TRADITIONS

Traditions comprise much of who we are. Without them, we could not have a foundation to build on. Whitworth, deemed from the beginning a Christian, liberal arts college, is steeped in tradition. From the more serious traditions of weekly chapel and faculty convocation, to the lighter customs of Saga-tray sledding and tennis ball golf, this college has passed down sits own rites over the century.

Like anything else, some traditions last intact through the generations, while others shift and change. Forrest Baird, professor of Philosophy, commented on the lighter tradition of pinecone catching, "Catching pinecones has gotten a lot harder since they cut the lower branches. You used to hear them falling, while now they free-fall for 60 feet. Maybe that's a sign of the 90's."

What we do with Whitworth's traditions is up to us. We make the transitions, by reviving old customs, like the Whitworth Fight Song, or by creating our own traditions, like observing Martin Luther King, Jr. Day as a school holiday.

Very often then, there is a fine line between tradition and transition. The two are intertwined, so together constitute what our school is like today. What we experienced this fall as Community Building Day, our Whitworth predecessors were experiencing at the beginning of this century. One hundred years ago, however, our ancestors were not living in co-ed dorms. This is a transition that will effect future students.

Looking back at Whitworth's tradition of triumphing over adversity makes it easier to endure the often difficult transitions the school is going through now. While declined enrollment and budget cuts have been catch-phrases in this new decade, Whitworth has maintained its vision and commitment to the future. As students this year, we have been caught in transition, often unwillingly. It is only through change, however, that growth and wisdom occur.

Traditions are the foundation behind this school, while transitions serve to move us along to even better ground. . .

Campus Cleanup

For over 80 years, Whitworth students have gotten out of classes for the day, and some have actually chosen to clean up the campus instead of sleeping. On Sept. 19th, the ASWC continued this tradition by sponsoring Community Building day.

"It is the longest existing tradition that we have besides the generic freshman initiation," said Professor Dale Soden, author of A Venture of Mind and Spirit: An Illustrated History of Whitworth College.

"Community Building Day is a day set aside for faculty, staff, administration and students to collectively reinstate campus pride; create ownership of campus surroundings and grounds; and foster a greater sense of campus-wide togetherness," as described by the ASWC.

Trees were planted, bark was laid, pine needles were raked, and flower beds were weeded. The grand prize of $150 went to Ballard Hall, which had the highest percentage of resident participants and the largest number of faculty member involved in its cleanup. MacMillan Hall and Baldwin/Jenkins followed close behind.

Jane Lucas, president of Ballard, contributed their victory to their small size. "More enthusiasm can be installed in a smaller dorm. In larger dorms people may not be noticed if they don't show up," she said.

Approximately 65 percent of the students residing on campus and 35 percent of the faculty participated, according to ASWC Vice-President Debbie O'Brien.

Next year, O'Brien said she hopes there will be some improvements. "I hope the whole community gets involved; including off-campus students and all of the faculty," she said. Chaplain Doug Dye, who helped with the cleanup, would like to see something more ambitious done. "Something more major like building a house." he said. *-Hilary Hoffman and Holly Grimm. Knowing God's Wheel

It was September 28, a sunny fall afternoon that found approximately 120 students gathered outside the HUB armed with sleeping bags and other miscellaneous retreat gear. Some found cars to ride in, while the rest of the crowd experienced the bonding of a packed bus. Heading north to Camp Spalding, the caravan traveled about 30 miles to Davis Lake, the setting for their meaningful weekend ahead.

The speakers, Hope and Harry MacDonald, focused their message on "Knowing God's Wheel" - the different aspects of living in the Christian faith. As Derek Richman stated, "It was truly a blessing to have two superior speakers. All weekend they preached the Word of God, told of Christ's gift to humanity, and presented ways in which Christians can grow closer to the Lord."

"They were dynamic and inspiring; teaching with depth and insight of some disciplines essential to becoming a Christian on the move," added Todd Holdridge.

Students heard seminars from various Whitworth faculty, namely Pat Stien, Mike Ingram, Gail Fielding, Doug Dye, and Dale Soden. The seminars offered insight on Faith Journeys, Becoming More Christ-Like, Friendships, Meditation, and life after Whitworth.

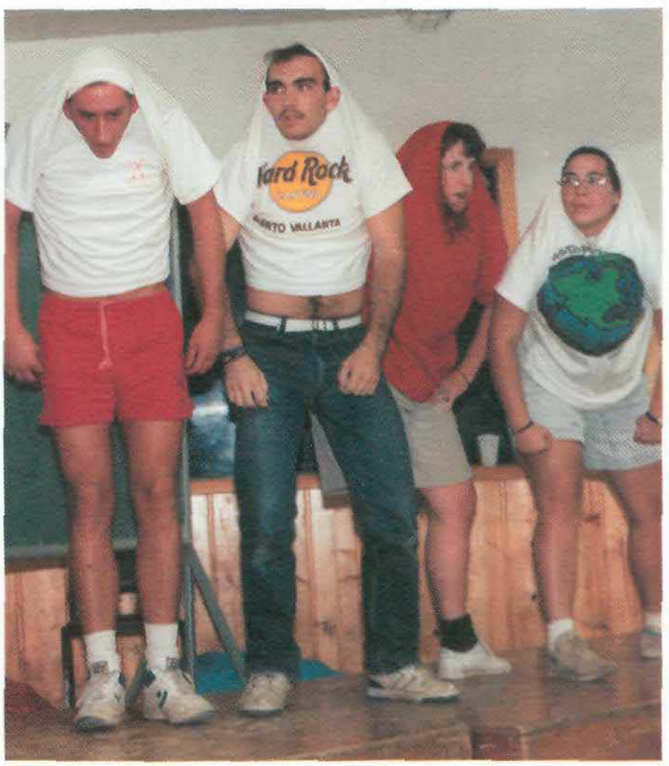
Engulfed in the beauty of God's creation, students worshiped and celebrated with a deeper understanding of their own personal relationships with Christ. Holdridge remarked, "Many hearts were touched, redirected, and brought to commitment in following the ways of our Lord."

Students also experienced the love of God in the laughter and fun of The Weekend. They canoed, hiked, played volleyball, sang, played games, and laughed at the Grand Finale- The Saturday Night Talent Show. The show featured everything from skits to stupid human tricks, where Doug Dye, our very own Chaplain, wowed the crowd with his uncanny ability to belch on command.

For some, The Weekend retreat was simply a great way to relieve stress. As Freshman Jenifer Kyremes put it, "It was so nice to get off campus and away from the pressures of school and just have a chance to talk with people one-on-one."

Overall, it was a valuable weekend for everyone involved. - Julie Litchfield. Photos by Jean Elliott, Brian Scott, and Jennifer Schiro.

SAILING AWAY- John Dierdorff and Brian Boyd take a leisurely sail on Davis Lake.



PROUD RAISINS- Derek Richman, Mark McIlraith, Kristy Parsons and Melissa Poe celebrate the joy of being Post Raisins in the Saturday Night Talent Show.

Building on the Foundation

CHANGING

In a world that constantly changes, we often cling to the familiar, the old, the never-changing traditions that make our foundations. Behind the Pinecone Curtain, we have created unity among the new and the old, working for the harmony that is our basis.

Initiation is as old as new students. Through the years, we have given new members of the Whitworth community a welcome with activities like they have never seen before. From ugly ties, to ice buckets, to marching drills, the unique traditions that comprise Initiation have carried on from year to year. In between, each group of students has added their own special twists to meet the demands of trends, as well as the demands of our own administration. This year saw the addition of new songs, as well as a less physical approach to initiation activities. A new attitude came, and initiation regained its popularity as being good, clean fun.

Homecoming, another longstanding tradition at Whitworth, has also carried traditions through its many transitions. Always a football game followed by a formal occasion, it has entertained many generations of Whitworth students. The change from Homecoming being comprised of a dinner with faculty and students, to the formal dance which came about thirty years ago, revealed Whitworth's concession to the trends brought in by rock and roll. The recent addition of a casino room complete with gambling tables again changed the face of the Whitworth Homecoming.

Through repeated traditional activities, as well as changes in keeping with the times, Whitworth has maintained unity in purpose and spirit keeping its unique stature behind the Pinecone Curtain. -Elouise Nelson Staff Photography

Traditions Return

This year Whitworth brought back traditions that had been missing from past Homecoming events. A homecoming court was one of the traditions that was lost over the years. This year's court included princesses Tiffany Turner (freshman), Meg Hansen (sophomore), and Kim Thompson (junior); and princes Tony Figuira (freshman), Eric Ludy (sophomore), and Greg Clady (junior). This year's queen was senior Lynn Ransburg, joined by senior Greg Orwig as king.

During halftime, five alumni became the first members to be inducted into the New Heritage Hall of Fame. The members are Dr. Sam Adams (1952), Whitworth's winningest football coach; Amy Haydon (1985), a three-time All-American volleyball player; Dr. Norm Richardson (1939), Whitworth's first recipient of All American, which he won for football;Ray Washburn (1961), the winning pitcher for Paul Merkel's 1960 NAIA championship Baseball Team; and Dr. Dave Weyerhauser, a 50 year member of the board of trustees.

Women's Soccer started the weekend sports events by beating crosstown rival Gonzaga 4-0. The Men's Soccer Team shut out Lewis and Clark 5-0, while the Volleyball team won three games. The main event took place Saturday at 1:30 in the Pinebowl, as the Whitworth Football Team defeated Pacific University by the score of 24-12.

On Thursday night, judges went by and viewed the decorated dorms. Each dorm was given an international theme. Warren Hall, which finished first, transformed itself into the cities of Rome, Paris, and London. Arend Hall's recreation of Cairo won second. Madrid, Spain appeared in red and black in Baldwin-Jenkins, while Mac and Ballard put together their version of Africa: Nairobi and Kenya.

The form floats paraded around the track at halftime, presenting their themes. Arend Hall took first with their imitation of Egypt. Second place was taken by the smoking volcano of Stewart Hall, with Mac and Ballard taking third with their ceremonial hunt of Pacific Universities mascot, the Boxer. "The float was fun. It isn't often I get to stand in the cold with a towel and a stick, yelling at the top of my lungs," stated Jeff Carlson, a member of the hunting team of Mac Hall. *-Jim Powers. International Flair

New York's Club Pseudo-52: "Come on and do the Humpty Dumpty." Nightlife on the French Riviera: "Place your bets, ladies and gentlemen, place your bets." The Tiki Lounge: "Shake it up baby now, shake it up baby, twist and shout!"

Whitworth Homecoming 1990: a "Black Tie Affair with International Flair," as the planning committee billed it. Held at the Ag-Trade Center in downtown Spokane along the river, it truly was an event with flair. The participants were greeted with a red-carpet entrance, trimmed with flags from around the world. Once inside, signs at the doors of each bay welcomed the party-goers to an exotic and exciting locale: a New York City nightclub, a casino in Monte Carlo, and a Tahitian beach party.

But the dance itself was not the only thing on the night's agenda. Most had sampled local Spokane restaurants before finally arriving at the planned festivities. Among them were: Luigi's, Cyrus O'Leary's, C.I. Shannigan's, Patsy Clark's, and some even at traditional favorites like Taco Bell.

Some different impressions of the evening were very interesting. Shaunie Beaty, junior, said,"I liked the variety - Top 40 as well as oldies by a live band and a casino. It accommodated a lot of desires."Junior Any Davies commented, "The dance was great. The people were what made it fun." "The whole idea of Homecoming was a great arena to exercise our most creative and romantic notions. And I had the longest (26 ½ hrs.) date in Whitworth history." said Dolly Cooke, junior. Her date for the evening, Alan Jackson, freshman, went on to say, "When I ran out of money at the gaming tables, I was aghast when they refused to take my date in trade for Roulette chips. I had expected at least $500 for her."

As anyone could obviously see, it was an evening enjoyed by all. Whether it was the traditional formal date or the wacky and creative, so often found in the collegiate atmosphere, it was an event not soon to be forgotten. -Staci Baird. Photos by Tia Newman.

PARENTS' WEEKEND

Molly Griffith and her mom share a smile at a performance of the production "South Pacific".

Excited about the upcoming musical, Robyn Brebner and her mom peruse the program.

Coming Together Again

Parents' Weekend followed in the tradition of being a bonding time for both parents and students. Not only was it a time for parents to check for dust in dorm rooms, refuel laundry quarters and closets, and experience eating a meal in the cafeteria, it provided them a glimpse of how their son or daughter is adjusting to the transitions of college life.

The weekend officially began Saturday morning, with a welcome brunch served in each dorm. Following the brunch was a series of classes entitled the "Mini-Colleges." Many parents commented on the quality of the material presented, and their own inclusion in the classes. One parent commented, "I was very satisfied with the class I attended. It made the weekend a great bargain!"

Ron Pyle, a Communications professor, led a class entitled "Describing and Managing Interpersonal Conflict." He commented, "I picked a subject I knew parents could relate to. Conflict is important to understand and relevant in everyone lives. We had a great time."

Other opportunities during th weekend included Convocatio with President De Jong, th Whitworth/Lewis and Clark footba game, and the drama productio "South Pacific." Freshman Alliso P. Brumback commented, "My pa ents went to every activity an loved it all. They couldn't sa enough good things abou Whitworth." -Kristen Nichelson Photos by Jean Elliott.

"The reason I wanted to be an R.A. was because the R.A. before me was someone I could relate to rather than a policewoman. The best thing about being an R.A. is being part of the staff and feeling supported by them." —Corinne Orlandini, R.A.

"I'm interested in street ministry and with this job it's a first step towards what I want to do. Interacting with people, dealing with personal problems . . . I'm doing it because I like interacting with people and helping them when they have problems." — Scott Duffey, R.A.

Sophomores Aaron Dunlap, Jimmie Post and Kyle Hurst win, lose and have a great time at the Greyhound Race Park in Post Falls, Idaho.

CAMPUS

Some of the off-campus activities students enjoyed included 7-11 runs and dinner at any number of Spokane area restaurants like, El Sombrero, better known as "The Hat," the Onion, the Spaghetti Factory, Taco Time, Zips, and Dick's. After dinner, for some students a movie was in order, especially at The Fox or The Garland, the two theaters where people could see a movie for $1.50 or even $1.

"I like to go to Spokane Chief Hockey games on the weekends," said sophomore Brigg Neilson. "The season goes from October to March, so it is a constant source of entertainment. The Chiefs are also a great team this year."

Other attractions included concerts such as Poison, Concrete Blonde, and Alabama. There were also off-campus performances put on by Whitworth students involving choir, ballet and band. Other students participated in activities such as skiing, walking the boardwalk in Coeud' Alene, rock climbing by the Indian Painted Rocks, ice skating, bowling and shopping downtown. Still others opted for conversation over coffee at places like Pleasant Blends.

"Sometimes I leave campus and go sit by the Spokane Falls and look at the stars, it's relaxing," said sophomore Brian Neal. "I also go to Rosauers and buy cookie dough and eat it on the way out of the store."

Excitement

A college student's worst nightmare is often no cash + no car = no fun, but don't despair, those who were confined to Whitworth's campus did manage to find some on-campus entertainment. According to Steve Appleby, a weekend spent on campus was not all bad. "It depends on who is with me- cards, computers, but always lots of music is involved. Also going to see any movie for a buck- that's always cool." "Economy is the key," said Kari Henderson. "Movies and dances are the best because they're only a dollar." Dorms sometimes put on their own programs. "I like watching the movies we rent and show in the dorm," said Jenny Ludlam.

But here is the ultimate question: What would you do if you were trapped in your dorm on a Friday night? Appleby: "Break out the chips and salsa!" Henderson: "Get a bunch of people and congregate in one person's room and socialize and eat all night long." Ludlam: "Grab some people and play a rousing game of dorm golf!"

ASWC

What do you like best about being a HUB manager? "Keys to the HUB; time to relax and enjoy talking to people; walking home around 1:00 am on a Saturday night." - Sira Sudhikam, HUB Manager

"The best part about being a HUB manager is the amount of peopl that you can meet while on duty. Whether people are here to watc football on Sunday, or are early for a play and are looking aroun campus reminiscing about how the campus has changed since the went to school at Whitworth 30 years ago." - Ron Knott, HU Manager

STAFF

"What a privilege and blessing to work with such bright, caring and challenging students." —Linda Yochum
ASWC Admin. Sec./ASWC Bookkeeper

"The amount of inspiration and education I receive daily from the students I work with barely surpasses the amount of ingenuity, creativity and fun that also comes from working with the student body. "Whitworth students grapple with tough campus issues, wrestle with problems of conscience and struggle with the avenues of how to build community at Whitworth. They win a few and lose a few of these battles, but they never seem to lose the lessons that are learned in the fight. It is for this reason that I consider myself extremely lucky to be working with such a high caliber of college students." —Dayna Coleman

The Executives: Debbie Slater, Debbie O'Brien, and Susie Chang.

The Executive branch of the Associated Students of Whitworth College (ASWC) has three elected positions; Financial Vice President, Executive Vice President, and President. Following are excerpts from interviews with these executives.

Debbie Slater, ASWC President:

Q: What do you love/hate about your job?
A: I hate my job because sometimes projects or ideas get caught up in a lot of red tape and results aren't as immediate as expected. You can please some of the people some of the time, but not all of the people all of the time. How true!
Q: Share the funniest thing that has happened to you in your job thus far.
A: Probably just the whole thing of two Debs being execs. There's been plenty of times that people have gotten us mixed up. I think it was T.J. Sims that started the Vanilla Debbie and Chocolate Debbie joke.

Debbie O'Brien, Executive Vice President:

Q: What do you find most interesting/unique about your job?
A: I love the people I get to work with, the daily challenges, the fact that I get to work with faculty, administration, and students about issues that are important to me!
Q: How do you feel about it being all women this year?
A: . . . I feel like there's more of an understanding and rapport between us and we like to hang out together. But I don't know if that's because we're women or because we just click.

Susie Chang, Financial Vice President:

Q: What do you find most interesting/unique about your job?
A: One of the most interesting things is the lack of precedence which this position holds. The financial complexities of ASWC have never been explained or written down anywhere so part of my job has been finding out how some of ASWC's financial procedures work and helping to devise new ones for future years.
Q: How do you feel about it being all women this year?
A: I think it's great! I've learned a lot from working with Deb and Deb and have also had a lot of fun. By working with Deb and Deb I feel we've built up a sense of comraderie which has added our leadership as a team.

What do you see as the main purpose of the Assembly? What do you see as a major accomplishment of the Assembly this year?

Shannon Wilson, Lancaster president: "I think the main purpose is bringing togethe ideas from the Whitworth community and representing all the different dorms and classes. A major accomplishment is spirit - one of the goals was to have spirit, and the Assembly has helped promote it in the student body."

Marc Thielman, McMillan president: "The Assembly is the means by which students can have some influence in student activities and issues that affect students. It is a way that students can get their opinions to people that have power. A representative accomplishment was the KWRS issue - a great deal of time and a lot of people go really involved. It was the best example of how the Assembly works; however, think the Christmas dinner for the Assembly was the absolute best thing."

Angie Fowler, South Warren president: "My main purpose is to represent the students in the dorm, and be their voice for campus decisions being made. (Accomplishments of the Assembly include) communication within the Assembly about the needs of students on campus, focusing on the financial situation, and making sure we know all the facts."

Making a Joyful Noise

The choir program at Whitworth is consistently amazing. There are three choirs: the Whitworth Choir and the Chamber Singers, both under the direction of Randi Von Ellefson; and the Chapel Singers, directed by senior Scott Davis.

The Whitworth Choir, probably the best known of the three, is a collection of approximately 75 very diverse people that make what Troy Reit calls, "one big, cohesive unit. There are people from all walks, with different ideas that all come together to praise God with one voice."

The Chamber Singers is a smaller group that met only fall term. They worked to add a special dimension to the Christmas program, "Born to Set Thy People Free."

During Jan and spring terms, a Jazz Choir met in place of the Chamber Singers.

The Chapel Singers practiced twice a week, and performed every Wednesday for Chapel.

When asked how she felt about choir, Shelley Ahrend replied, "The times I spend in choir are the times I feel closest to God."

Troy Reit agreed. "It's so powerful. The music reaches people who would never be reached otherwise."

BELLS

Ringing True Throughout the Year.

This year the Bell Choir livened the Whitworth community with a number of performances during Midweek worship, campus events and off campus events.

The Bell Choir is an open program that requires no formal audition for participation. Students give of their time and effort to make music on over 60 individual bells. In addition to their music, the Bell Choir has an effective outreach on campus.

This program displays the talent and dedication of its members and demonstrates a commitment to excel musically and reach out through involvement to the Whitworth community.

Freshman Tiffany Trollope looks on as bell jokes are cracked.

Christmas Week at Whitworth meant that students and faculty had a cial chance to become even closer to one another. The faculty wed their holiday spirit by singing Christmas carols in each of the ms. Another yuletide festivity was the cookie decorating party in the B where everyone had a chance to meet new people and to stuff their es--their own faces that is. Also, on the more serious side, there was a rly candlelight worship service in the chapel.

Shoot to Kill

'he Men's Basketball team certainly wasn't lacking in talented coaches or players. Warren Freidrichs, Head ıch of the Whitworth Pirate Men's Basketball team, had six years of coaching experience. Not only that but ıad two assistants to lead this team to victory; Arnold Brown, who has had a couple years of experience and t Clark who is a new addition to the coaching staff this year.

'his team was unique this year due to the abundance of freshmen players. When asked about this season's n, Coach Freidrich's reaction was positive. "Because of the past two years this year was a question mark. I 't like the term rebuilding because we are not starting over from scratch. I prefer to say that we are ading and maintaining the same level of play but with new members."

'he season got off to a slow start (5-6) and continued through the beginning of January. The team re- luated their goals and set their sights on being eligible for the N.A.I.A. championship in Kansas City. The n responded well and went on to improve their record to 16-7. Winning more games was important to 'shall Monteville who commented, "the most memorable experience I've had this season was beating ific Lutheran University in double overtime in Tacoma. (78-75)."

'The best things about being on the Whitworth Basketball team are the friendships you gain and competi- ness," commented Jason Hull. Freidrichs responded, "we are a very good team- our collective abilities are er than the parts." The amount of effort exerted is premium and they were very confident in each other and r abilities.

/hen asked, "how good is the team?", Freidrichs answered, I'm not sure how good we are. We are a well dis- ined group who accept roles very well; we don't care who gets it done but that 'we' get it done". With good rtsmanship and dedication it's no wonder with the Whitworth's Men's Basketball team has had an excellent ıson of winning. Design by Holly Grimm, photos by Bill Ginn and Gina Sorenson.

Season of Adjusting

This years women's team spent the first half of the season adjusting to each other. More than half of the players were new to the team this year.

"There were some problems at first because there were so many new players," Freshman Annette Sweeney said. "But it all got worked out. As a freshman coming in, I really enjoyed playing with this team. All of the people are great."

"The team does many things well on and off the court," Head Coach Juliene Simpson said. Simpson was proud of the fact that the average G.P.A. of the women was over 3.0.

In addition to working well together as a team, personal goals were also reached this season. Tara Flugel became the all time leading woman scorer at Whitworth, breaking the previous record. Beth Knutson also had a strong year, Simpson said. Knutson was the leading rebounder for the team. Simpson also credited Sweeney as an "upcoming impact player."

"We had a lot of new people and a lot of adjusting to do," Simpson said. "But it has been a good season." The team went to the play-offs for the second season in a row.

Last year, Whitworth's Mens' Cross Country Team finished third at the NAIA District I Championships held at Western Washington University, just one placing too high for a berth to the national meet held in Wisconsin. This year, though, it was the womens' turn to shine.

Freshman Stephanie Schenk said, "Getting to Nationals as a team was one of our goals." That goal was met as this year's team qualified for the national meet.

Their success was attributed to the workouts as sophomore Melanie Kosin explained, "This year, as a full team, we were able to push everyone at workouts, getting stronger, and everyone improved."

Not only were the workouts very helpful but friendships were an asset. Freshman Kebra Kendall said, "It was fun that we were all such good friends; we were really close."

Friendships also sparked among the men's and women's teams as freshman Joel Sather put it, "It was cool how the team was so close. I had a good time with 'the team'."

Individually, Whitworth's teams were led by sophomores Melanie Kosin and Jimmie Post, as they continually were first in for Whitworth. And as for next year, the womens' team will be back in full force, while the men will uncover two competitive redshirts to lead the way. Until the next cross country season begins, the teams will be running on . . .

r Jonn Moomaw rifles a long pass out to one of his ers.

A number of individuals gained district and national honors this year, but the team, as a whole, gained so much more· a season of wins and great accomplishments. The Whitworth Football Team finished the season with a record of 6 · 3. Sophomore Adam Brooks said that the season was excellent and that he saw a lot of positive changes take place. Other players agreed that there was better team leadership and better coaching this year. "The players were playing as a unit," said Brooks. "We were more as a team than as a bunch of individuals." "It was a lot of fun being part of a team that expected to win," said Mark Vandine.

With this new fighting spirit, Vandine said, "Beating Western was the best thing. It kept us rolling all through the season." Brooks most memorable point in the season was the last game. "It was the seniors' last game and we played so well. Some guys even had tears in their eyes," he said.

The Pirate defense gets set to stop the Lutes' offense.

Kickin' Grass

This year, once again, the Whitworth Men's Soccer Team excelled on the field, ending their season with a record of 17-3-1. They racked up impressive wins during the season over schools like Central Washington University.

One of the biggest wins for the Bucs was their victory over the University of Washington Huskies, ranked 15th nationally in the NCAA Division I. Coach Einar Thorarinsson said, "This was probably the most important game of the year." Other important wins placed Whitworth in the playoffs. Perhaps some of the team's strength was a result of the strong commitment felt by the players. "It's good to see the team coming together and peaking at the end of the season," commented Jon Wapstra in the Whitworthian.

The season came to an end in a game against Simon Fraser in a close 2-1 match that went into double overtime. The game was characterized by yellow cards—six were given in less than five minutes. Simon Fraser scored the winning goal in the second overtime, yet the Bucs agreed that it was a good and hard-fought game.

The men's soccer team will lose six seniors this year, including Pat Colleran, Dave Griepp, Jon Wapstra, Shaun Wagner, Rob Wilson and Britt Badham, leaving a hole in the team's defense for next season. "Thor(arinsson) is not going to have a bad team, though," said Britt Badham to the Whitworthian.

Keeping with Whitworth's tradition of excellence, the men's soccer team rose to the top and proved that Whitworth has what it takes to succeed.

Kicking the Competition

1990 began a new era for the Whitworth Women's Soccer Team. There were four powerful freshmen who combined with the strong core of upperclassmen to form a unified team. Their season record of 9-9-2 was a tremendous improvement over last year. According to John Gould, the assistant coach, "Their attitude towards learning was a lot higher. Instead of just playing, they played to win."

Senior Lynn Walker said of the team, "We were much more positive and that's going to carry over and be helpful in the future. You could tell our positive attitude by the improvement we made. Overall, it was a good note to end on, because it was a good year."

Looking to the future, freshman Lisa Hobbs said, "It was a year of realizing our potential-knowing that we can become the better team that we want to be."

"It was a good season. It had its ups and downs, but overall it was a fun year where a lot of new friendships began."

At a Competitive Level

Swimming is a difficult sport. Sometimes we don't think that it could be that rigorous, but unlike many other sports, the swimmers season is 6 months long. Coach Tom Dodd mentioned that the toughest time for the team is January, when some of the swimmers are gone taking classes elsewhere, or are experiencing new parts of the world.

This is coach Dodd's 4th year coaching at Northwestern. When asked what was distinct about this year, Dodd replied, "the Women's team is much improved due to several good recruits this year." One new recruit, from Hawaii, is Nati Blake. Dodd said of her, "Nati has really brought up the competitive level this year."

Dodd went on to say of the whole team, "The Guys is there, we just need some new recruits." According to Dodd, this was the best Women's year ever, and would have been the best Men's year also, but a key swimmer, Brandon Kroeger, had to take some time off to undergo treatment after discovering he had cancer during December. This was the focus of the team this year. Dodd said, "We miss Brandon and his leadership." Junior and teammate Todd Holdridge said of the team, "We had to get to know each other this year, we've grown together because of the situation with Brandon, and we've been able to get closer while we support each other."

Finally Coach Dodd said of the team, "We always have fun, we spend a lot of time sitting in vans and eating pizza."

The 1990 Whitworth Women's Volleyball Team produced an accomplished performance. With an overall eason record of 20-10, the Lady Pirates won their conference and made it to the second round of the district layoffs.

Though changing coaches within a winning team can sometimes wreck havoc, the women rose above that hallenge. Coach Margaret Campbell said, " . . . it was difficult to take over someone else's team (to get them o) respond to you or your philosophy."

The team members seemed to take it in stride. Kim MacDougall, sophomore, said, "Communication with he coach was a problem last year, but Margaret's patience was a great help. As a team we felt like we did really ell this year."

"Our first goal was to win each match in three games rather than five. Our overall season goal was to win Conference. After that was accomplished, we set our sights on District Playoffs," said Suzy Bennett, sophomore.

MYSTERY

Dear Professors and friends:

This is truly a momentous occasion to me. I apologize for not being able to attend in person, and it is with great honor that I accept your award.

Many years ago, I came to Whitworth, much like the freshmen students you see on campus today.

I was confused, you gave me direction.
I was frightened, you gave me encouragement.
I was poor, you lent me a helping hand.
I was lonely, and you invited me to your house.
I had nothing when I came. Through these memorable Whitworth years, you taught me, guided me and then launched me with a package of education with which I could go forth.

You have done it hundreds of times and you are still doing it today. You are doing it with personal sacrifice and you are doing it willingly. Students have come and gone and you have patiently given them the same kind of care you gave me long ago.

Your students have not forgotten you. In their quiet moments, they all know what you have done for them. I for one know you have expanded my horizon, and you have given me a good life. My regret is that I didn't start acknowledging my appreciation much earlier.

I am honored that you have allowed me to express my gratitude both as a generic graduate and as a specific person.

So thank you again for this award. It is meaningful and I shall treasure it for life. And I'll write again soon.

Respectfully, M.M.

MAN

a giving alum

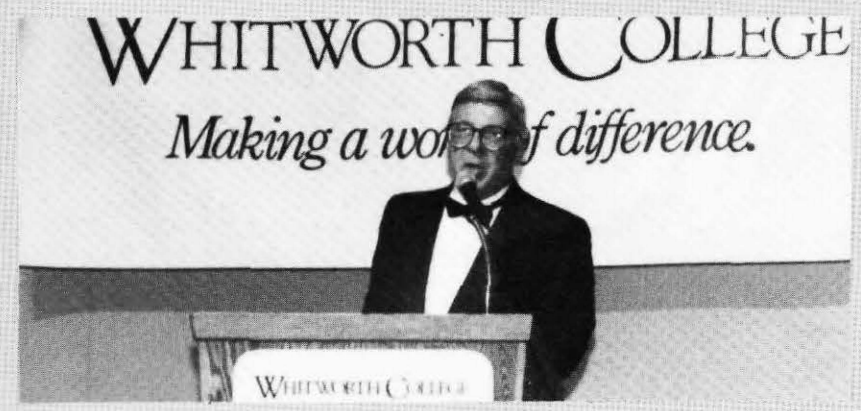
People attending the Homecoming Banquet were entertained by the music of Count Basie. Clipper Anderson and Dan Keberle were two of the performers in the Jazz Combo.

An alum who goes by the name "Mystery Man," or "M.M," has been giving gifts to professors and their spouses since 1988. The faculty members receiving gifts have been at the college for 20 years or more. This leads people to think the "M.M." graduated sometime in the 1960's. The professors also think he went into business in the Puget Sound area and now lives in the Seattle area, but no one is actively seeking to discover his identity. Mathematics Professor Howard Gage told the "Los Angeles Times", "The fun of it is to leave it the way it is. I have no intention of finding out. It would destroy the mystery of the whole thing."

At least 26 faculty members have been recipients of gifts including trips to England, Hawaii, Alaska and New Zealand. Professors have also received such things as imported coffee, Thanksgiving hams, cameras, exotic foods from distant cities, binoculars, art and calendars. He has also made donations to the school including $5,000 for laboratory equipment. It has been estimated that the Mystery Man has spent more than $150,000 on gifts so far.

"I do hope it's as much fun for him as for us," Psychology Professor Pat MacDonald told the "Spokesman-Review." "One never thinks this sort of thing will happen to you. And when it does happen, the effect is like magic."

Laurel Lindberg, a travel agent who has been the Mystery Man's Spokane contact, and her husband, Mike, accept an award for the Mystery Man at the Homecoming Banquet.



After the dinner, President Arthur De Jong greets the alumni and introduces the awards.

100 years and counting

Q: Tell me about your hobby, the ducks.

A: I've always worked with wood. My father taught me when I was young. It's in my family on my mother's side. To begin with, I made furniture, quite a few pieces. I've made five grandfather clocks, one for each of my children. My middle son started me on boat building and restoring. I've built an 18 ft. sailboat. I always liked waterfowl and I love art. The working with boats got me away from straight lines. I just started with the birds about six or seven years ago.

Q: Ducks are really one of my favorite birds.

A: Yes, they're wonderful. They're very meek and tender animals. There's beauty and innocence in their simplicity.

Q: Where's your favorite place to visit/vacation?
A: The coast of Maine. The northern California and southern Oregon coast. Glacier National Park. Joyce and I both like alpine hiking — snow capped mountains, lakes, evergreen trees, and wildlife. Photography is also a hobby of mine. We also like to visit our family when we can.
Q: Who's you favorite author and why?
A: I have several. Moris West, he graples, in novel form, with basic human issues. James Michener — epic stories about areas, I've read all of his books. I usually take mysteries to read on airplanes, sometimes Agatha Christie, but mostly James MacDonald and a Dutch author, Van Derwatering. He has a whole series of detective stories with always the same three or four characters.

Q: What do you find most interesting/unique about Whitworth?
A: Two things: it's Christian identity; and it's interesting mix between a diverse Christian faculty and a diverse student body, our openness in our M.O.

Q: What are some long-range philosophical goals you have for the college?
A: I don't know that I have any goals of that type. My goal is that in ten years, the level of the administration and fundraising will match the high-quality of academics and student life.

"We try to supply a positive, supportive atmosphere for all people that eat here, and especially for the people that work here. It is important for us that Whitworth is a Christian experience for all that go here. Whether it be eating in the dining hall or working for Marriott, we try to accomplish that goal." -Jim O'Brien, Marriott.

"I honestly feel I am here at the Lord's bidding. I feel very strongly about that. I have experience in construction, as well as leadership and management skills. The Lord put me here." -Ed Eccles, Physical Plant.

"We're not judgmental. We try to give an atmosphere of accepting people as they are. We're trying to promote this year wellness and being responsible for your health. God gave us our bodies and we need to take the best care of them we can." -Susan Minarik, Health Center.

"I was brought to Whitworth by the fact that Christians are called to the highest academic aspirations. We think it's important for a Christian institute to try to be academically high. We're there to support education and academic programs with commitment to Christian excellence. We like to think of ourselves as service-oriented, not just collecting books but helping people and serving them." -Hans Bynagle, Library.

This year, our tiny world called

Whitworth was marked by both lingering traditions and evolving transitions. As always, we saw a new class of freshmen join us behind the Pinecone Curtain. Yet the class was smaller than anticipated, and we felt the loss financially. "Budget cuts," "student retention," "national trends," and "faculty losses" became often-heard, and undesirable, catch-phrases. We learned the true meaning of paying for past debts. A young man took his life on campus this fall, startling and saddening his friends, and all of us. In February we lost another fellow student to cancer. Support was unbounding during these times of grief, and many of us became vividly aware of the importance of reaching out to others while we had the chance.

Several Whitworth students and alums began Eric's Fruit Stand, the controversial underground newspaper that did exactly as its editors intended; stirring up both support and opposition, and most importantly, action and reaction. While some applauded Eric's efforts, others were offended. Thus were its intentions fulfilled.

The Mystery Man continued his generosity, bringing much joy into the lives of faculty and staff members. He was honored at Homecoming, yet his "in absentia" acceptance meant he remained a well-loved intrigue. As is always true at Whitworth, multi-cultural studies flourished as students enjoyed time in the British Isles, Guatemala, San Francisco, Korea, and many other places. Dozens of Whitworth students were abroad when the Coalition war against Iraq broke out in mid-January; the possibility of terrorist acts aimed against Americans, or at random against civilians, brought some travelers home early. One of the new experiences of the year was discussion about and adjustment to the fact of war, a war which touched many of us directly..

Other treasured traditions - sports events, theatre performances, dorm activities, and worship opportunities carried on with the support and hard work of the people who got involved. Faculty and staff members continued the long tradition of dedicated methods of teaching and caring. The Harriet Cheney Cowles Memorial Library received two generous grants that enabled groundbreaking for the building's addition, and Student Life initiated a program that housed in-transition homeless people in the Village. As the outside community reached out to us, so did we respond to the community's call. Some of this meant sameness, while some of it meant flux and change. Traditions remained, and transitions began. As Whitworth strived to keep up with an ever-changing world in this, the school's one-hundred and first year of existence, it focused also and always on remaining true to the roots of its tradition.
