Reagan. In one of the most important elections in history the people of America have declared that they are sick and tired of the way the country is going. They have chosen Ronald Reagan, a man who feels that the country is tired of the way it is going and is going about it in the correction of such injustices in the wrong way.

Now don't get me wrong. I am all for morality, but coming out of this election I see moral being defined as whatever will get me what I want as long as it is O.K. according to tradition. Has the me-generation, this time wrapped in religious garb, invaded politics? Has a major part of the church left the God of the Bible and adopted a new God?

Shalom

Brian Eastman

Support Carter with his record? However as the weeks turned out, I do not think that Carter painted of Mr. Reagan being a crazy warmonger. They were willing to accept an incompetent President instead of studying Reagan's policies. This was especially true of Whitworth students and teachers.

Whitworth is a very good example of these uninformed ideas. I just thank God that the South is not the real world and that the majority of Americans see the hope that Ronald Reagan offers to this country.

These people that believe Mr. Reagan is more likely to involve the U.S. in war than any other President should study their history. Throughout our history as a nation we have become involved in war because we were weak militarily, not because we were strong. Reagan believes in a strong military to show aggression to the U.S. and its allies.

We realize that President-elect Reagan is not perfect, but he is exactly what this country needs now. It's going to be tough for Reagan to repair our image around the world, but he has shown that he can do it. Carter painted of Mr. Reagan during the Reagan campaign a so-called powerful nation is in war than any other President should study their history. Throughout our history as a nation we have become involved in war because we were weak militarily, not because we were strong. Reagan believes in a strong military to show aggression to the U.S. and its allies.

Just getting this printed in the Whitworthian is a tough task and might seem to be an easy thing at Whitworth to read it will be even easier, but if you do read this and you do believe in the potential given to us, please do your part. Unless you urge support for President Ronald Reagan and to thank the Good Lord for the leader He has given us.

Scott E. Hudson
Saga goes to school
by Claudia Klaver

Pregnant women have taken a three-week Vegetarian Cooking class, sponsored by the Spokane Health Education Center. They met two nights a week for the class, which included guest speakers, films, and cooking demonstrations. The cost of $15 also included a loose-leaved cookbook entitled, Reap with Joy, with vegetarian and low-fat and sugar recipes, and helpful charts and tables. The education stresses more fruits, vegetables, and grains in their diet, in their cost natural forms. They feel that by consuming foods in their natural, bulk form, it is difficult to overconsume, as they are usually refined foods are easily overconsumed.

Each class concentrated on one area of nutrition; one might be devoted to fiber, another to sugar, and so on with fats, fruits, vegetables, and alternative protein sources. Some of the guest lecturers at the classes were Margaret Holmes, a dentist who spoke of the effects of a high sugar diet; or a lecture on teeth, especially in relation to cavities; and Dr. Warren Walker, a heart and blood vessel surgeon, who also spoke in 1985 on Monday, October 27, on how not to become his patient. Other educational resources used were films, two of which were "The Great American Grain Robbery," dealing with how the consumer has been taken advantage of by flour manufacturers, first paying them to strip the germ of its nutrients, and then paying them for returning only a part of those nutrients; another film "Eat Drink and be Wary!" is one 1985 has shown, dealing with additives in highly refined foods. One of the most pleasant parts of the class was the cooking demonstrations, followed by sampling of prepared food. Recipes used were from the cookbook; some of the foods the class sampled were scrambled tofu in a soy cheese squeezable product which was also a cooking project; seven-layer salad with lentil cannellini bean, carrot loaf, fruit soup, cottage cheese patties, several salads made of fruit spreads and toffee cheese cake.

One day they had a called Apple Pudding, simply (Continued on page 10)

PREGNANCY CARE CENTER
24-hour Crisis Line
Pregnancy Testing and Counseling
747-5648

Tune In Dixieland to Win Scholarships

If today's "pop" tunes are no longer your bag, and you would like to skip a beat or two of them, then you'll want to sound out a music that has a driving rhythm and real creative thrust.

In Dixieland jazz, and you can catch its sounds in a first-ever competition to find the country's college Dixieland jazz band. College musicians who strike the right notes in this competition can win scholarships of $100 to $1,000 plus embark on a tour.

The competition tunes into the heart of New Orleans, the South and our country of more than a century ago. The music, now called Dixieland jazz, was destined to become the first ambassadress of the uniquely American art form known as jazz.

To help in tracing the sounds-tracks of this American musical tradition, the National Association of Jazz Educators (NAJE), a non-profit organization of teachers, students and performers, will work along with the producers of Southern Comfort, a distilled spirit served as the inspiration of Dixieland jazz, are calling on college students to enter their music on tape.

Any group of students or college band can enter the competition. Participants need only send the tape to the address below. The competition accepts any type of tape to the address below.

Deadline for submission of tape is November 20, 1980.

For more information, college students should contact their music department or write: The Southern Comfort College Dixieland Jazz Competition, Suite 1400, 221 North LaSalle St., Chicago, Illinois 60601.

Young, cont.

R-Candidate, cont.

Next is the call for "a basic redistribution of capital at a world level," like the World Bank, instead of setting closer to Reagan's views. But it seems that Jim is advocating that the government decides where I put my dollars so that everyone will get an equal part. I have to argue that you do not know me well enough to decide for me where my money should go. Nobody in the world should come, fradulently, and do with my money as I want. My church should earn, however, that is as we get older our parents get wiser. Reagan calls out for the nation to humble herself before God and seek His help. Certainly this is yesterday's solution. Reagan calls out for us to become one again a city on a hill" as a leader among nations. Certainly this is an old ideology. But let's weigh them judiciously. They are eternal consensus building at the birth of our nation. In two hundred years we have come to the place where the visionaries of our birth no longer speak for us! I simply cannot agree to this. If we were to agree to this, I would be through with both my faith in the American people as a whole, which is a completely unjustifiable stance to take, and my faith in God. Last night in his pre-election speech and America's birth was contingent on her relationship to God as the founding fathers quoted 1 Kings 9:6-7. Reagan then said that he would have to have a "byword" among the other nations today. Our humiliation through indifference, and this is the true test of capitalism.

Our right to vote the majority for those who have voted the Democratic ticket today, I read now where Jim raises the most typical Democratic response to the Reagan ideology: "it tends to solve today's problem with yesterday's solutions." This remark is the flippant of a young person rebelling against his father figure in an attempt to assert his own identity. We must not really learn, however, is that as we get older our parents get wiser. Reagan calls out for the nation to humble herself before God and seek His help. Certainly this is yesterday's solution. Reagan calls out for us to become one again a city on a hill" as a leader among nations. Certainly this is an old ideology. But let's weigh them judiciously. They are eternal consensus building at the birth of our nation. In two hundred years we have come to the place where the visionaries of our birth no longer speak for us! I simply cannot agree to this. If we were to agree to this, I would be through with both my faith in the American people as a whole, which is a completely unjustifiable stance to take, and my faith in God. Last night in his pre-election speech and America's birth was contingent on her relationship to God as the founding fathers quoted 1 Kings 9:6-7. Reagan then said that he would have to have a "byword" among the other nations today. Our humiliation through indifference, and this is the true test of capitalism.
much additional income." There is a limit on the amount of gifts the college needs to stay on its feet, which is the ability of people to keep giving and increasing the size of their constituency. Since this is true, it is necessary to raise tuition as well, Black commented. "Our tuition is currently all that we have for all schools in the Pacific Northwest."

After becoming aware of how much money the college needs to stay on its feet, students begin to wonder how tuition, gifts and endowment are spent. Following is a breakdown of $8.5 million in expenses:

- Instructional - 30.4%: Includes salaries and other instructional expenses (including all sports programs), night, summer, graduate school and off-campus education.
- Student financial aid - 21.3%: Staff benefits - 10.2%, Employee health insurance, long-term disability, FICA, unemployment, and worker's compensation security, pension, faculty/staff discount.
- Administrative services - 9.2%: Administration, president's office, Development, Registration, Health Center, Chaplain's office and Student Affairs, includes counseling, minority affairs, robotics, alumni relations, admission services, housing and student employment.
- Publications and maintenance - 9.1%: Grounds, utilities, security, maintenance.

Peace Corps Offers Unique Experience

by Lisa Heniges

Deanne Amadon, a campaign director for Peace Corps, visited Whitworth College this past 9 months on an advisory board. Her agenda included talking to classes, graduating students, and professors, as well as conducting interviews for possible Peace Corps volunteers. "Not every applicant is accepted, it is a very competitive job especially if you are selective because the Peace Corps is a very demanding position, often you are placed in a difficult situation, but we need people who will be able to cope," commented Mrs. Amadon.

"Peace Corps director Richard Celeste offers his own feelings on the students. "Today's volunteers no longer feel that going to walk into this desert and people are going to fall all over me and I'll fill all the gaps and that it's going to be tough."

It is mandatory that applicants have at least two years of academic or professional experience, and preferably have a bachelors degree. There are numerous interviews to be attended, acceptance and rejections. Eight references are a pre-requisite to becoming a Peace Corps volunteer; otherwise, job supervisors, two from professors, three from your friends or co-workers, and a fourth from "the person who knows you best". One of the organization's big problems is that they aren't getting enough range of skills and backgrounds. They need a wider variety of people 'with' experience, in agriculture, auto mechanics, people who can teach math and science. Volunteers will make a two year commitment if selected. 100,000 in 10 weeks of language and cultural training. 10 years of staying in the country. Usually, volunteers can request a specific country, but they are encouraged to be flexible and go where the need is the greatest.

Housing is singularly dependent upon the area in which you stay. "You may live with an American volunteer, in a house with a host family or the community itself might even provide that you own your house," said Miss Amadon. The Peace Corps office in each country, staffed with doctors and nurses, is in case of medical emergencies and in time of political crisis immediate evacuation.

General institutional expenses - 4.7%: Telephone, print shop, computer centers, interest expense, processing center, campus delivery system, post office, travel expenses, addressograph, and auditing services.

Development - 5%: Annual giving, deferred giving, giving from endowed foundations, church relations.

At least 90% of the support from 4.9%.

Library/ audio visual, academic vice-president, faculty development and computer assisted instruction. President - 4.9%: President's office, Business office, Personnel, Trustee expenses.

Also entered into the budget are $100,000 in self-supporting auxiliary Enterprises, such as Housing and Dining, the HUB, bookstore, carpool and summer conferences. HUB fees go into the auxiliary debt service fund and are used to retire the debt on the HUB. Self backed or fees are used to retire the debt on the fieldhouse.

Since Jub is rising more and more each year, students have a right to know how many of thousands of dollars are being spent. Students should be assured that those in positions of managing the money are doing everything in their power to be sure that the dollars are being invested carefully and wisely.

By Lori Bair

By taking advantage of the Off-Campus education program, students have the opportunity to see places that one may have never seen otherwise, and learn things that have never known before.

Dan Sanford is the coordinator of the Off-Campus education department, which includes foreign exchange programs and internships. It is his job to coordinate field studies and okay them.

This spring, approximately twenty to twenty-five students will be going to Latin America. The three dorms will be packing students for this trip by holding classes on Wednesday nights. The students will be paying for themselves. These trips work on a rotating semester basis. Other trips include the British Isles and France.

The fall of 1981 marks the deadline for applications from students who wish to participate in the internship exchange with Hong Kong Baptist College and Keimyung University, Korea. Five to seven students will be going to Hong Kong. Two students will go to Keimyung which will have them 3/4 of the year. At least 12 weeks inquiring, other trips will be taken. Russia, Italy, and France are the usual locations.

JVC Announces Nationwide Student Video Competition

US JVC Corp, a leading manufacturer of electronics equipment for home and professional use, is sponsoring a nationwide video competition for college students and high school students and arts and school schools. The JVC Student Video Festival, announced by Richard F. O'Brien, Executive Vice President, will recognize and encourage the efforts of young men and women aspiring to be video artists, news or entertainment producers and corporate communicators.

Entrants are invited to submit taped programs in any or all of the contest categories: documentary, creative and news shorts. Each program should be no more than 20 minutes long.

There are two fascinating internship programs in the Political Science department. One is an official assignment as an aid to a Washington State senator in Olympia, which lasts during Jan-term and is the San Francisco trip. There will be three classes that participate in one of these. Recruitment will be made during class hour and by Pat Macdonald, professor of political science, by Leonard Oakland.

The middle of February marks the deadline for applications from students who wish to be participating in the internship exchange with Hong Kong Baptist College and Keimyung University, Korea. Five to seven students will be going to Hong Kong. Two students will go to Keimyung which will have them 3/4 of the year. At least 12 weeks inquiring, other trips will be taken. Russia, Italy, and France are the usual locations.

Dare to Venture Out
Federal Employees Plan Boycott

Any relief for people in such situations.

Activities related to the fast will include a gift table in the Hub, an offering of letters, and two special worship services.

Every day this week from 10 A.M. to 1 P.M. Hunger Task Force will have available in the Hub three catalogs containing gift items from underdeveloped countries. A percentage of the profits from the sales is returned to those countries to aid their development.

There will also be an opportunity for students to write letters in support of Bread for the World. This organization is working for the Global Security Act, which would aid countries facing famine.

A worship service is planned to be held at noon in the chapel on the day of the fast. At that time an offering will be taken. Those who do not wish to fast may participate by giving an offering at that time. A worship service to break the fast is planned for 7:30 A.M. on Friday morning. Anyone wishing to participate in these services should contact Jane Fuller or Mike Charles.

Liberal Politicians Defeated

(ALBANY, NY) (CPS)--Corzatt & Leonard, the labor and governmen maker that was the object of a campus boycott, is closing down. Claiming that modern technology and essential resources are too expensive for the 148-year-old company to afford, Corzatt & Leonard would be "imprudent" to remain in business.

"We have unsuitable facilities, and combined with the high cost of production, it would not be wise for us to remain working," states Vice President Anthony Harden.

The company's decision comes on the heels of a massive effort by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (ILGWU) to organize a national campus boycott of the company's caps and gowns until the union and improved safety conditions at the Albany plant. The union says it persuaded 45 colleges and high schools to completely boycott the company's products last spring, while thousands of orders at both levels across the country refused to don Cotrell & Leonard's outfits.

Though Harden stresses the boycott had nothing to do with the company's closure, he did refuse to discuss the issue, blaming the media for "slandering the story." He says only that the boycott was not severe enough to force the company to sell.

A spokesman for the ILGWU argues the boycott could not have had enough impact to make the company regain its business.

"Company like that, which has been in business for so long, does not make a decision to close down based on one year's sales. It must be a more thorough-going long-term process, which means they must have seen some trends we don't know about," observes Mary Morris, head of the boycott campaign.

The union's demands for recognition was finally accepted by the management. The company, according to Harden, was not showing enough sympathy for the union, but rather wanted to close down without anything "hanging over our head."

New York, NY (CPS)--Surprisingly few students have bothered to take advantage of New York's new "truth-in-testing" law by asking to see the answers on the Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SATs), according to a survey released at a College Entrance Examination Board meeting here yesterday.

The College Board, which has opposed both the New York law passed in 1979 and the truth-in-testing bill now before Congress, further said that the students who have asked to see the answers tend to be from wealthier families, more involved in extracurricular activities, and have higher grade point averages than the students who didn't ask to see the answers.

Those trends contradict claims that the law would help disadvantaged students do better on the standardized tests. Board President George Hanford told the meeting.

The record, he says, does not "support the assertions that a law was necessary" to make sure students get needed information.

The law, which became effective in January, compels testing companies to allow students to see their own answer sheets, and to find out what the "correct" answers were.

The College Board, Hanford said, expected about ten percent of the students would take advantage of the law. Fewer than five percent had asked to see the answers through Sept. 15.

The testing companies themselves have argued the legislation, now pending in twelve states as well as in Congress, would make the tests themselves redundant to administer that they couldn't be given as frequent.

Before the New York law took effect, the board had seven "special test dates" each year to accommodate students who could not take the exams on normal dates for, say, religious reasons.

Last December, in anticipation of the New York law's effect, the board eliminated all special test dates, and scuttled entirely plans to offer the Medical College Admission Test (MCAT), a necessity, however, the board has liberalized its policies. In July the board announced it would reinstitute the special test dates. A month later it announced it would administer the MCAT this fall after all.

Dear Horace, Here are two examples from the long list of candidates who have not taken the path of right or wrong. Both of these candidates have a history of involvement and commitment to the welfare of mankind. However, in one case the path has led to the destruction of lives and property, while in the other case it has led to the destruction of all hopes of a better future.

On the one hand, we have M. Udall, a man who is known for his commitment to peace and justice. He has devoted his entire life to serving the people of this country and fighting for the rights of the underprivileged. However, his commitment to peace has not been without its consequences. Udall's support for the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty has had a significant impact on the political climate of the country. The treaty has been criticized by many as being ineffective in preventing nuclear proliferation. Udall's stance on this issue has caused him to be labeled as a "soft on defense" candidate by his critics.

On the other hand, we have R. McGeorge, a man who is known for his commitment to the principles of the American Dream. He has always been a strong advocate for the idea of a fair and just society. However, his commitment to the principles of the American Dream has also had its consequences. McGeorge's support for the War on Poverty has been criticized by many as being ineffective in addressing the underlying causes of poverty. McGeorge's stance on this issue has caused him to be labeled as a "soft on crime" candidate by his critics.

These are just two examples of the many candidates who have walked the fine line between right and wrong. The choices we make as voters will determine the direction our country takes in the future. It is up to us to make the right choices and to vote for candidates who will lead us in the right direction.
An Amnesty International group has consultative status with UNESCO and the Council of Europe, and has observer status with the Organization of African Unity (Bureau for the Placement and Education of African Refugees). Amnesty International has 1,600 adoption groups and national sections in 33 countries in Africa, Asia, Europe, the Middle East, North America and South America and individual members in 65 countries. Each adoption group works for three prisoners of conscience in countries other than their own. The three countries are balanced geographically and politically to ensure impartiality.

Amnesty International arranges missions to the countries with which it is concerned and sends representatives to speak to governments. It also sends observers to trials whenever this is worthwhile and possible.

Amnesty International provides relief to prisoners of conscience and their families when such assistance is needed. The relief may be in the form of money, clothes, books and other material goods or help with legal, educational and other costs.

These are the working of the organization on its international level, but much more can be learned of its functions by looking into the A.I. group at Whitworth. Rather than acting, as it happens, adopting three non-violent "prisoners of conscience" and concentrating on immediate behind bars actions, the Whitworth group acts as part of a Campus Network. Their chief works are responding to Urgent Action Reports and Conducting an International Campaign.

The Urgent Action branch of the organization's intense, short term campaigns deals with cases in need of immediate attention, usually for legal, political, ideological or religious grouping. Amnesty International advocates fair or just treatment of conditions of those who have just been arrested or have disappeared or those who are in danger of torture or death.

Letters are written by the fifty members of Whitworth's group, as well as by countless other groups throughout the world, to government officials, ministries, and police forces of a certain prisoners' country, pertaining to that prisoners' situation. The letters petition release; if the prisoner has not used or advocated violence; or baton marks of condition, stated charges, or a trial, in the case of political prisoners whose arrest was for violent crimes. A majority of these campaigns, which flood the involved government with letters, obtain results.

These letters as well as those sent by a specific prisoner's group, put pressure on the government to take some kind of positive action on the case. They are not condemnations, rather an attempt to change the assumption that the government does not have knowledge of the individual concerned, nor to make aware of it, can and will correct the situation. The governments themselves are not criticized, just the individual injustices. Letters are also written to the prisoner, to tell him or her know that someone is aware of, cares about, and is working for his or her condition; and to the prisoner's family, to offer financial, legal, and emotional support.

Another branch of the Campus Network is the country campaigns. These involve focusing on a country in which there is evidence of recent and widespread human rights violations. The campaigns are the work of an Amnesty International group as a valid non-partisan organization. For example, when 15,000 people just disappeared in Argentina, the government refused to take any action, yet claimed they had nothing to do with the disappearances. But soon they established a law stating that anyone missing for six months could be declared dead for legal purposes, almost a messed-up statement of the fate of those missing. The college groups write general letters protesting human rights violations in a country and works to raise the local citizens of U.S., state towns of that country's injustices. In the last several years, the Whitworth A.I. group has worked with the U.S.S.R. in their dealing with Protestant prisoners, Guatemala, and Argentina.

Although it appears that human rights violations are now more widespread than ever, A.I. efforts have been greatly successful, having helped and liberated many.

Three years ago the organization received the Nobel Peace Prize in recognition of and commendation for their work. An example of their success, one with which the Whitworth community was directly involved, took place during a 1977 study tour to Central America. In Guatemala, a group called the Anti-Communist Army would publish a list of names of certain leaders and activists who were in opposition to their government. They were threatened, arrested, and disappeared. The Whitworth group was asked to help.

Wilderness Activities

The Wilderness Activities office, located in the HUB, assists individuals in organizing outdoor activities such as backpacking, canoeing, and cross-country skiing. Patti Edgerton, Student Manager of Wilderness Activities, has a lot of equipment available to the student body. These cross-country skis, tents, backpacks, stoves, sleeping bags, and canoes are for rent at a very low price. Maps of the surrounding areas and information on the outdoors are available too.

Future plans include a cross-country ski trip during finals and a backpack trip in the spring. A canoeing trip is also being looked into. According to Patti, there would only be minimal charges. Students would have to pay for the needed rental equipment, transportation, and their food.

Wilderness Activities has a huge variety of equipment available to the student body. These activities are very popular and are enjoyed by students of all ages and backgrounds. It is a great way to get away from the stresses of daily life and enjoy the great outdoors. The campus provides various opportunities for students to explore nature and take advantage of the beautiful scenery around them. Some of these activities include hiking, camping, and canoeing. These outdoor activities are not only enjoyable but also a great way to stay active and healthy. Overall, the campus provides a wonderful environment for students to engage in a variety of outdoor activities, making it easier for them to connect with nature and enjoy the beauty of the outdoors.

Get away to the woods

Wendie Warner

The Wilderness Activities office, located in the HUB, offers a variety of activities for students to get away from the hustle and bustle of campus life. They provide a shed, which can be reached at X392 in the HUB, and a backpack for use during outdoor activities. The office also provides maps and information on the outdoors for use. In addition, they offer Achim's, a group of volunteers who help promote the importance of nature conservation. They also assist with various outdoor activities, such as backpacking, canoeing, and cross-country skiing. Through these activities, students can connect with nature and enjoy the beauty of the outdoors. The campus provides various opportunities for students to explore nature and take advantage of the beautiful scenery around them. Some of these activities include hiking, camping, and canoeing. These outdoor activities are not only enjoyable but also a great way to stay active and healthy. Overall, the campus provides a wonderful environment for students to engage in a variety of outdoor activities, making it easier for them to connect with nature and enjoy the beauty of the outdoors.
Tartuffe performed in style

by Diane Pindell

The opening night of Tartuffe, the 1669 French comedy, turned out to be most successful for the 12-member cast.

Staunton Borgan, who played Tartuffe, portrayed his character with excellent stage presence. He used the minimal style of blocking he had to work with and made it come alive. His falsetto voice pattern of his voice became wearing on the audience and his stage whispers would not project at times. There is no doubt, however, Staunton played the deceiving hypocrite well. Using his cherubic face he turned it into a sly animal convincing the audience with his style of acting.

Jim Doberty, playing Orgon, showed good interchange with other actors. His good timing, especially in his angry moments, was crucially important to contributing to the movement and excitement of character.

Jim's performance stemmed from hard work in developing the leading character. At times it would be hard to hear him because of a tendency to talk down and his stoop did not warrant the age of the character. Overall, however, he delivered a most accurate portrayal of his character's anger.

With the audience made the audience become partial to her character, Dorimle's Mariane's performance was an excellent stage presence. The energy she used when delivering her lines showed the excitement and excitement of her character.

Sandy Smith, who played Elmire, used character interpretation and voice quality to match well with the age of her character. The seduction scene was most outstanding as she came alive losing the stiffness she had at the beginning of the play.

The remaining cast, ranging from the policeman and lawyer to the rest of Orgon's family performed well and added to the evening entertainment.

With only occasional lapses the cast dealt admirably with the rhyming script.

Kathy Call put a lot of work into helping with props, set, lines, and many other areas it takes to put such a large production together. She, no doubt, was very committed to the job of assistant director.

The man responsible for the production was Mr. Gunderson. The energy he has as a director was given to the students of the program. Thanks to Mr. Gunderson for an enjoyable evening of theatre on November the 14th.

East Timor: the other famine

Disabilities program helps 'handicapped'

by Deanna Stone

Have you ever had a child run up to you, jump in your arms, and say "I love you?"

A child running up and expressing such sentiments may be performing a simple gesture of love, but what if the children such a gesture can be quite an undertaking.

A study recently been started on the campus of Whitworth that informs of students of the program is as follows.

In September of 1977, money was received in order to initiate the program and the first course was started the following February. Dr. Liebert in the Sociology department was interested in order for the program to be started. Some of the courses offered in the program are: Understanding the Developmentally Disabled," "Leisure for the Developmentally Disabled", and "Programs in Leadership for the Developmentally Disabled.

"Both the department wants the students of Whitworth to realize that the program isn't just for those wishing to pursue a career in Special Education, but that it can be beneficial to the college students.

Cunningham, Asst. Prof. of the Developmentally Disabled, stated that there are three main objectives of the program: to inform the students of the causes, characteristics, and social reactions and problems of the disabled. Then to number of different types of developmental disabilities that the students are exposed to through films, lectures and actual observing, and group action. The students work with the victims of mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, dyslexia and infantile autism. Mike brings a number of people with these disabilities into his class every Wednesday evening to talk about the program and some time teaching and playing recreational games. Since the program has begun there have courses on campus, but there are quite a few off-campus, you can take the students to be the university of Washington, for example, or the University of Idaho, or for example, Dr. Cutter, the administrator of the program, takes a group of students to San Francisco to work with the disabled.

February there was an "impactful weekend," at the University of Washington, in which students from Gonzaga and Whitworth and the Disabled American Veterans, gathered together to discuss the concept and eventual conclusion that everyone has limitations and disabilities.

After talking to Mike, it became apparent as to how much has learned from working with the disabled.

It has a purpose and can't believe that we can't learn from these people. There are many ways in which Mike feels that we can learn from them through their simplicity of lifestyle, their acceptance of handicapped and the way they try to pursue long lasting friendships. Mike particularly expressed his attitudes towards other people by saying, "They accept you for what you are.

Kim Hatch and Kristi Cleaveland are two students that have been involved in the program. Kim has been working with four retarded men and helping them learn to do daily living tasks including that they aren't really different than anyone else and that everyone is handicapped in some way.

Kristi shared that the experience of working with the disabled "opened your eyes" in terms that were never public is in terms of understanding the disabled. Furthermore, she said that it helps you appreciate your own life a little bit more.

Mike and Kristi shared various experiences, one of which was with a woman that could not use her hands but that had learned to use her feet and could even macrame with them. She also showed how the "handicapped" is handicapped in some way.

Kristi shared that the experience of working with the disabled "opened your eyes" in terms that were never public is in terms of understanding the disabled. Furthermore, she said that it helps you appreciate your own life a little bit more.

Mike and Kristi shared various experiences, one of which was with a woman that could not use her hands but that had learned to use her feet and could even macrame with them. She also showed how the "handicapped" is handicapped in some way.

In conclusion, as a result of Mike's experiences working with the disabled, one can say that working with the disabled gives you a greater understanding of people and the world and this is the experience of the program.
Students sleep, sing at Mission

Some members of the World Christian Fellowship decided to sleep at the Mission the night at Spokane's Union Gospel Mission under-cover. This was a journal of experiences of the participants.

by Steve Smith

Friday, October 17, 1980, Brent, John, Ralph, Rich and myself embarked on a exciting adventure to experience the atmosphere of a home that echoed with the presence of the Holy Spirit. We went our separate ways, entering the Mission, the platform, the chapel. The architecture, the platform, the atmosphere. On one side of the street, the Mission. The biggest problem guys didn't even enjoy life, truth. They wanted me to talk. It wasn't long before John and Teresa and Patti and Bill were there and we were praying and then we were going into the chapel. It was full of men. They were all different shapes and sizes, and some were black to grimy brown to ashen gray. They looked pretty awful.

We sat in the platform, leaned in the walls. I stopped myself, for tonight I was a soldier of misfortune. We took a seat in the church. It was fairly large and filled with folding chairs and hymnals. Cheap paneling lined the walls. In front was a platform, a podium, a piano and enough chairs to seat a thousand. We could bring the message for tonight.

At this point a distance from the "heathen" below. Above the stage a sign bore the words: "Do you want your little one to know the meaning of Easter. Christ came to save Sinners." Again that arrogant feeling that proceeds itself from this crowd away in months. I was feeling the humbling knowledge that I was no better than any of these. I AM A SINNER!

I listened meat the chapel; unshaven, unclothed, filthy, dirty, tattered jeans, ripped shirts, tattered jeans, ripped shirts, tattered jeans. Some bare bandages where they had fallen, drunk beyond comprehension, and still smiling. I sat in a group with one of their peers. A lucky few clutch their luggage closer, protecting all their worldly possessions. Soldiers. These were the most astounded to engage the chapel; hopeless, despair, despondency, fear, confusion, perplexity, loneliness. One young man, his mind deranged, left wide open and blooming by some mind-expanding drug, head moving to the left and right (things unbound by the other's "sympathy," "flying serpants") as he took his seat among us. Others studied their eyes, shook their heads, their minds softened by alcohol. The man in the front of me produced a half-smoked joint from behind his ear. He examined it. Soldiers.

There we sat, motionless, bunched, dressed in the same, feeling full-epitomized sin. A woman dressed in which echoed the sign above, "Home to His Lives." We joined in the weak chorus, some still sitting arms and legs crossed, hymn untouched. Others were whispering, tittering, to the creatures, oblivious to the hymn being sung. I felt so helpless. We sang the favorites one might expect at such a service: "Amazing Grace," "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Holy, Holy, Holy" and many more. The pastor for the night, in his late 50's, pressed slacks, clean, unwrinkled shirt and tie, introduced the speaker. The crowd was buzzing with excitement. I felt so small. We sang the favorites one might expect at such a service: "Amazing Grace," "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Holy, Holy, Holy" and many more. The pastor for the night, in his late 50's, pressed slacks, clean, unwrinkled shirt and tie, introduced the speaker. The crowd was buzzing with excitement. I felt so small.

The food was terrible, the nightmare. I was handed a simple strip of toilet paper. It was an assembly line.

The bedroom was large, containing, about eight beds, I searched for my bed because I knew it was in the middle. I hid my face because I wanted to sleep. I didn't want to see the others. It was a dormitory room. We all had the same sleeping bag and blanket. I was really tired. I was going into the chapel. It was full of men. They were all different shapes and sizes, and some were black to grimy brown to ashen gray. They looked pretty awful.

We went into the chapel. It was full of people. I was really tired. I was going into the chapel. It was full of men. They were all different shapes and sizes, and some were black to grimy brown to ashen gray. They looked pretty awful.

The bed was large, containing, about eight beds, I searched for my bed because I knew it was in the middle. I hid my face because I wanted to sleep. I didn't want to see the others. It was a dormitory room. We all had the same sleeping bag and blanket. I was really tired. I was going into the chapel. It was full of men. They were all different shapes and sizes, and some were black to grimy brown to ashen gray. They looked pretty awful.

Along with the recipes, the food was terrible, the nightmare. I was handed a simple strip of toilet paper. It was an assembly line.

The bedroom was large, containing, about eight beds, I searched for my bed because I knew it was in the middle. I hid my face because I wanted to sleep. I didn't want to see the others. It was a dormitory room. We all had the same sleeping bag and blanket. I was really tired. I was going into the chapel. It was full of men. They were all different shapes and sizes, and some were black to grimy brown to ashen gray. They looked pretty awful.

Along with the recipes, the food was terrible, the nightmare. I was handed a simple strip of toilet paper. It was an assembly line.

The bedroom was large, containing, about eight beds, I searched for my bed because I knew it was in the middle. I hid my face because I wanted to sleep. I didn't want to see the others. It was a dormitory room. We all had the same sleeping bag and blanket. I was really tired. I was going into the chapel. It was full of men. They were all different shapes and sizes, and some were black to grimy brown to ashen gray. They looked pretty awful.

Along with the recipes, the food was terrible, the nightmare. I was handed a simple strip of toilet paper. It was an assembly line.

The bedroom was large, containing, about eight beds, I searched for my bed because I knew it was in the middle. I hid my face because I wanted to sleep. I didn't want to see the others. It was a dormitory room. We all had the same sleeping bag and blanket. I was really tired. I was going into the chapel. It was full of men. They were all different shapes and sizes, and some were black to grimy brown to ashen gray. They looked pretty awful.

Along with the recipes, the food was terrible, the nightmare. I was handed a simple strip of toilet paper. It was an assembly line.

The bedroom was large, containing, about eight beds, I searched for my bed because I knew it was in the middle. I hid my face because I wanted to sleep. I didn't want to see the others. It was a dormitory room. We all had the same sleeping bag and blanket. I was really tired. I was going into the chapel. It was full of men. They were all different shapes and sizes, and some were black to grimy brown to ashen gray. They looked pretty awful.

Along with the recipes, the food was terrible, the nightmare. I was handed a simple strip of toilet paper. It was an assembly line.

The bedroom was large, containing, about eight beds, I searched for my bed because I knew it was in the middle. I hid my face because I wanted to sleep. I didn't want to see the others. It was a dormitory room. We all had the same sleeping bag and blanket. I was really tired. I was going into the chapel. It was full of men. They were all different shapes and sizes, and some were black to grimy brown to ashen gray. They looked pretty awful.
Feature

Future concerts: Grant & Mangione

Gospel Artist Amy Grant will appear in concert at Spokane’s Opera House on Thursday, January 8th at 7:30 p.m.

Amy is a 19-year-old performer who attends college in Nashville, Tennessee. She has been associated with the Billy Graham Crusade, performing in crusades and on radio/television. She has also been on two world tours, and was voted the top Inspirational Artist of the year in 1979. She has released three albums, the latest being “Never Alone” which is rated as the #1 Inspirational Album by both Billboard and Cashbox magazines. Amy’s international appeal has made her a much sought after Gospel artist. Tickets are now available at all Ticket Center, 10 E. 4th, and all M & G ticket outlets, for $5.50 and $6.00 (all seats reserved).

Internationally acclaimed Chuck Mangione and the Chuck Mangione Quartet will appear in concert at the Spokane Opera House, Spokane on November 30, 1980 at 7:30 p.m. His current album, which has been certified Gold in sales, features the theme from his 1980 Winter Olympics win.

For all years Olympics and other network sports coverage have featured Mangione’s music. Most recently he and his Quartet were featured in televised closing ceremonies of the 1980 Winter Olympics at Lake Placid, New York.

As composer and performing artist of “Give It All You’ve Got”, the original theme music of ABC’s coverage of the 1980 Winter Olympics, Mangione has been nominated for a Grammy for Outstanding Individual Achievement as music director/composer.

Amy Grant, coming January 8th.

Chuck Mangione, coming November 30th.

Staying at Mission, cont.

the other members of our party. I noticed that Brent had very impressive form on his face. He rarely tried to perfect it as I climbed to top, so I started to ensure the wrath of the man below me, who looked like he had done this for a long time. He encouraged, rip me to pieces, and send my steaks carcas out of the window.

The room was quiet now, except for those inevitable noises that follow a feast of beans, burps and such. Lying in bed with a direct view downstairs and no sound other than the fan and my steaks carcas out of the window.

I was awakened at 6:30 am, a sharp, move to the boxes. Speechless. Conversation was easier as we changed: “Another day, another dollar,” exclaimed one man matter-of-factly. “Another step closer to my grave,” another added seriously. Despair returned to the air. “What kind of outlook is that?” one man retaliated. A glimmer of hope appeared. A man approached me as we went downstairs. “You know, this place is just like a jail, except you can move around, look at the folk, look at the beds.”

I said nothing.

As we awaited breakfast at the chapel, he asked me where I was from. “Connecticut,” I answered. He shook my hand (why, I still don’t know). “You ought to go back there, kid.” “It’s better in the East,” I interrupted. He continued as if not hearing the comment. “Oh, it is beautiful out there, all right, but you can’t eat beauty, you know.” I smiled (why, I still don’t know). “These places all tell you the same thing, go get an oh, the world, that’s what I want to hire an old fart like me.” I was stunned. Never had I seen such height despair. This man was so deep in a hole he couldn’t even see the light, ready to throw the towel in. I wanted to stand up and preach, to sell all my belongings and give the money to the poor, to hug all of those guys and tell them that God loves them, I wanted to scream. “God,” I said to myself, “I feel so helpless.” I sat there in a puddle of inadequacy.

Conversation at breakfast was precise—where to spend the next night; was anyone giving away lunch today? One man said that he was going back to the Salvation Army, the food was alot better.

I left the dining room speechless. I still couldn’t understand that he was headed back to the comforting dorm room, my stereo, my shower, my cafeteria. But these men were trapped here. This was their home. Soldiers.

As I strayed into the chapel on the way out, I saw the heavily tattooed artificial flowers that I had noticed the night before. These men like these flowers, beautiful inside but covered by the dust of circumstance. On this note, we separated, the soldiers of misfortune and I.

Singing at Mission

If I sang for my voice teacher at home the way I sang for those men she’d have a cow. I wasn’t really scared. Just very concentrated that my song showed those guys that God loved them. If anybody needed to hear it, they did. I felt so inadequate. I wanted to say something to them. Something that would touch them. But I can’t.

Well, I came right out and told them that I definitely didn’t relate to where they were at. I’d been a straight kid and now I was a straight college girl going to a straight college. But that didn’t make me need Jesus any less than they did, foolish fantasy.

Then it was over and we were down front shaking their hands. I caught myself (abnormally) wondering how soon I’d find some soap so I could wash. As I watched the men go by I tried to lose them with my smile but in the back of my head I was coldly calculating which nutritional disease this one had, where one had spent the day, when some of them had eaten last, how much longer we’d be staying...

While they were eating Mike talked with one broken man in a back room, and another came to Patty and Teresa and me. He asked us to pray that he would get back together with his wife. Then we talked with Joe, the smiling, clean cut manager of the place. I figured he was a bus boy man who just went down there on his spare time. But he told us that six weeks before he’d been a hopeless drunk just like all the rest. God got ahold of him, and now he was going to Bible college part-time.

Joe shared with us the deep concerns of his heart.

The turnover rate for workers in the place (men who get saved and then want a job) is very high. They’re tempted so easily to go back to their old life. Joe was trying to get a bible study going for them, to give them some milk besides the salvation message they heard every night. My heart was warmed as I saw the potential in that man.

When the men returned from eating and were each assigned a bed—one being excluded because he was carrying a dress—we decided it was about time to go. Joe would have liked us to stay and talk all night. John promised to come back and help with some of his bible studies.

An hour later I was dancing in the Hub, the Union Gospel Band playing, my mind, but not for long. That’s why I’m writing this article. Please, won’t you pray for that place? My friend John can really relate to those guys, but I don’t. That’s why
SPORTS

Bearcats air attack too much for Pirates

The Whitworth Pirates lost 34-23 to the Willamette Bearcats in a wild game.

North Idaho's last home game of the year.

Two teams both had 25 first-downs in the high scoring affair, but it was the inability of the Pirates to stop the Bearcats' passing attack that led to their loss.

Willamette's aerial barrage accounted for 259 yards and four touchdowns while the Pirates could only muster up 99 yards on a 3 for 23 passing game.

The Bearcat ground attack was a bright spot, gaining 294 yards, led by fullback Bob Nakashima and two touchdowns.

Quarterback Mark Hansen added 61, and halfbacks Bob Nakashima and Brian Haynes both ran for 50 yards.

The Pirates gave the impression that they would stop Willamette when they put together a 67 yard scoring drive on the opening kickoff and then stopped the Bearcats after a first down on the Whitworth five yard line.

The Pirates were forced to punt the possessions and the Bearcats drove to the Whitworth ten. A holding penalty on the Pirates limited Willamette to 3rd and goal at the 29, and it appeared the Bucs had held again, but a halfback pass from Mike Lawrence to Mark Hansen allowed the Bearcats their first score.

This turned the momentum to the Bearcat side, and they scored on their next two possessions, bringing the halftime score to 20-7.

The Bearcats didn't stop here though as they drove 63 yards on their first series of the second half, leading to their biggest lead of the contest.

Willamette answered the Bucs back up Willomette at 3rd and goal at the 29, and it appeared the Bucs had held again, but a halfback pass from Mike Lawrence to Mark Hansen allowed the Bearcats their first score.

This turned the momentum to the Bearcat side, and they scored on their next two possessions, bringing the halftime score to 20-7.

Whitworth answered with another score in the fourth quarter, but the Pirates scored their second touchdown on the Bearcats' back up Willomette at 3rd and goal at the 29, and it appeared the Bucs had held again, but a halfback pass from Mike Lawrence to Mark Hansen allowed the Bearcats their first score.

The Pirates gave the impression that they would stop Willamette when they put together a 67 yard scoring drive on the opening kickoff and then stopped the Bearcats after a first down on the Whitworth five yard line.

The Pirates were forced to punt the possessions and the Bearcats drove to the Whitworth ten. A holding penalty on the Pirates limited Willamette to 3rd and goal at the 29, and it appeared the Bucs had held again, but a halfback pass from Mike Lawrence to Mark Hansen allowed the Bearcats their first score.

This turned the momentum to the Bearcat side, and they scored on their next two possessions, bringing the halftime score to 20-7.

Soccer club ends season

The Whitworth soccer club closed its season this year by playing the last four games last week. First the Bucs played Eastern Wash. Univ. in the Pine Bowl and after a tough defensive struggle, lost the game 1-0. Next the club took on a big Washington State squad and couldn't hold the Cougars off as they dropped the game by a score of 5-0.

The Bucs regrouped for a big game with Gonzaga, one of the league's top teams, and beat the Bulldogs for a solid win 4-2. Second Drexler scored three goals while Dave Fleshner nabbed in the last goal. In the final game of the season, the Whits traveled to North Idaho. The Bucs played tough and posted an impressive win, final score 6-2.

Bucks complete 8-0 league record

New wood floor installed

by Kathy Crossman

Whitworth College received a new playing floor in the Whitworth Pool. It's portable and can be placed over the old tarred floor. It is of wood construction offering more safety and better traction than the old floor.

The new floor is badly needed. It's being resurfaced with rubber and asphalt with a polyurethane coating. The tarred floor isn't more than a quarter of an inch thick sitting directly on concrete. This places a lot of shock on the players legs when landing, causing knee injuries.

The cost of the new floor is $2,000 plus added expenses of sanding and refinishing. Payment will come from donations and fund raisers. Coach Jim Larson stated that "without question the floor is worth the expense. It is safer and more attractive."

Everyone seems to think that the purchase of the new floor is a wise decision. It is a nice addition to the college.
Sports Spotlight

Mosaad Driss

by DeAnna Stohl

Mosaad Driss, a Pirate student from Saudi Arabia has proved to be a real asset to the soccer team. “He’s the best player and ball handler,” one teammate acknowledged. “He really shoots the ball down the field. Larson feels...”

“Mosaad is a super athlete,” coach Leibert informed. “You wouldn’t notice his athletic talents if you saw him walking around campus. But when he gets down on the field to play, he really shines. He is the major scorer for our team. He is considered very dangerous to opponents and they spend a lot of energy trying to stop him.”

Mosaad has been the talk and worry of many teams. One can often overhear opponents saying “that guy is too good” or "he can really play well.”

The coach from Gonzaga admitted, “He’s an excellent player.”

“A lot of Mosaad’s talent is in his feet. ‘He’s got magic feet,’ a teammate explained. ‘He reallyfakesthepeopleoutandit’sfunnytowatchbecause...”

Women cagers look forward to season opener

By Joe Gallegos

The Whitworth women’s varsity basketball team will definitely be a powerful contender in the Inland Valley Conference and Division Ill this year, according to Coach Jean Anderson.

“We are physically stronger and have more skill and experience than the last few years,” commented Coach Anderson. Seven returning players from last year form a strong nucleus.

Two starters, Toni Swanson and Kathy German, earned all-conference honors last year scoring in double figures consistently. German had the high score of 331 points in 26 games for an average of 12.7 points per game. She shot with an accuracy of 46 percent; Swanson compiled 232 points in 22 games, averaging 10.5 points. Each averaged a 41 percent field goal percentage. She also averaged 10.3 rebounds and 10.5 assists per contest. Sue Rudd and Kathy Carroll started as guards last year and will battle the opponents with their ball-handling skills again this year. Laurie Van Bell, Laurie Lund, and Kathy Norwood round out the list of returning players.

Adding to the depth of the returning squad are three fine freshmen. Jennifer Tinkle, a 5’11” forward, has an excellent future here at Whitworth. She averaged 12 points per game in high school with a shooting accuracy of 46 percent. She was an all-conference award winner. Another first year forward with potential, is 5’10” Ruth Knight from Valley High, Washington. Rounding out the freshman list is Beneke Otten, a 5’7” hustling guard from Battle-ground, Washington. Two other players new to the varsity squad this year are Maureen Sweeney and Ali Canha. Sweeney played with the junior varsity team last year. She is a 5’8” forward. Canha didn’t play last year but has fine ball handling skills. “I’m very pleased with the amount of hard work these girls have put forth,” added Anderson. “We have really accomplished quite a bit already.” The Pirates boast a balanced scoring attack. “We have a roster full of shooters, and should have three or four girls scoring in double figures consistently.”

The Pirate women finished the 79-80 season in their conference with a record of three wins over as many losses. Overall the team finished with an 11-16 record, which placed them 8th in a division of 18 teams.

“Our goal is to win the division ‘although we hope to win the conference first,’” said Anderson. “The girls have positive attitudes and are pleased with their own performance. They are really looking forward to this season.”

The Pirates cagers open their 80-81 season at home against Lewis & Clark State on Monday, December 1. Tip off time is 7:30 p.m.

Pirates will open against EWU

by Barry Adams

This year’s model for Whitworth Pirate basketball will be tall, strong, and potentially a great defensive team, according to new Coach Jim Larson.

The young Bucs, only two seniors, will open their season Nov. 28 in Cheney against EWU, last year’s Eastern Washington basketball team.

Larson feels it will be a challenge for the Bucs but a game for the fans. There is only one new opponent on this year’s schedule, Seattle University who dropped from NCAA Division I to NAIA this season.

The Pirate team is made up of five returners, all of whom started at one time or another last year. 6’10” Redmond, 6’6” John Hammonds, 6’4” Glenn Williams, 6’3” Richard Shoop, and 6’2” Jay Humphrey, three transfers from L.A. Highline C.C., 6’6” Kevin Vaughn from Pepperdine, 6’6” Terrel Landry from Highline C.C., 6’6” Kevin Jones from Navarro J.C. in Houston, TX, and four freshmen from J. L.A. schools. 6’5” Mark Ruby from Kennedy H.S., 6’9” Damon Gill from Pallsades H.S., 6’11” Bob Mandeville from Notre Dame H.S., and from Mead 6’7” Bob Hutchison.

Larson says this team has worked harder in practice than any team he’s had the opportunity to coach and that includes teams he coached at Westmont College and Cal-State Bakersfield. ‘This team has a lot of determination and spirit, they have put a lot of money and into the program around. Their goal is to have a winning season,” he said. “It would be the first in seven years for Whitworth.”

The Bucs will play their first home contest on Dec. 2 against Eastern Oregon at a new floor. A beautiful wood floor which was purchased this year to replace the tartan floor, that had been responsible for a multitude of leg injuries. “The floor is one of the best I’ve ever used or coached on,” Larson said. Larson hopes for a large crowd. He feels the game can really be a big help for the home team. “If a lot of folks come out and watch, they’ll see this team is playing basketball,” he said.

The Pirates have an intrasquad scrimmage at 4 p.m. on Wednesday and the public is invited to watch. The scrimmage should be a good indication of who and what to look for in Pirate basketball this season.

Kelly cont.

Kelly referred to Whitworth’s revolving door of the Athletic Director’s office in the past years to show that in athletics you do need continuity.

Excellence, which is the philosophy of the schools athletic program, according to Larson and Kelly, ‘begins with winning and getting continuity,” said Kelly, and continued, “there needs to be more emphasis on quality coaches and less on money in the sports programs.”

There needs to be some action taken soon, by the student, to see that the track program does get an adequate coach, said Kelly and concluded, “Whitworth is unique in that, the students do have a lot of influence and are heard in the administration.”
By Laura Hutchinson

Rumors regarding Whitworth's football program have been flying around the past few weeks. Students have begun to voice the possibility of not having a football team in the near future.

A newly formed Athletic Commission, chaired by Shirley Richner, plans to evaluate the football program as well as every other aspect of athletics at Whitworth College. This small group will attempt to re-evaluate the philosophy of Whitworth's athletic programs. The commission is composed of Richner, Student Body President Frank House and Bill Johnson; students Karen Smith and John Perkins; Alumni Director Kay Brown; Lunell Haught of the Whitworth Athletic Director Jim Larson. They will evaluate all present programs, including intramurals and clubs, as well as varsity sports. The committee will prepare a long-range planning, and also plan for future maintenance of such programs. The commission will be presented to Dr. Monroe by the end of October.

There will be an open meeting for people to talk to the commission. Questionnaires will be sent along with the meeting. Former students as well as present coaches will be approached by members of the committee.

According to the commission that the 'Athletics' is an outside group looking at athletics. She went on, "Athletics involves all of education." The athletic program, she says, is at least as important as the number of the people who participate. When asked the commission's plans regarding the future of the program, Richner replied, "I am not going to open up. I have no idea what will happen."

The commission plans to explore all sides of the football program. This includes talking to people at Whitman and the College of Idaho, who have dropped football, as well as results of the study, and also speaking to representatives from 40 colleges who have strong football programs. Richner assured, "Just because we're looking at it doesn't mean we're making a decision just yet."

Members of Whitworth's football team listened to the other ideas, however. The controversy over the football program continues, and much concern amongst the players about the possible future of the program will be continued.

With the help of Carol Buehler from the White River, many members of the football team were interviewed. The major concern was of possibly dropping football and relocating as a varsity sport. A majority of the players interviewed said that they would leave Whitworth if the football program is dropped. Following are comments from some of the players:

"Curt Carr, senior, said, "Somebody's got to get into it like football. The people who play football come here to Whitworth, that people who come here to play soccer come here to do so to go after a degree."

When asked how he feels about the ineligibility of certain players, which resulted in two forfeited games, Carr replied, "It's screwed. Someone wasn't doing their job. I haven't seen it in any other sport, or the program (in football) every year. I'm bitter. If we had won those games and then had to forfeit, I'd have been going after somebody's head. The registrar just isn't that smart. Someone wasn't doing their job and I think Olson is trying to pass the buck."

"Mike Matthews, a junior center, said, "I don't think the football program will fall. Duncan isn't the reason we're working on the field. The reason for it, the program, was to make a better football program."

"Charles Boyce, a sophomore, said, "Football is a good way to feel. I feel bad, but I think the football program will fall, and the ineligible players should get back in so we can have a better team.""

"Jim Decker, a senior quarterback, said, "I'm not sure, but I think the ineligible players should get back in.""

"Alan Magawa, a wide receiver for the Pirates, said, "I'm not sure. It's a mistake."

"Soccer is not a varsity sport at Whitworth but some students and faculty feel that it could be an alternative to football."

"Soccer is a lot cheaper than for football. A soccer player's uniform consists of shirt, shorts, socks and shoes, compared to the helmet, shoulder pads, pants, numerous pads and jersey of the football player."
What's Happening

BETWEEN THE BOOKENDS

New Acquisitions at the Whitworth Library

In a well-researched, balanced biography, the author presents an incisive approach to Kennedy while examining the human side of a politician who has matured through the tragedies and honors of being a Kennedy.

Against the background of Nazi Germany, this volume is... concerned with the church as it struggled to find itself for the recovery of the true faith in its witness to the nation...

Whether or not you give credence to subliminal seductive advertising, this volume is most provocative in the discussion of various forms of media advertising which the author maintains subconsciously affects all of us.

The "prisoners" are 23 million U.S. adult illiterates about whom Kuczynski offers a number of fascinating suggestions; showing that pradificating illiteracy makes them more effective citizens.

This would seem to offer a challenge to expanding opportunities in the field of education.

Bowen, Catherine. Adenauer: The Key to Europe. Prentice-Hall, 1974. (C 218.3 E33 B64 1974)

The key to Europe is influenced by your personal relationship with the family.

Football future, cont. from page 14

By Lisa Weaver

Roosevelt feels that the football program will continue despite ineligibility problems. In fact, he says the players have a lot of team spirit and pride, and they are ready to prove their worth in theAIAA test.

However, he added, "This has happened two years in a row. The guys in the administration, coaches, and the guys in charge of eligibility should get their act together; they need better communication. It's their job and I don't think that's too much to ask."

You didn't think that ineligibility was the program's "least problem," though. He said, "Football players are stereotyped too much, especially in a Christian campus where the game is thought of as almost barbaric." He described the stereotype as "dumb, rough, jock, non-Christian."

He said the football players are watched so closely that they have to be more careful in their social activities than an athletic student in the major universities and the community. They have to do a lot more work to maintain eligibility.

When asked how much pressure there is from scholarships, he answered, "It's not a scholarship, but a talent award. Without going into detail, the amount varies with each individual."
Review of Past Forums

By Lori Bair

Ken Hutcherson, a former Dallas Cowboy and Seattle Mariner, was the speaker at the November 13th Forum. He stated, "I think it is a tradition to be boring at Forum," as he was introduced. He began to explain his point to do just the opposite and yet still get his point across. Ken said, "One basic characteristic of truth is that it is always consistent." He went on to say, "If you're going to substitute to reach God, Christianity is God's unyielding effort to reach man. There is no culture or society ever that has risen above the God it serves."

"God doesn't write things because of the fads of the times. If we are married to the times we will soon be widowers, because the times are going to die out." Bruce Larson, the senior minister of University Presbyterian church in Seattle, was the speaker at the November 12th Forum. Mr. Larson is the author of thirteen books, including: No Longer Askers, Ask Me to Dance, The Edge of Adventure, and The Mesmerized People. During Forum he said, "I'm not necessarily concerned with religion, man is concerned with religion. You don't have to be a faithful, faith is something you do." In closing he went on to say, "I went and let people give you a name. God says, 'Let me tell you who you are.'"

Dr. Alan Loy McGinnis, author of the best-selling book, The Friendship Formula, was the speaker at the November 13th Forum. Dr. McGinnis spoke on "How to Handle Your Feelings of Inferiority." "Most of the people between the ages of 12 and 22 are disappointed in how they look, and who and what they are," he said, "I think it is tragic to see young people used up our values in life. Some of the cues that are being given to us today are phony. We are who we are and yet still do so to less than your best."

Part-time Job Makes Student Millionaire

Pasadena, CA (CPS)—A part-time job four years ago has turned a graduate student at the California Institute of Technology into a millionaire. Richard Scheller got a job in 1976 working part-time for a tiny little company called Genentech, which manufactures biologic products. Because his pay was so low, he supplemented his income by buying stock in the company.

"There was a lot of pressure to produce a product and show the investors we weren't going to fail," Scheller told the Wall Street Journal. Because of the pressure, Scheller left his job after six weeks, returning 15,000 of the 30,000 shares he had been given.

Last week, however, Genentech's stock was traded for the first time. Because of a June 1980 U.S. Supreme Court hearing allowing the patenting of new "life forms," business observers have predicted prosperous futures for genetic engineering companies like Genentech. According to the company, the stock closed on the first day of trading at $71.25 per share, making Scheller the only biology research fellow at Cal Tech worth $1.1 million.

Scheller, whose salary is $100,000 per year, sold 40,000 shares to hold onto his Genentech stock for a while and keep on his track toward landing a professorial position at a university. He said, "I'm not used in being a professor at a good university. I'm used in being a professor at a good university."

"I can't buy that," Scheller could not be reached for comment by College Press Service. But one of his co-workers at the Cal Tech lab noted that Scheller had been getting into work a little later since the stock market had made him rich. "Then again," said Scheller's associate, "when you're a millionaire, I guess you can do what you want."
VOLUME 71, ISSUE NO.6 DECEMBER 5, 1990 WHITWORTH COLLEGE SPOKANE, WA 99251

Three profs granted sabbaticals

By Mark Meyer

Three Whitworth College professors have been granted sabbaticals effective for the next school year. All three have planned activities during their sabbaticals which range from exploring archeological digs in Israel to visiting the private libraries of past United States Presidents.

Dr. Edwin Olsen, Professor of Earth Science, is hoping to take his sabbatical during the Spring semester of 1992. If everything works out, he will be spending the semester as a visiting professor at the Institute of Holy Land Studies located in Jerusalem, Israel. As a visiting professor, Dr. Olsen will be expected to teach each two semester hour courses in the area of his specialty. The type of course he will be teaching has yet to be determined, but it is most likely to be a course of biblical archeology or the geography of Palestine. With the light teaching load, Dr. Olsen will be able to spend a significant amount of time exploring various archeological digs, attending lectures, and taking field trips to archeological digs. While Dr. Olsen is away on sabbatical, someone will be needed to take his place in the classroom here at Whitworth. According to Dr. Olsen, the best person to fill his position would be someone to teach the Earth Science courses for the semester he is abroad. Nothing definite has been set regarding the teaching position. Dr. Olsen said, "I'll have to worry about that once everything has been cleared through the Institute."

"I've been thinking of taking a sabbatical for a long time," said Dr. Olsen. He went on to say that about two or three years ago he submitted a sabbatical request but was turned down because he had taken a previous sabbatical during the spring of 1988. This year, during his earlier sabbatical he did Carbon 14 dating work with coral samples taken from Hawaii. That work resulted in a publication by Dr. Olsen.

Dr. Olsen is also concerned about the situation in East Timor. This country, located on the island north of Australia, is currently undergoing a severe famine. The remainder of the money which will be given to the Spokane Food Bank, which is greatly in need of funds during the winter months.

The lack of faculty input in the final budget, expressed by Fuller about the decision, is that in the future faculty will have more opportunity for participation.

Other activities planned by the Wash Task Force three year include a book study, a food drive, and participation in a hunger conference.

During Jan term the group will be exploring the book Cry for Justice, by Jack E. Nelson. They are also looking forward to the annual food drive for canned goods that will be held in Spokane in the Spring. The money from the food drive will go to hunger which will be something new at Whitworth this year.

Hunger Task Force meets for dinner in the East Red Room on Sundays at 5:30.

Yager heads Economic Center

By Lori Bair

In a New York junior college survey, over 70% of the students could not distinguish the essential difference between capitalism and socialism. Only one in four students going to college had taken an economics course.

In 1974, under a five-year grant from the Comstock Foundation, the Whitworth College Center for Economic Education was established with the hopes of raising economic literacy in the greater Inland Empire. The Center is now located in Dixon Hall, but will move to the Whitworth Seminar Center, once it is completed.

Bill Yager is the director of this center which is funded by private donations from foundations, businesses, and interested individuals.

The thrust of this program is teaching teachers, so that they can pass their knowledge of economics on to their students. At the close of the 1980-1981 school year, 65,000 Spokane area students will have been exposed to a teacher functioning at a much deeper level of knowledge and understanding of basic economic/business principles.

One of the major activities of the Center is the summer business experience program, which is co-sponsored by the Greater Spokane Area Chamber of Commerce. Approximately thirty selected high school students participate in one week's study of economic and business concepts, which takes place on campus, followed by a four week internship work experience in a local business under the tutelage of resident managers.

A summer course is also available for elementary teachers and is taught with the use of direct experience in simulation games, group activities and materials preparation. A vital part of this program includes a seminar in the new "Trade-offs" program. It is comprised of fifteen video tapes and 16 mm films dramatizing with special visual effects key economic concepts in terms relevant to the everyday life of a fourth through eighth grade child. The Center also maintains a library/clearing house of economics teachers aids ranging from pamphlets and games to complete filmstrip and literature units in various economic areas, all available to local teachers.

The Washington State Council on Economic Education has adopted as its primary long-range goal that by 1993, 70% of the sampled second, fourth, eighth and twelfth grade students in Washington state will be able to demonstrate their economic literacy by answering correctly 50% of the questions on a basic economic literacy test appropriate to their grade level.

Their primary objective is the teacher training process. An important second objective is the expansion of its summer business experience program and the elementary teachers business career program. The third objective is the expansion of its role in community seminar offerings, as well as expanded courses/seminars for teachers during school year.

The effectiveness of this Center will be measured by the level of economic literacy of the community. The goals and accomplishments of this center certainly play a pertinent part in the outcome of our understanding of economics and all entails.
A prayer:
That face, Lord, haunts me

by Sister Martina Abba, Forum speaker Nov. 20, 1980

That face, Lord, has haunted me all evening.
It is a living reproach.
A prolonged cry that reaches me in my quietude.

That face is young, Lord, yet men’s sins have struck it; She as defenseless and exposed to their blows.

It was dark, dismal, and stuffy.
The fists, the smoke, the alcohol, hunger, hurt, pain, hopelessness, senslessness, anger, humiliation, use, were all there.

Frenzied dances, revolving songs, demoralizing films, sex, unclean and deceitful kinetics.
The struggle to live, brawls, cries, blows, rebellion.
Her nails were broken, her patrid breath was thick in my nostrils, her bruised and mutilated and used body.
She was no more than a rag on the floor, dirty clothes from one end of the room to the other, a rag on the arm-chair with a stump that made me gulp to keep the contents of my supper in my stomach—and the blinds were closed.

I found her alone——
I found the dirty sheets on a bed wrinkled and rumpled, gasoline in the thousands.
I shall stand still, terrified, silent, alone.
It seems to me that at the end of time, all the faces of my brother man, and especially those are my town, my district, my neighborhood, my work, will be lined up before me,

And in your merciless light I shall recognize in these faces the lines and creases which I have cut
the mouth that I have twisted,
what I have scarred,
and whose face I have extinguished.

And I shall stand still, terrified, silent.
It is then, O Lord, that you will say to me——

Lord, forgive me for that face which has condemned me. Amen.
Here is this face, one among thousands, like an open book, its many stories and sins of all of us, the book of selfishness, conceit, cowardice, the book of greed, lust, compromises——

For behind this ridiculous, grimacing face, behind those unshaven lips, those clasped hands of one drowned.
Is it a light, a flame, a tragic supplication—the infinite desire of a soul to live above its mud.

Lord, that face haunts me, it frightens me; it condemns me;
For with everyone else, I have made it, or allowed it to be made! And I realize, Lord, that this girl is my sister, my daughter, my mother, my neighbor, my self.

What have we done with a member of your family, Lord?
I ask of your forgiveness, for all these lacerations, for all these wounds, I pray to you, Lord, for myself and for all my friends here——Teach us to love.

The struggle to live, brawls, cries, blows, rebellion.
Her nails were broken, her patrid breath was thick in my nostrils, her bruised and mutilated and used body.
She was no more than a rag on the floor, dirty clothes from one end of the room to the other, a rag on the arm-chair with a stump that made me gulp to keep the contents of my supper in my stomach—and the blinds were closed.

I found her alone——
I found the dirty sheets on a bed wrinkled and rumpled, gasoline in the thousands.
I shall stand still, terrified, silent, alone.
It seems to me that at the end of time, all the faces of my brother man, and especially those are my town, my district, my neighborhood, my work, will be lined up before me,

And in your merciless light I shall recognize in these faces the lines and creases which I have cut
the mouth that I have twisted,
what I have scarred,
and whose face I have extinguished.

And I shall stand still, terrified, silent.
It is then, O Lord, that you will say to me——

Lord, forgive me for that face which has condemned me. Amen.

And I shall stand still, terrified, silent.
It is then, O Lord, that you will say to me——

Lord, forgive me for that face which has condemned me. Amen.

Liberty and social vigilance

By Bob Graham

With a new Republican Administration and Senate which pledges a re-emphasis upon the free market, and a decentralization of government, many fear the country will swing away from a social concern for the poor. Discussions include the counter argument that localized accountability will lead to greater efficiency. There are two sides of the debate.

The lame duck session of Congress has passed a law which limits the next administration to the trimming of 2% of the federal budget within fiscal 1981. The governors of the United States have given the new administrations their proposal for immediate progress toward the localization-decentralization of government, particularly in terms of state control over city funding and particularly in terms of education. These and other groups have begun a stimulation among our citizenry to the idea that society individuates have our own voices and our own responsibilities. It is we who must heed personally the call for accountability and social concern.

And I shall stand still, terrified, silent.
It is then, O Lord, that you will say to me——

Lord, forgive me for that face which has condemned me. Amen.

The lame duck session of Congress has passed a law which limits the next administration to the trimming of 2% of the federal budget within fiscal 1981. The governors of the United States have given the new administrations their proposal for immediate progress toward the localization-decentralization of government, particularly in terms of state control over city funding and particularly in terms of education. These and other groups have begun a stimulation among our citizenry to the idea that society individuates have our own voices and our own responsibilities. It is we who must heed personally the call for accountability and social concern.

And I shall stand still, terrified, silent.
It is then, O Lord, that you will say to me——

Lord, forgive me for that face which has condemned me. Amen.

The lame duck session of Congress has passed a law which limits the next administration to the trimming of 2% of the federal budget within fiscal 1981. The governors of the United States have given the new administrations their proposal for immediate progress toward the localization-decentralization of government, particularly in terms of state control over city funding and particularly in terms of education. These and other groups have begun a stimulation among our citizenry to the idea that society individuates have our own voices and our own responsibilities. It is we who must heed personally the call for accountability and social concern.

And I shall stand still, terrified, silent.
It is then, O Lord, that you will say to me——

Lord, forgive me for that face which has condemned me. Amen.

The lame duck session of Congress has passed a law which limits the next administration to the trimming of 2% of the federal budget within fiscal 1981. The governors of the United States have given the new administrations their proposal for immediate progress toward the localization-decentralization of government, particularly in terms of state control over city funding and particularly in terms of education. These and other groups have begun a stimulation among our citizenry to the idea that society individuates have our own voices and our own responsibilities. It is we who must heed personally the call for accountability and social concern.

And I shall stand still, terrified, silent.
It is then, O Lord, that you will say to me——

Lord, forgive me for that face which has condemned me. Amen.
Faith, works, and Christ's body

by Mike Wendlandt

Faith is the only pre-requisite, the given in this discussion. For if we have faith, then we are justified in the eyes of the Lord (Romans 3:28). My thoughts are written for the body of Christ, and deal with the individual's role in the Christian church.

As believers, we make up the body of Christ. And in this body there are, equally important tasks. For together we are Christ's body, but each of us is a different part of Colossians 2:7. The question then becomes what should that corporate Christ be doing in today's world, and how should I, an individual Christian, fit into that body's work?

As to the church's role in today's world, we find guidance in the Bible. In the Old Testament, Numbers 22:38, we find Yahweh ordering Moses to take a census in order to determine the number of Israelites fit to bear arms. The leaders of this census is for the benefit, for Yahweh had determined their duty to be other than making war; it was their responsibility to "serve the tabernacle of the Lord and to look after its belongings (Numbers 1:50)." In the Old Testament church then, it was recognized that different people had different tasks within the community. This is reaffirmed in the New Testament church not only by Paul in 1 Corinthians, but also in Acts where the twelve apostles answer the complaint of the Hellenist Christians that their widows were being overlooked in the daily food distribution, by calling on the selection of seven men to be "look after the material needs of the church's hungry" (Acts 6:1-7). Thus we have in both the Old and New Testament, a view of pluralism in the church's role, some people to care for spiritual needs, and others to care for the physical needs.

In the church of the 1980's we should remind ourselves of the historical, Biblical role of the body of Christ. In Deuteronomy we are told, "Always be on good speaking terms, with one another, and with anyone in your country who is in need and who is not your brother, and with anyone in your country who is in need and who is not your brother" (Deuteronomy 10:18). Thus we have an even stronger injunction by the writer of James which tells us, "That faith without good deeds is useless," and by believing, that a man is justified (James 2:21-26). Finally we have the words of the Master himself, who gives the kingdom to those who have met the needs of the hungry, the thirsty, the stranger, the naked, the sick, and the imprisoned (Matthew 25:35-40). For us then, in Biblical perspective, the church is not to be oriented in a single direction, but rather is to be a "wholistic provider of needs, both spiritual and physical."

Reader's opinion

Football at Whitworth

Is there a Solution to the Future of Football?

I am writing this in response to the articles in the last issue of the Whitworthian regarding the future of the football program here at Whitworth. There was no mention of football in the last issue of the newspaper. I believe there is no comments from non-football people in the article entitled "Pirate Football: Uncertain Future" among others. So I would like to make my opinions known.

Consider, if you will, what the future of Whitworth will be. First of all, when a comparison is made between football and other sports, football is clearly the loser money-wise. Clearly, the costs of running any sports program, between equipment and travel, the costs become staggering. Suppose that soccer were made the number one sport such as has been done at Gonzaga, Whitman, and SPU. Many more money was taken when one considers it in terms that at least ten road trips can be made (15 men traveling at $.40 per mile translate to $600 as the four road trips the football team made this year). On the other hand, staff is smaller for a soccer team, and there is no doubt that soccer requires much less in terms of equipment than a football program.

The question is, though: can soccer be a viable alter-native to football? I say no. It is hard for us to look beyond the money problem, but when done, some interesting changes are revealed. First, judging from the attendance at Whitworth's soccer games, the total of which can often be counted on one hand; versus the number of people who attend football games, it is easy to see that football is still the number one sport around here. Secondly, I played soccer here for two years and from what I saw of the programs at Gonzaga and Whitman, soccer is a poor substitute for the enthusiasm football creates in the minds of American college students. True, football does more to make our campus a lot longer than soccer, at least seventy years here at Whitworth, but I don't think that soccer is in a position to change Whitworth's long-standing tradition like that.

With a few breaks the football team this year could have easily been 9-0, instead of the 2-7 (or 4-5 depending on whom you talk to) record showed. Had that been the case, the newspaper and onlookers concerning the future of football may be flying through camp meeting performing miracles. As it is now, seemingly simple things are being blamed for "their team's" shortcomings. Comments along the line of "the coach is not doing his job", "the administration not caring enough", or an AD/basketball coach being at fault would be unhindered at this point. So if we had won the conference. My dad is the alumni director here and I have had many long conversations with him about football here at Whitworth. From these and from talking with other students, both football and non-football, and from my own personal love for the game, I have come to the conclusion that football is a vital part of this school.

It can work here, but only if people stop stabbing each other in the back and start building on the strong foundation that we have. There are ways it can work, for instance, why can't the football players take some initiative and raise some money to improve the practice field, the equipment, the weight room. I know them well enough to know that they love the sport enough to do something like that. Look at the job some of them did this summer improving and painting in the Pine Bowl. With that kind of dedication, something can be done besides screaming and yelling at the players.

I believe this school has enough talent in its athletic abilities and with the long tradition of sports here, I believe we would be able to improve in all sports, not only in football. I would like football to continue, and I would like it to grow, but if it is going to continue, we must support each other and work together. There are solutions to our problems, but finding them is going to take a lot of effort on the part of nearly everyone in this school.

Steve Brown

Forum and the mail

Dear Editor,

I've got to go to an appointment in a few minutes, but thought I'd best write you a letter in this little free time that I have. Well, when I heard that I was going to get my mail after until Forum, I became somewhat anxious. I thought that the college shouldn't be able to withhold something that rightfully belongs to me. Well, I then heard that this was an incentive/punishment initiated to get students to Forum on time, and that I was going to Forum on time if my second period class is dismissed on time. I was very excited about Forum and when I realized that Forum was now affecting me in what I feel is an unrelated area, got even angrier. Well, I decided I was being too near-sighted and must look at the problem from different perspectives. Well, the baby problem reminds me that I was told that Forum is very good for students and that I would be disappointed in me if I was not there on time.

Well, my student life side told me that the time in the HUB before Forum is filled with a multitude of student interactions which are also very good for students. Well, this didn't help my decision at all. Well, for some reason, an off-the-wall story filled my mind. Well, here is the story:

The babies were staying at Aunt Emma and Uncle Earl's house for a while. Once in a while Mommy and Daddy would send some of the babies open their presents until after dinner. Aunt Emma and Uncle Earl let the babies open their presents and play before dinner. Well, often some of the babies would be late for dinner, so Aunt Emma and Uncle Earl decided not to give the babies their presents until after dinner so that dinner would start on time and the guests that often attended dinner would get mad and the babies would have more time to eat their spinach. Well, the babies often didn't care about their spinach and would still try to talk it to each other instead of eating. Well, this was a distraction to the adults when they were eating their spinach as well as to Aunt Emma and Uncle Earl and, especially, the company, who had stories to tell. It was a great relief as to Aunt Emma and Uncle Earl and, especially, the company, who had stories to tell. It was a great relief to me that I didn't finish my story or tell you what I decided.

See ya at supper,
Harvey L. Meyer

The Whitworthian is an official publication of the students of Whitworth College and is published twice monthly, except during January. Circulation 1500. Opinions expressed are those of the writers and not necessarily those of the Whitworthian staff or the students of Whitworth College.
Stewart Hall: unique living

by Deana Stone

Whitworth offers a variety of living arrangements to its students and they all appear to have various unique qualities and aspects that offer. Not only is Stewart unique because it is a home for upperclassmen, but it also has living quarters designed for four men, but it seems to have other unique aspects as viewed by its residents. Some of the men who live in Stewart feel that the dorm offers fellowship, friendship, excitement, and support among other things.

Some of the activities in Stewart this semester have been: a picnic, a marshmallow and hot dog roast, socials with Baldwin and Jenkins dorms, Bible study, a Bible study support group, and intramural games.

Several freshmen residents were not sure how to get their reactions to the life at Stewart. Joe Stuhley mentioned, "I can be noisy at times but it gives you a chance to get to know people."

A number of us sitting around the good news of the resurrection, and the crucifixion of hunger, poverty, and oppression within the world community.

Liberty, cont.

nations, the message is clear: "From everyone who has been given much, much will be demanded; and from one who has been entrusted with much, much more will be asked" (Luke 12:48). Thus we must each ask ourselves: what is the extent of our abundance, our gift, and how best can we balance it with giving. We know the least fortunate, and we know the will of God exemplified in Christ.

Finally, social vigilance must be the watchword as America seeks to trust once again into the hands of her people. It will be easy to replace in higher net gains and forget the millions who live off ten dollars a month. We must not. Rather, as our economic liberty is retrieved we must increasingly obligate ourselves to individual giving. As it has been throughout the ages, "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

God talk, cont.

live believer and career seeker, that cliché becomes an electrifying issue of faith and life. As for the latter group, have you heard lately that your best response to the Great Commission is as a missionary, preacher, or teacher? If only the Bible were not so thunderously silent about being a programmer-analyst, manufacturing engineer, or regional sales manager, this might not be such a stopper. Our immedi­ate task, therefore, is to "de­fossilize" some of this hearsay and heresy and see what explosive issues are crying for intelligent discourse.

The believing Community, though not exactly silent, is only mumbling. Last year's issue of books in print listed forty-one titles on Christian stewardship, i.e. how Christians handle their money. And many of those books deal specifically with how to get more of that money into the church. There were but six books which could even be remotely associated, in a theological way, with the issues of work and career. Would it be a good time of education to note that the Church is therefore seven times more interested in how believers spend their money than in how they spend their time.

We need to talk, you and I...and God! Whether the Conversation is structured around books (like the excellent self-help paperbacks of Richard Bolles, for example), small groups, one-on-one counseling, private meditation, or all of the above, our Lord has promised to be an active Participant. "Let the peace...from the Christ rule (act as an umpire continually) in your hearts-deciding and settling with finality all questions that arise in your minds" (Col. 3:15, Amplified Bible).

Ron Turner, a graduate of Whitworth during the Meso­zoic period, received his Ph.D. in Romance Languages and Literatures from Harvard. He has served as chairman of Modern Languages at Whit­worth, as a computer software engineer in private industry, and is teaching now in the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science at Eastern Washington University. The above is taken from a forthcoming book on Chris­tians in Careers.

Letters, cont.

In response...

Dear Editor,

(In response to the letter by Scott E. Hudson, "A Special Thanksgiving," your previous issue--)

Pardon this nerve:

Overeating at Thanksgiving can cause indigestion. I am switching to goose this year, because I fear the United States will be eating turkey for years to come. Perhaps Whitworth should create a new Drumstick theology for Ronald Reagan. Please don't bother to pass any more of your stuffing. Christmas is around the corner; the Messiah has already come. God Bless America. Pop­pop, fizzle-fizzle, Cheers! Happy holidays, Bob Hard

Friday night at the movies

To The Whitworth Movie Audience

A number of us sitting in the audience viewing Kramer vs. Kramer were disturbed and embarrassed at the lack of respect to the sensitive issues dealt with in this movie. The unnecessary hissing, applauding and booping distracted from objective viewing of the film. It is unfair to make such boisterous noises to impair the perspective of the more neutral members of the audience. Each individual situation deserves a hearing. Our attitudes need not be heard through needless noise. Instead, let us divert that energy into an open minded consideration of the film.

Gail Berg Sue Frink
Fred Brunner Rob Hard
Pam Compton Lee Puro
Ron Neufeld
Ski team to host meet

By Claudia Klaver

The ski team at Whitworth is coached by Bob Bracht, with Laura Mader helping as an unofficial assistant. This year, there are close to twenty-five people interested in competing either in the Alpine (downhill or Nordic (cross country) ski races. Whitworth's ski team competes in the Inland Empire conference, racing against Washington State University, Whitman College, Gonzaga University, Western Washington University, and then to Salmon Arm, British Columbia.

This year, for the first time, Whitworth will be hosting a ski meet. The meet will be co-hosted with Eastern as Forty-Nine Degrees North Ski Area, on January 9-10, 1981. It will be an invitational for all the college teams in the area. The team needs people from Whitworth to help with the meet, doing such things as gate keeping, tabulating results, scoring, half priced tickets will be sold to people who wish to help. There is a possibility of work study money for these jobs, but the final decision on that is still to come.

The team’s first meet will be a practice race at Snoqualmie on the second third of January. After that, there will be four or five other races including trips to Walla-Walla, Blue Wood, McCall and Mount Spokane. For the whole season, the fees for the races were $57 for the team for the whole season. Because the fees have been raised this year, as well as the cost of traveling expenses, not all the races will be able to go on the trips. The traveling team will probably consist of five men and three women. Because of the reduced size of the traveling team and the increased interest in the ski team, there will be more competition for spots this year. But Laura Mader emphasized that being Whitworth is not really a serious competitive sport. Most of the skiers just "do it" since the competition in the area is not stiff and tense. It’s a good way to get to know and meet other people. The team is still looking for women skiers for both Nordic and Alpine and men skiers for Nordic. Since registrations for races have to be sent in up to four weeks in advance, anyone interested should contact either Laura Mader or Bob Bracht or leave a message at the KWRS radio station.

Get away - hop a freight

By Lori Bair

Hopping freight trains has been the favorite pastime for a few students here at Whitworth. Tim Pines and Bill DuVal were the initiators of this first "trip" in October of their sophomore year. "It was a totally new adventure, and people didn’t mind you doing it," stated Tim. Their first trip was from Spokane to Sandpoint, Idaho and then to Cranbrook, Canada. They rode on the Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific railroads. There were stuck in Canada from Saturday to Tuesday, and as a result, they ran out of money. To top it off, the railroad they were traveling on was hit by a train so they jumped on it while it was moving. That is something that Tim would not advise doing either. They made it almost to the Canadian border but got kicked off in the middle of nowhere and had to hitch hike the whole way home. "Real successful first trip," Tim said, laughing. "They now take the trip with a few others," Tim stated.

The trip to Whitefish, Montana, has become the host team’s favorite one to take. It is six to eight hours each way. They ride in empty box cars and once they get there, they go to a great pizza place and try to have a pleasant time dancing. After a night on the town, they return to the train station at 11:00 or 1:00 in the morning and are back in time for Sunday brunch.

Tim has been on twenty train trips and has visited such places as Glacier Park, Whitefish, and Missoula. Some people have gone as far as from Minneapolis to Spokane. "Guys on the railroad will usually really help you out," said Tim.

The trip to MacMillan, where Tim lives, has really become tiresome about train hopping. When walking through the dorm it is not uncommon to hear someone planning their next trip. Around thirty people have gone so far. "The most people that I ever took was ten and we called that the party train," stated Tim. "It is a great way to see the country and get away from Whitworth for a while. It’s free.

Stewart, cont.

anybody or any member of the dorm slip between the works and be forgotten. He also hopes that the Stewart experience will be one in which men are simply helping and supporting other men through the college years.

In conclusion, Steve wanted to express the following: "I would like to thank these guys for letting me live with them and for teaching me - I love them alot.

Hair by Jon

& Associates

Featuring William (Billy) Powell Barber-Stylist

$12-50

$10.00 FOR STUDENTS & FACULTY

328-0250

W. 128 INDIANA

(Next to European Health Spa)
Pirates win home opener

by Barry Adams

In their first two games of the season the Whitworth Pirates basketballers had what could be called an Eastern Split. The Bucs handled Eastern Oregon 92-82, Dec. 2 in the Whitworth Fieldhouse but fell 69-56 to Eastern Washington at Cheney, Nov. 29.

In Tuesday night's game, senior Glenn Williams came off the bench to score 18 points and grab 10 rebounds to spark the Pirates against EWU. The Pirates ran to a 38-27 lead late in the first half, but the Mounties closed the gap to 40-35 at halftime as they scored nine of the next 11 points.

The Mounties' Tyrone Waller provided the offensive drive, scoring five of the nine points towards his game high of 32.

Terrel Landry helped the Pirates build a 44-35 lead early in the second half with two free throws and a lay-in. The Bucs kept the heat on the rest of the way. First year coach Tim Larson said of the victory, "I'm very pleased with our progress."

Landry, a transfer from Highline Community College, shared scoring honors with 18.

Freshman Bob Hutchinson led all rebounders with 12.

The Pirates jumped to a 30-29 halftime lead against EWU with some strong defense that caused the good shooting Eagles to hit only 43% from the floor. The Eagles came out running and gained in the second half, scoring five unanswered points and outscoring Whitworth 10-2 in the first three minutes. The Bucs roared back and Jay Humphreys' 15 foot jumper knotted the score at 44. Matt Peppers matched the hoop and the Bucs never seriously challenged again.

Larson said of his team's first performance of the year, "We're disappointed, but not discouraged. We played well for 30 minutes."

Unfortunately for the Pirates, college basketball games are 40 minutes long. Larson cited Glenn Williams, 12 points, and Hutchinson, 7 points and 7 rebounds as having good all around performances. Larson felt Vaughn Taylor played well offensively. He collected 20 points.

The Pirates travel to Montana to take on Carroll College on Friday, and then go to Montana Tech on Saturday.

Squires, players, receive awards

by Hans Christenson

This year five Whitworth football players, named "All-Region" and "All-Conference" coaching staff, was asked how he felt about the award he said, "I don't look at it as an individuals award, but rather as a reflection on the whole program at Whitworth, and the whole coaching staff." He went on by saying, "I appreciate it, but it was not done by myself."

The players have showed class and the rest of the coaching staff has worked hard to put together a good program." When asked if football would continue at Whitworth he replied, "I think it will last a long time, the only thing that would stop it at all would be inflation. I see too many positive things involved with the program for it to be dropped very soon."

When Curt Carr, defensive endbacker was asked how he felt about being all-district he had this to say, "I learned it, I worked hard in the off-season and I paid off. I wanted to make all conference but that didn't work out. What I got this year sure beats last year, when I didn't get anything."

Bruce Oligar, offensive tackle, saw it this way, "I feel good, but then how else can you feel. I thought the whole offensive line did a super job this year. Three of our offensive linemen made all-conference so I think that should tell you something. I think our line really deserves some credit and it is important to give that credit where it is due."

Tim Frisbee punter, said he felt pretty good and he added, "Next year I plan to be even stronger and come back to average 44 yards a kick, and hopefully get drafted by the pros. I'd like to play another position but the competition is pretty tough so I'll probably stick with punting."

Sports

Sports Spotlight: Nancy Hammack

By DeAnna Stohl

The women's volleyball team will be competing in the national tournament here in the fieldhouse on December 11-13. One person you should keep your eye on is senior Nancy Hammack.

"Nancy is a very smart volleyball player," JoAnne Atwell-Scrivner, coach for the team, commented. "She really has tremendous blocking strength. She will be greatly missed next year when she graduates because of her touch, general court sense, power and strength, as well as her leadership as team captain."

Nancy is a very interesting player to watch. She is very smart offensively and really takes charge on the court. One of the unique and unusual qualities of Nancy is her boldness to question JoAnne.

"I think it's great," JoAnne stated, "because it really makes me think about the play and we both gain a better understanding.

Nancy graduated this year and is looking toward a career in coaching and teaching.

"It will make a fine coach," JoAnne reported, "She has the ability to think, question and reason. These are fine qualities for an athlete and coach."

It has been a very good year for Nancy. Her ability to "see the open spot and place the ball," has earned her a berth on the National All-Star team. Only seven players were selected out of the conference, so it is quite an honor.

"Due to this selection," JoAnne pointed out, "it's safe to assume that Nancy is one of the top volleyball players in the conference."

The women are hoping to "pull themselves out of the pool" and then try for one of the top four places in the nation. They have the advantage of playing at their own court and have worked extremely hard to get this far. "We've worked hard and deserve it," JoAnne exclaimed. "We really think that we can do it, in fact we know that we can!"

Plan to attend nationals here in the fieldhouse on December 11-13. Not only will you see the outstanding teams in the nation, but you can see outstanding individuals like Nancy Hammack.

Lewis runs at nationals

By DeAnna Stohl

The men's and women's cross-country teams had a successful season this year, topped off with the running of Carol Lewis at nationals two weeks ago.

"She ran fairly well," Coach Terry Kelly commented. "She placed about the same as she did at regionals. She beat some that beat her at regionals, but she also lost to those she beat. She really didn't run her best race. But she did extremely well. We are all really proud of her. She's only a freshman and a top athlete for the Pirates."

"I'm really glad I did so well," Carol stated. "I was sorta surprised that I made it to nationals. I'm only a freshman and although I didn't run my best, it wastract.

Although the other team members didn't qualify for nationals, they had a very successful season.

"They really ran well at conference," Terry reported, "and that was important."

The men finished extremely well at conference. They expected to take a fourth place and pulled away with a third place finish.

"We were really prepared for conference," Terry pointed out. "Both mentally and physically tough was how we entered conference. We'd set our goal on fourth. We exceeded this goal. So, although we didn't fare as well at district, we had a very successful season.

"We weren't mentally prepared for district," Terry admitted. "The men let the foul weather get them down. The cold, wet, windy weather hindered the men from performing their best."

The women also had a good season. They finished fourth at regionals. "We had hoped to have finished third at regionals," Carol Lewis stated, "because the first three teams go to nationals, but the competition was just too tough."

"We've really improved this season," Carol acknowledged. "And besides that, we had a lot of fun."

Both teams finished the season successfully and strongly, and have high expectations for next year.

Stewart, Off-campus, win titles

By Joe Gallegos

Kevin DeVries picked off an errant pass and returned it seventy yards to lead Stewart #1 to an 8-6 victory over South Warren in the championship intramural football game.

Stewart's stubborn defense kept the Running Rebels in check with an intimidating yardage on a number of occasions by constantly hounding.

Offensively, Brian Stearns caught a forty-five yard pass from Joe Gallegos to set up a four yard touchdown strike to Reid Zeigler. Craig Dander caught six passes, one resulting in a touchdown. DeVries scored his second touchdown on a team effort where three or four Stewart players handled the ball before Rob Taylor tossed it to him in the endzone. Fleet-footed Nic Quinzon kept South Warren on their toes as he picked up a number of crucial first-downs.

Mark Meyer and Chris Garrison, two excellent receivers, hauled in several fine receptions. Meyer made a spectacular diving catch to sustain a scoring drive. Garrison exemplified the teamwork that keyed Stewart's success.

Pete Browning, Paul Chrisansson and Dennis Beemer played a fine game for South Warren. Beemer alertly intercepted a Gallegos pass and returned it fifteen yards for paydirt. Browning also scored a touchdown.

Floor Hockey

Keith Ward, Pat Taylor and Mark Lehman led the off-campus intramural floor hockey team to victory. Each game was packed with action and violence with many bodies bouncing off the walls, floors, and each other. Stewart took second place with Adler finishing third.

Volleyball

The off-campus volleyball team dominates intramural action thus far in the competition. Although there are still games to play, off-campus is undefeated. With Rich Waterman and Mark Lehman providing the spiking power, they are favored to win the title.

Stewart Hall won the 1980 intramural football championship game over South Warren.
The only major piece of legislation passed during the December first meeting of ASWC was a resolution concerned the funding for the all-school fast which was held to raise money for the poor. The resolution, which the Council has previously allowed to be held down to about $2 for every person who turned in their money, was increased to $5 per fast. When they had previously allocated the money, the President of ASWC had said that they would consider the resolution passed with a few dissenting voices.

The council decided to table Resolution 8081-11, which concerned the revision of the Student Bill of Rights. The Resolution was tabled until January so that the presidents can get a chance to summer how their dorm's reaction concerning this matter. The council also decided to not to pay dues to the independent colleges located in the state of Washington and American Historical Perspective, during the meeting asked for $56.05 for dues to be paid to the organization, which sends members to cast votes when decisions are made, but the presidents decided against the organization.

Dr. Haas revealed a full agenda for the November 24 meeting. Doug Nave gave his executive report, which stated that Whitworth's new president, Dr. Robert Mounce, will give a major convocation address on April 23 and his farewell address will take place the following day. He also discussed the possibility of extending the Dean of Students' policy to all adult students who have volunteered to look at visitors in. If the visit has been pre-arranged through the business office, a free meal card is provided. Included in the visits program are campus tours conducted by Miss Graulden or other counselors. Speaking with professors in classes, asking questions, and talking with admissions counselors about admittance requirements, costs, and financial aid.

Dr. Harry Dixon, Professor of Business/Economics, has been granted a sabattical. 'He will be working on a book on energy, but he also feels that the sabattical will be a catalyst to write position papers incorporating their views on the economy, mainly with the way it interrelates with the entire world,' said Dr. Dixon.

The position papers would be on problems in contemporary society, in the broadest possible sense. They will be on the biggest problems and it just happens to be in my area.

During his sabattical, Dr. Dixon plans to visit several other universities and work closely with professors from similar colleges to gain information. He also plans to talk to private bankers and representatives of former United States presidents like Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, and Lyndon B. Johnson.

The book Dr. Haas will be working on is entitled American Political Parties: A Historical Perspective. This work is that is only a working title, however. The book itself is a study of political parties in the United States from the beginning of the thirteen colonies to the election of Jimmy Carter. Within the book, Dr. Haas hopes to explore the origins of the political parties, the key issues of past elections, and the views of political leaders on the party's role in the economy as well as many more aspects of the history of the political party.

The word "Sabbatical" refers to a time of rest. Its main meaning is refreshment and a change of pace.
Fund Raising Drive Underway

By Victor Lawrence

"The Floor Curse" is the name of the drive now underway to raise money to pay for the new basketball floor in the fieldhouse. Some of the means which have been used to help finance the floor's cost have included a series of potluck-dinner presentations and student efforts.

Student participation includes individual and group incentives. The top three student ticket sellers were awarded $75 in prize gifts. A minimum of twenty-five tickets had to have been sold by those students. For the dollars that sold the most tickets beyond the minimum requirement there will be a free chartered bus trip to Walla Walla to see the last scheduled game of the season against Whitman. At the same time, during basketball season, the Athletic Department will be sponsoring potluck dinners at which they would make presentations about "The Floor Curse." The guests at the dinners could then make donations if they chose.

If you have attended any of the home basketball games lately, you have probably been aware of the Athletic Department's plea to the alumni, who are in the business of selling one square foot of the floor for a $10 donation. Funds will be used to purchase the materials for the floor. It is estimated that an additional 10 percent will be needed to purchase the materials. The students who contribute $10 or more will have their names inscribed on a permanently displayed fieldhouse plaque as "The Floor Boarders." People selling ten square feet or more ($100 or more) will have their names displayed on the plaque as "The Floor Curse," in addition to receiving an individualized plaque from the Athletic Department. Those selling fifty or more square feet ($500 or more) will receive the same as the previous donors.

"The Floor Curse" plus a membership in the Pirate Club for 1981-82 (includes a pass to all Whitworth College athletic events). The financing of the basketball floor is a hefty undertaking. With the means that the Athletic Department has already used and plans yet in the future, they hope to raise the $40,000 necessary to pay for the floor.

Fashion Show Draws Large Crowd

by Debbie Reinwand

Candlelight, tablecloths, disco music and Saga's best china helped transform the interior of Leavitt Dining Hall for the annual Black Student Union Fashion Show last Saturday evening. The event drew a large crowd of Douglas area residents who had gathered to see the theme of the fashion show was one segment of the evening which included a message from Eastern Washington Provoit C.T. Wright.

Other events included a special presentation to members of the B.S.U., the introduction of guests, and presentation of awards to the winners of the Lin's, Inc. essay writing contest. Models for the fashion show were clothes from ASWC's store with themes that included four different styles. (Six of the ten models are from Whitworth, while the rest were local residents.)

Fashion Show Draws Large Crowd

Graduation Nearing!

by Cindy Plies

"This year we have a large group of seniors and with cooperation and support everything will be smooth," said Paul Olsen, Registrar. Graduation is near and many things need to be done before May 17. Twenty-four hundred seniors are expected to participate in commencement this spring. Many more are not on the list and need to check with Paul Olsen to make sure they are cleared. The list is posted outside the registration office. For seniors who plan to graduate, clearance through registration must be obtained by May 10. If it hasn't been done already, seniors must obtain a senior check. The cost for the graduation are $25 for bachelors candidates, and $30 for masters candidates. Although commencement activities are still in the planning stages, the registration office has issued a preliminary schedule. Thursday, May 7, is the Senior Honors forum in Cowles Auditorium. Graduation week is packed with activities including a concert by the Whitworth Concert Band and a picnic in the loop on Saturday. Sunday evening is the Commencement Banquet which will be at the Davenport Hotel downtown. Highlights of the banquet include a senior slide show, entertainment, and a presentation by Whitworth students.

Baccalaureate will be at 9:30 Sunday morning in the auditorium; Commencement begins at 2:00 Sunday afternoon. Reverend Donn Moonwah will be the 1981 commencement speaker. Many other events are still in the works. The registration office will contact seniors as soon as plans are finalized.

College Begins Search

Now that Whitworth College has found a replacement for former President Ed Lindaman, the college is in the process of searching for a new Vice-President of Academic Affairs, a position which is being vacated by Dr. Shirley Richener.

Richener was a temporary appointment to that position when Dr. Duncan Ferguson became Acting President. The search committee for Vice-President of Academic Affairs began its process over a year ago, but the process was interrupted until a new president had been selected. During the past year, the job description was finalized and was published in many journals as a higher education. The closing date for applications was December 31, 1980. All materials submitted by candidates, which includes resumes, letters of recommendation, and a written questionnaire, had to be received by February 13, 1981. The Search Committee met in an all day session on that day to review the applications and to refine the pool of candidates.

According to Pat MacDonald, chairperson of the Search Committee, "We hope to cut it down to two or three possible candidates and have them visit the campus sometime before the school year is in full swing. Hopefully, the person selected will be able to assume the duties by this summer."" She went on to say that the committee was excited by the number of highly qualified candidates on the list.

The Search Committee is composed of four professors, in cooperation with the faculty, of an oversight of the college's entire curriculum, which includes faculty salaries and departmental budgets. Dr. Young reminded, "It is probably one of the most central positions in the entire college.'*
An overview of cohabitation

By Dr. Bill Peterson, Vice President for Student Life

I have been asked by the staff of the Whitworthian to write an article on the third of the "big three," the cohabitation policy. It seems they desire to provide equal time to the issues of teaching, the least attention, or which has been the subject to the least controversy, due to all the attention the alcohol policy has received. A design is to have the three done for a policy which some students apparently feel is an infringement on their right to determine how they will conduct their relationships in the privacy of their own rooms.

I am pleased to respond to the request, and hope this brief article can, at least, facilitate dialogue and communication on this topic. I should add that the Student Life Council is currently reviewing the enforcement of the policies, and that the Council would welcome your suggestions.

It behooves us to be helpful to begin with the definition of cohabitation as found in the current enforcement document, and then proceed to some of the reasons for having such a policy on the Whitworth campus.

SOA (Summary of Action) #58 defines cohabitation as "living together as man and wife." Our campus, however, is not a monogamous society. We are already a part of the kingdom of God, and as such, we have a special responsibility to help the poor, to avoid exploitation of them, to seek the peace of God, and to avoid the sin of the flesh. The poor are the "salt" of the earth, the "light" of the world, the "ten lepers," the "unfaithful slaves," the "poor majority." Christians are not to be contaminated by the world, but to be the world in a pure manner. We find that in Jesus, the "poor majority is subordinated." Such a position is a result of our understanding that such guidelines set marriage as the ideal and appropriate context for sexual intercourse. A policy prohibiting intercourse between two individuals who are not married to each other is in keeping with this understanding.

The purpose in having the policy against cohabitation—on the possession or consumption of alcohol or illegal drugs, or for that matter as to help to inculcation of quality of life at Whitworth is of a nature that is in keeping with the desired character of the college.

Who determines the desired character? The board of trustees has the ultimate authority to determine the character of the institution. It is their responsibility by law to see that the educational chartering documents are carried out.

Are the "big three" simply policies decided by a group of people who don't have to live in the dorms or experience the consequences? Not really. Although it is true that it would be possible for us to do away with the policy and have been reviewed periodically by the campus community and have been affirmed by a substantial majority of students and faculty. The results of the current survey will be published as soon as available, to indicate whether this remains the campus sentiment.

Having read all this, the student reader is still likely to wonder what a policy against cohabitation has to do with institutional character in the minds of trustees or others.

My response is that we are a college committed to using the life and teachings of Jesus as our reflect upon our basic assumptions and to determine the possible courses of action. We know that there are three reasons for whatever reasons—and will on occasion not live up to those standards. On such occasions we seek to be guided by compassion and to believe God's grace to be the model for forgiveness and reconciliation.

On Kent Hoffman, and Forum in general

By Dr. George Weber

At a recent Forum, our speaker Kent Hoffman made the point that the church has a responsibility. Some of his other points move me to suggest that Whitworth run the risk of making some changes in the future."he'll report of our Forum. Such changes, I believe, would help Forum become more a place to wrestle with issues than a soap-box from which to release conclusions.

Mr. Hoffman made a sweeping assertion that the poor are the "poor country" of God, apparently because they are poor. It is true that Christians have a special responsibility to help the poor, to avoid exploitation of them, to seek the peace of God. However, the notion that the poor are not automatically become part of the kingdom of God, that is the poor majority is subordinated. Such a position is a result of our understanding that such guidelines set marriage as the ideal and appropriate context for sexual intercourse. A policy prohibiting intercourse between two individuals who are not married to each other is in keeping with this understanding.

The trustees, faculty and administration wish to hold forth the ideal—Christian biblical standards. However, there are three reasons for whatever reasons—and will on occasion not live up to those standards. On such occasions we seek to be guided by compassion and to believe God's grace to be the model for forgiveness and reconciliation.

This brings me to a third disturbing point made by our guest speaker, that the continuing development of a nuclear deterrent is tantamount to its ultimate use. "We are preparing for Armageddon," he said. These statements are so foolish as suggesting that the policeman with his weapon just because he has one. His dogmatic analysis on the bomb was inflammatory, irresponsible, and at best only speculative in nature.

Mr. Hoffman went on to suggest that the reason the Russians continue to build their arsenal is that we continue to build ours. In the arms race that simple! He completely ignored the age-old conflict between the forces of good and evil as well as society's legitimate responsibility to control evil through the power of Christian God's sword. He pointed this out because it is in the interest of America and society's legitimate responsibility to control evil through the power of Christian God's sword.

Is Mr. Hoffman suggesting that even the terrible Russian bear would become overnight a tame teddy if we would just be good and let down our arms? I am more inclined to affirm that off-repeated epigram: "all that is needed is for evil to triumph for good to do nothing." Certain God could control the Russians if he chose to do so and he wouldn't have to depend upon us. But maybe, just maybe, America is being called upon militarily to protect the world from Russian totalitarianism, an avowed enemy of the Cross of Jesus our holy freshness... I am not saying that America is totally righteous and without sin. It is true that some of the activities of America's may get hurt in the process of doing so, and that is why certain policies are made. The Christian man or woman on this campus, on the other hand, is called to live with the plight of the hungry millions. However, to just talk and curse MNC's seems to me to border on hypocrisy.

The first apostles, despite the odds, went out because of their convictions to preach the gospel to all creation. Later, on, bold young Europeans went out because of the goodness of strange lands to preach the good news. They made people wonder why they called me Michael, which is a Greek word meaning "he who counts as odd with my color." Here, I am told it is an American name! The Spaniards called it the "Lute." Lute! If you are looking for an African tongue that MNC's are probably at odds with my color. Here, I am told it is an American name! The Spaniards called it the "Lute." Lute! If you are looking for an African tongue that Please deposit Letters to the Editor in the blue box at Whitworth. Deadline for letters is the Friday before publication. Publication is every other day.

The opinions expressed on the editorial pages are not necessarily those of the Whitworthian staff or the students of Whitworth college.

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to the article titled "Same Time Next Year," which was shown in Cowles Auditorium on the evening of Friday, December 5, 1980.

It's not necessary for an individual or institution to promote a specific theme, but when one does, consistency is of extreme importance.

Anyone who has read any of Whitworth's public relations literature or had any type of interaction with the college knows that our theme is Jesus Christ. However, viewing "Another Time Next Year" in our auditorium would have placed a question in one's mind. A movie totally based on adulterous sex does not coincide with our theme of Jesus Christ.

The sooner we realize that, as the voice of our institution, we have two options: to eliminate college sponsored events which are in conflict with our theme, or to downgrade our present promotion of Jesus Christ. It's our choice.

Sincerely,

Susan Cowles

The Flush

They probably expected the readers to laugh and roll in tears. But what did it ever sound like? It was probably meant to lighten up the gloomy atmosphere of the finals. But at best it was chilling; at worst morose. Full of innuendo, innuendo jokes at the expense of groups of people, the Flush deserved a flushing down the w.c.

Between the lines and somehow, one could see who was being put on a pedestal, who fretted and fished at the sides of normals driving sleek cars, who was having their life's work: the "undesirable" number of underdogs of this earth in the coveted hall team, and who still deluded himself with his twisted sense of superiority.

Will the beast ever learn? Does the same old dog eat the earth from sunrise to sunset? Are the owners of the time not content to prove it? Some things never just come to pass. Some things are not to be changed in conventional forms. They become subtle and less perceptible. What a pitiful sight to see an inflated, arrogant soul wriggle with impotence and piles of self-created spectacles.

Tell me, why must not be allowed to go back to its own vomit for its own sake, and that of the others who may one day want to know. Hence, the struggle continues.

Mike O'deya

Dear Editor,

Maybe the old adage "When you point one finger at someone else you point three at yourself" is true. "Despicable acts of barbarism" cries Sir Jimmy, the fifty-two, and the U.S. choir. Barbarism: beatings, mock executions, Russian roulette, death threats, poison, food, blindfolding, solitary confinement.

Despicable to be sure. Anyone who treats another human being like this, without wrong and needs love and help.

But how the world must laugh when it hears such pious words out of the mouth of a nation whose own hands are buried in the blood of thousands of others.

Have, we forgotten that we are SAVAK, the Shah's secret police, and that they tortured thousands of Iranians? The treatment of the fifty-two hostages was like corporal punishment in elementary school when compared with the way SAVAK treated Iranians. SAVAK may have forgotten.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Calvin

Dear Editor,

Read the hostages and torture

The hostages and torture

Deborah

Dr. Weber, cont.

and the anti-establishment speakers who most often have had the floor. By the uttering of a few proper shibboleths, they could say almost anything and get away with it. This may be good for indoctrination but not for intellectual health. We have frequently been exposed to sloppy biblical exegesis and sloppy logic, and thus have been encouraged to support unworthy causes.

It seems to me there ought to be another approach for an academic institution worthy of the name. We need not shy away from controversial issues, but let us have the great debates, the position papers for students and faculty to digest. The Forums that carefully present the arguments of both sides, and finally, and environment that permits Biblical precepts and examples to bear on the issues. Let us return the accuracy with the explanatory, and the inflammatory with the carefully reasoned argument.

Let us not be so eager to bring the controversial speaker with the radical position to campus. Yes, once in a while. But how much better to invite the one who has the ability to present the carefully reasoned argument, one who recognizes ambivalence, and one who has achieved a measure of respect within the intellectual world.
by Brian Best

"No, I don't want to kiss! I was just told to. If you were tired and upset and interested in sleeping—alone.

You're wrong. I only learn Spanish by laughing. I have a beautiful home in Costa Rica.

I'm a Whitworth student called San Jose. Not in the Latinos, the language you hardly know, you make me laugh! I'm a missionary.

This is a..."

- 77x93

"The TV said something about
'Santa Helena.' I'm not sure what all they said, but there were pictures of it blowing. Tomorrow our group is going to visit Poás, a volcano. I don't know why.
Seems we've had enough of volcanoes. Next to me is sitting a 'new person' who is about 28. She is pregnant and has two little sons. one 16 months who is sitting the lap of my 'Father' and one who is asleep and is 'un terrible,' according to her mother. The mother's two brothers and two sisters a friend of the father also live here. When I am home, there is not any time alone, though.

There are cultural beauties that you don't spend much time in solitude. When I go to them, I have four people kind of follow. I love it here. This weekend

I met some people through generalization, but the people here in Costa Rica that I have met have been open, caring, generous, sensitive, etc. How can I say that I love a whole people? This place and people have taken my heart. When they smile, everything about them smells: When they give, love, believe, do it with all. Such wide commitments.
They are beautiful reflections of our Father.

In addition to the six people mentioned above, these students are on the trip: Meg Symons, Liz Ray McQuaid, Carol Rose, Kevin Sea, Erik Lathrop, and Laurie Hugante. They would appreciate your prayers and letters. Letters should be mailed now to: c/o
CEDEN, Arend Chamber Group, Apartado 4178, Tequisi, Honduras, Central America.

Arend has a bit of everything

by Sheri Wheeler

Arend Hall, a co-ed dorm named after local benefactor
Albert Arend, is home for approximately 150 Whitworth students. These dorm residents range from freshman, through to well beyond seniors.

Arend is divided into three individual dorms or suites: Booth, Goodsell, and Goodsell. According to Graduate Student-in-residen-cence, Tess Summerrour, the dorms have evolved into an almost knitted unit in the five years she's been here.

The people responsible for leading the dorm include the Residence Life staff, the dorm executive, and the dorm chaplains. Deni
McQuaid is the double-duty
goodsell as Sam Wiseman, who serves as dorm president and R.A.

Terrell Landry is the newly elected-president of Careman
Sara Scott Owen

continues as president of Washington

The residence life staff,
under the direction of Summerrour, '93, two on each dorm floor. East and West,
Reinwand and Debbie

are responsible for Carson. Tim Potter hold the fort. Tina Wilson and Wiseman
round off the dorm life.

Arend chaplains include,
Linda Price, Flora
Brown for Carlson, and Laura Reiter representing
Goodsell.

Opinions on dorm life in Arend are varied, but on the whole, enthusiastic. Denise Dickinson, entering her first semester in the dorm, continued to be a missionar
in Arend with that of Baldwin-Jenkins. Dickinson
previously lived in B.J. for one and a half years. 'In B.J.
there were about 210 girls and most of them were freshmen. Now I'm in a co-ed living situation with people of ages,' said Dickinson.

I like living here. Arend, there's a little bit of everything here," she concluded.

Chris Runge, a four year
residents of Arend, lives in the dorms and the location of the dorms is
from home," said Runge.

Charlie Boyce, first year
transfer student who everyone seems to get along and
"and a human being is maintained." Boyce also likes the way people in the dorm respect each other's privacy.

Arend Residence Life Staff includes Tess Summerrour, Cindy Wells, Debbie Reinwand, Sam Wiseman, Rachel Shailings, Roger Wold and Tom Potter.

by Brian Best

April 1 Page

MNC's, cont.

Arend has a bit of everything

attitude gained from the West, soon as I gain insight into oriental ways I may add Lin!" my suggestions is that a people can still be a missionary, but of a different sort. How about being a business missionary?
One could go to the rural area, open a business and speak no English. Their only c.MockMvcial skill would be to people is at the lecture in the seminary and at language time which made me laugh and deeply interested in the

by Sheri Wheeler

Arend Hall, a co-ed dorm
named after local benefactor
Albert Arend, is home for approximately 150 Whitworth
students. These dorm residents range from freshmen
through to well beyond seniors.

Arend is divided into three individual dorms or suites: Booth, Goodsell, and Goodsell. According to Graduate Student-in-resid-
cence, Tess Summerrour,
the dorms have evolved into an almost knitted unit in the
five years she's been here.

The people responsible for leading the dorm include
the Residence Life staff, the
dorm executive, and the dorm chaplains. Deni
McQuaid is the double-duty
goodsell as Sam Wiseman, who serves as dorm president and R.A.

Terrell Landry is the newly elected-president of Careman
Sara Scott Owen

continues as president of Washington

The residence life staff,
under the direction of Summerrour, '93, two on each dorm floor. East and West,
Reinwand and Debbie

are responsible for Carson. Tim Potter hold the fort. Tina Wilson and Wiseman
round off the dorm life.

Arend chaplains include,
Linda Price, Flora
Brown for Carlson, and Laura Reiter representing
Goodsell.

Opinions on dorm life in Arend are varied, but on the whole, enthusiastic. Denise Dickinson, entering her first semester in the dorm, continued to be a missionar
in Arend with that of Baldwin-Jenkins. Dickinson
previously lived in B.J. for
one and a half years. 'In B.J.
there were about 210 girls and most of them were freshmen. Now I'm in a co-ed living situation with people of ages,' said Dickinson.

I like living here. Arend,
there's a little bit of everything here," she concluded.

Chris Runge, a four year
residents of Arend, lives in the dorms and the location of the dorms is
from home," said Runge.

Charlie Boyce, first year
transfer student who everyone seems to get along and
"and a human being is maintained." Boyce also likes the way people in the dorm respect each other's privacy.

Arend Residence Life Staff includes Tess Summerrour, Cindy Wells, Debbie Reinwand, Sam Wiseman, Rachel Shailings, Roger Wold and Tom Potter.

by Brian Best

April 1 Page

MNC's, cont.

Arend has a bit of everything

attitude gained from the West, soon as I gain insight into oriental ways I may add
Lin!" my suggestions is that a people can still be a missionary, but of a different sort. How about being a business missionary?
One could go to the rural area, open a business and speak no English. Their only cormsgial skill would be to people is at the lecture in the seminary and at language time
which made me laugh and deeply interested in the

by Sheri Wheeler

Arend Hall, a co-ed dorm
named after local benefactor
Albert Arend, is home for approximately 150 Whitworth
students. These dorm residents range from freshmen
through to well beyond seniors.

Arend is divided into three individual dorms or suites: Booth, Goodsell, and Goodsell. According to Graduate Student-in-resid-
cence, Tess Summerrour,
the dorms have evolved into an almost knitted unit in the
five years she's been here.

The people responsible for leading the dorm include
the Residence Life staff, the
dorm executive, and the dorm chaplains. Deni
McQuaid is the double-duty
goodsell as Sam Wiseman, who serves as dorm president and R.A.

Terrell Landry is the newly elected-president of Careman
Sara Scott Owen

continues as president of Washington

The residence life staff,
under the direction of Summerrour, '93, two on each dorm floor. East and West,
Reinwand and Debbie

are responsible for Carson. Tim Potter hold the fort. Tina Wilson and Wiseman
round off the dorm life.

Arend chaplains include,
Linda Price, Flora
Brown for Carlson, and Laura Reiter representing
Goodsell.

Opinions on dorm life in Arend are varied, but on the whole, enthusiastic. Denise Dickinson, entering her first semester in the dorm, continued to be a missionar
in Arend with that of Baldwin-Jenkins. Dickinson
previously lived in B.J. for
one and a half years. 'In B.J.
there were about 210 girls and most of them were freshmen. Now I'm in a co-ed living situation with people of ages,' said Dickinson.

I like living here. Arend,
there's a little bit of everything here," she concluded.

Chris Runge, a four year
residents of Arend, lives in the dorms and the location of the dorms is
from home," said Runge.

Charlie Boyce, first year
transfer student who everyone seems to get along and
"and a human being is maintained." Boyce also likes the way people in the dorm respect each other's privacy.

Arend Residence Life Staff includes Tess Summerrour, Cindy Wells, Debbie Reinwand, Sam Wiseman, Rachel Shailings, Roger Wold and Tom Potter.
Night Walk ministry is unique

by Gary Jewell.

"And the Scribes of the Pharisees when they saw that he was eating with sinners and tax collectors said to his disciples, 'Why does he eat with tax collectors and sinners?" Mark 2:16.

Though few scrib.pdf
NCAA May Sponsor Women's Athletics

By Chris Edwards

This last weekend marked the end of the Whitworth Pirates' 1980-81 basketball campaign, as well as senior forward Glenn Williams' four years in a Buc uniform. During Williams' junior year, he was the team's leading rebounder and was second in total scoring. He also made second team all-conference in the Pacific Northwest conference.

This year the Buc's co-captain got off to another fine start. At the holiday break, Williams was third among team rebounders and second in scoring averaging 9.4 points per game.

A part of the new year, Williams' playing time was reduced substantially and he fell from the starting line-up. "Coach Larson felt I wasn't producing like a senior should be, so he went with the younger players who would be returning next year," said Williams. "I'd be lying if I said I wasn't hurt because I wanted more of a chance to play, but I accepted the decision and I played with it."

In basketball coach Jim Larson had nothing but good things to say about Glenn when asked about his lack of playing time. "It's a tough situation for a senior to be in," said Coach Larson. "I think it is important to finish what you start and not be a quitter. Glenn did that real well and I respect and admire him for it." Larson also said that Williams was a good leader. He continued his role as team co-captain when his playing time was cut down, by setting a good example in practice and always hustling and working hard.

Glenn feels the guys on the team still respect him and says he has a lot of fun in practice. He also feels that his lack of playing time this last couple of months did not sour his career. He was happy to be on a Whitworth team that has won more games than any other Whitworth teams since '72.

Williams said, "It would have been nice to have had a good personal senior year. I had a lot of fun and am thankful for the opportunity to play college basketball and make it through without injury."

Williams, known as "Gondo" to his teammates, is a popular figure among the crowds. At the last two home games he received a standing ovation when he entered the game. And, during Whitworth's last game of the season at Whitman Saturday night, Williams scored 12 points.

Despite the problems faced during his senior year, Glenn had a good career as a Pirate and his face will certainly be missed in the Whitworth lineup by many.

SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

GLENN WILLIAMS

(CPS)-The furor that greeted the Collegiate Athletic Association's recent decision to try to take over women's athletics has settled into a guarded caution, as college administrators all are a "wait and see" attitude about the NCAA's plan to invade national collegiate athletics for women.

"I don't think anybody's trying to get a sense of how everybody else feels about the NCAA's decision," says Judith Holland, women's athletic director at Whitworth University, a powerhouse in women's basketball, says only that she and all the other athletic directors in the Northwest are calling me just wanting to know what I'm doing about it."

James Jarret, athletic director at Whitworth University, a powerhouse in women's basketball, says only that the NCAA has to provide addional opportunities for women's athletics. He adds that Gilchrist has not decided yet whether to participate in the new NCAA competitions or in the championship tournament already offered by the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW), which held its last two years in a row.

For the last ten years, the AIAW has held 17 national championships for women. Under the NCAA's new program, officially adoptated at the organization's convention in January, twelve of those competitions will also be sponsored separately by the NCAA, beginning next fall.

Holland suggests that larger schools will probably opt to retain membership in both organizations, which is allowable under the NCAA's new rules. She says that twelve of UCLA's teams will participate solely in the NCAA, while the rest will be in the AIAW.

Richard Perry, athletic director at University of Southern California, plans to operate his women's teams under AIAW rules, even if some of them compete in NCAA championships.

"The AIAW has a much more beneficial scholarship program," Perry notes, "but under the AIAW we cannot recruit. We'll retain membership in both until we decide whose rules are better for us."

Donna Logiano, president of the AIAW, feels that despite the initial caution, schools will make their decisions very quickly. She predicted the NCAA's practice of providing transportation to tournament participants as a big factor in the minds of many athletic directors.

Who can pass up economic advantages like that?" she asks.

But in opting for such monetary advantages, schools will not be doing women's athletics a favor, Logiano contends. "I doubt whether women will be anything more than minor sports in the NCAA," she conjectures. "Women have a lot to lose in all this."

Perry, a member of both organizations, disagrees. "If the NCAA hadn't also passed a proposal to reorganize the governance structure and include women in making their own decisions, we wouldn't participate in the NCAA," he says. "But because of that reorganization we think the NCAA championshipships themselves will offer more to women participants."

Perry also speaks of the "excellent long-range possibilities for women's athletics" in the NCAA. With one organization sponsoring both men's and women's competitions, he dreams of merging the two.

For example, he foresees holding both the men's and women's national basketball championships in the same location during the same weekend within a few years. This would give women much more broader television coverage.

Perry, a member of the NCAA committee exploring such possibilities, also envisions a single championship in individual sports, such as swimming, tennis, and gymnastics. In such a program, individual events would be single sex, with the scores of both men and women tabulated together to achieve a team score.

"Hypothetically, we could someday determine not the best women's team, and the best men's team. We could have the best tennis school," he says.

"Women are going to be hard-pressed to come into their own," Perry says, "unless they combine efforts with the men to get some of the national spotlight in these competitions."

Pregnancy Care Center
24-hour Crisis Line
747-5648

The flower Hutch

10% Whitworth Discount
for your SPRING FORMAL
MARCH 14
483-8593
N. 9111 Country Homes Blvd.
Spikers Look Strong

By Hans Christenson

The Whitworth College track teams are looking forward to a strong season as they take to the track and field.

When asked how the team is shaping up as a whole, head men's coach Arnie Tyler was optimistic. "We should be strong in the field events. In the pole vault we have Senior Gle,,;,, conference in the pole vault we have three people in the 14 foot range right now, and they will get better. The other field events are filled up also, and I think we're stronger than other teams in the conference in those events."

As for the runners on the team, Tyler said, "I have a lot of 200 and 400 people but not many sprinters. I'm still waiting on some people to help out. In the hurdles and distance we have many returning people, which will make us strong in those events."

Doug Larsen will represent Whitworth in the decathlon. Tyler says he has a good attitude. "He worked hard and should do well this season."

Tyler felt that this year's team has strength, where others don't, and the outlook for the season is good. "We miss Terry Kelly, the former distance coach, because now I have to handle everything, plus the concern for the cross-country team future."

This is how the roster for the men shapes up: Pole Vault-Wayne Christensen, Alan McGinnis, Doug Larsen, Grant Esborg and Dave Danson. Shot put and Discus-Eric Krueger, Javelin-Paul Christianson. Long jump-Doug Larsen. High Jump-Randy Shoop and Doug Larsen. Running Events: High Hurdles-Hilbert Rice, Doug Larsen and Brent Bomkamp. 400 meters-Dave Williams, Dave Gillisley and Craig Dander. 600 meters-Craig Deitz and Bob Lake. 1500 meters-Jeff Rahn. 5,000 meters-Charlie Lewis and Steve Creel.

On the women's team not a lot of people have been assigned to their most favorable event yet, but the attitude is up. The strongest areas now are distance running and some field events. Beth Helling is the coach this year for the women and she is looking forward to a good season.

Both teams are still gathering their forces for the season opener at Martin Stadium in Walla Walla on March 7th.

---

Pirates Drop Two, Season Ends

by Barry Adams

The Whitworth Pirates had a tough time in their last two regular season games. The Bucs narrowly missed their first .500 season since 1972 losing a heartbreaker to Whitman 76-75 Saturday at Walla Walla. The Bucs lost 76-65 to a tough EWU team at home Friday.

At Whitman, John Laidlaw's two free throws with eight seconds left sealed the game for the league leading Missionaries.

Pirate coach Jim Larson received two technicals for displaying his anger.

Whitman won the game at the charity strip, sinking 24 of 31 while the Bucs shot only seven free throw, hitting five. Pirate assistant coach Tom Brasell felt the officials did a poor job. "They allowed Whitman to completely destroy us physically inside and didn't call fouls on them."

Terrell Landry led the Pirates with 16, Troy McWhirter was top scorer for Whitman with 17."

The Eastern game was a fast-paced, exciting affair with 6-2" Eagle Wayne Peterson's three first half slam dunks highlighting the game. Whitworth started out fast behind the shooting of Landry and Bob Mandelle, racing to a 35-34 halftime lead.

However, the Bucs shot hit a cold spell early in the second half and Eastern went ahead to stay with 15:44 left. Whitworth kept it close up to the last six minutes when the ball hawking Eagles forced the young Pirate team into numerous turnovers and put the game away.

Easterns outscored the Pirates at free throw line also, making 18 of 22 to Whitworth's 13 of 23.

Coach Jim Larson felt his Bucs played well early, "but their man to man in the second half put too much pressure on us."

Landry had game high honors with 19 for the Pirates. Peterson and Don Garves canned 16 apiece for the Eagles.

The Pirates end their season 5-7 in league and 12-14 overall. The young team loses only senior Glenn Williams, to graduation. Williams was used quite sporadically, a fact noticed by the Whitworth crowd. Williams received a standing ovation when he entered the last home game with 1:27 to go.

---

Senior Glenn Williams, #32, takes a jumper over Eastern Washington defender.
that have a Christian theme on a secular label.

Furay: That's a problem with Asylum about it when I gave them 'I've Got A Reason' in 1976. They were amazed. They didn't know what to do with it. Not only was it musically different than anything I'd ever done before, it was very much a keyboard album as opposed to a guitar album which was what all the groups I'd been involved with has performed. It also shocked them when they finally lyrically understood what being said. I went about that recording really any different than what I was doing. I wanted to share my new love, Jesus, but I didn't want to offend people with it. I found out that you didn't get a little further along that you're going to offend people. That's all there is to it. They are going to pick up on it and a lot of people won't go into rock and roll to like what I am talking from, because the truth hurts, sometimes.

Whitworthian: Then why did you choose to record with Asylum?

Furay: I want the message to go off to everybody. I think when I recorded totally by myself with Asylum I had something to say to this people that didn't find out I knew the Lord wanted to know why I was in the last band. I think being in USR gives me a chance. This is who I am, and I want the people and my own band. I am a part of it and what I get up to them, this band and what it will be all I can give the band. As a soul artist (recording with Mike Chapman Christian label), there won't be any qualifications about who I am. I am the same, solid. So you have decided to not record on only a Christian label.

Furay: Right, your audience is limited. Having an opportunity to record for Atlantic (with USR) gives me an opportunity to do the things I want to say and have it reach more people. Everybody that's in the band, they can't record for Columbia and say what they want to say. He can do it, but when I did it, they (Asylum) just put up the roadblocks. Besides that, it wasn't a very hip thing to do in 1976.

Whitworthian: Do you think that recording Christian songs is more acceptable now?

Furay: Yeah, I think so and I hope that those that do are simple, and I know a lot of people are hopping on the bandwagon. It is the most important commitment that anyone will make in their life and I hope that they really do realize how serious it is. A lot of people in rock and roll, well, life in general, they keep looking for something and höchst always changing, except for Jesus. He's always the same.

Next month's Closeup will present Randy Scoot.

B.S.C. cont. from page 1

students who modeled were Larry Hagman, Charles and Steve Whitman, Charlie Byson, Roosevelt Travis and Steve Wilson. Their attire varied from casual to sporty, to punk, finishing up with formalwear. Joe Frantzen narrated the fast-moving show with the help of the disco sound track, which put together by members of the B.S.U. II. A dance in the HUB topped the off the evening, and was well attended by Whitworth students, as well as members of the community.

Aspiring Whitworth poets will have the opportunity to participate in a poetry workshop conducted by poet Tess Gallagher at 4:00 p.m. on March 12.

Ms. Gallagher, a successful poet, was originally scheduled to give a poetry reading in an evening forum of the same date, at 7:30 p.m. But Rob Hard, an English major at Whitworth, decided that just the reading wouldn't be enough.

For her senior project, Rob has written a grant to the Washington Commission for the Humanities. This grant enables the College to bring Tess Gallagher for the afternoon workshop as well.

Rob feels that the workshop and reading should be very successful, for Tess Gallagher is highly qualified. She has published two volumes of poetry, Instruc- tions to the Double, which won the Elliston Book Award, and Under Stars. Her poetry has also been included in numerous anthologies, and she has produced five films. She has written a screenplay for a television production called 'The Wheel,' and writes a regular column for American Poetry Review magazine.

Rob says the workshop will be 'directed toward the general audience, but may appeal more to those involved in poetry.' Again, the workshop will take place at 4:00 p.m., and the reading at 7:00 p.m., both on March 12.

The Bon and Montgomery Colleges will contain the Who's Who among students and leadership in extracurricular activities, as well as future potential.

The 35 chosen from Whitworth are: Dave Anderson, Libby Avnet, Randy Baugh, Steve Benson, Brian Best, Julie Boris, Linda Buzelle, Tim Cheek, Jim Craig, Julie Dixon, Jim Doherty, Julie Ehrlich, Paul Graham, Paul Hagood, Rob Hard, Wes Hikida, Glenn Hink, Tom Hoback, Deborah Holden, Gayle Howland, Leslie Jones, Judy Koth, Steve Lowe, Roger Mullaney, Dave Nave, Jim Oyser, Phoebe Poos, Chris Rom msec, Doug Stewart, Elizabeth Symon, Shari Weber, Bob Wheley, Megan Yancey, and Rick Yramategui. The Whitworthian congratulates these students.

Krem-FM, Double Tee Productions and Albatross Productions have announced that Harry Chapin will be performing at the Spokane Opera House Thursday, March 12 at 8 p.m. Tickets for the concert are $8 and $9 reserved and are on sale now at the Spokane Opera House Box Office, The Bon, P.M. Jacoy's, Whitworthian, Cater's Pharmacy, and Montgomery Wards.

The YMCA Bloomday clinic will begin Tuesday, February 24 at 5:30 p.m. The ten-week program, which meets Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, will cost $5 (50) members and $35.00 for non-members.

The program is designed to help people understand and participate in long distance training. Preventing injuries, proper clothing, goal setting, and care of personal training will be included in the course. Participants will be grouped with people of similar running abilities-beginters, intermediate and veteran runners. All ages are welcome.

As an additional service to non-participants this year, the YMCA is also making child care available in its excellent child care facilities.

Von Klohe, Shirley Thieben, Ben Garcia, as well as other noted local runners will comprise the staff. The program is offered in cooperation with Spokane Runners Club. For more information call Ben Garcia, 838-3577.

CONTINUOUS, CELEBRATION

The 1981 edition of Who's Who among students in American University and Colleges will list the names of 35 Whitworth students. These students have been chosen as being among the country's outstanding campus leaders. Membership in this annual directory is based on academic achievement, service to the community, and leadership in extracurricular activities, as well as future potential.

The 35 chosen from Whitworth are: Dave Anderson, Libby Avnet, Randy Baugh, Steve Benson, Brian Best, Julie Boris, Linda Buzelle, Tim Cheek, Jim Craig, Julie Dixon, Jim Doherty, Julie Ehrlich, Paul Graham, Paul Hagood, Rob Hard, Wes Hikida, Glenn Hink, Tom Hoback, Deborah Holden, Gayle Howland, Leslie Jones, Judy Koth, Steve Lowe, Roger Mullaney, Dave Nave, Jim Oyser, Phoebe Poos, Chris Rom msec, Doug Stewart, Elizabeth Symon, Shari Weber, Bob Wheley, Megan Yancey, and Rick Yramategui. The Whitworthian congratulates these students.

Krem-FM, Double Tee Productions and Albatross Productions have announced that Harry Chapin will be performing at the Spokane Opera House Thursday, March 12 at 8 p.m. Tickets for the concert are $8 and $9 reserved and are on sale now at the Spokane Opera House Box Office, The Bon, P.M. Jacoy's, Whitworthian, Cater's Pharmacy, and Montgomery Wards.

The YMCA Bloomday clinic will begin Tuesday, February 24 at 5:30 p.m. The ten-week program, which meets Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, will cost $5 (50) members and $35.00 for non-members.

The program is designed to help people understand and participate in long distance training. Preventing injuries, proper clothing, goal setting, and care of personal training will be included in the course. Participants will be grouped with people of similar running abilities-beginters, intermediate and veteran runners. All ages are welcome.

As an additional service to non-participants this year, the YMCA is also making child care available in its excellent child care facilities.

Von Klohe, Shirley Thieben, Ben Garcia, as well as other noted local runners will comprise the staff. The program is offered in cooperation with Spokane Runners Club. For more information call Ben Garcia, 838-3577.

EVER CONSIDERED AN MA IN CHRISTIAN STUDIES?

Our new one-year program of interdisciplinary graduate study has been especially designed for those students seeking academic excellence — informed by uncompromising Christian commitment. At Calvin the choice is not between scholarship and knowledge. You choose from half a dozen mutually exclusive tracks that concentrate on areas of study peculiar to the Fine Arts: The Humanities, The Natural and Social Sciences, The Social Order or Theological Thought.

Whatever your field, you'll work closely with Calvin's oldest and best endowed. You'll attend morning lectures, concerts, seminars and dramatic productions. You benefit from a library, gymnasium and laboratory resources.

and, perhaps most important, become part of a stimulating scholarly community that is not only intellectually creative but Christian too.

For detailed information, write to M.A. in Christian Studies, Office of Admissions, Box 800, Calvin College, Grand Rapids, MI 49506 (616) 549-4000.
By Gary Jewell & Sue Almour

Next year's ASWC president is Mike Wendlandt. In previous years, Mike has been actively involved in high school government and various community programs. Last fall Mike organized the campus campaign of Students for Carter.

When asked why he was running for President, Mike responded, "I assembled the college which I feel I have strong solutions to. Some of those problems Mike sees concern the funding of activities from the ASWC budget. Mike feels that all academic students should be supported by those, and not from student activities fee. The biggest example of this problem concerns the funding of Forum speakers. Mike believes that since Forum is a required academic credit it should be funded like all other academic subjects which is not from student activities fees.

Mike Wendlandt, President.

Another problem Mike sees is the need for a forum. Some of the special interest groups at Whitworth. Mike would like to keep a closer communication going with such groups as the Black Student Union, the football team as well as other sport teams, PAC, etc. With these special interest groups he hopes to set up a President's Advisory Board. Mike would try to meet with these groups on a regular basis and report some of their concerns and ideas before the President's Council.

Wendlandt is not just concerned with special interest groups. He expresses an active concern for individual students and their needs. Mike hopes to act as a personal advocate for a student when that student runs into particular problems and concerns with the college administration.

One of Mike's goals is to organize and make student government a lot more clear. Mike wants to keep on top of the minutes of the past President's Council meetings. Mike hopes to work on this project during the summer. He plans to start cataloguing the minutes from several years past. In this way Mike will get to know the processes and decisions of student government in previous years.

Tom Cardle, Financial Vice-President

goals is to get off-campus students involved since they pay student fees also. Another objective is to give monthly budget reports to departments which are funded by the students.

Tom defined his job as 'one-third ideas and two-thirds financing.' Additionally, he will be a financial consultant and not a bookkeeper.

Mike Wendlandt, Executive Vice-President.

Mike would like to work closely with Dr. Mousse to usefully communicate students views and ideas to the new President.

She gives the student's opinions and ideas top priority especially in seeing the students have more of the activities they want.

As the new ASWC Financial Vice-President, Tom Cardle, wants to be responsible to students demands on how they want their fees spent. One of Tom's

By Cindy Pile

"Hawaii...An Ocean Fantasy" will be this year's theme for the annual Hawaiian Luau. This year is expected to be the grandest luau that has been seen yet. Exotic food, enchanting tropical music, and amusing Hawaiian dances, as of tradition, are all on the agenda for this year's presentation.

The food and fun will be held in the field house April 4th at 5:00 p.m. This year will be the first for this event to be one of the many scheduled events during parent's weekend. Because of the expected increase of attendance, the luau has been transferred from Graves gym to the field house where the graduation platform will be assembled allowing more room for the dance floor and musicians to perform.

Last year's luau was attended approximately 700 guests and this year they're planning to reach the 1,000 mark.

The menu for the 1980 luau will consist of a delicious dish of grilled lemongrass, teriyaki steak, lohio salmon, haupia (coconut pudding), fresh pineapple, salad and desserts, all headed by a traditional luau cook, Gary Sardone. All those holding SAM card will be admitted free, and there will be charge of $4.00 for students with T.D. cards, $4.50 for faculty and staff, $7.00 for non-Whitworth students and $10.00 for 12 and under. "Anyone purchasing a ticket will definitely get a bargain since an estimated $50-20 a ticket is the asking price in Hawaii for the same event," stated Luke Teruya.

After the feast there will be a traditional Hawaiian hula with most of the Hawaiian club members participating. Randy Fong will lead the music program, and Marie Saffery will be directing the dancing. Together they will put a program together consisting of many Hawaiian specialties such as: Love You Hawaii, Home in the Islands, Hawaiian Hospitality, Hawaii 78, and Rainbow Connection. Not only will there be fantastic food and an authentic stage show, but a super atmosphere as well to make you feel as if you were in Hawaii itself. As you walk to the door your adventure to this trip will begin with splendid authentic Hawaiian imported plants such as Crotens, ti leaves, birds of paradise, fern, plumeria, vanda, orchids and other greenery as well as many colorful costumes all helping in a Hawaiian illusion.

As Hawaiian club president and Whitworth senior Luke Teruya concludes, "For all Whitworth seniors this will be the last and greatest of all luau yet. We would like to see the annual luau continue, so as a traditional spring activity and this year go out with style!"
Ten ways to enjoy forum without cheating

By Laura Hutchinson

Fact: Forum is a pass/fail class.
Fact: Forum is a required class for every full-time student.
Opinion: Forum is relevant, interesting, or intellectually stimulating.

For the Whitworth students, the thought of attending ten Forums during a semester is unheard of, scary, and even life-threatening. During my three years at Whitworth, I have observed various tactics that students employ in order to 1) help them enjoy Forum more, or 2) help them skip Forum altogether.

Recently, I attended what I will render a particularly unexciting Forum. In other words, it was boring. There may be some people who argue that Forum is never boring. These are the people who sit in the front rows and glue their eyes to the speaker. They are seemingly unscathed by what the speaker is saying. I cannot understand this phenomenon. I haven't figured out if those people really are interested or if they are just bored, perhaps sleeping with their eyes open. I believe that, at one time or another, everyone has been bored at Forum.

That Tuesday in the not-too-distant past serves as proof of my statement. I arrived at the auditorium early, chose a seat, filled out my forum slip and during a long introduction of the speaker, then settled back to enjoy the lecture. Within twelve minutes, I realized that I wasn't going to learn much during the forty minute speech. I glanced around and noticed that 85% of the people around me were paying absolutely no attention to the speaker. Being a curious person, I whipped out my notebook and composed a list of activities that occupied my mind. My list contained thirty-four items. The ten most frequently occurring Forum activities follow: 1) listen to the speaker, 2) read books/texts, 3) write letters, 4) read something, 5) sleep, 6) do homework, 7) study notes, 8) daydream, 9) eat junk food/doughnuts or drink pop/candy, 10) talk to friends. From the above list, the top ten activities are rather quiet, inconspicuous acts that anyone can get away with (except for those who live next door). How and why did this happen?

I also observed some less desirable and generally unacquainted activities that were taking place. I was seeing things like leaving early, popping bubbles, acting rude, i.e. laughing loudly, playing watch alarms, rustling paper, picking nose, dipping and upturning backpack. Those are just a few.

How does the student-body deal with impulsive trouble-makers? They are flagged forcibly out of Forum. No. Usually other members of the audience just give the boisterous people dirty looks.

Sometimes, the trouble-causers take it upon themselves to deal with their own rudeness. In order to prevent themself from becoming other's boisterous, they simply skip Forum. "But they won't get credit for skipping," you reproach. Wrong. These sneaky people perform a Tuesday and Thursday ritual. They nondiscantly enter the auditorium, pick up a Forum slip, then scoot out a side door. Then they go to the HUB and spend an invigorating hour gossipping with friends. At 10:55 they're back again, looking like a pack of wary dogs, wanting to turn in their Forum slips. I tried this method once. I lost the experience, but I fell so guilty afterwards that I never did it again.

We all hate Forum schedules, and should have the intelligence to choose ten Forums that we will attend. We should hold ourselves accountable for attending those Forums we give serious thought about whether we are bored or not.

Finally, I believe that the Forum Committee should consider a method of handling Forum attendance slips that will crack down on cheaters. I am willing to bet that there are some students who have yet to attend a Forum this year. It is not right that these people pass and earn a quarter credit just as those who really attend.

Most Forums aren't that bad, and contrary to some opinions, the word "Forum" is not equatable with "torture." The Forums that people enjoy most, in my opinion, are those that are entertaining, without being humorous, that present helpful, relevant issues or touch emotions; films or documentaries, and speeches that are of interest.

Though we are considered a Christian college community, there are still normal people, and the average person's attention span isn't that long when presented with an uninteresting speaker or topic. Even if Forum bored you in the past, I would encourage you to attend this year's college standard and attend. If you are interested during the Forum, you have the alternatives of reading a book, sleep, or write a letter. At least have the courtesy to be politely quiet while doing it.

El Salvador, a centrist's view

By Peter C. Swicker

The solutions to the bloodshed in El Salvador are not easy. There are no easy answers. But the role that should the United States play in a neighboring country wrested by violence and bloodshed is not easy either.

There are many people who believe that the United States should not become involved in El Salvador. There are many people who are opposed to the Leftist cause. There are many people who do not understand the events taking place in El Salvador.

Furthermore, the same who believe this of the U.S. refuse to acknowledge any Russian and Cuban meddling in the conflict. From my understanding of this point of view, the Left's wings are free from the blood that is spilled down there every day. Yet, at the same time, the Junta headed by the Christian Democrat, Jose Napoleon Durente is portrayed as the villain, killing for the sake of killing. I have a hard time understanding this.

Our government cannot afford to support the Right Wing. A system where the few elite take advantage of the majority of the people is clearly wrong and unjust. On the other hand, we cannot afford to support the Left. The reasons against the support for the Left are a little more complicated.

I believe that the Domino theory plays a major role in the leftist cause. It has been speculated for months that Cuba has played a major role in supporting the Salvadorian Left. The Nationalist Left is the right road to political violence. The Nationalist Left believes that they can bring about the socialist revolution that they believe the masses can bring about.

I believe that the Domino theory plays a major role in the leftist cause. It has been speculated for months that Cuba has played a major role in supporting the Salvadorian Left. The Nationalist Left is the right road to political violence. The Nationalist Left believes that they can bring about the socialist revolution that they believe the masses can bring about.

I believe that the Domino theory plays a major role in the leftist cause. It has been speculated for months that Cuba has played a major role in supporting the Salvadorian Left. The Nationalist Left is the right road to political violence. The Nationalist Left believes that they can bring about the socialist revolution that they believe the masses can bring about.

I believe that the Domino theory plays a major role in the leftist cause. It has been speculated for months that Cuba has played a major role in supporting the Salvadorian Left. The Nationalist Left is the right road to political violence. The Nationalist Left believes that they can bring about the socialist revolution that they believe the masses can bring about.

I believe that the Domino theory plays a major role in the leftist cause. It has been speculated for months that Cuba has played a major role in supporting the Salvadorian Left. The Nationalist Left is the right road to political violence. The Nationalist Left believes that they can bring about the socialist revolution that they believe the masses can bring about.

I believe that the Domino theory plays a major role in the leftist cause. It has been speculated for months that Cuba has played a major role in supporting the Salvadorian Left. The Nationalist Left is the right road to political violence. The Nationalist Left believes that they can bring about the socialist revolution that they believe the masses can bring about.

I believe that the Domino theory plays a major role in the leftist cause. It has been speculated for months that Cuba has played a major role in supporting the Salvadorian Left. The Nationalist Left is the right road to political violence. The Nationalist Left believes that they can bring about the socialist revolution that they believe the masses can bring about.

I believe that the Domino theory plays a major role in the leftist cause. It has been speculated for months that Cuba has played a major role in supporting the Salvadorian Left. The Nationalist Left is the right road to political violence. The Nationalist Left believes that they can bring about the socialist revolution that they believe the masses can bring about.
Dear Editor,

I would like to respond to the article written by Brian Best on El Salvador in the last edition of The Whitworthian. I could not help but write my own opinions on some of the questions and issues that were addressed.

It seems to me that the major fault lies with us. Jesus said, "We must be good..." and it's our duty to help others. We must show them the right way to go and make them aware of their mistakes. We must also teach them about love and peace. We must be a good example for them.

In support of Hoffman

Dear Editor,

Kent Hoffman represents the political positions that are important to the people of El Salvador. He is a fighter for justice and a leader for the people. He is a person who is not afraid to speak out for what is right.

Sincerely,
Kim Johnson
Movie Manager

Use the press

Dear Editor,

Although I do not agree with Dr. Weber's views, I do appreciate the time he has taken to express himself through the Whitworthian.

Sincerely,
F. Dale Bruner
Religion Professor

Movies

Dear Editor,

Being movie manager is no easy task. I must address the issue of "R" rated movies being shown at Whitworth. We do not want to offend our audience.

Sincerely,
Laurie Wright
Business Manager

Swicker con

rifle in the hands of the Salvadoran Security Forces, or the leftist guerilla Wing, or the rightist guerilla Wing. Both groups are equally dangerous. The Security forces use M-16s and high-powered rifles, but so does the Left. Bullets do not change shape to fit the ideology of the person using them.

To sum up my article, I believe that we, the United States, must stop arming both sides. We must stop giving aid to all sides, and instead, we should support the side that is fighting for peace.

Sincerely,
John Wells

Since the Whitworthian is the paper of the Whitworth community, the community is comprised of the administration, faculty and staff. Moreover, we are not in a position to publish articles that are not in keeping with the standards set by those in charge.

Sincerely,
Wesley Hikida

---

The opinions expressed on the editorial pages are not necessarily those of The Whitworthian staff or the University administration of the Whitworthian.
American guilt, and so on

By Evan H. Olsen

Compared to old Uncle Sam, the Russian Bear is really quite quiet. Perhaps the America's history of thoughtless brutality, lust for exploitation of the world at large, and getting rich from dealing heavy blows to the unfortunate, is a condition warranting national shame and international embarrassment. As competition for Whitworth seems to continue, we should all, too, strive to be the model students for our fellow American citizens. This doesn't mean that we all have to be perfect; we are not going to win all the world's respect, but we can strive to improve. A noticeable increase in student love for the United States could bring a lot of respect to our country. We can begin by being long-suffering, but it helps to illustrate what I have observed to be the underlying sentiments of some recent contributors to this newspaper. In regards to El Salvador, one journalistic virtuoso stated, "If the Soviets are involved (and the U.S. Government's case for this is not at all clear), it seems that they have chosen to be on the side of the people who we are trying to support the oppressors." Those leftwing guerrillas are "the people" (i.e., "good guys") and the government, which is interchangeable with the rich, is "the bad guys." Now that we're all comfortable with these dogmatic assertions here's another dose of heavy guilt-trip material for being not only the United States, but the whole of the Western world. It's a dangerous world. And how can words from a nation whose own hands are buried in the blood of thousands of others. They really are being too generous when they say "thousands of other." Certainly they could have driven home the point even better by blaming all of human death and suffering on the U.S. State Department and the CIA!

This kind of ideological juvenility would be slightly amusing to someone who knows that fact that it has been happening on a mass Whitworth campus and has continually reared its ugly head at numerous Forum programs. Forum was a well intentioned, well intentioned academic program that has represented the student, American flagellant. Has the Forum Committee sold out to those who take any opportunity to brand the enemy? Are they now competing to 'stick the disabled' of political opinion, fearing that if they do not get their ideas across they will be brushed aside as a speck of dust for their own self-interest? What is the same as "state America" driven in future articles, my advice to you students is to take the statistics with a grain of salt, take the opinions in the slapstick way that they should be intended. The "sage" will sing "America the Beautiful," and then drive to your favorite retailer and support this degenerate capitalistic system, which we all secretly love.

And wasn't that a sleekly little editorial cartoon in the last Whitworthian attempting to depict the South Americans as the most aggressive in the American government? But of course it all fits in with their biases. Right above the cartoon we had two articles quote the same source condemning the right wing in the United States with eighty percent of the column space. However, one said there were 15,000 killings and the other said there were 100,000. It is so much easier to blame the body you have in front of you than the body that looks on. I am sure they're hoping it's a mix-up. But the point, you see, is that it really wouldn't matter if these students if their sources said 10,000 or 10 quadrillion, because they have their opinions made up already and the facts are merely incidental. For example, they use the Catholic Church and Amnesty International as, how, the ultimate authorities. Have protestant missionaries in Central America found the Catholic Church so objective when they wish to spread the doctrine of justification by faith which is the essence of Christian relationship? In my opinion, the Catholic Church has done more harm that good, and so to rush them for the straight scoop on El Salvador seems questionable. As for Amnesty International, their ability for compiling information on the atrocities perpetrated by militaristic or rightwing regimes is quite good. However, their comparative impotence in getting information on the human rights violations in Communist countries tends to exaggerate the fragilities and inherent corpussiveness of the rightwing nations. The Communist countries are quite good at maintaining the facade of stability and respect for social justice while dissidents are quietly carted off to parts unknown.

My purpose in saying what I do isn't try to and demonstrate that I know everything that's going on. I most assuredly don't! But neither do the recent contributors to the Whitworthian attempt to be the voice of America and its diplomacy, and their epistemology, and hope that they demonstrate a little more an intellectual humility and stop trying to use the word "we" as a surrogate for their own self-doubt. What's wrong with "state America"? It's the only way to use the statistics and to down to the topic of money.

We must be aware of the financial difficulties private colleges, including Whitworth, are experiencing. And if we spend our money in such a fashion as to stop dipping into the security measures of this campus, Unfortunately, there are many down to the topic of money.

I think that students need to take the responsibility to not put themselves in dangerous situations, but I also think the police has a responsibility to provide adequate security services for the students. This may only mean one person more to be available to respond to emergency calls, or one extra person to patrol an area of the campus, but would guarantee the students the security they need.

students, as well as the administration to insure that we are given the best service possible. Unnecessary "pranks" hamper the security officer from effectively carrying his job.

When students at Whitworth, especially women, can't feel safe emptying their garages, or sitting alone in a dorm room, or standing in line at the store or stepping up the security measures of this campus. Unfortunately, there are many down to the topic of money.

Currently there's a concerted effort to dehumanize, but in three years I have heard few of establishment talk. I have often been bored stiff. I am not an anti-establishment by nature. My father was a well-respected leader in our community and he built a number of buildings and gave money for: the citizen's wasteful consumption habits and existence.

To get to your point, I think the word "state America" is the only way to use the statistics and to down to the topic of money.

The new administration has to face the financial difficulties private colleges, including Whitworth, are experiencing. And if we spend our money in such a fashion as to stop dipping into the security measures of this campus, unfortunately, there are many down to the topic of money.

I think that students need to take the responsibility to not put themselves in dangerous situations, but I also think the police has a responsibility to provide adequate security services for the students. This may only mean one person more to be available to respond to emergency calls, or one extra person to patrol an area of the campus, but would guarantee the students the security they need.

By Debbie Reinwand

The rising crime and violence rate around Spokane is having an effect on the students of Whitworth College. With the influx of the new school students using the campus as a playground, the temptation to commit theft is increasing, as well as the threat of physical violence. With only one security officer on campus and many students can testify, the security system is not large enough to facilitate the 500-plus students who live on campus. The number of nighttime incidents has gone up this year, yet the number of security officers has stayed the same. This is one 100% on duty all night, and one or two college students who are employed on a part-time basis. To expect one, possibly two persons to maintain security for Whitworth is impossible. I think that a serious look needs to be taken at the need for additional security, particularly in the evenings, if students are going to feel relatively "safe.

I think that it's important for students as well as administrators to realize that it is the students that must alter the security protocol (person(s) attempt to keep the campus safe. There have been numerous times when students have tried to contact a security officer who was out on rounds. There are over twenty buildings that security is responsible for checking every night. It is an extremely difficult task indeed, to be on hand to take emergency calls, AND, to patrol an area that is constantly changing, creating diversions for the officers, such as setting fires on fire, or calling in false alarms. The responsibility lies with the cont.

Odiya

How safe are we?

By Debbie Reinwand

The rising crime and violence rate around Spokane is having an effect on the students of Whitworth College. With the influx of the new school students using the campus as a playground, the temptation to commit theft is increasing, as well as the threat of physical violence. With only one security officer on campus and many students can testify, the security system is not large enough to facilitate the 500-plus students who live on campus. The number of nighttime incidents has gone up this year, yet the number of security officers has stayed the same. This is one 100% on duty all night, and one or two college students who are employed on a part-time basis. To expect one, possibly two persons to maintain security for Whitworth is impossible. I think that a serious look needs to be taken at the need for additional security, particularly in the evenings, if students are going to feel relatively "safe.

I think that it's important for students as well as administrators to realize that it is the students that must alter the security protocol (person(s) attempt to keep the campus safe. There have been numerous times when students have tried to contact a security officer who was out on rounds. There are over twenty buildings that security is responsible for checking every night. It is an extremely difficult task indeed, to be on hand to take emergency calls, AND, to patrol an area that is constantly changing, creating diversions for the officers, such as setting fires on fire, or calling in false alarms. The responsibility lies with the

Current women's issues to be discussed

The week of April 13th through April 19th speakers will give presentations on birth control, childdevelopment, and show films as part of the first annual women's conference. The following locations: Baldwin-Jenkins, Arend Hall, and the Multicultural Learning Center. Organizations who will be involved with the seminars include: Family Medicine, Planned Parenthood, and Student Life.}

Rape Crisis. Any women interested in helping organize or wish to view the films may contact Student Life, extension 3121.}

Kaye Via Mickelson. Guest speaker will give presentations on birth control, childdevelopment, and show films as part of the first annual women's conference. The following locations: Baldwin-Jenkins, Arend Hall, and the Multicultural Learning Center. Organizations who will be involved with the seminars include: Family Medicine, Planned Parenthood, and Student Life.}

Rape Crisis. Any women interested in helping organize or wish to view the films may contact Student Life, extension 3121.
Feature

Hunger conference April

By Diane Pindell

The title of the conference sponsored by the SGA is "The Nutrition Conundrum, Action, and Action, and will run for three days, April 9th-11th at the Ivy Tech Whitworth Campus. The conference will include speakers and workshops, and the meals will be eaten in the Nutrition center. The budget for the semester is $400, which is funded by a SAGA card that will be charged 93-29.

The Hunger Conference will examine three different forms of development and the impact each one has on hungry people, and will develop skills and ideas on how to take action in response to world hunger. The conference topics include Economic Growth, The New International Economic Order, and Self-Reliant Development. The speakers attending are various people involved from all over the world such as Asia, Brazil, Africa, China, India, and the United States. Dr. Sanford, Dr. Frase, and Dr. Ed Fedman are among those who will speak.

Brian Best, chair organizes the conference, said "One of the points of the conference is to get people from outside and give them a chance to see 1965 and how it is run. The conference is aimed to give people a chance to respond to world hunger and the impact issues that they have." He stressed "the high points of the conference will be activities outside of the conference. Such as speaking at booths for Spokane Food Bank and the Salvation Army, to name a couple." In addition, a benefit concert will be held in the conference, which will hear from food Bank on April 8th to kick off the conference. The benefit concert will include Whitworth band and the top Christian rock bands in the nation, DeCarlo & Kry.

Brian encourages the advance registration and urges the students "to commit themselves to it, and to make the time for this. We think we can make it happen as well as lots of chances to respond to it!"

By William Jenkins

Slag to compete in nationals

By Steve Gregg

Greg Slag, a Whitworth econometrics and accounting student, will compete in the national activities as an "outlet," and has not seriously considered a career in music. This is surprising, since on April 14th he will be playing the piano in a national competition, "Music Teachers’ National Association (MTNA)."

The competition was organized by Greg, who many people had originally participated, and he had no estimate. In competition on the national level, he was selected over 10 to 15 competitors, and in regionals last month he competed against eight other musicians, again claiming the top prize.

During our interview, the Gregs were coming in over the stereo music playing a conversation centered around pieces like Chopin, Ravel, Barber and Prokofiev, Greg’s repertoire, for the competition includes pieces, by each of these great composers, and consists of 15 minutes of solo playing. "I’m not in it to win," Greg said, so I asked him what his goal was by entering the competition, he answered, "It’s a good opportunity to meet all the people and to be heard by other people." This means that he can perhaps get to be heard by teachers from around the U.S. and he can perhaps get to be heard by some future career to be able to play into the piano.

Closeup: Randy Stonehill

By Laura Mader

It seems like ages ago that I talked to Randy. I remember an extremely tall man with a longish nose and lots of hair. He didn’t seem too comfortable in the closet of a dressing room where we sat and discussed the state of the art with his music bleeding through the thin walls, but before we could get the taped interview again and I listened to his last album, "The Sky is Falling" and thought about his concert.

Randy writes all his material from past experiences. A large part of his songs would seem to fall into the category of the non-serious at least when he speaks to poke fun at serious subjects. Lung cancer isn’t exactly one of the top ten funny subjects, yet I found myself chuckling at certain moments of his concert at Whitworth. On "The Sky," there’s a song he wrote about how he stuck out his own way. I’m not sure if he’s a fellow or just an old friend, but I wrote it down and I named it "Tees King." Now you’re living so high that you’re walking on a dandelion, you ride on the grass, you don’t know who you fall in love with, you don’t know who you’re riding with, you don’t know what you’re doing. Hey you were right when you said that it’s hard to tell the time from the day. But you’re...
Pirates Grab Fifth in Tourney

by Barry Adams

The Whitworth women wrestlers ended their season with a strong fifth place finish at the AIAW Division III Regional tournament in Nampa, Idaho.

Going in as the sixth seed the Bucs women pulled off a major upset Thursday March 5th, edging third-seeded PLU 65-63 in a tight one. Laurie VanBelle turned in an outstanding game, scoring 22 points and snatching 15 rebounds to lead the Bucs in both categories. VanBelle was chosen for the all-tournament team.

The Pirates battled second-seeded Concordia of Oregon on Friday and came out red hot, jumping to a 35-29 halftime spread. Concordia, the eventual tournament champion, took back the game in the second half and squeaked by the tough Pirates, 68-64. Pirate Coach Jean Anderson felt the game was "by far our best," and was pleased with their team's performance throughout the tournament. The Pirate's final season record ended up at 14-15, but they had a respectable 10-7 count against Division III opponents. Four seniors graduate, including two starters, but Anderson has a fine returning nucleus with VanBelle, Kathy German and Jonti Swanson, the three leading scorers, coming back. Anderson tagged these three as "most consistent players." Swanson, the center was named player of the week; in the Northwest for her play during the last two weeks of the regular season.

With these three standouts and some promising younger players coming back Anderson feels there's a lot to look forward to next year.

---

Pirates Do Well In Field Events

by Hans Christensen

The Whitworth tracksters opened the season with an invitational meet on March 9 in Walla Walla. Coach Arnie Tyler said the meet was a testing ground for the men and not taken too seriously because of bad weather and the fact that most of the races were relays. "We did well in the field events," with Wayne Christensen taking second in the pole vault with a jump of 14'. Eric Krueger took second in the discus with a throw of 145 feet even, bettering his personal record by eight inches, which is great for the first meet," he said. He went on to note that Doug Larson took fifth in the javelin and jumped 6'6" in the high jump.

---

Pitching and Defense Strengthen Pirates

by Jeff Thomas

"Second year" coach Dave Vaughn will field a young Pirate team with tremendous potential this season. Early spring weather has helped the team get off to a strong start in pre-season workouts. The Pirates' success in defending their Northwest Conference crown will depend on how fast the younger players progress.

The Bucs lost to graduation two mainstays of their infield in All-Conference shortstop Steve Adams and All-District third baseman Doug Lecy. Their hitting will be missed, but after an excellent recruiting year Vaughn reports that the team's pitching and defense are strengthened, and adds that they have great team speed.

"It's hard to say if Vaughn is trying to find room in his infield for three All-State freshman shortstops, Bobby Mandeville from Sun Valley, CA, Doug Moore from Ephrata, WA, and Kurt Krauth from nearby Mead H.S. The starting lineup will see junior Bill Vaffles, a transfer from Spokane Falls, at first. At second base will be either senior Keith Ward, who batted .315 last season, or Mandeville. Moore will start at shortstop, sophomore Steve MacDonald(347) is competing with Krauth for the third base position. Junior Dan Harder, a .325 hitter last season, has been moved to the infield from first and Mark Lehman (.325) will return as catcher, but is being pressed by transfer Mark McMeenow from Ft. Steilacoom. Both are juniors.

Whitworth returns a solid corps of outfielders led by senior Mark Skoshima, an All-Conference selection last year with a .318 batting average, in left field. Junior Dan Harder (.302) will be in center field and junior Pat Taylor (.330) in right rounds out the lineup. Freshman Mark Shokman is looking good, according to Vaughn, as is Terri Yigo, a junior from Shoreline Comm. Coll.

The strong Pirate pitching staff includes returning sophomores Jack Baldwin and Joey Knecht and freshman Dennis Beemer, who combined for an 8-2 record last season. Nery will be reinforced by newcomer Dave Frisaker, who spent two seasons at Pepperdine, where he compiled a 141 record last season. Junior Greg Baker from Arizona State, sophomore Scott Ramsey from University of Idaho, junior Ron Jackson from Washington State, and freshman Dwayne Hautt from Yigo, Guam are other welcome additions to the Buc pitching staff.

The Pirates open their season at Gonzaga on March 17 in the first of "probably our toughest six games of the season," says Vaughn. The home opener March 21 in a doubleheader with Central Washington. Linfield and Lewis & Clark are the Whitworth's toughest competition in league this year.

---

Flagg Leads Women Spikers

The Whitworth women turned in a fine performance at Walla Walla. The women's distance medley team finished first, shaving 12 seconds off their meet record. On that team were seniors Annette Swanson, Clara Gwalt and Dana Betsch. Laurie Flagg took first in the long jump with a winning jump of 17'2". The team of Annette Swanson, Karine Allan, Sheri Porter and Laurie Flagg finished first in the mile relay with a time of 4:24. Peggy Marshall won the discus throw with a toss of 121'1" and Clark Larson won the 3000 meter race in a time of 10:47. Women's coach Beth Hellega commented, "I knew we were strong in the distances, but we came out strong in all areas. Doing well this early in the season was a surprise, too." Hellega mentioned the outstanding effort of Laurie Flagg, a transfer from Linfield. Hellega said, "She was a pentathlete at Linfield, and is a strong asset to our team."

The women's next meet is in two weeks at the UPS Invitational. Hellega said, "The competition will be strong with a lot of teams showing up. Teams like Western Washington University, UPS, Seattle-Pacific, Lewis and Clark State, and Linfield."

---

AFTER CLASS, THE GAME, OR HOMEWORK VISIT THE PROFESSOR HEIGHTS PIZZA PARLORS

$1.75 PITCHERS OF BEER TO ALL WHITWORTH STUDENTS WITH ID

PLUS SPECIAL DISCOUNTS TO SCHOOL GROUPS AND ORGANIZATIONS
by Barry Adams

Veteran Whitworth tennis coach Ross Cutter, fresh from the streets of San Jose, Costa Rica, believes his 1981 team will fare well despite losing five of the top seven players from last season.

"We've got four returners that played varsity matches and some new fellows that look pretty good," Cutter said. Returning are Brad and Barry Adams, numbers two and three last year. Castellanos and Bob Taylor. Eight new players are out including four freshmen, Brian Shearns, Jeff Norton, Bred Steen and Jay Schrader; two transfers, John McMillan from St. Martins and Jonathon Lewis from the University of Utah; and two sophomores in their first year of competition, Peter Browning and Bob Jacobo.

Cutter describes the team as very competitive but is realistic when asked about their chances for a conference championship. "There are teams in our conference that have very good teams. Whitman with six seniors and their best team in five years, Lewis and Clark, another senior-centered team, and PLU who are always good. I think it will be tough to finish as high as we did last year."

The nettlers had an outstanding season last year finishing tied for third in the Northwest Conference tournament and placing second to PLU in the district tourney. Among the big reasons for Cutter's success is the presence of Randy Osborne, last year's District singles champ. Osborne went on to nationals where he won a first round match.

The Pirates first match is April 3 at Willamette, then they take on Linfield and Pacific on the 4th.

"I don't make predictions about the season, but I'll tell you I know a good place to eat in San Jose, Costa Rica," added Cutter, known for his appreciation of culinary delights.

Brad Adams, last year's number two seed, leads the Pirate tennis team.

---

Court decision weakens Title IX

While warning that the decision in a limited case involving the eastern district of Michigan, attorney Robert Kahn of the Center for Law & Social Policy in Washington, D.C., forecast "serious ramifications if this is upheld."

If the precedent is established, it sees it applying to areas beyond athletics. It foretells it could hamper not only sex discrimination litigation, but federal laws that prohibit discrimination on the basis of race or national origin.

"If it's only a reading program that's integrated, the court ruling would suggest that the rest of the segregated school is okay," Kohr said. "The school was supplied while stressing she had not seen the Joiner decision herself. That would be terrible."

Kohn and associates argues that because "futilities get huge amounts of federal funding, the whole school is covered by Title IX. Federal funding is infused into the entire school budget through tuition and fees."

Limiting Title IX to programs that directly get federal money—usually called "categorical grant programs"—would seriously inhibit women's right efforts, says Jean King, the lawyer who represented the Ann Arbor athletes who claimed their school district favored male programs over female sports programs.

Over the past several years, women in colleges and universities have employed Title IX to sue over such issues as unfair employment practices, the sexual harassment of students by professors, and even female students' efforts to join previously all-male marching bands and "eating clubs."

The U.S. Department of Justice is currently involved in Title IX lawsuits against the University of Alaska, alleging it has failed to provide equal opportunities for its female athletes. A Justice Department lawyer estimated that opportunities for female athletes.

As a Department lawyer estimated that "probably 75 percent of these individuals' related sex discrimination cases are revolving around athletics."

Indeed, the National Collegiate Athletic Association sued the government in 1976, asking that sports departments be excluded from Title IX regulation because they are not directly funded by Washington. The case is still pending.

---

New Coach For Track

by Patti Domercat

Beth Hellenga, a graduate of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, will be leading the women's track team in the 1981 season.

Coach Hellenga earned her degree in Physical Education while attending Cal Poly, and is currently working on her Master's. She has previously coached the Senior Highs Girls basketball team at San Luis, and led her team to three C.I.P. championships with a record of 57 wins and 7 losses. She participated in the La Canada Varsity track program, with her strong areas being the long jump, and the one and two mile events.

This is Hellenga's first year of coaching track, and she is enthusiastic about the season. "I'm really excited about the team, and I feel we have a strong potential to go far in every event." The first meet was last week in Walla Walla, where the Pirates were up against eight other schools. The team won five out of 11 events, in addition to setting a meet record in 12:21.9 in the long distance medley. "As a coach, the most important thing is to build confidence throughout the team, although it is an individual sport. The girls have really been supporting each other, and have displayed a team unity that we don't always see." Hellenga feels a strong commitment from within the team, not only to the sport, but to the Lord as well. "The girls have realized their gift of running from the Lord, and committed themselves to Him as well as the team."

Hellenga concluded.
Editorial: Budget Process

By Tim Cheek, Financial V.P.

The Spring semester signals the beginning of the ASWC budgeting process and I thought it would be helpful if I briefly describe the ASWC budget for this fiscal year so that students might make better informed decisions for next year's budget.

The ASWC is supported by all full-time students. At registration time we each pay $42.50 a semester, so we must decide how much it will cost us for the whole year. The present breakdown of the budget—using the terms of the $100,000 poll you received in your mailbox last autumn—can be seen as follows:

![Budget Pie Chart]

The results of the $100,000 poll gives us an indication of the way our budget could appear and the need for creative and fair student input this year.

---

Latin Study Tour (cont.)

They were given a list of things to find out in each place—the town's history, public and/or private institutions, church, the economic system, and other aspects of community life. They had to practice the Spanish through their relationship with the Instituto de Lenguas Espanolas.

About the weekend, Liz commented, "we found that the people of Costa Rica are very generous and open. We had all sorts of exciting experiences like seeing bull fights, touring a gold mine, seeing our first iguanas, being called communists, sleeping in beds made of straw, sleeping with ants, and seeing our first Latin American Tarantulas." Liz also wrote that the group had the good fortune to meet Scott Russell, a former Whitworth student, and his wife. The two had recently travelled through El Salvador and Nicaragua. They had a few stories to tell about their experiences in the horrors of El Salvador.

The day following their visit with Scott and his wife, the group met a representative from the U.S. Embassy in San Jose, Costa Rica. Liz wrote, "the views that he presented and the way they were presented were strikingly different from our usual misconceptions of the way our budget could appear and the need for creative and fair student input this year.

---

Choir Plans a Busy Break

By Lee Martin

Whitworth's 48-member choir will have no break this spring vacation. They will travel to California, visiting nine different cities along the way, finishing with two performances in Spokane.

Under the direction of Dr. Milton Johnson, the group will present some sacred music from Palestreina to Stravinsky. Also featured are the Reformation Cantatas of J.S. Bach and Hayden's Coronation Mass, both written for choir and orchestra. The 20th century will be represented in short works by the French composer Langlais, English composers Holst and Maxwell Davies; and the American Samuel Barber and Randall Thompson.

Dr. Johnson is very enthusiastic about the tour. He enjoys presenting "music that’s well done, that’s high caliber, (and) that’s effective in the church service." The choir members themselves are excited about their upcoming schedule of events.

The Choir and Sinfonietta tour itinerary is as follows: Thursday, March 19, 7:30 p.m., Whitworth Presbyterian Church, Vancouver, WA; Friday, March 20, 8:00 p.m., First Presbyterian Church; Red Bluff, CA; Saturday, March 21, Lafayette Presbyterian Church, Lafayette, CA; Sunday, March 22, 7:00 p.m., First Presbyterian Church, Novato, Novato, CA; Monday, March 23, 8:00 p.m., Encino Community High School, Encino, CA; Tuesday, March 24, 8:00 p.m., Lake Canada Presbyterian Church, Lake Canada, CA; Wednesday, March 25, 7:30 p.m., St. Peter's by the Sea Presbyterian Church, Rancho Palos Verdes, CA; Thursday, March 26, 7:30 p.m., Community Presbyterian Church, Laguna Beach, CA; Friday, March 27, 8:00 p.m., First Presbyterian Church, Roseville, CA; Saturday, April 1, 8:00 p.m., First Presbyterian Church, Spokane, WA, and Sunday, April 2, 8:00 p.m., First Presbyterian Church, Spokane, WA.

---

Concert Tonight!

The high-spirited rock and roll of George Thorogood and The Destroyers will fill the WESC Auditorium tonight at 7 p.m.

The band man generates an excitement for the kind of rock and roll that dominated the world in the 1950's, but their sound is contemporary—not nostalgic. They have a record on the board on album-oriented FM radio, and their power and popular success keeps them high on the charts.

A new single, "I'm Wanted," was just released: a second album has joined their gold-selling first album, "Move It Over." Thorogood will not play in large halls because his showmanship includes forays into the crowd, dancing on tables and close-in contact with his audiences.

George Thorogood and the Destroyers are presented by Whitworth Book Co., Concerts and KREM-FM. Tickets are $3 in advance and $5 at the door.

---

USED, OLD AND SCARCE BOOKS on many subjects. Bought, sold, and appraised. Call 928-3623 for information. McDuffie's Books, North 20 Pines Road, Opportunity, WASH. Hours 1-5 every day.

TEACHERS WANTED

Elementary and Secondary teachers wanted. Civic A's, B's, C's, D's and E's. No registration fee which is refundable to those accepted. Call (505) 877-3802. Southwest Teachers Agency, Box 4337, Albuquerque, N.M.

JEEPS, CARS, TRUCKS available through government agencies. Many sell for under $500. Call (602) 941-8014 Ext. 77744. Ask the directory on how to purchase.
Mounce Inauguration Nearing

By Mark Meyer

The inauguration of Whitworth College's fifteenth president will highlight the annual meeting April 24 and 25. Dr. Robert Mounce will be officially installed as President of Whitworth College on Friday April 24 at 7:30 p.m. in Cowles Auditorium.

The event itself will be a culmination of a series of events this week. Thursday at 7 p.m. Dr. Mounce will address the Whitworth faculty and student body at the Inaugural Convocation. His address will last until noon, when there will be an all-campus picnic in the Loop. Due to the length of Dr. Mounce's address, all morning classes will be cancelled and shifted around with first period starting at normal time, and ending at 8:40, second period from 8:50-9:30, and lunch closing at 10:20. Thursday, the annual 'awards banquet' for faculty will be in Leavitt Dining Hall and on Friday afternoon there will be two Inaugural Seminars for Whitworth faculty as well as educators from other institutions. Both seminars will be in the Leavitt Hall in the music building.

The person conducting the seminars is Dr. Robert Mounce, who keynote speakers at the inauguration ceremonies on Friday night. Mark H. Curtis, president of the Association of American Colleges will deliver the Inauguration address entitled "The education for free minds and spirits obsolete?" which will attempt to define the term 'liberal' in liberal education. David A. Hall, President of Fuller Theological Seminary will present the charge to the new President in addition to conducting a seminar on "The Mission beyond the mission in Higher Education." There will be a reception for the new president at the Harriet Chney Cowles Library at 9 a.m. Monday, April 27. Following the inauguration, vendors on campus are encouraged to attend.

Easter Vigil Planned

By Gary Jewell

The literal meaning behind the word 'Vigil' is to 'stay awake or keep a watch during the normal sleeping hours.' Christian context the Easter Vigil is a holy festival observed on the eve of Easter. It is a "staying awake" to observe and welcome the celebration of Christ's rising from the tomb.

The Easter Vigil is observed on campus this year will begin with the Good Friday Service held at the Seattle Mudd Chapel on April 17. The main Easter Vigil celebration will get underway Saturday evening at 7 p.m. The Vigil will take place on campus grounds with a symbolic walk through the holy history of the Judeo-Christian faith. Starting from the Chapel the participants in the Vigil will take part in the ceremony of the Creation and Fall of humanity from God. After the ceremony at the Chapel the group will proceed to follow the sound of the rams horn leading them to other places to observe and participate in other parts of the Vigil.

The next stop for the Vigil will be held at SAGA, other places to observe and participate in other parts of the Vigil. Mounce, the Reauthorization Bill passed by the House authorized raising the Pell Grant to $1900 this year, which is four percent below $1750, which had been in past years. So there wasn't any action on the Pell Grant. Ms. Rusk estimated that close to 500 students, or 40% of the Whitworth student body receive the Pell Grant, and something from the two federal grants. The SEOG Grant is money that is given directly to colleges to distribute to students who for some reason or another didn't receive support from the other grants.

One of the causes of the confusion over financial aid is the fact that the leadership in the U.S. Senate just changed hands after the last election. The U.S. House of Representatives had spent two years writing the Reauthorization Bill, which would establish guidelines for financial aid for the next five years, but the new Senate is proposing changes in the bill, which would have to go back through both houses before going into effect. "One thing about student financial aid," said Rusk, "is that any legislation concerning it can generate free letters, and that's the amount of money involved, and then any other legislation before Congress."

Mr. Rusk explained that the federal grants that Whitworth students receive, the Pell Grant and the SEOG Grant. The Pell Grant is also known as the "Bog" or "Bog Grant." Vice President Richard Rusk, the Reauthorization Bill passed by the House authorized raising the Pell Grant to $1900 this year, which is four percent below $1750, which had been in past years. So there wasn't any action on the Pell Grant. Ms. Rusk estimated that close to 500 students, or 40% of the Whitworth student body receive the Pell Grant, and something from the two federal grants. The SEOG Grant is money that is given directly to colleges to distribute to students who for some reason or another didn't receive support from the other grants.

Grease is the word

By Diane Pindell

The first student directed Whitworth musical, "Grease," will be performed on April 15 and 16 at 8 p.m. in Cowles auditorium. The play is free with limited seating and will be accompanied by a live stage band.

Darrell Lynn, student director, is very enthusiastic about his 40 member cast and crew. "Everybody has been working real well," he enthused. "It's a lot of work, but we should give them two hours of entertainment and I think we have done that." "Grease is a parody on the 50's it's not a musical, and is centered around a group of high school students who struggle with peer pressure.

Inside

Issues and Opinions - page 2
What's Happening - page 3
Mac in Concert - page 4
DeGarmo and Key - page 5
Tennis, Track - page 6
Baseball update - page 6
Sports Roundup - page 7
Issues and Opinion

Journalism department needs full-time faculty

By Pat Williams

Whitworth College is dealing in bad faith with the students and the Communicaton department.

With departmental budgets cut severely for 1981-82 already set, there has been no move to hire second-year journalism instructor in the Communication department. And so, for the second year in a row, the department’s 23 journalism related majors will have no full-time and experienced teacher.

Whitworth apparently hasn’t realized the inherent difference between written andoral communication. Journalism is a professional field. Students who pay over four thousand dollars a year in tuition and fees deserve to be taught by a teacher with expertise in the field.

In attempting to offer courses without fulfilling the journalism major, the department hires a number of non-professionals, part-time teachers. Students can learn the methods of journalism in this way, but it is a far cry from having a full-time teacher.

Full-time members have a strong financial and religious obligation to the school and students. They assist and carry more weight than part-time teachers. They assist and carry more weight than part-time teachers. They assist and carry more weight than part-time teachers. They assist and carry more weight than part-time teachers. They assist and carry more weight than part-time teachers. They assist and carry more weight than part-time teachers. They assist and carry more weight than part-time teachers.

In the case of the journalism department they would also be heavily involved with the student life staff. This is something which part-time instructors don’t have time to do.

Currently there are between 45 and 50 students with a total of 17 communication majors. The 23 journalism related students pay the college tuition and fees of nearly 100,000 dollars. The associated students of the college subsidises the student media by paying nearly $1000 a year. That is one-sixth of the entire ASWC budget.

It is apparent that the students fully support the communication program and that a large number of students are investing their time and money into the program.

With these facts in mind it is hard to understand why Whitworth College has refused to hire another full-time communication/journalism instructor. By not doing so the college is deceiving not only the students who are involved but the non-participants and every student who pays student body fees.

The college needs to hire another full-time communication faculty member who specializes in journalism.

---

Night Clerks provide dorm security

By Laura Hutchinson

An interesting letter to the editor appeared in our mailbox recently: a letter we decided not to print because it was unsigned. However, I believe that the contents of the letter relate to a situation happening on campus, so I will share some excerpts and my own comments with you.

The letter, dated March 16 and signed “J.H.,” is from a 1978 graduate of Whitworth who now lives and works in Spokane.

It seems that this person (a man) came to campus late one evening to visit a woman friend living in Arend Hall. Knowing that his friend had another visitor at the time, he decided to wait in his car until the other visitor left.

He noticed a male jogger run to the lawn by Stewart Hall. The jogger was then joined by two of his friends. The writer said, “I decided to drive back to the other side of Arend lest the jogger and friends think I was spying through my car windows.”

“As I walked I watched two or three fellows loiter around the cars for awhile. One came over to my car and asked what I was doing. I replied that I was waiting for a girl to come out of Arend. He then asked if I wanted to buy or sell some drugs. I wasn’t interested.”

The writer, a little concerned, related that he decided to leave a note on his friend’s car and leave campus. As he was writing the note, he was approached by another student, who also asked what he was doing. The student mentioned, “Someone had been bothering some of the women on campus.”

Finally, the writer of the letter decided to go into Arend and find his friend. As he walked toward the dorm he observed a group of men standing by the main entrance, others farther down the road, and still others hiding behind bushes.

As it turned out, his friend came out of the dorm and all ended quietly.

The writer commented, “In retrospect, the whole thing is incredible. It seemed the majority of the male car-porn (believed to be selling drugs), the gang in front of Arend and the last fellow, had gotten together to protect the women of Whitworth. I congratulated these guys for a job well-done. They obviously keep a close watch for suspicious characters. The women should be very grateful for this (it’s not like this everywhere).”

“I would also like to stress that I am not the man you’re after.”

Why the writer of the letter added that last comment and why he did not sign his name to a mystery to me, but those incidents are not the point of this article. I appreciate the fact that he wrote to express an honest opinion. I also believe that the writer gained a sincere respect for the males with departmental budgets cut severely for 1981-82 already set, there has been no move to hire second-year journalism instructor in the Communication department. And so, for the second year in a row, the department’s 23 journalism related majors will have no full-time and experienced teacher.

In the case of the journalism department they would also be heavily involved with the student life staff. This is something which part-time instructors don’t have time to do.

Currently there are between 45 and 50 students with a total of 17 communication majors. The 23 journalism related students pay the college tuition and fees of nearly 100,000 dollars. The associated students of the college subsidises the student media by paying nearly $1000 a year. That is one-sixth of the entire ASWC budget.

It is apparent that the students fully support the communication program and that a large number of students are investing their time and money into the program.

With these facts in mind it is hard to understand why Whitworth College has refused to hire another full-time communication/journalism instructor. By not doing so the college is deceiving not only the students who are involved but the non-participants and every student who pays student body fees.

The college needs to hire another full-time communication faculty member who specializes in journalism.

---

Letter to the Editor

Thank You Friends!

Dear Editor,

Patti and I would like to thank the Whitworth community for all the prayers and sympathy that have given to us and our little boy for the three days he lived, and for the days followings.

Unexpected death is never easy, and the warmth generated by everyone involved helped us, and continues to help us work with the entire situation.

Peace.

Mike and Patti Wendlandt
Play Production Needs Student Help

By Laura Hutchinson

Talented Whitworth artists will have a chance to professionally create scenic backdrops for the city-wide production of "The Adventures of Alice."

"The Adventures of Alice" is a dramatic adaptation of Lewis Carroll's two famous children's stories, "Alice in Wonderland" and "Alice Through the Looking-Glass."

The production, which opens July 4th at Riverfront Park, will be part of Spokane's "Celebration '81," and will run approximately 12 days.

Jim Jordan, project director, said that last year over 100,000 visitors attended the festivities.

The play will be uniquely presented as a walk through drama, in the round format. The audience will gain an intimate theatrical and educational experience as they are led through nine scenes by Faece. Each scene is three-to-five minutes long. The conceptualization educated the audience in character development, creative dramatics, set art, and exploration of potential interest in their field.

The essential idea that college students play is that of painting all the backdrops for the performance. Nine students from Whitworth, Gonzaga, Eastern and Spokane Falls Community College will be hired to paint backdrops. The backdrops are 23 feet tall and 15 feet long. The backdrops have already been designed on paper, but the student artists incorporate their own styles when transferring the design to the canvas.

Jordan commented, "In the project offers students a chance to be a little creative on their own." The project has students involved in the set painting is that students will be paid for their efforts. Work-study students will earn $5/hour. Non work-study students will earn a stipend of $200-300 for the 4-6 week commitment. The part-time job begins in the middle of April, with time out for finals then another two weeks of work in May after finals.

Whitworth students were heavily involved in the 1979 project, painting as many as ten of the backdrops. This year the performance will contain all new backdrops.

"The Adventures of Alice" is a twofold objective. It was originally conceived as a fundraiser program for the Inland Empire Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. The program is now separated from MS and serves as a community arts project to enhance and advance cultural awareness in Spokane.

Anyone interested in working for "The Adventures of Alice" should contact Jim Jordan at 446-5551.

If you have any ideas for backdrops for a night out on the town, please let us know.

Ballet to perform here May 2

Spokane Ballet's May 2nd "Spring Celebration" at Whitworth College will feature an all-women, fifteen intermediate level dancers in a Spokane Ballet premier performance of "Graduation Ball." The full length ballet in one act will be staged by Spokane Ballet Artistic Director Terrence Grizell after David Lichine, and is set in a girls school where debutantes and cadets have been introduced to one another at their first formal gathering. The 12-to-13 year old dancers will be making their performance debut on stage with members of the Spokane Ballet Company.

"These dancers will be gaining priceless experience now performing alongside seasoned adult ballet dancers," said Grizell. "As a bonus, Grizell continues, "it's an excellent opportunity for the young dancers to perform in front of an audience. Graduate Ball is an opportunity for these young dancers to test their skills required in the classroom."

TUITION HIKE NEED REVISION

Most western universities base tuition on factors like the inflation rate and the estimate of state aid instead of evaluating the difference in future enrollment and amount of financial aid to students, reports the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education.

By using these narrow guidelines, the report indicates that a state's failure to consider they are driving away minority students, who are unable to pay the increased tuition costs or how they're increasing the burden on the state legislatures which must bail out needy students is.

"Minorities are much more sensitive to tuition hikes," says David Lichine, a WICHE research associate. "They are more likely to drop out when the price goes up. Also, when more students require financial assistance, the state winds up paying as much if not more, indirectly than if it does nothing directly to the schools themselves."

Vichland adds that many western schools prefer their tuition hikes on "too much of a fine line" and tend to analyze the social and individual consequences of their actions.

"We [the western schools] must change the way they make tuition changes," he says. "By coming up with unique ideas to increase tuition, they avoid the dramatic changes in state appropriations and come much more contagious than in the past."

The [western] schools must change the way they make tuition changes, he says. "By coming up with unique ideas to increase tuition, they avoid the dramatic changes in state appropriations and come much more contagious than in the past.

Upcoming Theatrical Events

If the thought of doing homework bores you to death, or if your true love is a Shakespeare fan, here is your chance to see a Shakespeare play. Eastern's spring production of As You Like It will open tonight at the Cowles Auditorium. Also, the spring production of As You Like It will open tonight at the University Theatre in Cheney, and will continue to play every Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evening at 8:00 p.m. through May 16.

One of the best known of Shakespeare's comedies, As You Like It presents a pastoral world where love is the major preoccupation. When Rosalind is unfairly banished from her uncle's court, she disguises herself as a man and escapes to the woods in search of her exiled father. The plot includes mistaken identities, disguises, some very intriguing characters, and a multitude of tangents to the fulfillment of true love.

For reservations call toll free 838-5271, ext. 2825.

Other theatre buffs will enjoy The Royal Family, a comedy being presented at the Spokane Civic Theatre. The Royal Family is an engrossing account of a theatre family deeply involved in the stage for three generations of actors. The imagined temperament of theatrical stars, the wondrous and exciting life they lead outside the theatre and in their own homes is the basis of this witty comedy, full of fast humor and fast action.

One can attend this play anytime from April 16-18 or 22-25. Call 255-5707 for curtain times and reservations.

If you are away and you want to stay home but don't feel motivated to dip into the books, there is plenty of action going on right here at Whitworth.

You can check out the Wesley Tableau Show, "Shining in the Koehler Hall," from April 14-24.

Concerts and recitals this month include Deborah Dewey, pianist, in concert in Cowles Auditorium April 19 at 7 p.m. The next day you can catch pianist Mark Bovee in recital at 7 p.m. in the recital hall. April 25 at 7:30 p.m. is the date of a recital by Mara Plume and Bob Morris, and April 26 brings an organ recital by Lori Lamma at St. John's Catholic at 8 p.m.

The Madrigals and the SFCC Chamber Ensemble will perform at Whitworth Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p.m. on April 27.

An event of major importance will soon take place at Whitworth. April 23 and 24 will mark the date of the Presidential Inauguration and Convocation of Dr. Robert H. Mounce. The Convocation will take place in Cowles auditorium, from 10:30-12 noon. The Inauguration will also take place in the auditorium, at 8 p.m. on April 27.

A weekend of events will be held in Whitworth, and an event of major importance will soon take place at Whitworth. April 23 and 24 will mark the date of the Presidential Inauguration and Convocation of Dr. Robert H. Mounce. The Convocation will take place in Cowles auditorium, from 10:30-12 noon. The Inauguration will also take place in the auditorium, at 8 p.m. on April 27.
Mac in concert provides variety

By Debbie Reinwand

Once again, Whitworth students, faculty and members of the community were treated to another successful McMillan Hall in Concert. The evening was a mixture of both serious works and comedy acts. As a four-year veteran observer of the show, I have to applaud the organizers and participants for presenting a diverse selection of talent.

The Patty Demeter Band who opened the show, injected their energy into the audience to get the concert rolling. The variation between comical groups and mellow acts may or may not have been planned but seemed to confuse the audience.

Many of the performers have participated in Mac in Concert in previous years, and were remembered and appreciated. The Whitworth College Men's Choir have expanded their repertoire to include dancers. This addition was well received by the audience.

The entire show had an air of relaxed ease and professionalism, as well as a touch of nostalgia. For a few of the performers; Thom Lamb, Karen Harris, Chris Frimoth, Don Schrumm, Harvey Moyer and Lee Jennings, it was more than likely their last appearances in Cowles Auditorium. From the looks of things though, there is a new crop of upcoming talent to fill their shoes.

As for the act that closed the show (or brought down the house?), bigger and better things lie ahead, possibly Johnny Carson? Congratulations to everyone who participated in the 1981 McMillan Hall in Concert.

College ensembles perform

The Whitworth College Jazz and Wind Ensembles continued their tradition of putting on an excellent performance as they played to a small, but appreciative audience Sunday in Cowles Auditorium.

The Jazz Ensemble, directed by Mr. Paul Halversen, started the program with a piece called "Press On." This was followed by a pep band called "Count Downing," which featured Greg Slag on saxophone. Jazz band members demonstrated a wide range of talent as, many of them improvised during the upbeat "Doin' Basie's Thing." Solos included saxaphone players David Wilson, Kris Davis, Jeff Whaley, and Greg Slag; pianist Mark Bovee; guitarist Neil Cautkins; Chip Peterson on drums and Doug McCleary on bass.

The Jazz Ensemble wrapped up their part of the program with two more contemporary jazz pieces, "Sir Gawain and the Green Knight," and "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue."

The Wind Ensemble, directed by Dr. Richard Evans, played a variety of marches, including Holst's "First Suite In E Flat For Military Band," Barber's "Commando March, and Perichetti's "Divertimento For Band, Opus 42."

Also included in the program was Milhaud's "Suite Francaise," and Schuman's "Chester, Overman, and Schuman's "Chester." These pieces were very smooth, and the quality of music played demonstrated that members of both ensembles were very well prepared.

"Chester" began much like a hymn, flowing gradually to a staccato pace at the end of the piece.

Both the jazz, and wind ensemble offered a rich, enjoyable sound, incorporating good dynamics into all their music. The transitions between pieces were very smooth, and the quality of music played demonstrated that members of both ensembles were very well prepared.

Pinball profits

By Diane Pindell

"The pinball machines bring in the largest source of income for ASWC besides student fees," says Marilyn Bryant, ASWC bookkeeper.

The pinball machines are owned and repaired by Keith's Music, who, keeps 60% of the profits. The remaining 40% is kept by ASWC and averages $300 every two weeks. During the winter months, revenue averages between $400 and $500.

The decisions on how to spend the revenue is made by the HUB Board of Control. Those decisions resulted in the purchase of new skis as new skis at a cost of $400, new HUB furniture, remodeling the HUB, the Christmas and Halloween parties, and repairing the pool equipment.

Together with pinball profits and student fees, ASWC is able to remain active.

Will Princeton

Accept God?

God has applied to Princeton.

Hoping to be accepted to the Class of 1985, God wrote a "personal statement" sent in December to the Princeton Admissions Office that He would like to experience first-hand what college life is presently like. He added that it did not seem right that He listen in on courses when He has not been admitted.

The application was brought to the attention of James Wickenden, director of admissions, who reported to the Princeton Weekly Bulletin that the candidate entered his name only as "God." In describing Himself, God checked both male and female for gender and checked all possible ethnic origins, in addition to writing "You name it!" next to the ethnic origin response marked "other."

Wickenden said he was not surprised at the applicant's test scores, which included perfect 800s on both the math and verbal portions of the SAT. However, He hadn't fared quite as well on his College Entrance Examination Board's achievement tests. An error on the reliability question on the physics achievement test dropped the score to only 760. On the application, though, God reportedly maintained "Einstein is wrong," perhaps proving that to err is divine.

In biology, He scored 770 because His answers on the evolution question were also marked as incorrect. In the essay portion of the application, God wrote His academic and intellectual interests included "discerningly helping people and listening to prayers."

In releasing the information about the applicant, Wickenden noted that a separate application had been included in the envelope. Even God, it seems, cannot escape certain human conditions. He applied for financial aid.

Our passport goes from one spectacular point to another.

22 CITIES/15 DAYS

$349

Wien

Close-up: DeGarmo and Key

By Laura Mader

DeGarmo and Key Band headlined a hunger benefit concert Thursday. Their stop in Spokane was the middle of a tour promoting their new album, "This Ain’t Hollywood." Those attending the concert were served an hour and a half of high energy music with soul, rhythm and blues, and rock and roll. Ed DeGarmo and Dana Key are the leaders of the five piece band. Ed provides the keyboard wizardry, while Dana contributes lead guitar and vocals.

WHITWORTHIAN:

During the concert you said that it was sometimes hard to find places that would let you play. People were not ready to hear a rock band that sang about Jesus. Why did you choose to play Christian music?

ED: Because we’re Christians. But, if you study the music, you’d see that there are songs that could be taken either way. When you write it, it’s not like sitting down and saying, "Okay, I’m writing a Christian song, and I’m going to call it the Lord.” Alright? You just don’t do that. You don’t sit down and say, "Okay, I’m writing a secular song, my baby tells me lying in the gutter.” You sit down and it just comes out. You try to achieve realism in our music. Something that’s not commodity-minded to be no corn三星.

WHITWORTHIAN: Has your faith always "come out" in your music?

DANA: We got up our first band, you know, rock and roll. We spent a lot of time together, putting on shows and going out on weekends to play. It got to the point where Ed and I had an ego struggle in our band. I just didn’t "like him and he didn’t like me either. I remember planning ways to avoid him in the hallway (at school). One time I was walking down my hallway and I saw Ed coming towards me. And he knew that it was my hallway, and he wasn’t supposed to be in it. I was really bummed. I went home and I talked it up to me and said, "Man, I really got to tell you, the greatest thing happened yesterday. I gave my life to Jesus.” That just freaked me out. I was scared and I put my hand over his mouth because I didn’t want anyone in the hall to hear him say that. I knew if they heard us, it was going to ruin my reputation. He wanted to go somewhere private to talk about it, a difficult task in a school with 2,000 people, most of them chauvinistic classes. He said, "Just for a minute, stop in the closet with me.” I was thinking this has to be a plot for Eddie to ruin my reputation, everyone will see us walking into a closet together and I will be labeled for life. Eddie was insistent, so we waited until the hall was clear and we ducked into the closet. Ed began to share with me how he’d given his life to the Lord and how Jesus has given him a love for me that he hadn’t known before. He was thundering through this old Gideon’s Bible and my eyes were burning. I finally had to stop him and I said, "Just tell me what I need to do to have the same thing.” He said, "I didn’t ask Jesus to save me of my sins and come into my life.” We sat down on the floor and I asked Jesus to come into my life. Since then we have been a Christian band, because when we sit down to write a song, we have to write about the most important thing to us and that is our faith. WHITWORTHIAN: Do you see any changes in the business?

ED: In the next few years, the Christian music industry is going to become extremely dollar oriented. Where it’s not going to make any difference whether a Christian group is on the Warner Brothers or Ward label. The people that are sincere are going to leave because they don’t want to see what’s happening to it. It’s like a wolf in sheep’s clothing. They would rather be on the secular side where black is black and white is white, rather than being in Christian music where somebody is trying to pull the wool over your eyes.

WHITWORTHIAN: What influenced your start in music? It seems to have been rather important at a young age.

ED: I grew up about half a mile from Elvis Presley’s house. Dana and I used to ride the school bus right past his mansion. We’d look up there and see all the wealth and glamour. It was something you longed for. I remember one time I was driving a motorcycle about seven a.m. and someone recognized him and he had to jump off his motorcycle and run home because they blocked his path, he couldn’t get out. He had to run about a mile and send somebody back for the bike. It used to happen to him all the time.

DANA: Eddie often times had to run a mile now to get away from fans, but that’s because they want to kill him. (Laugh).

WHITWORTHIAN: Get credit for farming

By Laura J. Mader

For one credit you can go to Wapato and learn what farming is. They make no pretense of promising you a rose garden, but if you’re not expected to spend a month shoveling cow manure.

There was more to it than meets the eye. One farming day was, a black oozie, had a way of covering me, my clothes, and everything else but the thin wips of apple trees I was creating.

And there were rocks. Hundreds of thousands of rocks. I wondered how the vegetables managed to compete with them. I wondered if there was a different designed shovel that made it easier to shovel rocks. I don’t know. Maybe it’s all in the technique. After a month on Nelli I began to hate farming.

WHITWORTHIAN: Do you see any changes in the business?

DANA: There is definitely more to farming today than there was when the Yakima Presbytery received her farm as a gift. I know she sold her farm to her husband. He wanted to give the farm to his cousin, Knight of Leopold. It was a stroke of good luck for the Presbytery, maybe an act of God, and just plain bad luck for the Knight.

What does the church do with the farm? It takes it up for the agriculture course. Gilbert, students of Princeton Seminary, bring their small son to Wapato and plant many vegetables. Students of Wapworth go to Wapato and harvest these vegetables.

In January, 1981, I went there and became an apple tree grasper, compost heap tender and ditch digger, Pretty simple. But try to explain how to make some interest in farming. Maybe we are meeting all those farmers, weren’t any crazed fans chasing you. And, are you used to playing to a more rough crowd.

DANA: This is the smallest crowd we’ve had on this tour.

ED: There’s usually three, four or five times as many people medium heat, stirring constantly. Then boil, still stirring, for 2 minutes. Add milk and heat, stirring, to serving temperature. Do not boil. Beat in vanilla with rotary beater or spoon, to create a foamy surface. Serve immediately, in heaping mugs. Makes 6 servings.

FOOD AND DRINK

A Snap To Make—Even In A Dorm

Hot Chocolate With A Latin Beat

When the night is frosty, heat things up with this delicious, fragrant brew inspired south-of-the-border. Based on that old favorite, Hershey’s unsweetened cocoa, Brazilian Hot Chocolate is a snap to make. Flavor is rich and super-chocolatey, with a tantalizing touch of mocha. Ole!

BRAZILIAN HOT CHOCOLATE

1/4 cup Hershey’s unsweetened cocoa 1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar 1/4 cup hot water
1 tablespoon instant coffee granules 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon
3 cups milk
2 teaspoons vanilla extract

Sports

Women Netters Undefeated

By Mary Adams

After sweepmg their first five live meets, the Whitworth women's tennis team looks even more dangerous after their year's 4-1 conference champs.

The Pirates have rolled over everyone they have faced so far, their first match and their closest was a 4-3 win over the W.S.U. L.V. squad in the Whitworth fieldhouse.

The netters then traveled to Nampa, Idaho and trounced North Idaho Nazarene. The Bucs moved to Caldwell where they trounced Whitman 6-2 and shut out Gonzaga 9-0.

Undefeated number one singles player Kerri Rice welcomes the added depth to the team. It feels that everyone can impress on last year's fourth place regional finish. "I think we're all 100% better this year and that's why we should do well in the regionals." (2-2 records during regionals.) Number two Karen Smith is also undefeated, followed by Bobbi Bzenia, number three, Laurel Morley and number four, Brad Snodgrass with identical 4-1 records to lead the Pirates.

Tracksters Set Records

By Hans Christenson

The Whitworth women continued their track season this year competing at meets in Coeur d'Alene, Wash. and at the Moscow Invitational in Moscow, Idaho. At UPS, Carol Lewis won the 5,000 meters, setting a personal record with a time of 16:51. Laurie Flagg did well in the long jump with a leap of 17.75. Whitworth's Total won in the 1,500 meters with a time of 4:55. That, too, was a personal record.

At the Moscow Invitational, the Westfield Invitational, the Pirates won the long jump at 18'5", qualifying her for nationals. Coach Beth Hellenga said, "I've been told that her jump is the best in the nation right now, but if nothing else it's in the top three." Laurie also set a new school record in the 400 meters with a time of 1:02. Cathy Weber set a new school record in the 400 meters with a time of 1:02. Cathy Weber set a new school record in the 400 meters with a time of 1:02. Cathy Weber set a new school record in the 400 meters with a time of 1:02. Cathy Weber set a new school record in the 400 meters with a time of 1:02. Cathy Weber set a new school record in the 400 meters with a time of 1:02.

Not too many Whitworth tracksters attended the Moscow Invitational, but Dave Williams set a new personal record in the 400 meters with a time of 50.9. Coach Arnie Tyler said, "We should do much better when the weather gets warmer, especially in the sun. Wayne Christiansen should jump better and I think Eric Krueger is about ready to really explode. We've had our injuries and coming off of spring break didn't help. I think we should really start to do well overall." Dave Williams, Whitworth's decathlete, has been very impressive this year. At the Lewis and Clark Decathlon Invitational he placed first with a point total of 7,116. He had personal records in the shot put, javelin, high jump, ball, and discus. Coach Tyler said, "Not only did they put on a good performance, but the coaches, parents and other athletes enjoyed watching him and associating with him. He has his biggest personal record by over 200 points in that meet. He's a great athlete."
Humpers Cruise
In Championship

NCWSA Honors Two

By Laura Hutchison

The stereotype of the college athlete who does nothing but eat, sleep and train for sports is definitely an outdated one. Many of our nation's top college athletes are also serious scholars in the academic world.

Two Whitworth women proved this when they received the Northwestern Collegiate Women's Sports Association (NCWSA) Scholar Athlete of the Year Award in 1981. Two of the 24 recipients of the regional award were Whitworth students Kelly Rice and Kerry Servus.

The NCWSA honor is the highest award a college athlete can receive. The student must be a senior, must have attended the same college for at least two years, must have at least a 3.5 cumulative grade point average, must have participated in a college varsity sport during her senior year, and must be recommended by her coach.

Top on the women's varsity tennis team is Kelly Rice. Kelly is a religion/rec-reations major with a 3.68 GPA. She transferred to Whitworth from North Idaho College after her sophomore year. Although tennis is her sport, Kelly also participated on Whitworth's women's cross-country team and women's junior varsity basketball team. Kelly was pleased to receive the award, but declined to comment, saying only, "It taxes my brain; I spent too much studying.

Kerry Servus is a nutrition major with a 3.58 GPA. She consistently represented Whitworth as an outstanding player on the women's varsity volleyball team, which took sixth place in the 1980 AIAW Division III.
HONDURAS SETS WORLD RECORD FOR TALKING FAST

Guinness Book of World Records today announced that Republic of Honduras was yesterday judged as being the country containing the world’s fastest talkers. In competition with seven other nations, they succeeded in making conversations sound like pure noise more times than anyone else. Estimates vary, but these people probably speak in excess of thirty-three words per second. The record was finally confirmed by bringing in language students Coburn Ingram and Lori Hungate, who, though they could understand Spanish in other nations, could understand nothing of Honduran Spanish.

In addition, Honduras set a regional record for using two most regionally specific words and phrases. For example, when they want to ask if you want to stop for a drink at the nearby store, they say, ‘Are you going to arrive?’

SUMMARY OF SERVICE REPORT

Paul Brassard-agriculture, Rio Grand-Parkland
Laurie McQuagie-kindergarten, Rio Grande
Coby Ingram-agriculture, San Pedro Terrero
Tammi Watson-kindergarten, San Pedro Terrero
Sara Nilson-kindergarten, Reducto
Kevin Sea-agriculture, Reducto
Cayo Rose-agriculture, Cuato
Carolyn Bandy-kindergarten, Cuato
Ellen Skilling-agriculture, somewhere near Nicaragua
Liz Raymond-kindergarten, somewhere near Nica.
Lorrie Hungate-kindergarten, near the ocean and the border
Brad McGuire-7, La Mesquite, opposite town of Puerto Lempira
Meg Symons-travel with a nutritionist, lives in Tegucigalpa
Liz Elvin-starting a church in Tegucigalpa or living at La Libertad.
Marc Archuleta-construction, Valley de Angeles
Dori Koo-orphanage, Valley de Angeles
Erik Lampi-teaching Spanish and music north of Tegucigalpa
Don Reanor and JoAnn Atwell-traveling with the support group.

CHEATING HAS DECLINED slightly at Stanford U. over the past four years and is at about the same level as in 1961, according to a new survey. Students were questioned in 1960, 1961, and November of 1980 about 17 different dishonest acts, ranging from padding a bibliography to buying an exam. The 1980 results showed little change over 1961 and a slight improvement since 1976, when Stanford students and faculty voted to retain and strengthen the academic honor code. The survey also shows that students think a lot of cheating is going on, even though it is very new and people are wondering if it is really getting out of hand.
Whitworth Welcomes Fifteenth President

By Sue Almeur

"We've caught ourselves a President," exclaimed Shirl Richardson at the Inaugural Convocation April 23.

Robert Hayden Mounce, Whitworth's fifteenth president, succeeded Edward H. Lindaman.

President Mounce was Dean of the College of Arts and Humanities at Western Kentucky University prior to becoming president here.

Mounce graduated from the University of Washington where he received a bachelor's degree in music. He taught high school music and was a missionary pilot in Guatemala City for two years. Mounce completed a Bachelor of Divinity and Master of Theology degree at Fuller Theological Seminary. He went on to the University of Aberdeen in Scotland and received a Ph.D. in Biblical Criticism.

For eight years, Mounce was chairman of the Department of Biblical Studies at Bethel College in St. Paul, Minn. He studied archeology in Israel and developed a religious studies program under a Danforth Foundation grant at Western Kentucky University.

"Agenda for the Eighties," was the title of his inaugural address at the Convocation.

One of Mounce's surprises about Whitworth was the amount of friendliness and warmth he received upon arrival to the campus.

In his address, Mounce said the essential ingredients for excellence are openness, discipline, and greatness. Openness to the unknown and to new information, discipline by hanging in through long hours and greatness in learning the best.

Mounce also stated that the purpose of Whitworth needs to be re-examined and reaffirmed every generation and the college cannot continue on its accomplishments from the past.

Mounce continued to say the development of community needs to continue as a major concern and even though there is a diversity of spiritual gifts at Whitworth, we will have the same Spirit.

The President ended his address with a few priorities for the college. These are academic excellence, a sense of purpose and a sense of the campus community.

The Convocation began with a professional of faculty, staff and guests. After the national anthem and the posting of the colors, Chaplain Ron Fraco gave the prayer of invocation which was followed by former ASWC president Doug Nave's scripture reading.

Kathryn Call, a member of the Board of Trustees, remarked in the Board's resolution that they hope the new president will "help make Whitworth what the catalog says it is."

Dr. Ed Olson, chairman of the Faculty Executive Committee, said the faculty "looks to Mounce as the voice of Whitworth College."

Mike Wendlandt, ASWC president, said the students of Whitworth have been through a lot of questions with the Redesign program and the constant increase of tuition, but we look to the new president for "strong, thoughtful guidance."

The President's Inauguration was Friday, April 24. This event had guest speakers such as Thomas Foley of the House of Representatives; William H. Cowles III, President of Cowles Publishing Company; H. George Frederickson, President of Eastern Washington University; and Casper J. Glenn, Executive, Synod of Alaska-Northwest, representing the United Presbyterian Church.

The investiture consisted of the preamble by Jack Hatch, chairman of the Board of Trustees. Dr. Ed Lindaman presented the symbol of the office of the president to Mounce. Dorothy McLaren, member of the Board of Trustees, gave the scripture reading.

David A. Hubbard, President of Fuller Theological Seminary and a close friend of Mounce, gave the Charge.

In his speech, Hubbard had three notes of charge for Mounce. He wants the president to "remember that nothing essential about him has changed." The second note of charge was that Mounce's basic role as president is being a leader and his "task is to garner the resources of the future, to bank the assets in people, endowment, facilities and reputation--those assets on which the generations following shall derive interest."

The third note of charge was "the only acceptable style of leadership is servanthood." Hubbard spoke of Mounce being our servant and leader and not our boss. And Mounce's servant gift to us is love that shows itself in justice, wisdom, in vision and in exemplary devotion to Christ."

The Reverend Mark L. Keelsler gave the prayer of dedication which ended the investiture.

The overall feeling during the Convocation and Inauguration ceremonies was pride in being a student at Whitworth and pride in participating in this rare event of welcoming a new president to the college.
It’s 62 degrees at 7:01 p.m. in Wenatchee. No sign of a freight train in the past two hours. Greyhound doesn’t get here until 7:30. Sitting on the log near the tracks doesn’t seem to feel the chilly breeze. Jim’s been scouring all day for aluminum cans. He has enough to buy himself a pack of coffee. “I sure hope to hell there’ll be something at the Employment Office tomorrow,” he says for the umpteenth time. “I can’t afford to have every dollar of my weed money!”

Bassett hound stumbles down the street in the last hour. Seven more dogs die. Mr. Reagan’s job might be a mercy to Fido. And they all die. And Fido’s 78-year-old muscles have weakened to the point that he can’t even make it to the public toilet without falling. So he was moved to a nursing home.

The deaths are hidden.

Our national pride is high again for we have excelled at something we do well. We went to space in our shuttles and landed them perfectly. It was very impressive. We did a good job. Now the Pentagon has what it needs to produce killer satellites and laser weapons in orbit. The congressmen are impressed by this. It is more important than a human being dying.

A human being can breathe, can cry, can be happy, can feel love and talk to people. Only another human being—not a better this or a bigger that—can make me fulfilled.

The. government should be especially aware of the importance of human beings. When God walked on this earth, He fed people. He cured people. He comforted and loved people. He told us that the second most important thing for us to do is to love our fellow human beings. And then He died for us. We are human beings.

It’s both worthwhile and unwise to search out and find some poor sap dead. The peasants are however, the people of the country this is when a happy dog in the federal feeding trough. It’s betrayed by his own parents. It’s waiting for us to do our duty, to feed him a good meal, to pet him, to love him. But it’s almost as if half the country is toilct without falling. So he was moved to a nursing home. It’s one of the many reasons that men go to war.

It’s not his methods. They oppose his budget cuts because they wouldn’t be otherwise, and that each particle of government’s visionary guidelines. They oppose tax cuts that wouldn’t be otherwise, and that each particle of government’s visionary guidelines. They oppose tax cuts because they aren’t there for the dead Salvadoreans and the Pentagon’s new playtoy all result from misplaced values. So does divorce. So does the arms race, poverty and violence and hunger and abortion. There’s another word for this: sin. We have let many selfish concerns sneak into the top of God’s commandments. People have been pushed out of the way by many things, and some of these things have even eclipsed God in our lives. Some have become idols.

The prophets were most clear about idols. Jesus was too. Fido, the most unimportant thing for us is the dog.

Fido. And as I leave the seeds for a kingdom. He told us to seek first this kingdom that is like a pearl of great price. When God walked on this earth, He walked on expectations, long-term interests, and ‘ripple effects,’ is a difficult and demanding task.

I submit that the test of quality leadership is, ‘Can you present your Forum? Isn’t it common knowledge that students avoid attending Forum at all costs, that a large percentage do not do so to avoid any chance of being refused to pay attention, and that only a small minority participate? Is this the kind of leadership we need in Whitworth? Why fund Forum?’

It’s no surprise to believe that the ideas of the majority of students and theForum in particular. Isn’t it primarily the majority of students and theForum in particular. Isn’t it primarily academic programs? They are not academic programs. This whole effort to fund Forum is actually quite simple. It is a ‘hybrid’ program, combining academic challenge, protestive vision, creativity, and diversity in presentations before the entire Whitworth community, that certainly the guidelines of the ASWC budget, in an age of scarce resources, the time comes to allocate funds for a diverse portfolio of programs, which makes up our ASWC. I submit that the test of quality leadership is, ‘Can you present your Forum? Isn’t it common knowledge that students avoid attending Forum at all costs, that a large percentage do not do so to avoid any chance of being refused to pay attention, and that only a small minority participate? Is this the kind of leadership we need in Whitworth? Why fund Forum?’

The money should go directly to the students, via the Jim and Mike and the dead Salvadoreans and the poor mutt.

There are many more students who get us into this mess instead of debating and desiring of a certain constituency, to weigh out popular expectations, long-term interests, and ‘ripple effects,’ is a difficult and demanding task.

The Hand on the camera lens turns the picture zooms in the scene: an aging bassett hound stumbles down the street looking for a path where he can carry his weight. In his pocket and that if he had ten more he would be able to have his first cup of coffee for the day. I give him a dime and he goes. I shoulder my pack and walk up the hill. The sun disappears behind a hill. The wind blows. It will be cold in Wenatchee this night.

By Brian Best

It’s a new ballgame now

By Evan H. Olson

The hand on the camera lens turns the picture zooms in the scene: an aging bassett hound stumbles down the street looking for a path where he can carry his weight. In his pocket and that if he had ten more he would be able to have his first cup of coffee for the day. I give him a dime and he goes. I shoulder my pack and walk up the hill. The sun disappears behind a hill. The wind blows. It will be cold in Wenatchee this night.

It’s a new ballgame now.

By Evan H. Olson

The hand on the camera lens turns the picture zooms in the scene: an aging bassett hound stumbles down the street looking for a path where he can carry his weight. In his pocket and that if he had ten more he would be able to have his first cup of coffee for the day. I give him a dime and he goes. I shoulder my pack and walk up the hill. The sun disappears behind a hill. The wind blows. It will be cold in Wenatchee this night.
The Whitworthian
ISSUES AND OPINION
Why we shouldn't fund Forum, KWRS

By Mike Wendlandt

There are two issues the funding of Forum, and the ASWC's decision to fund Forum (the four middle-management positions at KWRS) concerning the proposed 81-82 ASWC budget, which seem to be getting a lot of attention. I'd like to look at these two issues separately.

First, there is the funding of Forum from ASWC fees. Personally, I think this is a great program and if anyone attempted to make any changes in the program I would fight hard against it. Forum is a strong program which provides the Whitworth community a chance to hear diverse opinions on current issues in the world. It also provides the College community with quality entertainment. Planned relaxation should be an integral part of the college program.

The two arguments I hear most concerning the funding of Forum from the ASWC are one, that if the ASWC doesn't fund it, it wouldn't be a quality program, and two, that ASWC does not have the money to fund Forum. I don't think it won't have any say in what happens in or to Forum. Perhaps because of these arguments, I think the last plausible for currently it is a structural aspect of the college that each and every committee or council has student representation. This is not giving a voice to students paying students, and thus deserve a say in what happens. I agree with this college decision and I will be quick to vote yes for the proposed increase in student representation.

Concerning the quality program issue, I want to say that that isn't a college's problem, not ASWC's. Yes, we are all part of the college, but when I pay my $45.00 in ASWC fees I expect it to go to student activities apart from the college administration. In my mind Forum is definitely part of the Academic program, and, as a tuition paying member of the college community I feel I have a right to help determine the quality of a program on which my tuition dollars are spent. I have this right apart from whether or not I have any say in the retention of any of my ASWC's particular programs, including Forum.

The other issue which has received a lot of public discussion is the decision to fund four middle-management positions at KWRS.

The ASWC has a commitment to keep KWRS on the air, and the budget committee has decided that this commitment can be kept without funding KWRS middle-management salaries. My feeling is that the ASWC is wrong in this decision then the ASWC has a responsibility to allocate money for these four positions. I suggest that we try staffing these middle-management positions with volunteer, off-campus students, and if it is found that the radio station won't go because of it, then we should re-evaluate the budget committee's recommendation.

It was the budget committee's recommendation that KWRS be given $3,500, which includes $1570 for a paid General Manager's position, plus they be given $1560 for a new production board. Obviously the budget committee does not feel at this time that pulling the salaries for four middle-management positions will cause KWRS to go off the air.

The opinions expressed on the editorial pages are not necessiarily those of the Whitworthian.

Amnesty International

By Dr. Laura Blochman

"Open your newspaper any day of the week and you will find a report from somewhere in the world of someone being imprisoned, tortured or executed because his political and religious beliefs are unacceptable to his government. There are several million people today, no means all of them behind the Iron or Bamboo Curtain, and their numbers are growing. The newspaper reader feels a sickening sense of impotence. Yet if these feelings are directed on the world level, common action, something effective could be done."

In an attempt at "common action," Whitworth's Peter Berenson, on May 28, wrote his campus parliament, "I will join him in a one year campaign for 'amnesty' for political prisoners worldwide."

The article, appearing in newspapers throughout the country, had a swift response. Thousands of people offered financial money, and concern for prisoners they did not know personally. An organization, Amnesty International, grew out of this outpouring of support for political prisoners. In 1977 Amnesty International was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. The organization is twenty years old, a global organization that still wishes it did not have to exist.

During these twenty years Amnesty International has grown. Groups in many countries exist to assist in freeing prisoners of conscience; those prisoners threatened with torture, execution, or who have been unlawfully detained. There are more than 2,500 adoption groups in 40 countries.

An Urgent Action Network works with governments to make on-site investigations into human rights violations. Twenty years ago human rights violations were virtually unheard of in newspapers. Today Amnesty is routinely quoted in many newspapers and radio and television programs concerning prisoners of conscience and widespread political oppression in general.

 Amnesty seeks to separate political prisoners into basic human rights. Amnesty does not, for example, consider communists in violation of human rights or if capitalists are. The organization states, there are fundamental human rights that all people, regardless of state, race, gender, or religious belief, Amnesty International supports the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights. This document states that governments have a responsibility to protect the human rights of their citizens, and that citizens, writing letters of concern, can change the world by lending support to the political prisoners they wish to release.

And so, what can we do? We can sign petitions, write letters to organizations, contribute money. We can all help the world be a better place.

"A Moral Proposal"

By John Paul

Editor's Note: The following is an excerpt from an essay presented to the members of Dr. Dean Ebner's essay writing course.

I need a social cause that I can work for, that will affect many people, and which will provide an opportunity for me to be a real "witness for the Lord." James Wright, the leader of Maryland's chapter of the Moral Majority is championing a social concern, for which I would be proud to work. It involves the banning of X-rated cookies from the bakeries of Maryland. Hopefully, it will soon become a national project to ban X-rated cookies everywhere. In late December, James Wright and his group, Mr. Wright's attention that a Philadelphia bakery was using gingerbread people who had parts that normal gingerbread people. He sent two minors to this bakery of ill repute; to see if it would sell them the naked cookies to juveniles. The two youths were successful in making the purchase. Then Mr. Wright attempted to have the owner of the bakery arrested. But in Maryland it is a misdemeanor to sell or display items representing humans with sex organs to minors. But he was rebuffed by the Annapolis police department and by the county state attorney's office.

On the television news, Mr. Wright made a statement that, "I cannot believe that there have not been many laws that have not been passed that would keep them from baking those X-rated cookies." I must confess that I agree with him. We have wasted too much time in this country passing laws that deal with drug paraphernalia, and now we waste time on so-called freedom of speech. It is time for us to refocus the goals of our country and make laws that will benefit the average middle-class family. Cookie baking would be a good start. Just think of the millions of unpromised people who go into, or pass by bakeries each day; they need to have guarantees that they will not be forced to see anything obscene. It is not enough that people do not want to see these disgusting cookies for parties, jokes, or as a novelty for a visiting friend. Those customers who purchase these unsightly sweets think they are fun. The bakery keeps their ginger-nudes covered with a large sheet of butcher paper marked "X-rated." Only adults who want to see them may do so, and they will not let people who are obviously eighteen buy one. But, "If someone comes in who is seventeen and a-half, they don't ask if they are eighteen," said Ms. Halter, the overseer of the bakery. "I don't think they need to card a person to sell a cookie."
I don't know how many of you seniors out there are spending the last month of college- and I almost wish I was one of them! May 17th I'm going to walk out those gates and have little ideas of where to go or what to do. I'm afraid of losing touch with friends. I don't think professionals or interesting test. I do tend to enjoy those seniors, but I'm not sure if I'm among English minor. I'm not reading part was called Whitworth so we'll be able to find my heart's desire. But that vision fades out and disadvantages of these, e.g., Peace Corps, VISTA, missions, and nuclear physicists all like reading and waterpolo. Waterpolo was a surprise. The dietician I'd like to meet, but as an English minor, the reading part was sorry to say, no great revelation. On job hunts, I've stumbled through some catalogues and consult the yellow pages.

I propose Whitworth offer an upper division course for last seniors called maybe, translation preparation, to explore the broad range of post graduate issues. First, the course would require seniors to understand a effective resume, writing techniques and to write a resume. Secondly, discuss the loneliness and desolation seniors disparaging, we will face and ways to get over this. Thirdly, research opportunities to the conventional job market and the advantages and disadvantages of these, e.g., Peace Corps, VISTA, missionary work. Fourthly, discuss graduate schools, who they are, for what good are they, and when one should consider them. Fifthly, discuss later life issues and take a hard look at area changing, marriage, divorce, and retirement options.

This course would advantageously consolidate the efforts of Student Life and the Chaplain's office, save money by enabling career planning office to be cut, and leave each student who graduates with resume in hand and understanding of his options to possibly avoid the floundering paralysis of indecision many seniors experience for years after college. It could be an attractive selling point for the school in recruiting new freshman, earn Whitworth revenue, as I and probably many other seniors would pay for such a course. I think Whitworth is the school's theme of concern for the whole life of the person.

Senior Panic

By Robert Livingston

I don't know how many of you seniors out there are spending the last month of college- and I almost wish I was one of them! May 17th I'm going to walk out those gates and have little ideas of where to go or what to do. I'm afraid of losing touch with friends. I don't think professionals or interesting test. I do tend to enjoy those seniors, but I'm not sure if I'm among English minor. I'm not reading part was called Whitworth so we'll be able to find my heart's desire. But that vision fades out and disadvantages of these, e.g., Peace Corps, VISTA, missions, and nuclear physicists all like reading and waterpolo. Waterpolo was a surprise. The dietician I'd like to meet, but as an English minor, the reading part was sorry to say, no great revelation. On job hunts, I've stumbled through some catalogues and consult the yellow pages.

I propose Whitworth offer an upper division course for last seniors called maybe, translation preparation, to explore the broad range of post graduate issues. First, the course would require seniors to understand a effective resume, writing techniques and to write a resume. Secondly, discuss the loneliness and desolation seniors disparaging, we will face and ways to get over this. Thirdly, research opportunities to the conventional job market and the advantages and disadvantages of these, e.g., Peace Corps, VISTA, missionary work. Fourthly, discuss graduate schools, who they are, for what good are they, and when one should consider them. Fifthly, discuss later life issues and take a hard look at area changing, marriage, divorce, and retirement options.

This course would advantageously consolidate the efforts of Student Life and the Chaplain's office, save money by enabling career planning office to be cut, and leave each student who graduates with resume in hand and understanding of his options to possibly avoid the floundering paralysis of indecision many seniors experience for years after college. It could be an attractive selling point for the school in recruiting new freshman, earn Whitworth revenue, as I and probably many other seniors would pay for such a course. I think Whitworth is the school's theme of concern for the whole life of the person.

Readers-write

To be in Christ Jesus

Dear Editor,

Our hearts are anguished by the apparent lack of respect for the Lord that is exhibited in the lives of many of the present and future students of Whitworth College. Why do so few take the demands of the Gospel seriously? It is true that we may do the take the social concern seriously, but even in this arena there are lapses. The open issues of these have come to a point that we must be guilty of their own right and have forgotten the one who called them to feed the poor.

If we are in Christ Jesus, we have been called to a life of purity without compromise (2 Cor. 7:1; 1 Thess. 4:7 & 8). Our answer is by faith and the grace of God, that is for sure, but faith without righteousness is for faith. Our good works are to be a witness to others of Christ, whom has saved us. (Matt. 5:16)

Some will say that the great majority of people will not allow our sins and that we are free in Christ. That is true, but we are not free to sin. Why? Because we are not free, from sin (Gal. 5:13).

And a home, and our friends in our neighborhood. We cheer at movies when a character is drinking abusively or in bed with a stranger. We watch at the exploits of certain dorms, and the reputation that is attached. These seniors, who claim to be Christian, whom has blessed with the opportunity to go to graduate school, who show their thanks in this way currently engaging in drunkenness. One of us recently sat at a dinner table that was occupied by "Stewart men" and had the privilege of listening to them. There was a fellow member of their restaurant who had a certain young lady within two weeks meeting of her life. What is the Christian life, we've been called to?

Brothers and sisters, it is time for us to consider the sins of ourselves and started calling sin, sin, as it was. The members of this community called Whitworth are faced with two futures: repent, and change our conduct, or stop calling ourselves Christians.

In His Love,

Doug McCleary
Kurt A. Roper

Whoopers

Dear Editor,

I feel compelled to address an issue raised by an article in the Tuesday's Spokane Chronicle. In the sports section, on the very top of a column of four columns, there was printed "Cranes matchups seen." An excerpt reads: "Wildlife officials are planning some mathematching to try to compensate for an apparent sexual imbalance in an experimental flock of that type in a rookery upstate.

Now, I have no bones to pick with conservationists. In fact, we all have our quirks. But I see no rational reason to choose a side. I believe that the wildlife is for somebody else in this day and age. If you were a whoop, would you want to be a "hybrid" or a "academic"? And who are you anyway? It's not a choice, it's a "hybrid judgment" on a flock of birds who are just living life being surrounded in today's society? "Apparent sexual imbalance." I believe in the collective sex-pages, an absolute gender.

We citizens must raise our voices to injustice! Let it be known that this paper will not stand idly and watch whooper freedom abused.

Sincerely,

Martin Sock

Best, con't.

all else with the kingdom of God (Mt. 6:33).

we will have had adequate food. In heaven Mike will have the strength to go to the bathroom on his own. In heaven there will be no cake, bread, and wine. In heaven the shuttle will be used to determine how we can better use ourselves and started calling sin, sin, as it was. The members of this community called Whitworth are faced with two futures: repent, and change our conduct, or stop calling ourselves Christians.

In His Love,

Doug McCleary
Kurt A. Roper

Whoopers

Dear Editor,

I feel compelled to address an issue raised by an article in the Tuesday's Spokane Chronicle. In the sports section, on the very top of a column of four columns, there was printed "Cranes matchups seen." An excerpt reads: "Wildlife officials are planning some mathematching to try to compensate for an apparent sexual imbalance in an experimental flock of that type in a rookery upstate.

Now, I have no bones to pick with conservationists. In fact, we all have our quirks. But I see no rational reason to choose a side. I believe that the wildlife is for somebody else in this day and age. If you were a whoop, would you want to be a "hybrid" or a "academic"? And who are you anyway? It's not a choice, it's a "hybrid judgment" on a flock of birds who are just living life being surrounded in today's society? "Apparent sexual imbalance." I believe in the collective sex-pages, an absolute gender.

We citizens must raise our voices to injustice! Let it be known that this paper will not stand idly and watch whooper freedom abused.

Sincerely,

Martin Sock
By joining the Army for certain specialties, you can now get part of your college debt forgiven.

Here’s how it works.

If you’ve attended college on a National Direct Student Loan or a Guaranteed Student Loan made after October 1, 1975, and qualify, the government can absolve you from 1/3 of your debt (or $1,500, whichever is greater) for each year you serve.

Obviously, a three-year enlistment would eliminate 100% of your debt. But if you want a shorter tour of duty, you can still receive 2/3 loan forgiveness with our two-year enlistment. (Only the Army can make this offer.)

Or you might consider serving in the Army Reserve. If you qualify, as a Reservist you can stay home, get paid for your active duty, and receive 15% loan forgiveness (or $500, whichever is greater) for each year of service.

And if you ever want to go back to school, your Army enlistment will qualify you for thousands of dollars for educational assistance. On top of that, you might even qualify for a generous Army educational incentive. (And you’ll still receive loan forgiveness.)

So if your dream is to go to grad school, today’s Army can help you get out of debt and into grad school in just a few years.

Of course, with your education, you can probably qualify to start at a higher rank and pay grade. (And, later, there may be opportunities for promotion.)

Remember, only the Army can offer you such comprehensive benefits for such a brief enlistment.

To find out how you can serve your two years, call 800-421-4422. In California, 800-252-0011. Alaska and Hawaii 800-423-2244. Ask for the name of the Army’s college representative nearest you.

ARMY. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.
By Laura J. Mader

Whitworth has made it to the small screen. Those of you possessing a T.V. with a hook-up to the CABLE System can tune into channel 15-19 and occasionally see a Whitworth logo superimposed on the beginning and end of an educational program. You may even see a couple of familiar faces on some show in the future.

Whitworth signed an agreement with several other local colleges and universities last year that established the Cable Advisory Board for Learning and Education (CABLE). The purpose of the group is to create guidelines for access to educational channels, develop programs and inform the public of what is available for viewing. The program has been rented from companies so far, but there are plans for student and faculty produced material when the equipment is made available. A portion of the Whitworth Seminar Center (old music building) will house the production facilities. A cable hook-up is to be sunk by September to enable viewing on campus.

Dr. Tom Kirkpatrick, head of the music department, is currently the chairperson for the Cable Advisory Council, an organization developed to determine goals and objectives of the College's activity with cable television. With this progress will there be tele-courses in the near future?

Kirkpatrick: Yes. We plan to coordinate at least one course among the colleges that material may be used by each institution in the same term by next fall. We're going to begin coordinating programs by then so that we can have courses taught in a combined way by other institutions for the 1982-83 school year. After a cooperative course has been taught within the CABLE consortium, we'll have a workshop with faculty and staff of all schools to plan further cooperative efforts.

Whitworth: What schools are involved?

Kirkpatrick: Eastern, Fort Wright, Gonzaga, the Inter-collegiate Center for Nursing Education, North Idaho College, Spokane Catholic Schools, Washington Community College District 17, and WSU.

Whitworth: How far away from locally produced programs is Whitworth?

Kirkpatrick: We have interest in working with the cable advisory board to help Whitworth, Fort Wright and the Public Library initiate their cable programs. Unfortunately, funding that would provide her salary was denied for next year, so she will be leaving Whitworth at the end of June. A student will take over her duties as Cable Television Coordinator.

She is credited with the introduction of cable T.V.'s many possible uses on campus and she is leaving behind a functioning body of people to carry on participation in CABLE.

Whitworth: How might cable T.V. be utilized by Whitworth?

Paula Thomson: Cable leaves you open to a wider range of available material. There's a lot of programs that are geared to the specific needs of Whitworth. It would be great to see the Communications department expand from radio and paper to video format, putting together journalistic programs. Cable could be part of not only the student's lives, but also the faculty's lives, their teaching, the library as an information storehouse, and the administration as a PR tool, making people aware that Whitworth exists.

Preparations for fall term '81 are nearing completion. For the past year and a half, three Whitworth professors—Dr. Dean Ebner, Dr. Roger Mohllang, and Dr. Bruce Murdock—along with T.A. Glenn, Terrell, and '36 fellowship have attended orientation classes in preparation for an entire term to be presented by a British Isles tour. The tour will consist of three 14-hour courses: the literature, religion and history of England, Scotland, and Wales.

With this spring's orientation meetings winding to a close, the immediate planning of the group is almost at a high point. In order to familiarize ourselves with Britain's culture before the trip, students will complete many of the reading and research assignments during the spring. This will also cut down on the amount of books that will have to be 'shipped around.' Britain for three months.

Phase one of the study-tour is being led by Dr. Dean Ebner, professor of English. His course is entitled "Literary England." The group will be exploring London, visiting museums and monuments, as well as visiting the homes of famous British authors such as Milton and Keats. This course will be highlighted by a two-day "Literary London" through such places as the English Lake District, the威尔士, and North-west Wales. The course will conclude with a one-week homestay in Cheltenham.

Dr. Roger Mohllang, professor of religion, will take charge during the second month, leading the course "Christianity in the United Kingdom." This course will also be exploring London, visiting museums and institutions, such as Shakespeare's Globe. The course will be highlighted by a 12-day "Literary London." Through such places as the English Lake District, the WELSH, and North-west Wales. The course will conclude with a one-week homestay in Cheltenham.

Dr. Maria Bresnahan, professor of history, will take over in the third month, leading the course "Religion and the State in Britain." This course will also be exploring London, visiting museums and institutions, such as Shakespeare's Globe. The course will be highlighted by a 12-day "Literary London." Through such places as the English Lake District, the Welsh, and North-west Wales. The course will conclude with a one-week homestay in Cheltenham.

The tour will reconvene at London for the final phase. Topics in British History, led by Dr. Bruce Murphy. From this course, the group will study British history in its entirety, ranging from early history and the Vikings to Medieval Britain, the Puritans, the British Empire, and the Enlightenmen.

The highlight of the course will be exploring London, visiting museums and institutions. The group will then return to London and will enjoy a week-long term break in which they will be given free reign to explore the continent on their own.

The tour will reconvene at London for the final phase. Topics in British History, led by Dr. Bruce Murphy. From this course, the group will study British history in its entirety, ranging from early history and the Vikings to Medieval Britain, the Puritans, the British Empire, and the Enlightenmen.

The highlight of the course will be exploring London, visiting museums and institutions. The group will then return to London and will enjoy a week-long term break in which they will be given free reign to explore the continent on their own.

The tour will reconvene at London for the final phase. Topics in British History, led by Dr. Bruce Murphy. From this course, the group will study British history in its entirety, ranging from early history and the Vikings to Medieval Britain, the Puritans, the British Empire, and the Enlightenmen.

The highlight of the course will be exploring London, visiting museums and institutions. The group will then return to London and will enjoy a week-long term break in which they will be given free reign to explore the continent on their own.

The tour will reconvene at London for the final phase. Topics in British History, led by Dr. Bruce Murphy. From this course, the group will study British history in its entirety, ranging from early history and the Vikings to Medieval Britain, the Puritans, the British Empire, and the Enlightenmen.

The highlight of the course will be exploring London, visiting museums and institutions. The group will then return to London and will enjoy a week-long term break in which they will be given free reign to explore the continent on their own.

The tour will reconvene at London for the final phase. Topics in British History, led by Dr. Bruce Murphy. From this course, the group will study British history in its entirety, ranging from early history and the Vikings to Medieval Britain, the Puritans, the British Empire, and the Enlightenmen.

The highlight of the course will be exploring London, visiting museums and institutions. The group will then return to London and will enjoy a week-long term break in which they will be given free reign to explore the continent on their own.
New students this year are returning to work at many of these places where other students have served in the past, and Diakonia is always looking for new places that need students willing to serve. A couple of the new places where students are being sent this year are: Nellie Campbell Farm in Yakima and the Missions of Charity in the South Bronx.

Some students independently select and serve in various areas of mission, but do it with the support of the Diakonia program. This year, two of the first things students were warned about by Dean Ehner was the confusing traffic system in Britain. Lessons in traffic safety were given to the students who are not used to "driving on the wrong side of the road." The group will also learn to adjust to drinking a lot of tea and relaxing in the slower pace of life that Britain offers.

Ehner, a veteran British study tour guide, commented on the British view of Americans. He says that our generation is well-equipped with God's spiritual armor and our courage is essential element for maintaining spiritual concern and social ethics. Other participants in the service include Dr. Howard Redmond, Dr. Phil Eaton, Dr. Bruce Murphy, Tammy Reid, Kaye Via Mickelson, and Dr. Ross Bontier. Students are James Oyzer, Mark Watson, Mark Jennings, Pam Corpron and Monty Mathias. A group of seniors will perform "A Simple Song" sung by Mitch Watney and milled by Tilly Frost.

The Diakonia team consists of a group of seven seniors under the direction of Lorraine Robertson. This year's service focuses on the theme of Courage and Dr. Ron White will present the address entitled "Take Courage." The theme expresses a paramount necessity for graduating seniors to summon courage in order to cope with a rapidly changing and volatile world. Courage in the context of the address is not sentimental but a tough-minded courage.

The study tour promises to be an exciting one filled with new learning experiences. One of the first things students were warned about by Dean Ehner was the confusing traffic system in Britain. Lessons in traffic safety were given to the students who are not used to "driving on the wrong side of the road." The group will also learn to adjust to drinking a lot of tea and relaxing in the slower pace of life that Britain offers. Ehner led the 1978 Whitworth tour, Mohrland did his doctoral work at Oxford, and Mark Warfield led a study-tour with another college group. Teacher's Aide Glenn Terrell, a Whitworth graduate, will spend the entire three months with the students. He has also traveled in Britain on his own.

Ehner's goals for the trip are "to share with the students in the experience-to introduce them to the sights and experiences of Britain."

Poetry reading, concert

The fifteen members of the Phi Eaton's Poetry Writing class will be topping off the semester tomorrow evening with a poetry reading of their original works. The American students have worked hard all semester to improve their poetry writing skills, partly in preparation for this meaningful event. Come and spend an enjoyable hour with these budding poets of the future. The reading will be in the HUB Blue Lounge at 9 p.m. Tuesday, May 5.

Computer caper

Computer operators at the University of California, Santa Cruz were mystified one day last February when the campus operators failed to respond to attempts to "log in," or turn on, the system. Hours later, computer center personnel realized their security system had been cracked by four students who couldn't help bragging about their caper.

The student began by obtaining the master password for the system from an undisclosed "source," then changed it, indicated that no one else could log into the computer. They then set about inserting personal and sometimes "obnoxious" notes into faculty files. Computer center employee Pam Wyman calls the incident "more of a case of curiosity than malicious mischief," but some university officials considered the prank quite serious when they found themselves cut off from the registration, billing and budget information stored in the computers.

The security failure was discovered, Wyman recalls, "the center was shut down for three days while computer experts tried to figure out just what the students had done." The culprits were identified by the computer codes they had used to gain entry into the machine. At least two of the four students involved used their own personal code, while the master word, to log in. As of Monday, students had shown criminal intent, Computer Center Director Al Schlangen says no charges will be filed against the students. Instead the students have agreed to explain the details of their scheme to Schlangen so that he may take steps against it happening again.
news

SAC Offers Services

By Cindy Fries

Whitworth has many student affiliated services. One of the most active and unique is the Student Activity Center (SAC). The SAC offers many services to Whitworth students.

KWB, the student radio station, is supported by the students. The budget for the radio station is $60,000 each year. The SAC staff has been active in pursuing grants and other funding to support these programs.

The SAC also has a well-known Shuttle Service. This service has saved many people from wanting to walk in their shoes trying to reach the airport on time. Another SAC affiliated organization is the Wilderness Activity Center. For outdoor entertainment they rent everything from skis to canoes. They have been planning weekend trips for students all year.

The Women's Resource Center has been very active this year with many seminars, demonstrations and displayed information for women. They have dealt with women's issues and how to handle being a woman in today's society. They have many information sources, including a small lending library, information files, pamphlets and a referral service to community organizations.

Besides hosting these and other organizations, the SAC office is in charge of the five HUB managers to maintain the quality of these programs. They have been busy hiring the 1981-82 SAC staff and they are looking forward to a great year with many activities planned to serve the students of Whitworth.

One of the annual rites of spring at Whitworth college takes place when the ASWC Budget Committee presents next year's budget proposal amid comments and arguments. This year is no exception. Tom Cardle, chairman of the Budget Committee, presented the proposed 1981-82 ASWC budget to President's Council at their April 27 meeting. The Council, after gathering feedback from the dorms and the rest of the campus community, will vote on whether or not to accept the proposed budget at tonight's meeting.

If President's Council accepts the budget, it becomes final. If, however, they reject it, it will be sent back to the Budget Committee, who will listen to President's Council's suggestions and rework the budget. Once it has been reworked, President's Council must still pass it.

The Budget Committee is composed of old and new ASWC executives, four dorm presidents, and four students at large. According to Tom Cardle, they spent about 50 hours over a three-week period working on the proposed budget. Cardle also stated that he felt the Committee was unanimous in their support of the proposed budget.

The budgeting process begins with organizations making requests for ASWC funding. Then the Committee examines those requests to see if they follow the established guidelines and if they have broad student support. The organization gives a breakdown of how they plan to spend the money and the Committee takes it all into account before making a decision.

A big cut made this year concerns funding for the Forum, which the Budget Committee felt was something the college could do without. The $2,000 that in the past had gone towards supporting the Forum was now available for other organizations.

The most controversial cuts made concerned the media, namely the student radio station, KWRS and The Whitworthian. The Budget Committee eliminated all paid positions except for the editor-in-chief of The Whitworthian and the student manager of KWRS. All other positions, which in the past received a salary in addition to academic credit, will now receive only the credit.

The Budget Committee decided that the credit, plus the work and practical knowledge gained with on-the-job training were enough compensation for the hours spent working. Within the proposed budget there are quite a few increases in allocations for various organizations. Most of these have to do with club sports, namely soccer, softball, intramurals, and open recreation, where the gym is kept open for student use. In the cases of softball and soccer, most of the increase is for the provision of a coache's salary.

In addition to the proposed budget, the Budget Committee has approved certain long-term capital investments to be funded from the reserve account. Last year, Financial Vice-President Tim Cheek wrote letters to every department asking for suggestions for good long-term investments, something which would last over five years and would benefit the campus. He received over $300,000 in requests for everything from a science dome to lights for the tennis courts to a cable T.V. system. The Budget Committee approved five capital investments, which came to a total of $322,647. These investments are as follows: a new machine for the SAC offices ($1,695), goal posts ($300) and uniforms ($2,000) for the soccer team, a production board ($3,670) for the soccer team, a TV equipment in the HUB, including the Blue Lounge ($2,427) and the dance floor ($3,805) and an Edifover type-setting machine for The Whitworthian ($12,050) given with the contingency that The Whitworthian be a weekly paper by the year 1982-83.

These expenditures are as follows, and the SAC will be affected by them, so their success or failure is linked with that of the budget.
Sports

Regionals, Nationals, Next For Tracksters

by Hans Christenson

The Whitworth tracksters have begun to wind down on their season as district and regional competition approaches. Here is how the teams fared in the past couple of weeks.

At the Spokane Community College meet the weather was cold, wet and windy and the pole vault event was cancelled. Nonetheless Charlie Lewis took second in the high jump at 10'10 while Jay Hodge placed fifth at 10'24. Eric Kreuger set a personal record and took first in the discus with a throw of 157'2. Craig Dander took fourth in the 400 with a time of 51.0. "Craig could do well in conference in both the 200 and the 400, he just has to let the afterburners go and not hold back," said Coach Arnie Tyler. A lot of people didn’t compete including Doug Larson who sat out because of an injury.

For the girls, at S.C.C., Dana Betsch placed second in the 5000 while Laurie Flagg took first in the long jump, leaping 17'11. Carol Lewis ran well capturing second place in the 5000. Cathy Weber set a new school record in the high jump equaling her P.R. at 5'10.

On April 18 the team travelled to Ellensburg and better weather. Charlie Lewis ran a 10:06 steeplechase while Jeff Rahn ran 4:06 in the 1500. Craig Dande ran a 9:55 steeplechase and a 34:16.4 in the 10,000 which put him fifth in the conference in that event. Dave Williams ran a 50.8 400 and just missed making conference. Doug Larson had personal records in both the hurdles which he won in 15.0 and the discus with a throw of 120'.

In the women’s events at the Whitworth tracksters meet the weather was cold, wet and windy and the pole vault event was cancelled. Nonetheless Charlie Lewis took second in the high jump at 10'10 while Jay Hodge placed fifth at 10'24. Eric Kreuger set a personal record and took first in the discus with a throw of 157'2. Craig Dander took fourth in the 400 with a time of 51.0. "Craig could do well in conference in both the 200 and the 400, he just has to let the afterburners go and not hold back," said Coach Arnie Tyler. A lot of people didn’t compete including Doug Larson who sat out because of an injury.

For the girls, at S.C.C., Dana Betsch placed second in the 5000 while Laurie Flagg took first in the long jump, leaping 17'11. Carol Lewis ran well capturing second place in the 5000. Cathy Weber set a new school record in the high jump equaling her P.R. at 5'10.

On April 18 the team travelled to Ellensburg and better weather. Charlie Lewis ran a 10:06 steeplechase while Jeff Rahn ran 4:06 in the 1500. Craig Dande ran a 9:55 steeplechase and a 34:16.4 in the 10,000 which put him fifth in the conference in that event. Dave Williams ran a 50.8 400 and just missed making conference. Doug Larson had personal records in both the hurdles which he won in 15.0 and the discus with a throw of 120'.

In the women’s events at

South to Assist Football

By Debbie Reinwand

As the Whitworth track, tennis and golf teams are winding up their seasons, the 1981-82 football team is getting in shape for the fall.

Helping the Pirates train for the upcoming season is Assistant Coach Doug South, from Whittier, California. South is not a newcomer to football, having played at Lowell High School in Whittier where he was team captain. South also ran varsity track for five years and was voted Most Inspirational by his teammates.

He is a veteran of several colleges including Rio Hondo Junior College where he played for two years as a defensive back, and Azusa Pacific where he was a linebacker.

South received a degree in P.E. from Los Angeles State University in June of 1980, then went on to coach the offensive and defensive lines at Pioneer High School in Whittier. He also taught there, last semester, before being hired at Whitworth. In addition to coaching football, South is currently a Resident Advisor in Carlson Hall, and will fill that position in Goodsell next year.

South is looking forward to next year and has enjoyed his first semester at Whitworth. "So far my experience at Whitworth has been a good one not only with the students, but with the teachers," he said. South also has high hopes for the football team. "I feel we'll have the material to be a great team next year," he concluded.

---

Hang in there!

Outward Bound is more than a trip of high adventure. It’s discovering yourself. Learning that you’re better than you think you are. And finding out how to work with others.

Come join us on a 3-week trip of excitement and self-challenge. You may come back a better you.

Outward Bound, Dept. CH, 304 Field Point Rd., Greenwich, CT 06830.

Home toll free (800) 343-8520.

No experience necessary. Outward Bound admits students of any sex, race, color and national or ethnic origin. We are a nonprofit organization. Scholarships available.

KWSR belongs To You

---

Dr. H.E. Bock

NATURAPATHIC MEDICINE

Bland’s Beth Hansen

Ancient Natural Healing Traditions

Resident program: 2-year naturopathic and acupuncture study for state qualified physicians.

For further information call (609) 416-6015.

---

The Whitworthian Monday, May 4, 1981 Page 9
Baseball Team Leads Division

By Jeff Thomas

As the Pirate baseball team prepares to head down the final stretch of regular season play they find themselves riding atop their division—but not by much.

After opening league play with three wins the Bucks traveled to Williamette and split a double-header. In game one Bus pitcher Scott Ramsey gave up three runs under opposing runs in the first inning. He pitched Dave Frigaard got the win, throwing his third complete game. Back in Spokane on April 14, the Pirates played highly ranked EWU even until the Eagles scored three runs in the tenth inning to win 9-6. Joey Kenney was one of four Pirate pitchers to see action. Also Mark Skubinna and Kurt Krauth did the offensive work, collecting four hits apiece.

On April 17 the Pirates went to Walla Walla to take on the Whitman Missionaries. Teammates congratulate Mark Lehman after home run. The rest of the way and was helped out by Mark Lehman’s home run, but the Bucks lost 4-3 on a base hit in extra innings. In game two pitcher Dwayne Haun won his second game of the year in a 2-0 shutout.

The Pirates completed the Oregon trip the next day with their sixth straight victory over Pacific in the last two years, winning 8-3.

Pitcher Dave Frigaard won his fourth straight game in a 15-8 slugfest. The next day was filed with controversy as the Bucks dropped a double-header to the Whitman team. The first game ended 4-3. "The umpiring was beyond reasonable," stated coach Dave Vaughn. In the second game the Pirates were leading 2-1 when Vaughn ran out onto the field to protest a call. He was ejected, and, fifteen seconds later, the game was ruled a forfeit. "I just told the ump what a joke this was," said Vaughn. "I had to defend my players."

On April 22 Dave Frigaard lost his first game of the season in an impressive team performance against second-ranked nationally Lewis & Clark State College. Mark Shockman kept the Bucks in the game with a grand slam home run. The Pirates were on their home field for two games with Linfield on April 29. They took the first game 9-5, for Joey Kenney’s first win of the season. Linfield won the nightcap 5-4, handing Dwayne Haun his first loss this season. The next day, hosting Williamette, Dave Frigaard continued his winning, boosting his season record to 5-1 in an 11-7 victory. Lehman’s fourth and fifth home run of the season and Shockman’s fourth homer paced the Bucks offensively.

At Gonzaga April 28 the Pirates out hit their opponents fourteen to twelve but came up short, losing 9-5. Lehman and Mark McGowan combined for seven hits. Ramsey, Kenney and Jeff Leavitt all pitched for the Pirates.

This far in the season Lehman has been leading the team with a .366 batting average. Krauth, right behind at .386, is doingin on the school record for hits in a season. Also keeping the offense have been McGowan (.310), Skubinna (.305), Bob Mandeville (.305), Steve McDonald (.305) and power hitting freshman Mark Shockman.

The last seven games are crucial ones for the Pirates. Now 8-4 in league play, their upcoming opponents are Lewis and Clark (6-5), Linfield (6-5), and a final home stand against PLU, who is right next to the Bucs at 7-5. "The key to winning the rest of our games is to help get him pitching," said Vaughn. "It has been a strength so far, and we’re counting on it to carry us through."

Pirates Loaded With Catchers

By Jeff Thomas

Pirate Baseball coach Dave Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.

In order to make room in the lineup for newcomer McGowan, Vaughn has found himself in a unique situation this season. Through some good recruiting he landed Mark McGowan, a talented and experienced catcher. The unique part is that he already had on his team one of the finest catchers in the area, Mark Lehman.
Pirate Women Breeze To Conference Title

By Barry Adams

The Whitworth women's tennis team breezed to a 4-0 conference record to win their fourth straight title. The undefeated conference singles play are number two Karen Smith and number five Julie Snodgrass, both are 9-0. Number one Kelly Rice and number four Laurel Morley are 8-1, and number three Becca Sexton is 7-2. In doubles action, number two Smith and Sexton, and number three Morley and Laurie Lund have unblemished records. The number one team of Rice and Snodgrass have dropped only one contest.

The netters are scheduled to meet EWU a team they lost to earlier in the season, in a non-league encounter and their final regular season match. The Pirates are shooting for the regular tournament May 6-9 in Ashland, Oregon. The winners at regions travel to the national tournament. The women are hoping to improve on their third place finish last year.

number one player-Kelly Rice summed up the Pirate's hopes: "I hope to bring home some hardware."

Karen Smith is one of two undefeated Pirates this year.

Outward Bound Set

Over 8,000 men and women, both adults and students will take part in unique program called "Outward Bound", this year. Designed so that participants will meet challenging experiences in wilderness settings at all times of the year, Outward Bound courses take place in sixteen states and can go far ahead as Canada or Nepal. While many come to Outward Bound seeking a taste of high adventure, and they'll probably get it, most will leave with a new understanding of themselves after discovering they are capable of doing things they might have previously thought impossible. Outward Bound believes many limits are self-imposed.

Backpacking, mountaineering, canoeing, skiing, skiing, snowshoeing, sailing, cycling, equestrian, and even caving are the core of the Outward Bound experience, depending on the environment in which the course takes place. Previous outdoor skills may be necessary, as is special equipment other than personal clothing and boots. Each small group of students has one or more expert instructors and specialists, who help them develop outdoor and interpersonal skills, culminating in a "final expedition," with minimal instructor supervision, relying on what they've been learning during the course. Academic credit is often available, as is financial aid based on need. In addition, several Outward Bound schools offer no-interest tuition loan plans, some for up to three years.

Outward Bound courses are offered year-round and last from 5 to 26 days. For information, write Outward Bound, Inc., 584 Field Point Road, Greenwich, CT 06830, or call toll free 800-243-8520.

Golfers End Season

The Whitworth golf team completes its schedule this Thursday and Friday with the district meet, to be held at SunRide Golf Course in Yakima. Last week the Pirates competed in two tournaments. On Monday and Tuesday they competed in the Northern Conference championship at Blue River Oregon.

McGowan, Lehman, continued

Lehman last year developed into a consistent power-hitter for the Bucs. He sees the coming of McGowan as "a blessing to himself and to the team. I like to play every day, but it's senseless to try to catch every game if you don't have to. This way we can both keep sharp and not cost the team."

As co-captain, Lehman views his role on the team as that of a supportive leader to the younger players. "I just try to give some Christian leadership to my teammates and follow the lead in my playing,” he says. "I want to do whatever I can to meet the needs of the team."

Lehman's feelings portray an attitude that he says is team-wide. "All of the players are very supportive of each other. Our team has a unity that, with all the talent we've got, we'll take the district championship. In fact, he adds that "with the competition we've given nationally ranked teams, there's no reason we shouldn't be going to nationals in the next few years."
Graduation Nearing! Latest from Latin America

By Cindy Pless

This year’s commencement will be held with the annual Honors Forum on May 7 in the auditorium. The Forum will be emceed by Tom Hoback. Saturday, ticket-selling activities will take place, starting with a mini-course in Bob Crowe at 11 a.m., followed by a drama production produced by Theatre Arts instructor Pat Shinn, in Sealey Mudd Chapel at 11 a.m. A picnic, the loop complete with strolling musicians, will take place at noon in the loop. Tickets are $2.50 and students holding meal cards will be admitted free of charge. Also at noon, there will be a fifty-year-reunion luncheon in the East Red Room, Levin Dining Hall. At 2 p.m, the Whitworth Continental Directions, directed by Dr. Richard Evans, will perform the lunchoutstanding.

The commencement banquet will be at the Davenport Hotel at 6 p.m., with a reception in the Isabella room at 5 p.m. It is requested that all seniors make their reservations soon at the Alumni Office upstairs in the administration building. The banquet will feature a one-act play by Bob Crowe, a slide presentation of the senior Madrigal group and the presentation of the “Alumni Ideals Award.” Tickets are $9.25 for seniors, $10.25 for all others.

The following day, May 17, will begin at 9:30 a.m. with Baccalaureate in Cowles Auditorium. The speaker will be Dr. Ronald C. White, Jr., professor of religion.

Commencement will begin in the Whitworth Fieldhouse with the Rev. Donn Monson from the Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles, CA, as the honored speaker. Other speakers include Robin Mills and Tim Low. Lowell and Jody Drew will read the scripture and the senior choir, directed by Scott Cowles and Rick Yaramatul, will perform two numbers during the program.

Upon graduation, the students will be graduating with an AAA listing in the Whitworthian.

By Kim Pedersen

The conclusion of the spring semester signals the end of the 1981 Latin America study-tour. The group will return to Seattle May 13 so that seniors in the group will be able to attend graduation.

The group spent a month developing relationships and agricultural programs on several Mexican ranches and attended seminars in Mexico City.

Since communication between the U.S. and the U.S. is rather slow (letters take 7-12 days to arrive here) the latest reports from members of the group were of their experiences in Honduras. Tammi Watson wrote, “Life certainly has a different appearance here, but it seems everywhere in the world there are good people who love each other and work hard to make life worth, i.e. work, diversion, rest, food, and spiritual input... “I’m learning so much,” she continued. “Each day we get up at 5:00 a.m. and walk out into the fields to go to the bathroom—an outhouse is a luxury nobody can afford here—and then into the house to grind corn for the tortillas. I usually grind two hours and then take a break before going. Then we walk about 3/4 a mile over rocky steep trails to the river where we carry cans of water on our backs to the house—no running water here—everything we use we carry.”

…”Then we sweep the dirt floor and outdoor patio with straw brooms. This is quite a job because pigs, cows, horses, dogs, and chickens run freely around and through the house. Also, this people spend a lot of time fighting for their individual survival. I’ve sorta blocked out of my head hygienic ‘our kind’ and go for it...”

Coly Ingram wrote that he is “learning about other people and how they react to the Lord. The town I’m in is a real backwater... recently conservative Protestant missionaries have arrived, and about 200 adults have converted. The rest of the village has plenty of people who are interested in the new gospel... Tammi and I are working on getting at least one group of people to study the Bible regularly. Maybe I’ll come out of this Honduran experience with a feel for missions, and a direction for my life relative to that.”

Lorrie Hungate described her Honduran village as ”a beautiful place in the mountains just one range of hills away from Nicaragua. It’s gorgeous up here with deep, jagged valleys, (Honduras means “The Depths”) red, earth, pines, and flowers everywhere.”

“This place really reminds me of what I know of Appalachia—the same level of poverty and ignorance. In our kingdom, half of the children look like they’ve come straight out of poster with their beautiful, big brown eyes and skinny bodies.”

In later letters, Lorrie described the things that are going o.k. here, as long as I can escape from this suffocating BOREDoom which keeps enveloping and strangling me. It’s not easy to keep enter­tainment more everyone else is just sitting around, staring into space, being bored to death. Last night I decided enough was enough, and taught the crew how to play Hangman—a big hit.”

---

Off to Scotland

Weekley Receives Scholarship

By Patti Demarest

While most Whit­worth students return to the pine cone green of home, Mark Weekley is embarking for the University of Edinburgh in Scotland, where he will spend his senior year. Mark recently received a university student scholarship from the International Rotary Founda­tion which will be serving as an unofficial ambassador while he studies his major in economics.

Among the fifteen ap­plicants for the scholarship, Weakley was chosen for his outstanding qualities of leadership, academic and public speaking. The scholar­ship includes travel, airfare, tuition, room and board, books and supplies. Educational travel expenses and spending money will be included. The scholarship is open to undergraduate and graduate students.

Weekley will be studying in Edinburgh. He plans to use his English skills by volunteering at the Whitworthian.

---

PREGNANCY CARE CENTER
24-hour Crisis Line
747-5648

TEACHERS WANTED

LIBERTY MOTEI
COURTESY - RELIABILITY - SATISFACTION
19 Mls. North of City Drive
Opposite K Mart Shopping Center & Bowling
On U.S. 365 165-2
19 MODERN AIR-CONDITIONED UNITS

- Direct Dial Telephones
- Cable TV
- Heat/cool Swimming Pool
- Telephones & Showers
- Kitchens
- LENNY & JEFF PEGENER
Owner-Managers
Phone (503) 482-8465

BOISE, IDAHO 99028

---

THE FLOWER HUTCH

10% Whitworth Discount for Graduation May 17th

N. 9111 Country Homes Blvd. 483-8593

---

THE WHEATON MONDAY, MAY 4, 1981 Page 12